LOCAL LEGIONNAIRES GOING TO BOSTON CONVENTION

Harrison Morton Ward post No. 112, American Legion, members are planning to attend the big convention to be held in the Bean Town known as Boston, some time in October. The cry is now, "On to Boston!" That the Legionnaires are to meet in the east instead of the west, gives a good many a chance to attend a national convention and to see a big parade that will be about five miles long and take over eight hours before it will pass the reviewing stand where the president of the United States and several hundred people will review the ex-soldiers of the World war swinging their arms once more behind about 50 bands, keeping step like the day they marched down Fifth avenue, New York, on their way to the ship that was to take them to France to serve for the Red, White and Blue.

This fishing village by the sea expects to send 15 or more to the convention. Some claim that if they had to walk they would be on hand for the big gathering in Boston. Several have started saving pennies and dimes in the old tin box, for such a convention might not come this way in the next 20 years; and when it is almost at your back door yard, it is time to go and meet your buddies who have traveled in mud and rain in the long days "over there."

The meeting of the post was held Friday evening. A large crowd was sitting around the Legion room, listening to the orders that came from headquarters, giving the dope on the big time in Massachusetts—how much it would cost and what special trains will go from New York to Boston during the four days, also special rates. If work had been plentiful, a delegation about 38 strong would be there, but many Legionnaires are out of work and others are holding on to their money as it might be a hard winter and a long one.

The adjutant, Fred Rafuse, read the minutes of the last meeting and it was voted to accept them as read. Chaplain Franklin Rathbun read the prayer. Comrade John Morrison gave a short talk about the big time in Boston, saying not "to miss it, if you had to walk, or catch box car No. 24! I wish we could have all in uniform, but it is hard times and costs so much—but those who want to get a uniform can and wear it in the big parade that day."

So let's go to the big time in October. It is the coolest month and the marchers don't have to sweat—always a nice breeze blowing in that city. But you've got to take a guide along, for the Bean Town is hard to get around in—like a hub of a wheel; you meet yourself coming back in the same place.

Comrade Morrison was given a cheer by his buddies and the cry around the room was, "On to Boston! We will be there!" It sure was an interesting meeting with business done in the right way.

Sandwiches with coffee were passed around—sure tasted good on a September night. Several members stayed until a late hour and a smoke screen was going on while many war stories were told. When the big trip is over the Legionnaires can sit in the parlor of their homes, telling their grandchildren about the biggest convention ever held in Boston and what a "wonderful time was had by all."

In a great many cases the father-in-law of the man who claims to be self-made is the real architect.

AVERAGE DECLINE OF 4.4 POINTS IN 90 ISSUES IN STOCK MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—(P)—Financial markets, with the exception of domestic bonds, suffered another sinking spell today.

In stocks, the average decline of 4.4 points in 90 issues was larger than last Friday's break and carried the composite to the lowest level since August 14. Commodities and foreign exchanges were heavy. Some wheat futures and all of the active months in cotton reacted to new lows, while crude rubber and the October sugar position established new all time minimums.

The general weakness was ascribed largely to nervousness over various foreign situations, including disturbances in Chile, rumblings of unrest in Cuba and Uruguay and anxiety over conditions in Germany. Shares of companies having large foreign interests were particularly unsettled, but little or no liquidation from abroad was reported on the stock market, although some of the leading European exchanges were unsettled. The German mark went to a 1930 low and its weakness was accompanied by another drop in German bonds here.

Share prices worked lower from the opening but the selling was desultory until late in the session when the shorts became very active and succeeded in hammering pivotal shares, including U. S. Steel, to the lowest prices of the reaction. Sales in the last hour exceeded 1,000,000 shares and for the day totaled 2,332,655.

Wheat, rallying intermittently, finally weakened under the unfavorable announcement of an increase of nearly 4,000,000 bushels in the visible supply in this country, bringing the total to a record high at about 202,000,000 bushels. Closing prices were 1-4 to 1-8 of a cent net lower. Corn sagged in sympathy, losing 7-8 to 1 1-2. Cotton prices were the lowest of the season, closing off 9 to 13 points.

Professional operators for the decline were apparently working on the supposition that third quarter earnings statements, available next month, would be poor, if not the most unfavorable of the year. Selling was again vigorous in the steels, utilities and farm implement shares and losses of 2 to 4 points were numerous as a result of the late pressure. U. S. Steel dipped to 159 7-8, its lowest in some time, closing 160, a net loss of 3 7-8. American and Foreign Power, which has important foreign connections, was heavily sold and lost six points net. International Telephone, in a similar position, dropped to a new low for the year.

International Harvester also went under its previous minimum, yielding 4 points net, while Case tumbled 8.

Important stocks such as American Can, American Telephone, DuPont and Westinghouse Electric lost 3 to 4, and there were similar declines in Macy, Bethlehem Steel, United Aircraft, Electric Power and Light, Stone and Webster, American Power and Light and American Water Works. Sears Roebuck, Standard Oil of New Jersey, New York Central, Radio, General Motors and General Electric held their losses to a point or so.

The more spectacular drops were in Diamond Match, off 21, Allied Chemical, off 10, and People's Gas, off 12. Utah Copper, trading for the first time in several months, was quoted 28 points under the last sale. Stocks making new lows for the year included United Fruit, St. Louis-San Francisco, Republic Steel common and preferred Postal Telegraph preferred, Calumet, and Hecla and Curtiss-Wright.

Easiness in most of the continental currencies was nominal. The Dutch guilder was one of the few firm spots, holding around the year's high.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept. 22—(P)—Russia held the whip hand on grain prices today, offering large quantities of wheat abroad 10c a bushel lower than similar wheat from North America. But regardless of how much or little the Russian government was actually selling in speculative markets here or elsewhere, the outstanding fact was that Russia was making a price standard low enough to shut out competitors in Europe.

Meanwhile, northern American wheat export business today was virtually at a standstill, and the United States wheat visible supply mounted to a total never before equalled.

After outdoing bottom price records that reach back 24 years, the Chicago wheat market closed nervous, 1-4a5-8c a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 7-8a1 1-2c down, oats 5-8a 1 1-8c off, and provisions unchanged to 12c decline.

Provisions reflected declines in the value of hogs.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—(P)—Frederick B. Patterson, president of the National Cash Register Co., who is visiting the company's agencies in the southern and southwestern district, said that he had noted a "decided improvement in the mental attitude of merchants" everywhere, and that "business has taken a definite turn upward."

Sale of a New York Stock exchange membership at $300,000 has been arranged. The price is $1,000 lower than the previous sale announced last week and marked a decline of $100,000 from late in July, when a seat was sold for $400,000.

Offering is expected this week of an issue of $7,000,000 Tennessee Public Service Co. first and refunding 5 per cent bonds, priced at 96 1-2.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—(P)—The curb shared in the general weakness of security and commodity markets today and some broad declines appeared in active leading stocks. Total sales of about 550,000 shares were among the largest of the summer.

Utilities, specialties and industrials met considerable pressure and broke easily through their previous resistance points. Electric Bond & Share for example, dropped to 71 3-4, little more than a point above its year's low, but closed at 72 3-8, a net loss of 4 7-8.

There were declines of 1 to 4 points in United Light "A," United Gas, American Gas & Electric, American & Foreign Power warrants and Electric Power & Light warrants. Associated Gas & Electric "A" slumped a point to a new low for the year.

Technicolor, off about 5 points, Ford of England, down 2, and Walgreen, which broke 2 points, were other weak spots. American Aluminum lost 17 1-2 on a fairly large turnover, while Great Atlantic & Pacific, an inactive, tumbled 9 on a few sales.

Oils received fair support and losses in the group were largely fractional. Cities Service, Gulf and Humble eased only about half a point and the Standards were likewise steady. Missouri-Kansas Pipe and Lone Star Gas, in a group affiliated with the oils, were somewhat heavy.

Investment company shares also gave ground moderately. Insull Utility Investments, Goldman Sachs Trading and National Investors each sagged a point. United, Founders closed 3-8 lower.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—(P)—Activity in the bond market was at the high level of the year today as liquidation continued in the foreign list, inspired by uncertainty over the German situation and institutional inquiry held the domestic list on a firm basis.

The sharpest changes were in German municipals and industrials as investors continued to unload their holdings at sharp concessions under the previous final price. German International 5 1-2s and 7s, the two obligations of the republic most widely held in this country, sold off 2 1-4 and 2 points respectively to the lowest prices of the year on large turnovers. German bank issues, loans of various cities and some industrials suffered from the selling movement, many resting on new bottom at the finish. Losses ranged from 1 to 4 points. News of an attempted revolution in Chile which the new government reported was frustrated, depressed obligations of the Southern American republic, losses ranging from 1 to 2 1-2 points in a half dozen issues.

Weakness of stocks caused some selling of bonds with stock privilege features. The 4 1-2 per cent convertible of the International Telephone & Telegraph so duplicated the performance of the stock by sinking to a new 1930 low, on a 2-point drop. Debenture 5s also were weak and at a new bottom for 1930. American Telephone 4 1-2s lost 2 1-2. Atchison 4 1-2s, 1, and Warner Brothers sold down to 57 1-4, a new year's low.

The best demand in the domestic list was for high grade and second grade railroad issues and many reached new 1930 highs, some irregularity developed in the utility and domestic groups and both yielded some ground as reflected in the averages.

New highs in the rail group included Ann Arbor 4s, Atchison adjustment 4s, Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville & Nashville 4s, Brunswick & Western 4s, Canadian National 5s of 1929, Canadian Southern 5s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4s (Potts Creek division), Chicago, Burlington & Quincy 4s (Illinois division), Jamestown, Franklin & Clearfield 4s, Montana Central 6s, Pennsylvania construction 4s, Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington 4s, Rio Grande, and Western 4s, Savannah, Florida & Western 6s, Union Pacific 4s, and Western Maryland 5 1-2s.

U. S. governments were steady.

Broadway Theatre

"Last of the Duanes," the Fox Movietone production which closes its local engagement at Warner's Broadway today, furnishes rare screen entertainment. It is a Zane Grey story of adventure, of youth, of romance and of thrills, with action so absorbing that the audience is held at attention throughout. It depicts the risks, dangers, perils and romance of a handsome young outlaw.

George O'Brien gives the best performance of his career as the hero and Lucile Browne, who makes her screen debut in the picture is charming as the girl. The featured players are supported by a cast that includes many old favorites and some new film faces, notable among whom are Myrna Loy, Walter McGrail, Nat Pendleton, Lloyd Ingraham, Frank Campeau, James Bradbury, Jr., Duke Lee, Mitchell Harris and Willard Robertson.

The adaptation and dialog is credited to Ernest Pascal, whose reputation as a novelist and dramatist is well known, and the picture directed by Alfred L. Werker, is worth while seeing in our estimation.

LITTLE ACTIVITY NOTED ALONG BUILDING LINES IN CITY DURING THE PAST WEEK

Considerable progress has been made during the past week on building work in the city. With the cold weather due to set in during the next month or so, builders are rushing the work along to a stage where it will not interfere with the progress. During the past week a number of buildings in the city were completed.

The work on the addition to the United Congregational church is practically complete with the exception of the interior decorating and the installation of the electrical fixtures. Peck-McWilliams Co. is doing the work.

On McKinley avenue extension a new house at the upper end being erected by a local contractor is nearing the completion stage. The exterior work on the building is complete and the interior work is now being done.

Work of grading the grounds about the new County Home is being done at the present time. The exterior work on the school, the cottage and the main building is completed and the Providence contractors are at work on the interior finish

During the past week there were three building permits issued by Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft. The permits were as follows:

To Ida Telzonsky to make alterations to the present brick building at 1 North Thames street. The alterations will include the removal of a partition and the building of a partition wall in the center of the present store. When completed there will be two stores. The estimated cost is $200.

To Robert B. Mather to erect a two-car frame garage at 21 Carroll avenue. The garage will be 20x20 feet. The estimated cost is $600.

To Michael Tseslemis of Uncasville to erect a frame shed at 20 Central avenue. The shed will be 8x10 feet. The estimated cost is $40.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were seven sales of real estate in Norwich, just half the number of the corresponding week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $14,987 and $27,950.

In New London there were five sales of real estate last week as compared to 12 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $20,504 and $167,140.

NEW LONDON

Definite progress was indicated by the government this week in the announcement that all information necessary has been placed in the hands of governmental specification writers in connection with the extensive building program in the building of the new Coast Guard academy here.

A complete survey of the site has been made and this, together with the plans for the dozen old buildings, comprises the data, from which the specification writers will compile their specifications preparatory to the asking for bids from large contractors throughout the country.

It is understood that all speed possible is being made with the work so that the bids can be requested as soon as possible and the contract awarded for the work.

The specification job is a huge one, however, and it is now uncertain how long it will take to finish up this part of the work.

The specification lists will cover the following buildings for which plans have been prepared. Administration building, cadet barracks, academic hall, engineering hall, gymnasium and armory, enlisted men's quarters, boiler house, store house, observatory, superintendent's quarters, officers' quarters, wharf and boathouse

ONLY MODERATE PROGRESS MADE ON PUTNAM BUILDING

(Special to The Building)

PUTNAM, Sept. 22—This town's spirit to build in a nautical sense at the present, is becalmed and prospects this week like those of last, are that Putnam's sloop of construction will set no sails to the windward during the remainder of this month, at least. Local men interested in real estate activities see no immediate possibilities of a home building campaign getting underway at early dates. Their conclusions they say, are based upon the general unstable condition of business and the unescapable fact that winter is just ahead. However unsuitable conditions have been, a review of the spring and summer seasons of the year show there has been considerable progress made in building circles during these periods despite the prevalent adversities.

In the forefront of the ranks of the city's building era of 1930 is the imposing home of the Cargill Trust company, which is, without exaggeration, the finest banking structure existing in any community in New England, the size of Putnam. It was recently completed and fittingly dedicated to the communities which it serves a few weeks ago and now stands out as a monument of achievement to its designers and builders and a large asset to Putnam.

When delving into building progress in retrospect, it would be unfair to turn to another subject without mentioning the vast improvement wrought in Putnam's business center by the erection of the modern block owned by Charles Seder which stands on the corner of Main and Pomfret streets, in the heart of the city. The building, the largest in the city, is occupied by a nationally known retail organization, whose policies of gorgeousness in display lend a delightful air of the busy metropolis to that part of Main street, which was formerly dull and backward and becoming an age that has long since passed.

Lower Main street, which for a number of years has borne uncomplainingly, its share of spots of an unsightly nature, has not escaped the watchful eye of the contractor. As mentioned in last week's building despatch, a modern brick and steel garage, being erected for the Place Motor company of Webster, is fast nearing completion of this part of the business thoroughfare at the intersection of May street. The exterior of the imposing building is about complete, and workmen are now at work on the last stages of interior decoration. When finished, the block will constitute another noteworthy improvement along this way which was built up considerably during the past half year.

On Providence street, carpenters and plasterers are at work on the new two-story frame fraternal home being built for the local Polish Freedom club. The house has been under construction for a number of weeks during which time builders have made rapid strides in the trades march to completion.

On residential Woodstock avenue in the west side of the city, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Ryan, owners of property on the upper portion of this street, are having a modern eight-room frame bungalow home erected which they will occupy upon its completion. The work is progressing satisfactorily under the favorable weather conditions that have prevailed since ground was broken more than a month ago. The frame skeleton is already intact, its form giving promise that the house will be an attractive one when complete.

Although builders progress is being made on the foundation stages of the nurses home at the Day Kimball hospital on western Pomfret street, the changes which have taken place during the past week while important to those immediately concerned, are hardly noticeable to the layman observer. But in the opinion of the supervisor of construction the work is going ahead at a remarkable pace, giving rise to the supposition that it will not be many days before actual building on the home will be started. This structure is to be constructed of brick and steel and will have cast stone exterior trimmings.

Mayor Charles A. Richard said Friday that no applications for building permits have come to his attention during the month to date and unless prospective builders make written application before the next meeting of the common council, which takes place October 7, only permits for a few developments of a minor nature, will be issued by the city clerk.

FIREPLACE USED AS HEATING UNIT

The most marked advance in fireplace construction in hundreds of years is represented by a metal unit which in effect doubles the heating efficiency by heating a flow of fresh air and expelling it into the room.

This unit, in effect a shell, creates a chamber of steel behind the fireplace. Cold air enters this chamber through vents near the floor, passes over and around the hot metal of the firebox or backing, and out into the room again through vents higher up in the chimney breast. It can be fitted into any architectural scheme and materially reduces the masonry cost of the fireplace and chimney.

The chimney has always afforded free rein for the imagination of chimney masons and architects. Earliest reproductions of medieval structures have featured the chimney, and most sketches of present-day homes do likewise.

Much of the ornamental effect may be gained by the handling of the masonry units of which the chimney is built. The crowning motive, however, often essential for the complete success of this feature, is the chimney cap. This may be made of clay, terra cotta or Portland cement. The cap must be thoroughly cemented into the top of the masonry chimney, its diameter must be sufficient to prevent reducing the flue area below that of the chimney flue, and it must extend up above all the surrounding roofs.

PAINTED FLOORS GAIN POPULARITY

In finishing floors the wood and the type of room should govern the selection of the finish. Painted floors are growing more and more popular as the vogue for color in the home increases. Paint, in addition to giving individuality to a room, will conceal a marred or discolored floor and it may be used on a rough as well as on a smooth surface.

Varnish, which is an appropriate finish for any style of room, is generally used on hardwood floors to show their natural beauty to the best advantage. For a softwood floor, where the color and grain is poor, stain is often called upon, with one or two coats of varnish applied over it for durability.

HOME WATER PIPES NEED PROTECTION

It is a very good practice to install water pipes in your home in such a way that they will not be in danger from freezing. The customary method is to run such pipes up in partitions keeping them as far from the outside wall as possible.

There are certain times, however, when it is not possible to keep away from the exterior walls. Particularly is this true with kitchen sinks which are so often placed on outside walls under windows. Under these conditions the plumber will often run the water pipes up through the floor and leave them exposed in the room. There will be occasions, however, when these exposed pipes will prove objectionable, and then will have to go in the exterior wall. Under every such condition take the precaution to protect the water pipes from freezing by having them wrapped with asbestos pipe covering made for just such a purpose. This is always done in heating plants to prevent heat loss.

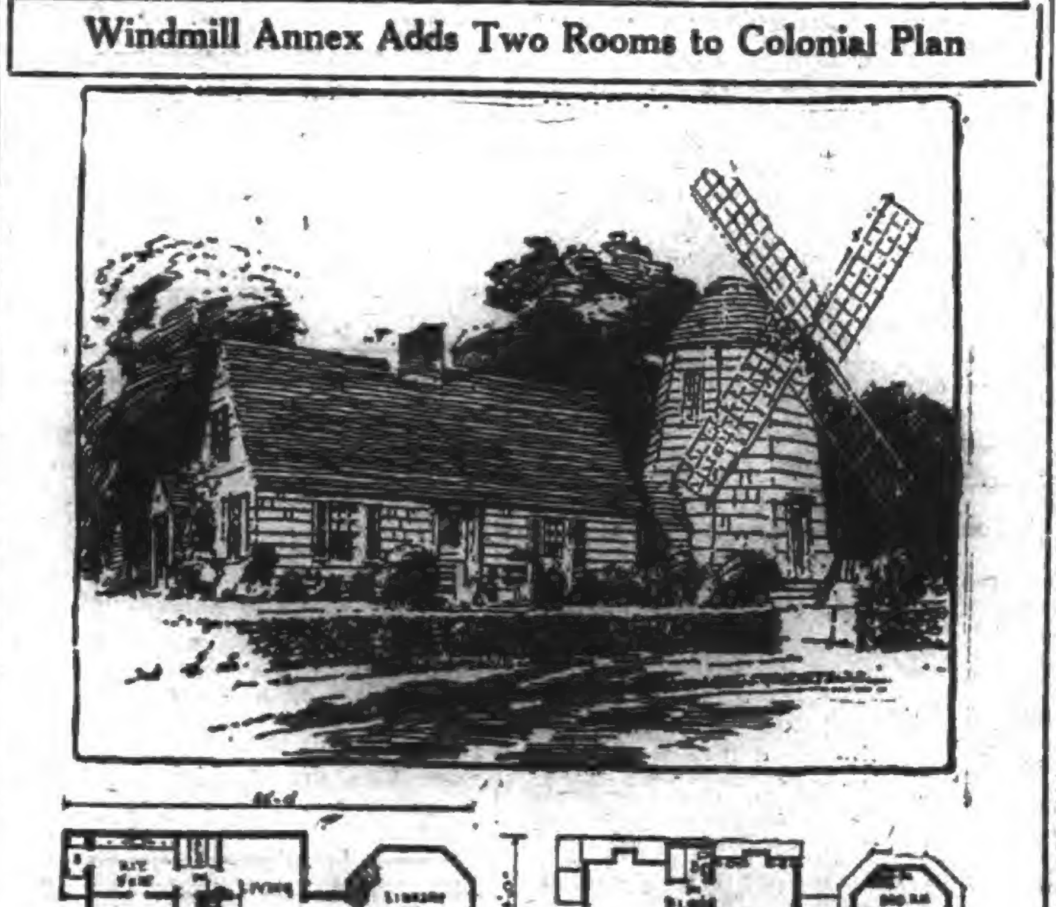
KITCHEN STOVE NOW ARTICLE OF BEAUTY

The perfect kitchen of today contains equipment which is as attractive as it is efficient. Color and design have entered into the culinary scheme to make the room step-saving and gay—even the kitchen range is a thing of beauty.

One gas range popular with home owners is of classic design and harmonious color combinations. When not in use its four gas plates are covered by a hood which gives the stove the appearance of a cabinet. With a black marble finish as its basic note, the range is trimmed with ivory enameled strips, with onyx-green bakelite handles and natural brass fittings.

An oven heat regulator gives the housewife a feeling of assurance that her baking will not be ruined. Other features which make for the efficient and convenient operation of the range and safety gas cocks which lock when they are turned off, eliminating the danger of children or persons passing the stove accidentally turning on the gas and burners in which the flame can be adjusted from a giant to a simmering light.

Windmill Annex Adds Two Rooms to Colonial Plan



This "windmill house" with its colonial design easily may be adapted to almost any part of the country.

And the windmill portion of the plan plays a very definite part in the facilities of the house itself, for its lower floor is utilized as a library or game room, while there is a bedroom on its second floor.

The plan for the house itself is typically colonial having a living room and dining room on either side of the hall, and two bedrooms on the second floor.

Instead of the usual porch on the front, there are two seats at either side of the entrance door. These are more in scale with the rest of the plan, while the porch at the rear entrance gives an added touch of distinctiveness.

A small passage has been designed to connect the living room of the house with the windmill.

Shingles are recommended for the exterior, with a brown shingle roof, dark in tone. Shingles on the walls should be painted white, with white sash and frame and green blinds at the windows. The chimney also should be painted white.

The front of the house should face west, and it might be placed on the long way of a lot measuring 50 by 100 feet but if placed the other way the lot should be 100 feet square to provide proper setting.

Construction costs probably would run between $8,000 and $10,000.

BOSWELL AVE. HOUSE RECENTLY COMPLETED

The above is a picture of the new house recently completed by Contractor Henry J. Montie of Thamesville. The house is located on Boswell avenue and is the second of three houses that Mr. Montie is to build in this section of the city, the first being completed several months ago. The third will be started within the next week or two.

The house is a two-story frame dwelling with six rooms and bath. The house is set on a concrete foundation with concrete underpinning. The exterior finish is in wide clapboards and shingles. The porch in the front of the building is finished in stained shingles. The interior finish is in hard finish plaster and hardwood floors and trim. The bath is finished in tile with many built-in features.

In the rear of the house is a single-car garage finished to correspond with the finish of the house. The house is heated by steam and the plumbing is in brass.

MODERN SCIENCE NOW BRINGS MANY CHANGES

Modern science and materials are bringing many changes into the kitchen of the homes as the mistress of the household seeks constantly for something that will save labor and give her more time to devote to other duties.

The progress that has been made in kitchen equipment can best be realized by a comparison between the compact, bright, efficient looking kitchens in newly erected homes and those vast, sooty, drab-looking workships of the woman of two generations ago.

Even such ordinary items of equipment as the work table has undergone evolution. The wooden apparatus covered with oil cloth that always wrinkled and tore and always was frayed at the edges has been relegated to the ash heap. Its most modern successor is a table topped with silvery white monel metal, a nickel copper alloy that will not rust and resists the action of food acids. It is difficult to stain and soap and water will suffice to keep it permanently bright and new looking. Being a solid metal it has no coating to chip or wear off and is unaffected by heavy blows or hot pans and dishes. Another feature of the white metal table top is its ability to harmonize with the light colors so much in vogue today.

JAPANESE HAVE KEEN APPRECIATION OF WOOD

In a dining room the lower part may or may not be paneled in wood. As in the library, wood may be used to advantage in a dining room, but never in a bedroom. Stain rather than paint should be used in finishing woodwork preferably green if the walls be painted green, old oak if they be brown, and always cherry if the walls be red. The stain is used only to protect the surface and brings out the qualities and beauty of the wood.

As Mr. Cram says, in his "Impression of Japan:" "To the Japanese, wood, like everything that possesses beauty, is almost sacred; and it is handled with a finesse of feeling that at best we reveal when we are dealing with precious marbles. From all wood that may be seen close at hand—except such as is used for rare and precious lacquer—paint or anything that may obscure the beauty of texture and grain is rigidly kept away."

DOLLARS AND CENTS LOST THROUGH RUST

The saving, it is stated, is brought about in this way. In the first 14 years in the life of the house brass pipe saves $421; copper rain-pipes, flashings and gutters save $338; use of bronze screen wire saves $101.

Not only are these metals economical as far as upkeep cost is concerned but they add beauty to a dwelling. The soft green patina of weathered copper and the golden tone of bronze blend in well with any exterior building material and roofing. Brass piping for hot and cold water lines ensures steady streams of clear water for bathing, laundering and cooking purposes.

AUGUST BUILDING REGISTERS DROP

Contract awards for new construction in New England during August totaled $28,167,500 as compared with $31,242,100 in 1928 and $33,459,900 in August 1929, according to F. W. Dodge corporation. The August 1930 contract record showed $11,460,000 for non-residential building, $8,882,100 for public works and utilities, and $7,825,400 for residential building. Of the non-residential total $3,025,300 was for commercial structures, $2,590,200 for educational buildings, and $1,915,500 for industrial plants. All other non-residential building contracts in August totaled $3,529,000. For the first eight months of 1930 new construction undertaken in this territory was valued at $242,905,100 as against $288,950,100 for the corresponding period of 1929.

New contracts for construction in Connecticut during August amounted to $5,461,800 as against $5,504,900 in July and $11,180,500 in August of last year, according to F. W. Dodge corporation. The past month's record showed $2,201,900 for residential buildings, $653,200 for commercial structures, $628,400 for educational buildings, $184,000 for industrial plants, and $169,700 for public works and utilities. All other non-residential contracts totaled $1,624,600 in August. New construction undertaken in Connecticut during the first eight months of 1930 amounted to $66,088,700 as compared with $81,166,900 in the corresponding period of 1929.

URGE BUILDING TO AID JOBLESS

The present unemployment situation in the United States can be relieved only if every one, according to his opportunities and resources, puts labor and money into immediate circulation. And since home building and home upkeep combine to make one of the greatest factors in American economics, they are an important means of alleviating unemployment.

If the prospective home owner who intends to put up a house next year will build now, he will be giving employment to men who need it badly today but may not be so much in need of it next year. Procrastination is going to help neither the home owner nor the laborer.

But perhaps the nest egg which the family has been saving for the new house is not quite large enough to supply all the expensive features that are desirable for a dream home. In such a case, to build substantially but simply during this period when building means so much to the economic welfare of the nation, and add the more expensive details later is a practical means of helping to save the situation.

This applies to renovation as well as to building. If the roof needs reshingling or the exterior paint coat is scaling and cracking, do the refinishing jobs now. Not only will the home-owner who attends to the needs of a house without delay be relieving unemployment but he will be protecting his house from the deterioration which neglect causes. Since much of the deterioration comes from weathering caused by inadequate paint protection, it is well for the home-owner to see that all the surfaces of his house, metal as well as wood, are painted periodically.

FOLDING DINING SET SAVES LIVING SPACE

One often finds in the small home or apartment where dining space is not provided that a drop-leaf table and the necessary chairs take up space which could be utilized to better advantage. It is possible, however, for a family to use the living room at meal-times and still not clutter it up with extra pieces of furniture.

A folding dining set, beautifully designed and finished, can be built into the wall of the living-dining room and brought out into the room only when needed.

In construction the set is reminiscent of the trestle table and benches of Tudor days, in appearance, when stained and finished, it will fit in with any decorative scheme. When a meal is over and the table dismantled the entire set folds back into its cabinet. Benches are hinged on the inside of attractive French doors and the table in its own compartment.

The doors with their beautifully proportioned panes of glass can be fitted with curtains that conceal the furniture from view and give the appearance of a built-in book case or china cupboard.

This model takes up a space five feet two inches wide by three feet eight and a half inches long—table top measures twenty-nine inches by forty-seven inches. A four-inch recess from the face of the plaster is required for installation.

INCREASED VALUE GIVEN TO HOUSES

Remodeling or modernizing of old houses has increased amazingly in the past few years. Worn, weather-beaten homes that have served their owners for years and are still in desirable locations are being given new beauty and greatly prolonged life at a cost that is well within the added value created.

Contractors and builders who formerly gave little or no attention to this end of the building industry are now in many instances specializing in modernizing work with the result that many houses that really detract from the value of the lots they occupy are now being remodeled into modern face brick homes or apartments at a fraction of the cost of new construction.

Beginning with the outside, minor changes are easily made to eliminate architectural features that are no longer in style, and a wall of face brick is built up to enclose completely the old frame. Such walls are identical with those that are used in new houses constructed with face brick veneer. The brick are fastened to the studs of the old house by means of wall ties in the mortar joints, which makes the wall as substantial as new construction.

Just as in building a new house, the owner has his choice of the wide range of colors in face brick offered on the market. Any shade from the lighter tones of gray, cream, buff, golden and bronze tints through the mellow greens, blues, reds and the darker maroons, browns and purples may be chosen. Even black face brick are available.

With a permanent overcoating of face brick over the old frame, and modern fittings in the interior, many old houses can be converted into up-to-date, comfortable homes or apartments that will have new beauty and new life. An added advantage is that the owner, should he ever desire to sell can ask and receive a price that will more than repay the cost of the remodeling.

LUMBER FIRST MATERIAL OF FRONTIER COMMERCE

Logs and lumber were the first abundant materials of commerce of the United States frontier. As the gold and silver mines laid the foundations of industry and commerce in uninhabited desert regions, so lumbering has fostered in the timbered areas of the north, the south and the west, a great American industry.

What cattle have done for the plains, wheat and corn for the prairies, and cotton for the south, lumber has done for the regions whose principal natural resources were their forests. Out of these has come the wealth which has facilitated commerce, has for generations sustained the largest sources of employment provided by any American industry, and has developed the diversified wood-using industries which have often succeeded the crumbling logging camp and the abandoned lumber mill.

NEW HOMES NEED CAREFUL PLANNING

Every prospective home builder believes his home will be the perfect one and if sufficient thought is given to every detail he will not be disappointed in this aspiration. For every phase of the construction of a home special provisions must be made in advance. If a heavy tile roof is to top the structure, stronger supports must be provided to hold it in place than would be needed for a lighter roof. And such is the case with seemingly less important items about the home.

It may appear to the layman that lighting fixtures are of minor importance and to be considered after the house itself is finished. If practiced, this erroneous theory often results in extra work and expense. For example, if the home builder wishes to install the slender type of electrical lighting equipment now so popular he must notify his builder. If he waits until after the house is completed the openings will probably be too large, necessitating special plaster work around each bracket.

CHEMICALS CHANGE TREE LEAVES' COLOR

Changing the color of the leaves on trees on one's private estate to please milady's fancy may become a fad of the future.

It is well within the realm of possibility to change the color of the leaves, according to Martha L. Davey, head of the Davey Institute of Tree Surgery. Already scientists of the Davey institute have succeeded in changing the leaves of a number of trees from green to red. The phenomenon is accomplished by injecting chemicals into the tree's trunk.

"The secret of changing the leaves' color was discovered by accident," Mr. Davey said. "Our scientists have been working for years to find a way to inoculate trees to kill insect pests and prevent disease. Many different chemicals have been used. It was found that one of them made green leaves red.

"Inasmuch as it is not our purpose to try to outdo nature in providing a color scheme for the great outdoors, we have not tried to go further along this line. But we have preservered in our efforts to control insects and disease by inoculation and we have every reason to believe that some day we will succeed. Until the process of inoculation by injection has been perfected, we will continue to control disease and insect pests by the spraying methods which we have perfected in our laboratories."

THERMOSTAT NEEDS CARE

If your house is oil heated and the burner automatically controlled by a thermostat, don't play tricks with it. Don't try to find out what will happen if you rub a piece of ice against it or hold the tea-kettle nozzle up close. Also, don't change the temperature requirment unnecessarily. The thermostat is the heart of an automatic heating plant and should be treated with the respect due its job.

EGYPTIAN BATH MOTIF

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK
OCTOBER 5—11
IT PAYS TO OBSERVE IT

AGAIN by proclamation, the President of the United States and the Governors of the states declare the importance and significance of Fire Prevention Week. This year it is the week of October 5-11. Communities which have earnestly observed Fire Prevention Week have profited by substantial reductions in the number and amount of fire losses occurring within that week and the period immediately following it.

Year-round Program in 700 Cities

Under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, more than 700 cities are competing in continuous programs of fire prevention and protection. In these cities Fire Prevention Week is merely the occasion for a fresh yearly start.

Civic organizations, realizing that preventing the destruction of existing industrial plants is just as important as the winning of new enterprises for the community, are giving the fire prevention movement a constantly increasing measure of support.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

represents highly organized facilities for the encouragement of this work. These have been extensively used and are constantly available, without charge, to any individual, organization or community.

Comprehensive fire prevention campaigns have become decided factors in enhancing personal and material safety in this country. It will pay you to take an active part in such worthy efforts.

POETRY

Music Of The Night

There are harps that complain to the presence of night,
To the presence of night alone—
In a near and unchangeable tone—
Like winds, full of sound, that go whispering by,
As if some immortal had stooped from the sky,
And breathed out a blessing—and flown!

Yes! harps that complain to the breezes of night,
To the breezes of night alone;
Growing fainter and fainter, as ruddy and bright
The sun rolls aloft in his drapery of light,
Like a conqueror, shaking his brilliant hair
And flourishing robe, on the edge of the air
Burning crimson and gold
On the clouds that unfold,
Breaking onward in flame, while an ocean divides
When he cuts a bright path through the heaving tides,
Rolling on, and erect, in a charioting throne!

Yes! strings that lie still in the gushing of day,
That awake, all alive, to the breezes of night;
There are hautboys and flutes, too, forever at play
When the evening is near, and the sun is away,
Breathing out the still hymn of delight;
These strings by invisible fingers are played—
By spirits, unseen and unknown,
But thick as the stars, all this music is made:
And these flutes alone,
In one sweet dreamy tone,
Are forever blown,
Forever and forever.
The livelong night ye hear the sound,
Like distant waters flowing round
In ringing caves, while heaven is sweet
With crowding tones, like halls
Where fountain-music falls,
And rival minstrels meet.

—John Neal.

The End Of Summer

What brought you here
To such a dark way,
Beautiful traveller
Of June's yesterday?

Have you grown weary
And suddenly older
That your lovely bright head
Should droop on that shoulder?

Glad that your journey
With Death for a lover
Will lead to an ending
No dawn can uncover?

Beautiful traveller
Of June's yesterday,
Has Death grown so charming
That you can not stay?

—Cecilia Maloney, in Detroit News

Hubby (shopping with wife)—How would this cloth do for your new dress?

Hubby—Well here's something else. How's this?

Mr. Jones had just returned from the office and was introduced to the new nurse, who was astonishingly pretty.

"She is sensible and scientific, too," said Mrs. Jones, "and she says she will allow no one to kiss the baby while she is near."

"No one would want to," replied Mr. Jones.

"Indeed!" snapped the fond mother.

"I mean, not while she is near," faltered the father, endeavoring to make things better.

The nurse did not stay long.—Exchange.

E. FRANK MORGAN, TAXPAYERS' LEAGUE CANDIDATE, TO BE NEW LONDON MAYOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 22—The final city election for the choice of members to the city council, board of school visitors and board of selectmen was held today. The Taxpayers' league, which had three candidates in the field, for the office of member of council and two candidates for member of the board of school visitors, won the election of but one of their candidates, for the former office, E. Frank Morgan. He was mayor of the city under the old municipal form of government and at the time when the present form of government became effective. He obtained the highest number of votes today, hence will be the next mayor. He was the only candidate endorsed by the league to be elected a member of the council.

The league gained the election of two members to the board of school visitors, William T. May and Cecil Caulkins. Mrs. Rosemary O. Anderson, a member of the board for several years, was defeated.

GEO. H. HAYES STRICKEN— DIES FROM HEART ATTACK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 22.—George H. Hayes, about 48, residing at 79 Lincoln avenue, died suddenly at Lawrence-Memorial hospital this morning, death following after he had been stricken with a heart attack. He 's survived by his wife, Mrs. Helene Flynn Hayes, his mother, Mrs. Mary Moran, of Huntington street, and by two brothers, Robert Hayes, of Newport, R. I., and Edward Hayes, who moved from the city several years ago.

Mr. Hayes, who was employed as salesman by the S. N. Ellis Co., was on Washington street about 10:30 o'clock and when opposite Palmer Bros. mill he was stricken, collapsing on the sidewalk. He was taken to a nearby building and then rushed to the hospital, where he died in an hour. Mr. Hayes' health had been impaired for a long time and about a year ago he was a patient at the hospital for a chronic kidney complaint, and it is believed that this malady aggravated his heart action.

NEW LONDON, Sept. 22.—Joseph Nemeny, submarine base sailor, injured in an automobile crash Friday night, may die as a result of his injuries, for Saturday it was revealed that the sailor has a fractured neck. As a result of the seriousness of the injury, Nemeny was taken to New York today, leaving here on the 11:01 express, then being transferred to the Naval hospital at Brooklyn. Nemeny was driving a Chevrolet on the New London-Norwich highway and was headed towards New London. When between Gallows lane and Bolles' hill, the auto sideswiped a truck of the First National stores, driven by Joseph Lombardo, of Wilson, Conn., and then hit a car driven by Eugene Taylor, U. S. coast guard. When taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital by a passing autoist, Nemeny was said to be suffering from lacerations and bruises and, his wounds being dressed, he was removed to the sick bay at the submarine base. Firemen Buy Clubhouse Site

Konomoc Hose company has voted to purchase two building lots in Waterford and the deed transferring title in property owned by Frederick L. Goss, Bolles' cove, is being drawn. It will be filed for record with the city clerk this week. The lots border on Bolles' cove and a large clubhouse will be erected on the site. During the progress of the fire department combating the flames that destroyed the pier and boiler house of the Central Vermont railroad, Winthrop's cove Sunday afternoon, a high wind prevailed and sparks were carried to the roof of a dwelling at 32 Harrison street. When shingles were ignited an alarm was rung in from Box 12, and two pieces of apparatus were taken from the pier fire and assigned to the dwelling fire. Chemicals were used in extinguishing the blaze, no damage of consequence resulting.

A third fire broke out during the afternoon. Boys playing with matches in Bates' wood caused the underbrush to be ignited with the result that a lively blaze was started. A still alarm to police headquarters caused Ockford Hose company to go to the city's tract and a large quantity of chemicals was necessary to quench the fire.

Two Fires Monday

Early this morning two more fires were discovered and it is believed that both were started by malicious youths. At 1:06 a still alarm was received at headquarters when the interior of a car of New York registration, on Blinman street, was discovered burning. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds responded and the fire was extinguished with chemicals. The upholstery was extensively damaged. About a half hour afterwards a pedestrian in passing through Coit street discovered the automobile owned by Floyd Zorens ablaze, for the upholstery had been ignited. An alarm was sent in from Box 33 and four pieces of apparatus responded. Chemicals in this instance sufficed to extinguish the fire. It is believed that youths threw lighted cigarettes into the interior of the autos. Both fires were exactly of the same nature and the autos were parked within three blocks of each other.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

The one great heart-rending novel of the war, "All Quiet on the Western Front" has been adapted into a powerful and swift moving picture and in line with its long established policy the Palace theatre has secured this picture for its patrons and is now exhibiting it before packed houses. The film, which was first presented on Sunday, will be continued through Wednesday of this week.

Everyone who has seen "All Quiet on the Western Front" is agreed that the picture is terrifying. They agree also that it is a drama of horror and that it brings the battlefield home with devastating force. They agree that the action may not be delicate enough to suit people accustomed to a drawing room atmosphere. There is rough talk in the picture and rude, coarse action, but they agree also that it is tremendously real and vital.

The author of the novel and the producer of the picture have struck a fearsome note. Here is drama in the raw — the muddy shell torn trenches, the tired, sweat-stained troops, the blood and filth and carnage ad despair of that most desolate of places, the modern battlefield.

We watch Paul Baumer, a gentle but courageous lad of eighteen or nineteen, lay aside his school books to join the German army. We go with him through the rigorous training period. We see him mistreated by a brutal and cowardly sergeant, and at length, we watch with fascination while he and battalions of other lads like him, trained firm and erect, set out in long steel-tipped lines for the front.

Starting Thursday, the Palace presents a double feature bill: "On Your Back," starring Irene Rich and H. B. Warner, and "Oh Sailor, Behave," with Irene Delroy, Charles King, Lowell Sherman and Noah Beery.

Perfect baking
Calumet's DOUBLE-ACTION
has come to town

YOU and your neighbors will be sure of perfect results in your baking from now on. For Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder, has come to town to help you with all your baking.

Calumet's first action—in the mixing bowl—starts the better rising. Its second action—in the oven—sends the cake or biscuits right up and holds them there until they are perfectly baked, light and fluffy—even though you may not be able to regulate your oven temperature accurately. No wonder Calumet has become the most popular baking powder in the world!

Only One Level Teaspoon of Calumet to a Cup of Sifted Flour!

That's the usual Calumet proportion. Be sure to follow it even though you may have been using nearly twice as much with other baking powders. You'll be delighted with this economy! And more than delighted with the results Calumet gives you. Perfect texture! Perfect flavor!

All baking powders are required by law to be made of pure, wholesome ingredients. But not all are alike in their action. Not all will give you equally fine results in your baking. Calumet is scientifically made of exactly the right ingredients, in exactly the right proportions to produce perfect leavening action—Double-Action. Get a can of Calumet from your grocer today. Notice Calumet comes in full-sized one pound cans.

MAKE THIS TEST—See for yourself how Calumet Baking Powder acts twice to make your baking better. Put two level teaspoons of Calumet into a glass, add two teaspoons of water, stir rapidly five times and remove the spoon. The tiny, fine bubbles will rise slowly, half filling the glass. This is Calumet's first action—the action that takes place in your mixing bowl.

After the mixture has entirely stopped rising, stand the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. In a moment, a second rising will start and continue until the mixture rises to the top of the glass. This is Calumet's second action—the action that takes place in your oven. Make this test today. See Calumet's Double-Action which protects your baking from failure. © 1930, G. F. Corp.

WESTERLY WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN BATHROOM; GAS ODOR WAS STRONG

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Sept. 22.—The dead body of Mrs. Alice E. Stedman, 63, wife of Joe Stedman of the Stedman Press, was found this afternoon in the bathroom of her home, a second floor apartment at 87 Main street. There was a strong odor of gas in the room, but the gas jet to which a tube was attached had been turned off before the police arrived.

Mr. Stedman and his bookkeeper, Mrs. Evelyn Main, 30, were under questioning by the police tonight.

The first known of Mrs. Stedman's death, as reported to the police, was when neighbors were aroused and Mr. Stedman was seen rushing from the house with the announced purpose of attempting to get Drs. John Champlain, senior and junior. Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called and was first to arrive at the house and, ascending to the second floor, detected a strong odor of gas. He made his way to the bathroom where Mrs. Stedman was found stretched out on the floor with her feet toward the door. A hasty examination led to the belief that she had been dead for some time, possibly an hour or so.

Police Lieut. George H. Champlin was notified and went to the house, along with Police Officer Robert Kessell, the latter meeting Mrs. Evelyn Main, who is employed at the Stedman Press and lives at the Stedman home. Her home was originally in Canada and she came to Westerly, where her husband, Edward Main, was reported to have deserted her. She was the first to find the body. She said to Kessell that she was on the way to the police station to report the matter. About two months ago there was domestic trouble and Mrs. Stedman had her husband in third district court, charged with violent assault. When asked by Judge Williams if there was any chance for a reconciliation, she declared, "No he had threatened to kill her." Before this she had testified that either she or Mrs. Main would leave the Stedman home. This affair happened about two months ago, just after she returned from a visit with her son in New York city. She is Stedman's second wife, coming to Westerly from Lebanon, Conn.

Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown visited the home and took charge of the investigation. Upon his orders, Joe Stedman is held at the Westerly police station tonight, and also Mrs. Main, but she is expected to be released later tonight. At the direction of Chief of Police Brown, photographs were taken before the body was disturbed or anything moved.

Mrs. Stedman kept boarders and one of her boarders, Benjamin McIntyre, was in his room on the third floor, and told the police he had occasion to go to the bathroom at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Stedman and Mrs. Main tell the story that they left the home at 1 p. m. to go to the printing shop, Stedman leaving the house soon after Mrs. Main.

Police investigation also revealed that Stedman was away from the printing shop shortly after 4 o'clock this afternoon. The police authorities are convinced, it is understood, that if Mrs. Stedman had taken gas with suicidal intent, she would have been unable to turn the gas off or to be found in the position she lay on the bathroom floor.

SETTLEMENT IS MADE FOR WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

Settlement of a disputed workmen's compensation claim has been made by Commissioner A. J. Bailey in the case of Charles Shutt, of Terrace avenue, Taftville, an employe of Ponemah mills. The employe is to receive the lump sum of $28.50, which represents four weeks compensation at the rate of $7.37 and will also have his hospital and medical bills paid.

While employed by the Ponemah mills at Taftville on or about June 19 Shutt claims that he sustained an injury in the region of his left groin while lifting warps, which injury resulted in disability starting June 23. Because of a difference of opinion between the parties as to the exact nature of the injury and the question of whether the disability resulted from the alleged injury or from a physical condition not attributable to his employment it was agreed to settle the matter.

BALTIC ACADEMY SENIORS ELECT CLASS OFFICERS

On the ninth of September, the Academy of the Holy Family, Baltic, opened wide its portals to incoming students. The usual quiet of the academy was wondrously transformed as the nuns welcomed the merry invaders and bade them take possession of their convent home. Reception rooms, library, and corridors re-echoed happy greetings as the girls espied smiling sisters and enthusiastic classmates.

The academy pupils on their return to school after the long holiday recess found that, while they were enjoying vacation the faculty at the academy had been busy adding to the already well equipped departments. The gymnasium had been enlarged to twice its former size, while the walls throughout the school had been redecorated with modernistic patterns. The former pupils were so busy in "doing their bit" to make the new students feel at home that the seniors did not find leisure for their class meeting until Sept. 17.

The meeting was called for the purpose of electing new class officers and of choosing various committees who will conduct the many social activities of the school during the coming year. Several pertinent questions were discussed and plans made for an outing to be held at Ocean Beach in the near future.

The following class officers were elected:

The committee in charge of assembly exercises consists of Yvonne E. Benac, Taftville; Muriel E. Gervais, Waterbury; Annette M. Eisele, New Britain; Rose Maderese, Westerly, R. I. Entertainment committee—Hostess, Mary Diamond, Meriden; decorations, Mary Appleman, Stonington; refreshments, Ruth Picard, Westerly, R. I. The elected staff of "The Beacon Light," the academy monthly publication is as follows: Editor in chief, Yvonne E. Benac, Taftville; assistant editor, Virginia L. Bonenfant, Hartford; social editor, Mary E. Diamond, Meriden; library department, Maureen V. Quinn, Versailles; poetry department, Muriel Gervais, Waterbury; art department, Rose Maderese, Westerly, R. I., and Annette Eisele, New Britain; interclass department, Jane Russl, Jewet City; Ruth Picard, Westerly, and Rose Maderese, Westerly, R. I.; joker, Genevieve Evans, Plainfield; business manager, Isabel Barranes, New York.

The seniors are very numerous this year and, at present, the graduating class of 1931 promises to be the largest one in the history of Baltic academy.

WILLIMANTIC TOWN CLERK, RENOMINATED, WITHDRAWS HIS NAME UNDER CRITICISM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 22.— Frank P. Fenton notified Valentine L. Murphy, chairman of the democratic town committee tonight that he was withdrawing from the race for town clerk in the town elections Oct. 6. He had been renominated by acclamation at the recent democratic caucus to succeed himself to the positions of town clerk and town treasurer, which he has held for 31 years. Town Clerk Fenton, who was endorsed ten times by the republican party in his continuous capacity as town clerk, has been a political and civic leader in the community since the closing of the Spanish-American war, in which he served. He was candidate for lieutenant governor some years ago. The only reason for his resigning from the candidacy given by him was the criticism leveled at his office. Books of the town clerk and treasurer, as well as all other books of town officers, are now undergoing an intensive audit by certified public accountants, the audit being scheduled to close Nov. 15, having started several weeks ago.

Committee Chairman Murphy stated that he would at once call a meeting of the town committee which has the power to appoint a candidate in the event of a vacancy and speculations on the street at once turned to the possible action of this meeting.

SLEW RAILROAD PRESIDENT THEN COMMITTED SUICIDE

Dudley G. Gray, Vice President of the Western Maryland Railway Company, Shot President Byers—Shooting Took Place on the Fifth Floor of a Downtown Office Building in Baltimore—Associates of the Two Men Say They Had Been at Odds For Some Time Over the Policies of the Company—Crime Was Committed Behind Locked Door.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 23—(AP)—Locked in his office, Maxwell C. Byers, president of the Western Maryland Railway company, was shot to death today, and Dudley G. Gray, vice president in charge of traffic, was fatally wounded.

Gray, police and the coroner said, apparently shot Byers and then took his own life with the one pistol that was found in the room.

The shooting took place shortly before noon in the company's general offices, on the fifth floor of a downtown office building. A few feet away from the partition surrounding the president's office were a number of stenographers and other employes but none heard any quarreling before the ten or more shots rang out.

Associates of the two men, who declined to permit their names to be used, said they had been at odds for months over the policies of the company.

Gray died four and a half hours after the tragedy, with but two cryptic words of explanation. Asked by a clerk, who forced his way into the room, who did the shooting, he muttered: "That's obvious."

Byers was shot eight times, once through the heart. Gray was shot twice, a bullet near his heart causing his death at Mercy hospital this afternoon.

Three minutes before the startled office workers heard the shots, J. W. Stringer, a special representative of the railroad president, walked out of the office. Gray had just come in. Stringer said the two started to converse quietly and seemed on the most amiable terms.

Byers, who was 52, became a prominent railroad figure in 1922 and again in 1925 when he adopted an uncompromising attitude toward striking shopmen and engineers of his road.

He was a native of Pittsburgh and is survived by his widow and five sons.

Byers had been president of the Western Maryland, which derives much of its revenue as a coal carrier from the fields of Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia, since 1920. He had also been chairman of the board since 1926.

The road operates 877 miles of trackage, 548 of which are owned outright. It is controlled by the Baltimore & Ohio, but under the consolidation plan of the interstate commerce commission would be part of the Wabash-Seaboard Air Liner system.

Gray, born at Columbus, Ohio, in 1869, had been connected with the Western Maryland since 1913. His widow who was Catherine Gertrude Leonard, collapsed at the hospital.

The two men had been associates even before their services with the Western Maryland. When Byers was a division engineer with the Baltimore & Ohio in 1904, Gray was a division freight agent for the same road.

Baltimore bankers and others who knew both men said that for months there had been a noticeable and growing antagonism between them. Minor railroad officials said they had had several stormy conferences in recent months.

Police were told in recent weeks they had been at odds over litigation in which the Western Maryland was involved.

Charles E. Belt, working in the outer office, dashed into a corridor that separates this from the president's office, as the last shot was fired. The police report said, the door to Byers' office was locked, and Belt, peering through a bullet hole, saw Gray trying to rise.

Forcing the door, he found Byers on his back dead, and Gray, several feet away, bleeding. Beside Gray lay a .32 calibre pistol, and this Belt said he picked up and placed in a drawer in Byers' desk. Then he asked Gray who did the shooting.

"That's obvious," was the muttered reply.

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 23—(AP)—The 'Black Hand" today was injected into the picture of the $400,000 to $500,000 shortage that has closed Tomaino Brothers private bank here.

Joseph Tomaino, president of the institution now in the hands of state banking officials, appearing in city court for arraignment on a technical charge of forgery, second degree, said masked Black Hand gangsters had bled him of "thousands" throughout his 30 years in the banking business.

"All the money I am short was stolen from me," he shouted to the court, "by the Black Hand".

"I want to be in jail all my life. Only that way will my customers be satisfied I haven't got any money kept on the side to have a good time. I haven't a penny myself."

Later in his cell at the police station he said masked men had met him repeatedly at a side door of the bank and took "thousands". These men, he said appeared at the institution after he received notes signed merely with a black hand, that demanded surrender of funds.

Clarence Oullette, of Fitchburg, Mass., driver of the loaded beer truck which led police to the Budovsky establishment, and Jack Goldstein, driver of the car which convoyed the truck, were each sentenced to jail for three months. Although Budovsky shouldered all responsibility for the beer found in his malt and hops store in Norwalk, his younger brother, Gordon, 26, still under bonds awaiting disposition of his case on a like charge.

LINDBERGH GETS PICTURE OF NUNGESSER'S PLANE

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindberg today received from the French air ministry a picture of Capt. Charles Nungesser's ill-fated airplane "The White Bird" in which the famous French ace flew to his death somewhere over the north Atlantic.

The picture was brought from Paris by Col. W. E. Easterwood, Jr., Dallas, Tex., business man and aviation enthusiast who is here to present to Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte the $25,000 check they won for being first to fly from Paris to Dallas.

The picture was autographed by Coste, Bellonte, Rene Fonck, who made several unsuccessful attempts to get away on an Atlantic flight and William Coppens, Belgium's ace of aces. Coste and Bellonte signed the picture shortly before they took off on their successful flight which followed the trail of Nungesser and his companion Francois Coli attempted to fly.

ATTEMPTED TO BRING LIQUOR TO PRISONER

HARTFORD, Sept. 23—(AP)—Prohibition is being enforced in at least one place here—the police lock-up.

Tonight Mrs. Columbia Anderson, 39, and Russell Ford, 36, both Negro, paid a visit to an old friend, Benjamin Davis, 36, who is in the lock-up on a stabbing charge. They brought with them a basket of food and a bottle of warm brown liquid, presumably coffee.

But the coffee smelled peculiar.

A policeman sniffed, investigated.

Tomorrow the pair of visitors will be arraigned in police court on a seldom invoked charge, that of attempting to bring liquor to a prisoner in jail. The charge carries a maximum fine of $200 and 30 days in jail.

BODY FOUND NOT THAT OF MAGISTRATE CRATER

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—(AP)—For a brief time today officials believed they had found a gruesome answer to the mysterious disappearance of Supreme Court Justice Joseph F. Crater, but the case was soon back on its old footing of complete mystery.

A body that drifted ashore at Fort Wadsworth on Staten Island tallied in some particulars with the description of Justice Crater. For one thing the right index finger was mutilated and Justice Crater was known to have injured his right index finger shortly before he disappeared Aug. 6.

But a doctor from the medical examiner's office established that the damage to the finger found today was done after death while it floated in the bay. And it was also determined that the body had a full set of teeth, whereas Justice Crater had none.

AVIATORS MAKE NEW USE OF BROADCASTING STATIONS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—(AP)—Naval aviators have discovered a way to use broadcasting stations without having to listen to them.

Visibility was poor and the path across Manhattan led through considerable smoke and haze. Compass bearings taken by Commander Duncan on the station led him directly to Boundbrook.

"Blind flying" navigation by this method is being studied in the naval aeronautic section of which Commander Duncan is the head.

TIENTSIN, China, Sept. 23—(AP)—It was estimated today that 60,000 Fengtienites have marched toward Peiping but the Tientsin administration had not yet been taken over by the Manchu authorities and the Shansi officials continue to hold office pending arrival of their successor.

ALL-EUROPEAN COMMITTEE TO STUDY BRIAND'S SCHEME

GENEVA, Sept. 23—(AP)—Securely within the structure of the league of nations Aristide Briand's scheme for a federation of European states took another brief step forward today through the organization of an all-European committee of study to inquire into its possibilities.

Under instructions from the league assembly, a special committee of European diplomatic representatives met for the first time in the league council's glass-walled chamber. The French foreign minister, father of the idea, was chosen to be the first chairman of the group which numbers the spokesmen of 27 nations.

Binding his committee still closer to the league and to the idea of universality, M. Briand designated Sir Eric Drummond, chief of the league's secretariat, to be the secretary of the new committee. The committee agreed to the chairman's suggestion that his memorandum of May 17 in which he set forth fully his ideas of European cooperation under political direction, together with the government's replies thereto, should be used as the first text book.

The committee decided to assemble for the first regular session next January at the time of the council session, thus in launching its study the group tied itself with several bonds to the league organization, thereby intending to banish the fears of those who felt that such a European union might be in some manner against the interests of another continent or country.

PROHIBITION TO BE ISSUE AT N. Y. STATE REP. CONVENTION

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 23—(AP)—Delegates to the republican state convention, gathering one by one tonight, found prohibition had thrust its way to the fore of all other party issues.

Two questions appeared to demand the major attention of the delegates—Whether the party's gubernatorial candidate should be wet, dry or undefined and whether the platform to be adopted at the convention beginning Thursday should advocate repeal of the 18th amendment.

The name of Charles H. Tuttle, United States district attorney, remained in the vanguard of the potential candidate list tonight, but the fact that comparatively few delegates were present lessened the value of the frequent hotel lobby discussions of his candidacy. Tuttle's emphatic advocacy of repeal of the eighteenth amendment quarters to the idea that he would run as a gubernatorial candidate if a repeal plank appeared in the platform.

INSURGENTS FAIL OF THEIR PURPOSE IN CHILE

SANTIAGO DE CHILE, Sept. 23—(AP)—The Aroy, which enemies of President Carlos Ibanez had hoped to turn against him, was declared to day by General B. Blanche, minister of war, to be absolutely loyal to the government.

General Blanche said he had received assurance of the loyalty of the troops at Conception, where General Enrique Bravos and Col Marmaduque Grove, retired army officer, had hoped to start a revolution. General Bravos, Col. Grove and three Chilean civilians as well as two American aviators who had brought them from Argentina were arrested.

The five Chileans and two Americans were closely guarded today as plans proceeded for early court martial of those against whom the government may find evidence of military conspiracy.

HIGHEST ETHIOPIAN HONOR CONFERRED ON MUSSOLINI

ROME, Sept. 23—(AP)—Premier Mussolini, the wearer of many orders, has a new ribbon to put over his chest.

It is the Grand Cordon of Solomon the highest Ethiopian honor, which was conferred today by Emperor Haile Sellassie I—Ras Tafari of Abyssinia. The order is usually reserved for members of royal family and princes of the blood.

Would Exclude From U.S. Russian Products

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—(AP)—Assurance that Chicago board of trade officials will cooperate with the house communist investigating committee in it sinquiry into the short selling of wheat by the Russian government was given today to Chairman Fish.

Replies that they would "gladly cooperate" at the hearing to be held next Monday to investigate charges by Secretary Hyde that the Soviet sold 7,500,000 bushels of wheat short on the Chicago board of trade came from John A. Bunnell, president of the board of trade; Joseph W. Badenock, chairman of its business conduct committee, and Fred S. Clutton, secretary.

The committee will hear officials of the all-Russian Textile Syndicate, the organization identified by Hyde as that which placed the selling orders, and brokers who handled them, at a hearing in New York Saturday.

While plans were going forward for the hearings, Senator Oddie, of Nevada, said he would introduce a bill to exclude Russian wheat, manganese coal, lumber, wood pulp, gelatin and glue from the United States.

The Nevadan said the Soviet economic system had collapsed and that Russia had been forced to experiment in an effort to create, at the expense of industries in the United States and elsewhere, paper profits in foreign trade to offset heavy losses in the domestic trade.

The senator charged that "the Soviet government is now trying to impose on some of the principal industries of the United States by dumping exports regardless of price and absorbing production losses through the enslavement of Russian peasantry and the inflation of its currency."

Secretary Hyde will return to Washington tomorrow from Annarbor, Michigan. Earlier he had considered the possibility of visiting Chicago to confer with the grain exchange officials, but word came today that he would come direct to Washington.

Story Of A Tragedy Of The N[illegible] Atlantic

Ten Li[illegible]st When Lightnin[illegible] Ship in Two—Si[illegible]rvivors Adrift 72 Hours.

NORTH SYDNEY, N. S., Sept. 23—(AP)—Six survivors who fought hunger and storm in an open boat for 72 hours brought back today the story of a tragedy of the north Atlantic which claimed ten lives.

A bolt of lightning struck the schooner Carranza last Thursday night, splitting it in two. It sank almost immediately, carrying down with it the captain, the cook and eight passengers.

From the position where the Carranza sank, about 20 miles west of Scatari Island, off the coast of Cape Breton, the survivors drifted without food or water and with only two light oars until Sunday night, when a sailor aboard the schooner Inigette heard their cries. They were then about 75 miles west of St. Pierre, Miquelon. Boats were lowered and they were taken aboard, haggard from exposure and weak from hunger.

The Carranza, a Newfoundland vessel, put out from North Sydney Thursday with her eleven passengers and 180 tons of coal for Burin, N. F. Most of the crew and passengers were in the cabin thatn ight when a sudden electric storm broke. The lightning bolt struck with a crash. The ship filled within a few seconds.

All who perished were from Newfoundland. Captain Joshua Matthews, 33, of Grand Bank, went down with the ship, as did the cook, John Robbett, 17, of Push Through. The passengers who died were Thomas White, of Fortune Bay, and Samuel Moulton, Stephen Grandy, Frank Legge, Joseph Grandy, Joseph Newport, Archie Adams and John C. Cluett, all of Garnish.

The surviving passengers were Thomas Cluett and George Arron, of Garnish, and Charles Fleming, of Burin. The members of the crew saved were N. Roberts, the mate Charles Roberts of Push Through, and Alexander Mullins, of Goblin.

TO "GO TO THE GUTS OF THE PROHIBITION QUESTION"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. — (AP) — President Hoover's law enforcement commission will be faced with the proposition that it pass judgement on the prohibition problem when it reconvenes October 8.

Kenneth Mackintosh, a former Washington state supreme court justice and a dry said today he would insist that the commission of which he is a member "go to the guts of the prohibition question."

Mr. Mackintosh, who has been studying exhaustive reports on crime and prohibition with the commission for more than a year, wants the commission to say whether the dry law is enforceable and if it is not, what can be done about it.

He is convinced the commission will seek to meet the issue, which he regards as one of the most outstanding economic and social problems since the question of slavery. He also is convinced the 10 men and one woman on the commission are still of an open mind on the controversy awaiting study of the final reports.

New and comprehensive reports on prohibition, touching almost every conceivable phase of the question, await the attention of the membership. Mackintosh said these reports are "interesting and illuminating."

No proposition is now before the commission from any of its members proposing either modification or repeal of the dry law. Persistent reports that the commission favors modification to permit light wines and beer are scoffed at in commission headquarters. It is recalled that Chairman Wickersham himself last spring asserted that he did not believe the American taste regarded 2.75 per cent beer as "authoritative"

ON TRIAL FOR PROMOTING FASCISM IN GERMAN ARMY

Three Lieutenants Are Charged With High Treason—The Formal Charge Accuses the Three Officers With Attemping to Incite Insubordination and Discontent—It Was Their Hope That in Event of Conflict Within Germany, the Army Would Refuse to Fire on Fascists.

LEIPSIG, Germany, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Amid scenes reflecting tense popular interest, three Reichswehr officers went on trial today in the supreme court charged with attempted high treason by trying to introduce fascism into the army.

The formal charge against Lieutenants Richard Scheringer, Hans Ludien, and Hans Friedrich Wendt states that in December, 1929, they began at Ulm Hanover, Berlin and Eisenbach to commit acts subversive to the constitution of the German republic and attempted to incite persons connected with the military establishment to insubordination and discontent.

The three officers also are charged with disobeying orders. Two other Reichswehr officers whom they allegedly approached with their ideas of "national regeneration" informed the authorities with the result that Scheringer, Ludien and Wendt were arrested.

The three lieutenants, each about 25 years old, pleaded not guilty in court today but in the presence of numerous spectators, including both fascists and communists, they declared themselves disgusted with conditions of Major General Oberst Von Seeckt in 1926 and War Minister Otto Gessler in 1928 as "disastrous pandering to Marxist demagogy" and therefore sought contact with fascist leaders with the purpose of inculcating fascism in the army. They declared it was their hope that in event of conflict within Germany the army would refuse to fire on fascists.

"We could have no confidence in a government which is permanently pacifist and neglects the true interests of the army, which exists to fight for the nation, the spokesman for the trio told the court.

When their lawyer, Dr. Frank of Munich, appeared in court the three young men as well as many other persons in the room greeted him with a fascist salute. Judge Baumgarten, presiding over the court, audibly observed the presence of many communists as well as fascists and sternly warned both sides that any persons causing the slightest disturbance would promptly be ejected or arrested.

Besides the civilian attorney the defendants also have on their counsel a brother officer of the Fifth Artillery regiment—Captain Meindel who came to court in accordance with an old German army regulation which provides for such help by a comrade-in-arms.

KILLED HIS WIFE, FOUR CHILDREN AND HIMSELF

YORK, Pa. Sept. 3.—(AP)— Harry Dietrich, 40, a farmer residing near Spry, seven miles south of York, killed his wife and four children with an axe and then hanged himself from a rafter. He left a note saying the family had decided to die together because of financial worries.

Coroner Zach said the condition of the bodies indicated the tragedy occurred Sunday night. The bodies were not found until late this afternoon when John Eppley, a merchant, went to the farm to inquiry why an order of potatoes had not been delivered to him.

Eppley found the body of Dietrich hanging from a rope suspended from a rafter in the barn. He notified the coroner who cut down the body and then went to the house, finding the bodies of Mrs Dietrich and the four children, Mabel, 11; Paul, 10; Anna, 8, and John, 5. All had been killed by blows on the head, apparently made by an axe.

HARROWING EXPERIENCE OF HUGH H. TRUMBULL

TORRINGTON, Sept. 23.—(AP)— Details of a harrowing 33-mile ride through the deep woods of Maine in which he suffered from loss of blood following a wound which he received in the foot while splitting wood, became known here with the return of Hugh H. Trumbull, of this city. Mr. Trumbull is a nephew of Gov. John H. Trumbull. He was on a hunting and fishing trip in Maine recently when the accident occurred and he was taken to a hospital strapped to the back of a pack horse for medical attention.

Mr. Trumbull was chopping wood for a fire on which he was to prepare breakfast. As he struck a huge piece of wood the axe glanced off and cut through the center of a toe and into his foot. Other campers went to his aid and after biding up the wound to staunch the flow of blood took him back to camp.

Trumbull, suffering from loss of blood, was strapped to the back of a horse and the camp manager mounted another horse and accompanied him to a hospital. The injured man fainted several times from loss of blood on the long journey. It was at first feared that blood poisoning might develop but the prompt treatment and the knowledge of first aid which the men who cared for him possessed, proved to be a valuable factor in preventing serious developments.

OBITUARY

Charles Manly Stedman

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. — (AP) — Charles Manly Stedman, who rode with Stonewall Jackson in his stirring dashes around the Union army, died today in the position in which he had served his native state of North Carolina nearly two decades.

He was the last veteran of the Blue and Gray in congress and had been representative from the fifth North Carolina district since March, 4, 1911.

Elected to the house of representatives when he was nearly 70, Stedman had decided not to run for office again. His name was omitted from the June primary ballot this year for the first time since he entered congress. When he suffered an apoplectic stroke on September 9, his physicians declined to predict his recovery. Gradually he lost strength and after a slight rally last week the 89-year-old veteran weakened rapidly.

Born at Pittsboro, N. C., on January 28, 1841, Stedman entered the Confederate army when he was 20. He campaigned under both Jackson and Lee for four years before Appomattox. With the end of the war he began a law practice.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Buried for centuries face downward with arms tied behind her back, a skeleton pronounced to be that of an old Indian witch was unearthed today by William Ritchie of Rochester, a member of an archaeological expedition excavating on the farm of Roger P. Clark at Willow Point.

The Iroquois and Algonquin Indians dreaded the enchantments that could be worked by witches and frequently burned them at the stake, Mr. Ritchie said. The skeleton found today was buried face downward so that if the woman started to dig she would dig into the earth, he explained. Her arms were tied to further hinder her return to the surface.

The skeletons now being removed are believed to have been buried 1,500 years.

DANIELSON

EXHIBITORS GETTING READY FOR OPENING OF FAIR

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 23.—It seemed like old times over at the fairgrounds in Brooklyn today, as exhibitors busied themselves with the arrangement of their displays. There was an air of hustle about the place, all pointing to the arrangement of an interesting fair by the time the gates are thrown open to the public Wednesday morning.

Down at the stables in the southeastern section of the grounds an array of race horses were housed today. These horses are on hand to take part in the speed events planned for the two big days of the fair.

Here in Danielson there was little evidence that this was the eve of the fair. Mention of this is made because the contrast is so great from years gone by. The automobile and the state highway account for this. There is no need for many who come from considerable distances to assemble here the day before the fair opens. The vastly increased means of transportation now make it possible for these people to leave home in the morning and be here in ample time to enjoy a day at the fair, though they live 75 miles away.

The change has taken some of the picturesqueness out of the period for old-timers resident in Danielson, but they are fairly well agreed that it appears to be all for the best.

Constantine Leaves Hospital

Bart Constantine of Moosup remained a patient at the Day Kimball hospital through last night, but had sufficiently recovered from his injuries today to be discharged. Constantine will be arraigned in the town court of Plainfield, on a date not decided upon this afternoon, to answer to a charge of manslaughter. This charge grows out of the fact that he was the operator of the car in which William Lambert of Moosup was fatally injured last Sunday night, at Moosup. Constantine also will be charged with operating a motor vehicle while he was under the influence of an intoxicant.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill said this afternoon that following some preliminary questioning of Constantine relative to circumstances surrounding the accident that caused Lambert's death he will examine him in greater detail during the course of the inquest.

Representatives of the state fish and game commission have made available for the use of sportsmen throughout this section of the county maps of the state, showing state forests, leased shooting grounds, bird sanctuaries, state-leased streams, etc., etc. The nearest leased shooting grounds to Danielson are in the vicinity of Ellington, away over in Tolland county.

Such political campaigning as may be going on in Killingly this week is decidedly sub rosa. Politics are figuring very little in the conversation of the day here. However, it is said that there is considerable personal solicitation of voters going on in the second and third districts of the town. Most of this is in the interest of candidates for election as members of the board of selectmen.

Motorists are cautioned that they should proceed with care along the new concrete highway between Danielson and Wauregan. Shoulders are incomplete along some sections of this route, and running off the concrete may cause a serious accident. Building of the shoulders is well advanced, and a fine job is being made of this and in grading down the embankments where cuts have been made.

The borough's sidewalk building force of workers is now engaged with construction work in that section of Cottage street between Furnace and Water streets. Under the overhead railroad bridge in this section a splendid improvement has been made. With good weather the bulk of the work in Cottage street likely will be completed during the present week.

The state fish and game commission has plans for the release of brown trout in the waters of the Quinebaug river south of Wauregan. It is believed that the waters of this stream in the lower sections of the town of Plainfield are good for the well-being of this kind of trout. Released there, they eventually will make their way into Blackwell's brook, now a state-leased stream over a considerable part of its length, and materially improve the fishing.

A number of prisoners that have been held at Brooklyn jail, awaiting trial on criminal charges, were taken from the institution to the superior court in Putnam this morning, when consideration of the criminal business to be presented this term was begun. Numbered among the prisoners are several residents of the town of Killingly.

The annual national convention of the American Legion to be held in October in Boston will, it is now indicated, attract from Danielson a large number of visitors, including as many of the Legion members and other former service men as can make arrangements to go. Boston is less than three hours distant from Danielson by motor car, and this is a considerable factor in forecasting that the number going from here will be large.

To those who are made apprehensive by tales that are coming in from the surrounding countryside relative to small streams having gone bone dry in the present drought, of wells drying up and of farmers being forced to haul water for their livestock, it may be said that there is no danger of a water famine in Danielson. There is an ample supply of water in the reservoirs near East Killingly that supply Danielson, ample for weeks to come.

The Windham County National bank of Danielson will close at 1 p. m. Wednesday, Sept. 24, on account of the Brooklyn fair.—adv.

Mrs. Pearl Horton, who underwent a surgical operation at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam the past week, is reported as resting comfortably.

Judge W. Fenner Woodward is reported as resting comfortably at the Hartford hospital, where he has been a patient for a week past.

Mills, business houses, banks and schools here will return to a standard time schedule of operations next Monday morning.

Dayville relatives were today trying to locate John Lacey, a butcher, formerly of Pascoag, R. I., who is said to have been a resident of Norwich within the past ten or 12 years. The special interest in him arising at this time is that he has been named as heir to an estate.

Hebrew residents of Danielson again attended services incident to their New Year today. Services in observance of the period were inaugurated last evening at sundown in Majestic theatre and will be concluded on Wednesday.

Pheasants released by the state in territory hereabouts a number of weeks ago are said to be thriving and many of them are now three-quarters grown. They are expected to be practically fully developed when the shooting season opens a week hence.

Following the meeting of the Ladies' Benevolent society Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Harding W. Gaylord will receive the Church Visitors of the Westfield Congregational church, and each of the visitors will bring her calling list.

Mrs. Helen S. Dowe and her daughter, Mrs. Alice Clarke, left today for South Britain, this state, making the trip by motor. Mrs. Clarke will return at once, Mrs. Dowe remaining until about the end of the month.

Miss Janet Kennedy, a graduate of Killingly High school in the class of 1930, has entered the Rhode Island School of Design at Providence, and will pursue a course in commercial art.

Workers representing the state fish and game commission are continuing their labors of trapping fish out of the Chase and Hygeia reservoirs at East Killingly.

State officers assigned to the Danielson barracks were on duty at the fair grounds at Brooklyn today and will continue to be on duty there during Wednesday and Thursday. Flagrant violations of any regulations pertaining to the operation of the fair will be suppressed.

Danielson business houses will recognize, as a group, the unfortunate passing of Pierre Boulaine, long identified with the business life of Danielson, by closing their stores here for an hour during the period of his funeral services.

PUTNAM

PLEAS OF NOT GUILTY ENTERED IN COURT CASES

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 23.—The September criminal term of superior court was formally opened at 10 o'clock this morning with Judge Newell Jennings of Bristol, presiding. Prayer was offered by Rev. John Duxbury, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, who recently returned from a journey to the Holy Land. Sheriff Charles A. Gates and deputies and state officers of the Danielson barracks, concerned with cases for presentation at the term, were present besides many members of the state bar.

The initial act of the court was a review of the criminal trial list, after which prisoners were called before the bar and put to plea. The majority entered pleas of not guilty and elected trial by jury.

After lengthy consideration of the case of the state against Frank Hanner, 24, who was arraigned on a series of charges growing out of his alleged utterances of fraudulent checks, Judge Jennings remanded the young man to sentence on next Tuesday in order that he may further consider the sentence to be imposed. Hanner who is of Portuguese extraction, has been confined to the county jail in Brooklyn since his arrest in Groton on May 28, by County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler of Willimantic. A long list of charges was read to him by Miss Marjorie C. Bradford, assistant clerk of courts, to which he entered pleas of guilty. Before temporarily disposing of the case, Judge Jennings expressed that he was of the opinion the prisoner should be sentenced to the state prison, primarily for his own benefit, inasmuch as his criminal inclination appears to have been brought on through a mental depression, with which he is said to be afflicted. Previous to his arrest Hanner appeared in various communities throughout the county and presented worthless checks at banks, written on the Uncas National Bank and Trust company of Norwich and on the Phoenix National Bank and Trust company of Hartford, for amounts ranging between $20 and $40. In several instances he was successful in having the notes honored to make his total amount of ill-begotten money reach about $350 in round figures. Banks in Putnam, Moosup, Danielson, Willimantic and Plainfield cashed checks which Hanner presented. In court he remained composed and seemed to be reconciled to the fact that his chances of escaping a heavy prison sentence were small. His young wife, Emily Marceau Hanner, a Taftville girl, who he married a few days before his arrest seven months ago, was in the court room during the hours the bound over prisoners remained. She evidence the strain under which she has labored since her husband was arrested and at times managed to nudge her way through the gallery to the front of the court room where she talked with Hanner, who remained for several minutes with Public Defender Harry E. Back of Danielson.

Among the cases settled today were the ones against Michael Piette and Adelle Piette, who were arraigned on a statutory charge of a most serious nature. Both pleaded not guilty when first put to plea and after electing trial by jury were called into the judge's chambers where the facts in the case were argued, with the result that an agreement was reached whereby the man and wife, in consideration of the unspeakable embarrassment to which their minor daughter, a principal in the case, would be subjected at public trial, consented to enter pleas of guilty and accept jail sentences of six months each. Frank Leone of Windham, who was arrested in connection with the same case, changed his previous plea of not guilty, to guilty, and accepted a six months' jail sentence in like manner. Judge Jennings, in explaining the unusual disposition of the case, said that after it was explained to him in chambers the situation in which the parties are involved was a deplorable one, and in his opinion a greater justice was achieved without a public jury trial.

Eddy John of Willimantic, and formerly of Danielson, made another appearance in court today when he was presented before Judge Jennings on a charge of assault with intent to kill. In outlining the nature of the charge against the prisoner, State Attorney Howard C. Bradford stated that John is and has been for a number of years an undesirable citizens and in view of this fact he recommended that he be given a suspended jail sentence on condition that he return to Fyria, a province in Italy, his native country. The recommendation was followed by the court.

Pedro De Clark, well known colored resident of this city, was presented on a charge of incest, to which he entered a plea of not guilty and elected to be tried by jury. The case was assigned for trial on Thursday.

Clarence Wilson, 17-year-old Windham youth, was arraigned on two charges of embezzlement, to which he pleaded not guilty and requested a jury trial. The case was continued during the day as attorneys made efforts to reach a satisfactory adjustment without necessitating trial.

Henry Rayno, 166 Freeman street, Hartford, arrested several weeks ago in Willimantic, on a charge of forging a bona fide order in an attempt to collect what would have been his commission on the sale of a sand machine, which he left for trial purposes with the E. C. Johnson company of Willimantic. In court, his attorney pointed out that Rayno signed a memoranda order and a bona fide contract of sale as was charged in the warrant, against him. The case was promptly dismissed and the prisoner discharged. The Rev. Stanley B. Crosland, pastor of the Broadway Community church in Hartford, of which Rayno is a member, appeared in his behalf. Rayno was a member of the sales staff of a Hartford jobbing house, representing for sale the products of a New York cable manufacturer.

William Hollon, of Windham, a young man of 21, was arraigned on a charge of automobile theft and upon a plea of guilty was given an indefinite sentence to the state reformatory at Cheshire.

Arthur L. Balcolm, who embezzled funds amounting to $281 from the treasury of the North Windham Fire company during his treasurership of the organization, upon his admittance of his guilt and promise to make complete restitution, was sentenced to the county jail for one year, execution of the sentence being suspended for a period of six months, during which time he is to remain under the supervision of a Willimantic probation officer.

Harry Davis alias Harry Dalwin, arrested in Willimantic in connection with the issuance of several worthless checks, when presented in court pleaded guilty to a charge of this nature containing several counts. Admitting his guilt and expressing his intentions of making restitution, Dalwin received a suspended jail sentence of one year. A probation sentence was also suspended when he asked the court's permission to accept a position which has been offered him by a firm in Indianapolis, Indiana.

Leon Russell, of Willimantic, was sentenced to serve a jail term of 60 days when convicted of a charge of lascivious carriage.

Earl H. Rogers, of Scotland, an elderly man, pleaded guilty to a charge of forging the signature of his wife, Ruth L. Rogers, a Scotland school teacher, on promissory notes in two different transactions. State's Attorney Bradford informed the court that Rogers and his wife were striving to pay off the notes in order that he (Rogers) might escape a prison sentence. With the explanation of Mr. Bradford, Judge Jennings imposed a jail sentence of one year, execution of which was suspended.

Court was then adjourned until Thursday morning when the cases of Nettie C. Porter of Willimantic, and Philip Laporte of North Grosvenordale, both of motor vehicle nature, will be heard by Judge Jennings. The jury trial of Pedro De Clark, Putnam man charged with incest and abuse of minor female child, will be started at this session. Cases assigned for trial by jury on Friday were those of Ira L. Rynsford and Viola Hubbard, both of Danielson, jointly charged with adultery; Solomon Shorr of Willimantic, charged with theft and Charles O. Fitts of Hampton, charged

The establishment of an aircraft school in this city by the state department of education, courses in which would be available to all air-minded boys and young men of eastern Windham and New London counties, depends entirely and definitely upon the demand for the institution of such a department of learning, Principal H. H. Ellis of the State Trade school said this afternoon. The accredited school of aircraft mechanics will be housed in the trade school building, if it is established, and the creation of such a trade will not be recommended, Mr. Ellis stated, unless sufficient interest is manifest in the proposition by boys and young men prepared to begin study in such courses.

A report concerning the condition of Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston, received this morning from the Truesdell hospital in Fall River, Mass., where the public official is a patient, critically ill told of Mr. Thurston passing a restful night Monday, which increased his chances for recovery. Today's report from the Fall River hospital sick room is the most encouraging received in two days. It was stated today that Mr. Thurston is suffering from complications of diseases which set in when his condition became weakened by the poison from an ulcerated tooth.

Plans for the dedication of the new Putnam high school athletic field have been completed, Coach L. F. Noyes announced this afternoon following a meeting of the committee in charge of arrangements. A fitting programme will be held on the field Saturday afternoon, immediately preceding the season-opening football game between the local school eleven and the gridsters of Northbridge, Mass., high school, which takes place at 3 o'clock.

At 2:15 Saturday afternoon the high school student body will meet at Cargill park on Pomfret street, and after taking marching formation will move to Union square escorted by the high school band, under the direction of Nelson Frink, supervisor of school music. When the parade reaches the square the marching bodies will halt for a few minutes while the school musicians render a brief concert, after which the students will march to the athletic field on School street.

CLOSE SEASON FAVORABLE TO INCREASE OF QUAIL

Local sportsmen, who have been looking over the woods are of the opinion that quail have made a fine comeback all through the local covers. With the close season extending another year, and with more vigilant watch than ever before promised by the game wardens this fall, it is estimated that the present 50 or more flocks will have increased to twice that number when the law goes off in October, 1931. Returning wardens report that not in several years have the woods been so dry as at present.

STATE BEACH AT EAST LYME

What may have an important bearing upon the effort to secure a state beach-park along the shore of New London county, for the benefit of the eastern end of the state, is the fall field meeting of the Connecticut Forest and Park association to be held October 4 at Rocky Neck beach in East Lyme.

Desirable beach property along the Long Island and Fishers Island sound shore is closely held. The public encounters the fact in various instances that it is not wanted, that the cottagers want to be exclusive and unannoyed by he transients. The result is that there are limited accommodations for the many who would like to spend the day at the shore, and particularly for those who desire to camp at the beach.

How general an interest there is in the idea of a state-owned beach is amply illustrated by the development which has taken place at Hammonasset beach. Each year has shown a steady increase in interest and use until the demands on that state beach have about reached the limit of its accommodations.

Hammonasset beach is so situated that all who would like to are unable to enjoy it because of the distance involved. Obviously, any state beach for the benefit of the eastern end of the state must be located along the sound and in New London county. In the belief that Rocky Neck beach presents an ideal site for such a state park, ten public-spirited citizens of the state have acquired more than 500 acres there, including a white sand beach extending for over a half mile, on which there is a stone pier and back of which there is ample camping ground. Purchased in anticipation of state needs, this property is not as large as Hammonasset beach, but a delightful spot which will serve the requirements of eastern Connecticut for a considerable period and which is easy of access. Bought with the idea of turning it over to the state at cost, the proposition of state purchase can be expected to come before the next general assembly, and the fall meeting of the Forest and Park association will permit an inspection of the attractive advantages it affords.

The public in this part of the state is entitled to a state beach for recreational purposes where a day at the shore can be enjoyed under proper regulations, or where they may camp for a week or a month under similar conditions as those at Hammonasset.

How thoroughly the existing state beach is appreciated and visited is shown by the fact that from June 9 to August 31 there were 146,552 bathers there, 18,625 campers, 94,949 autos registered and a total attendance of 474,745. Furthermore, 110 employes are required there regularly and others on special occasions.

It is quite evident that a state beach in the eastern end of the state would not only serve the residents thereof much better, but would relieve the state beach that is already becoming overcrowded. The proposition deserves the serious consideration of the state.

THIRD TICKET EFFORTS

There is many a slip between threats and real action. It is frequently the case that those who fear they are not going to have their way threaten to do things which are intended to be injurious in the hopes of bringing reconsideration, but when it comes to actually taking such steps there is hesitation and retreat. They recognize that the effect would be far more detrimental than to let matters take their natural and indicated course.

What is going to be done in New York state in this respect is keenly awaited. Certain of the dry leaders have made known their purpose to put an independent ticket in the field if the republicans adopt a wet plank. There isn't, however, solidarity among the drys. A leader in the Anti-Saloon league has indicated his doubts as to the advisability of putting an opposition candidate in the field, even if the republican platform is wet and calls for repeal of the 18th amendment.

New York has had its experience in such a direction. The drys were instrumental in defeating one wet and electing another. It, likewise, cannot fail to know that it was the candidacy of Governor Pinchot, a bone dry, in Pennsylvania which sent William S. Vare, a pronounced wet, to the senate and, through the refusal of the senate to seat him, deprived the Keystone state of half of its representation for many months. It must also recognize that the threat of a dry candidate in Illinois is greatly improving the democratic prospects in the senatorial contest in that state without in any way helping the dry situation.

With the division of the drys in New York state, any independent candidate would be certain to make a weak showing, while the loss to the republican candidate would undoubtedly be serious. That would simply mean contributing an advantage to the democratic candidate toward whom there is no special sympathy felt. It would mean working to the disadvantage of the party in which they are really interested because, if that development takes place, the majority sentiment is in favor of getting away from the existing conditions under prohibition. Third ticket moves have too often had the effect of producing results diametrically opposite to those desired.

INCREASING EACH YEAR

Last year there were 33,000 persons killed in automobile accidents. It was an appalling record, one that should have caused all motorists to have resolved to do everything possible to reduce such a needless loss this year. But is that the case? Not according to the association's estimate, for, from the record thus far this year, there is basis for the belief that the fatalities in 1930, will reach 36,000.

That doesn't speak very well for the care displayed by those motorists who become involved in serious accidents. There are more cars this year than there were last, but there are more and better roads, bad curves and grades have been eliminated and the very fact that there are more cars is sufficient reason for increasing the care with which motor vehicles are driven. With a greater number of cars it cannot be expected to grow more careless and reduce the death list.

We are getting to the point where it will not be many years before we will be killing as many persons on the highways of this country each year as we lost in the World war. We are horrified at the toll exacted in war, and rightly so, but we seem to accept the casualty list from motor vehicles as something which cannot be remedied, when a survey of the accidents where death occurs makes it clear that by far the greater part of them could be avoided.

What more frightful waste of human life must take place before there is a halt called and fewer instead of more auto deaths are recorded each year?

EVENING SCHOOLS

Notification to the effect that the evening schools are to be open in Norwich next Monday in five districts should be sufficient to get a prompt response from the many who are in need of just such instructions as will be provided.

The purpose of evening schools is to provide an education for those who have been deprived of opportunities in past years, to aid those of foreign birth to learn the English language, to get a knowledge of the country's history and institutions and to instruct them in ways which will aid them in being good citizens. Through such schools an important service is rendered in fighting illiteracy and each and every individual who stands in need of such an education as may be obtained there should make the most of the opportunity.

In connection with the evening schools there is always a chance for friends of those who need such schooling to call their attention to the provisions which have been made for their benefit and to urge them to attend. The need of being able to read and write in the English language should make its appeal to those who cannot. As a matter of fact, those who need the help of night schools ought not to require any urging. All that should be necessary is to call their attention to the opening date and the schools where the classes are to be taught. They should be sufficiently concerned about themselves and cognizant of the handicaps now in their way to contribute the time and effort to get an education, or a better one.

With the night schools provided, every effort should be made to see that their benefits reach as many as possible.

UNGUARDED CROSSINGS

The railroad inspection division of the public utilities commission of Michigan has been making a study of crossing accidents and it finds that the first half of the year shows a decrease in the accidents, but it finds in those cases this year that 70 per cent were within city limits and that about half of them were at unguarded crossings.

The reduction in the number of such accidents indicates that the drivers of vehicles are giving more attention to the danger places, that they recognize their responsibility at such points and that it cannot be expected to escape harm in a collision with a locomotive.

The unguarded crossing is certainly a menace and crossings in cities are apt to get less attention, for one reason or another, than those in the country. Traffic conditions make the guarding of the worst crossings necessary but those who come upon the unguarded crossing unexpectedly, or those using them often, may be inclined to overlook the peril.

The crossings where flagmen are maintained or where signals are established are not free from fatalities. Thus the guarded crossing does not insure complete safety, but in all fairness to those who use the highway, each and every crossing, no matter where it exists, should have some means of indicating the danger there. Those who disregard signals and warnings are for the most part those who figure in the fatalities. Those who would be careful if warned are certainly entitled to such protection. The guarding or signaling of all crossings would help materially in further reducing the toll.

AFTER A MAN MARRIES

Little Mrs. Megan awaited the postman eagerly. He was going to bring a letter from Arthur. The first letter since their marriage, which had taken place all of six weeks ago.

Business had frequently called Arthur Megan out of town during their courtship days, but though he was gone but two or three days at a time he had always written her one or two long letters.

"But you don't expect me to write any more?" he had teased before leaving on this last trip. "We're an old married couple now, you know. After a man marries it's different, dear."

What a tease Arthur was! Mrs. Megan watched for the postman with ever-increasing impatience. Of course, there would be one letter at least. Arthur knew how she loved to get mail from him. Oh, there was the postman at last. How slow he trudged along! Goodness! Why didn't he hurry?

She waited while he entered the vestibule of the apartment building, a number of letters in hand. He usually rang the bell. What was keeping him so long? What if Arthur hadn't written! If he had really meant what he said!

"After a man marries. . . ."

A peal of the doorbell shattered her fears. How silly to have doubted for a minute! There was the letter now.

She rushed down the stairs. What would it be like, now that they were married? Had he missed her? She had certainly missed him. Their first separation since the day of the wedding.

With fingers that shook with eagerness she inserted the tiny key in the mailbox. How many, many times she had gone through the same act while she was still Peggy Hutchins.

Two letters! But the first was just an ad from some near-by shop. The second—why, the second was an ad, too! Then he really had not written. He had meant what he said.

She turned forlornly from the mailbox and walked slowly up the stairs. But in her own room Arthur's portrait fairly twinkled at her from its silver frame. She had never been able to look at those teasing eyes without smiling right back.

"Oh, where's your sense of humor, Peggy Megan?" she demanded fiercely. "He'll be home tomorrow night. He's been gone only three days." But her eyes misted suddenly. Before he was married he had written every day he was away, practically.

Arthur Megan came home several hours earlier than Peggy had expected. He had had a very successful trip and was more than usually gay.

"Did you get my letter, Peg?" he asked, after telling her all about the trip.

She tried to keep any trace of resentment from her voice. "Why, no, Arthur. How could I?"

"How could you?" He stared at her in amazement.

"I know you were too busy to write, dear. Never mind."

"But I did write, Peggy. I mailed the letter in one of my own office envelopes. Why honey, don't you believe me?"

Mrs. Megan smiled. "It's all right, Arthur. Only you said that after a man marries. . . ."

It was three days before Arthur Megan could prove his words.

"Look, Peggy," he called, brandishing a letter in his hand. "This came to the office today. Can you beat that?"

It was the truant letter, all right. It had been mailed to the address of the sender, with the postoffice stamp that so calmly informs one that there is no such person at that address.

He had mailed it to Miss Peggy Hutchins, through sheer force of habit.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—Now that the Dutch have carried Holland again in Maine, so to speak, and swept a republican congressional and state ticket into office, the political dopesters of Washington have a new jumping off place from which to view the approaching November elections.

What a great boon it is that Maine insists on being different from all other states and doing her election business in September instead of November except in presidential years. It furnishes always so fine a preliminary to a general election for the politically minded to argue about.

It would be a great pity if Maine suddenly shifted to the regular November date. What would political writers do without that ancient slogan, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation?" Not that it proves up that way, of course. Look at 1916.

Significance

And the 1930 Maine results leave both parties in a position to cheer. The democrats did not win any senate or house seats, to be sure, but there was nothing to indicate they expected to. They did raid republican majorities heavily, particularly in the governorship race.

Now the argument comes down to political relativities. Does that cut mean anything more than the normal off year back swing of the political pendulum? Does the fact that more than a third of Maine's last election turnout at the polls failed to vote at all mean anything more than usual off-year apathy?

Runs in Family

In Wallace White, first of the 1930 crop of new senators—and there will be a lot of them—to win his toga, a Maine political tradition reasserts itself. He is a grandson of William Pierce Frye, who held that same senate seat for more than 30 years. Frye had the distinction of being elected to the senate six consecutive times, beginning with his selection to succeed James G. Blaine in 1881 when the latter went into the Garfield cabinet.

And the grandson, apparently, began running for the senate as soon as he got out of college. It has taken him 31 years to make the grade.

For Senator-elect White's first connection with public life was in 1899 when he came to Washington as secretary to his distinguished grand sire, then president pro tem. of the senate. He served also as a clerk of the senate commerce committee.

As a matter of fact, White is more a Washingtonian than a resident of Maine. He got his legal education while a senate attache and went home to practice, but he came back eleven years ago to represent the second Maine district in the house. And through his two periods of Washington service he has built up a reputation as a specialist on radio and merchant marine legislation. He is a hard worker and should prove a useful addition to the senate.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

All-Night Sky-Shows.

Mr. Editor: Our occasional sky-shows have a strenuous time securing patronage, despite their beauty and the absence of charge.

Before midnight, they have to compete with the movies, the theatres and the multiform social activities of the church.

After midnight and clear through to dawn, with the night-clubs.

So were it not for the milkman, the policeman and the news-dealer, the beautiful sky-yacht race between Mars and Jupiter in the midnight-to-dawn eastern sky these mornings, would pass as unseen as other ships in the night.

Escorted by the greatest flotilla in the sky, the enterprising Mars overtakes and passes the brighter and larger Jupiter at about 9 p. m., Sept. 26th; too early, unfortunately for night-sky lovers to witness it, even with glasses.

Skywardly yours,
HENRY DILL BENNER.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Cousin Chatterer Interferes

Claim all and then take what I can,
I've sometimes found a paying plan.
—Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

Impy the black Chipmunk and little Mrs. Impy, who was not black, but had a striped coat such as most Chipmunks wear, had been out looking up food supplies. You see, it was their first fall of housekeeping and they were very anxious to have a proper food supply for the coming winter. Being thrifty folk and coming of a thrifty family, they didn't propose to go hungry if hard work would prevent it.

They had discovered several nut trees. The nuts were not yet ready to be harvested but there was promise of a bountiful supply. "We won't have any trouble at all," declared Impy. "When these nuts drop we can fill our storerooms in almost no time. I hadn't supposed it would be so easy to get a supply of food for the winter."

"You haven't got it yet," said a sharp voice. "These nuts don't belong to you."

Impy and Mrs. Impy looked around to find Chatterer the Red Squirrel, who is, as you know, their cousin, scowling down at them from the lower branch of a tree near by. "If they aren't ours, whose are they?" demanded Impy.

"Mine!" replied Chatterer promptly. "They are all mine."

"Who says so?" cried little Mrs. Impy.

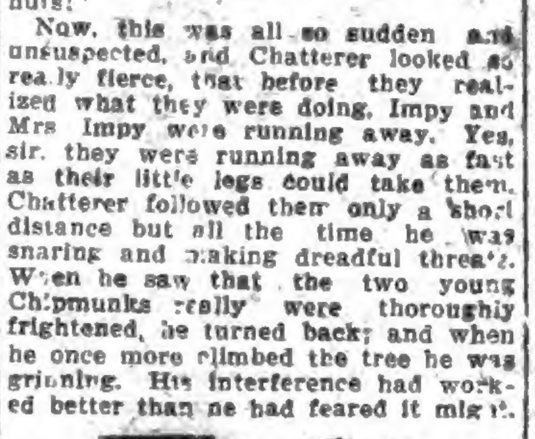
"I say so and that is enough," replied Chatterer. "These nuts are mine and no one else can have any. So you had better not come over here any more."

Now, Impy and little Mrs. Impy hadn't been out in the Great World long enough to know just what their rights were; but they felt sure that Chatterer was claiming a great deal more than he had any business to.

"I don't believe you," said Impy. "I don't believe you have any right to all those nuts."

Chatterer bounced to his feet and started down the tree-trunk head first. "You get out of here, both of you!" he cried. "And do it in a hurry! I'll show you who owns these nuts!"

Now, this was all so sudden and unsuspected, and Chatterer looked so really fierce, that before they realized what they were doing, Impy and Mrs Impy were running away. Yes, sir, they were running away as fast as their little legs could take them. Chatterer followed them only a short distance but all the time he was snaring and making dreadful threats. When he saw that the two young Chipmunks really were thoroughly frightened, he turned back; and when he once more climbed the tree he was grinning. His interference had worked better than he had feared it might.



Chatterer followed them only a short distance

As for Impy and Mrs. Impy, they had nothing to say until they reached home. But, if they said nothing, they were doing a lot of thinking. They sat down beside their doorway and looked at each other. "My dear," said Impy at last, "I don't believe a word of what that fellow said. He may think he has scared us, but when the time comes we'll show him. I believe those nuts belong to whoever can get them. We'll fight for them if we have to. When the time comes we'll get our share. He might whip one of us, but he certainly can't whip both of us."

How Can I Help The Injured In An Auto Accident?

By T. Arthur Johnson, M. D., Rockford, Ill.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

A few weeks ago a man who was seriously injured in an automobile collision about forty miles from our city was brought to our hospital by a passing motorist. This motorist fortunately was acquainted with a few fundamental principles of first aid and transportation of the injured.

He learned, immediately after the accident, that the injured man could not move without causing severe pain in both arms and in the left chest. Correctly assuming that both arms and several left ribs had been broken, he directed his first aid efforts accordingly. After carefully straightening out the arms, he fixed them firmly in this position by placing splints of short boards and sticks along the sides, the whole length of the arms. Before applying these splints he padded and wrapped them with strips of blanket. He also tied strips of the blanket firmly about the chest to limit its motion during respirations. After these simple preparations, the patient was laid in the back seat of the car and transported to the hospital. Thus this seriously injured person was placed in a hospital under the care of a competent fracture surgeon at the earliest possible moment and with a minimum of shock and other complications.

At the hospital the surgeon found that the upper left arm, the bones near the right elbow, and several ribs of the left side were broken. These were all simple fractures, that is, fractures in which the broken ends of the bone did not pierce the skin. If this occurs, the fracture is known as a compound fracture. Whenever the fractured bones pierce the skin the patient's troubles and dangers are greatly multiplied, such as dangers of wound infection, months of illness from blood-poison possibly amputation.

Proper splinting and fixing the arms and chest prevented compounding of the fractures and serious injury to the nerves, blood vessels, lungs, and other soft tissues adjacent to the sharp, saw-like edges of the broken bones. This lucky, unlucky man made a rapid and complete recovery.

Far too frequently, however, we see seriously injured patients brought to our hospitals by well-meaning, intelligent persons who have no knowledge of first-aid principles. Very often a simple fracture of the leg is converted into a serious compound fracture by improper attempts at straightening the leg, allowing the injured person to attempt to walk on the injured limb, or moving the patient before applying some type of improvised splint to steady the leg and keep it from bending at the site of the break.

With the rapidly increasing speed and volume of traffic, vehicular and aeronautic, and the great expansion of industries severe injuries have been multiplied greatly in the last two or three decades. They are becoming so frequent that it behooves everyone to become familiar with a few principles of first aid and transportation of the injured.

Injured arms or legs should be carefully straightened out and held in this position by some stiff material. In an emergency, short pieces of boards, sticks, pieces of the wrecked auto, an umbrella or cane may be utilized for this purpose by placing them along the sides of the limb. These improvised splints should be well padded with pieces of clothing, blankets, grass or other soft material, as contact with a hard surface soon causes severe pain in an injured limb. This should then be firmly tied with strips of blanket, pieces of clothing or strong cord. Bleeding wounds should be covered with the cleanest cloth available and tightly bandaged. This should be done before any attempt is made to move the patient. After applying these simple first-aid measures, he should be transported with great care in a reclining position to a good hospital or surgeon.

Simple but comprehensive first-aid measures can be given to you by your family doctor, and the American Red Cross supplies a little manual on the subject that it would be well to study.

CHILD TRAINING

Fear Or Caution

Mary Starck Kerr

A group of mothers and teachers were discussing the subject of fear in children. Some of those present, strong in the opinion that we should teach children to be entirely without fear, did not take into consideration the value of caution, and spoke as though the parent or other person caring for a child should let him climb upon the roof if he wishes, stand up and rock in the rocking chair or take any other such risk of injuring himself, teaching him to be brave if he should be hurt on account of his adventurous spirit.

One woman, however, declared that recklessness ought not to be encouraged. In her opinion, the child should be taught caution; he should be taught the danger of burning from fire, or of being struck by an automobile, or falling if he climbs upon an unsteady or sloping structure. Then he should be taught how to avoid all these dangers.

This advice is sound. Both boys and girls can be shown how to light the fire, then carefully put out the match and place it in a tin box or other receptacle, so that there will be no danger of its starting a fire in the wrong place.

Children should be taught to watch for autos before crossing the street, as soon as they are old enough to walk out with their parents. One little fellow was so fascinated on seeing an automobile, that he wanted to run right out into the midst of traffic to look at the flying vehicle. He was taught the difficulty of stopping a car quickly enough to prevent hitting anything that the driver had not expected to meet, and whenever he was walking with his mother or auntie, they would very particularly stop at each intersection and say, "Now, we must look both ways to see whether there is an auto coming, before we cross the street."

This little fellow was also taught how to climb properly, and what kind of places are good for climbing and what kind are not. Far from making him cowardly, it only made him sensible, as well as brave. It also kept him out of difficulties and he came through babyhood and childhood with very few accidents.

It is the first duty of a parent to protect the child, and there is no better way to protect him than by teaching him to be cautious. The value of the lesson does not stop with childhood; habits formed in youth will go on through life and the child properly taught is not likely to become one of the reckless, fool-hardy persons that "take a chance" on anything, and fill the hospitals with the victims of reckless driving, shoddy construction of grand stands, and fire caused by carelessness.

There should be a clear distinction in our minds between caution and fear. Fear implies nervousness, flight, terror, paralysis of action in some instances, but caution relates to rational self-control in situations of real danger.

"Been down to the jail visiting Charlie," was the reply.

"Who's Charlie and what is he in jail for?"

"Got confused and took another fellow's car."

"Well, what kept you visiting him so long? What did you talk about?"

"Outdoor life!"

Bad Breath More Than Social Error

Almost everyone is coming to realize nowadays that we usually have to go further than the mouth to find the real cause of bad breath. Bad breath is now regarded as a warning that something is wrong with our health—usually a badly clogged up system. When this is the case, by all means take some reliable laxative—preferable the delicious mint-flavored Feen-a-mint—the modern chewing gum laxative.

Feen-a-mint is specially designed to bring about thorough, distress-free bowel action and to help in cases of headache, coated tongue, billiousness and general bad health arising from constipation.

Because you CHEW Feen-a-mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectiveness of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the QUANTITY swallowed as upon the thoroughness of ITS DISTRIBUTION THROUGHOUT THE AILMENTARY TRACT.

While you chew this delicious bit of gum, the tasteless laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly, evenly, without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.

The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage, it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint you take nor to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the HEALTH LAXATIVE. Ask for a package at any drug store.—Adv.

NO OTHER TO BLAME FOR McPARTLAND'S DEATH

No criminal negligence on the part of anyone else is found by Coroner Edward G. McKay in his decision on the death of John M. McPartland, 27, late of New York, who was killed August 30th, at Preston Plains, when the Ford roadster in which he was riding overturned. The machine was owned by Stephen McPartland. In his finding the coroner says:

At about 2:30 standard time, the said John M. McPartland was operating a Ford roadster from Norwich toward Westerly. He had left New York the previous day and had planned to go to Narragansett Pier. For some reason he had traveled off the direct route between New York and Narragansett Pier and was at that time traveling toward the shore road.

At said time the weather was very unsettled. There were patches of fog on different parts of the highway. The highway surface was comparatively dry but visibility was poor. Persons in the vicinity of the accident noted the condition of the fog banks prior to the time of the collision and immediately after it.

Mr. E. G. Pendleton who lives in the house at the scene of the collision was awakened by a loud noise and looked out of the window of his home. He saw the lights of an automobile and immediately ran out to investigate and lend assistance. When he got there, he found that the Ford roadster had overturned and was lying with the wheels in the air. It was lying on the highway, very close to the bank and lawn of Mr. Pendleton's house. The front part of the machine was pointed back toward Norwich. An investigation of the car and the surroundings disclosed the deceased underneath the car. At that time he was dead.

There were marks on the highway leading back from the overturned machine, indicating the course of the automobile. It had been driven along the regular course of the highway up to a point a short distance from the mail box on Mr. Pendleton's lawn. There the wheel marks indicated a sharp turn to the west and leading into the bank and against a tree. From there, there did not appear to be any marks on the highway up to the point where the automobile rested, thirty feet away.

There were no eye witnesses to this accident and inference must be used to determine how it occurred. It might seem from the condition of the weather and the course of the automobile that the driver found himself in a patch of fog while he was going at a good rate of speed. He probably saw the bank on the east side of the road and turned quickly to avoid that, and came to the bank on the west side of the road before he could avoid it. The automobile appears to have struck the bank, overturned in the air, and come to rest up-side-down on the west part of the highway. It appears to have pinned the young man underneath when it fell to the ground.

I am satisfied and find that the death of John M. McPartland was not caused by the criminal act, omission or carelessness of any other person or persons.

VIC ACCORSINI IS VISITING IN NORWICH

One of the old timers in the days when Norwich had professional baseball is visiting this city this week. This is Victor Accorsin of Niagara Falls, N. Y., who played first base for the Norwich team of the state league in 1906 and 1907.

Mr. and Mrs. Accorsini, with Mrs. William Harriander, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carlson of St. Regis avenue, and Mrs. E. Cantara, who is accompanying the Niagara Falls party is staying at the home of Mrs. John Wozniack.

Accorsini was on the 1906 team which won the state championship under Capt. Jack Tighe. When Capt. Tighe signed Vic he expected him to do the backstop work, but Tighe was laid up almost at the beginning of the season by injury and Accorsini was sent to play first base, where he did a completely satisfactory job. He batted .251 and fielded .960, and it is in the records that his timely three-bagger in a New Haven game clinched the pennant for Norwich, as that hit scored three runs which was one more than the New Haven team collected in the whole game.

The early demand for tickets is taken to indicate that the affair will be one of the biggest political outings to be held in Connecticut during the campaign that is now getting under way and the committee is sparing no effort to insure its complete success.

The outing is to be held for the purpose of ratifying the nomination of Lieutenant Governor Rogers of New London for governor and the other nominations that have been made for the various state offices and the affair will attract all of the state republican leaders. HELD UP WATCHMAN AT THERMOS W. VIRGINIA PLANT

The night watchman at the Thermos company plant in Huntington, West Virginia, was held up last week and robbed of a small amount of money and some jewelry.

Lurking in the dark and entering the blacksmith shop of the American Thermos Bottle Co. plant, Ninth street west and the C. & O. railway tracks, as G. W. Morris, 73-year-old night watchman started through the building on his 11 o'clock round last night, two masked white youths, each armed, robbed him of $13, a ring and other personal property.

Forcing the aged man out of the shop at the point of their pistols the two youths compelled him to crowd into a small tin structure on the plant grounds used for storing fire hose and then secured the door with a lock.

Morris, finding a wrench in the hose house after more than a half hour, managed to break through the sheet metal siding and liberate himself. He immediately notified police.

Morris told police that he could not describe the two men other than that they were white and about 25 years old because his lantern, which he carried while making his rounds about the plant, was extinguished when the two stepped from the dark and ordered him to hold up his hands. Both wore handkerchiefs over their faces. He was not injured by the men, the night watchman said, other than being rather roughly handled while being forced into the hose house.

No other plant property was molested police reported after an inspection. No clues were found.

At the Age Women Dread

"Three years ago I was in bed three months with a nervous breakdown. After that I had to lie down often. I have four children, the youngest 21, and I board two little schoolgirls. I try to keep my home as a mother should but I am at the age so many women dread. Since taking six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I feel 100% stronger. I am not so nervous and my appetite is better."—Mrs. Della Hutsell, 623 East 1st Street, Casper, Wyoming.

JOE McCARTHY IS THROUGH WITH CUBS; HORNSBY TO GET MANAGER'S JOB

CHICAGO, Sept. 23—(AP)—Crestfallen because his hope for a world's championship team had been thwarted again, William Wrigley, Jr., today rocked the baseball world by verifying rumors that Rogers Hornsby had been picked to succeed Joe McCarthy as manager of his Cubs in 1931.

His announcement, although anticipated because of the Cubs' failure in the 1929 world's series and their apparent failure in the 1930 National league race, sent Cub fans into an excited huddle. Many believed he had made a mistake while others believed Hornsby was the man to help him realize his baseball dream.

Wrigley insisted that there had been no disagreement between himself, Cub officials and McCarthy. He merely stated he wanted a world's championship baseball team, that he had been disappointed, that McCarthy had agreed with him that perhaps he had been manager long enough, and that he decided to offer Hornsby the managership.

Hornsby will be offered the position as soon as the National league season ends and there is no doubt in Wrigley's mind that he will accept it. McCarthy's three-year contrast expires at the end of this season.

"I realize that Joe McCarthy is one of baseball's greatest managers but I must have a winner," Wrigley said. "I have always wanted a world's championship team and I'm not so sure that McCarthy is the man to give me that kind of a team. I was sadly disappointed after the world series of last year. I believe we should have won. I had a great fighting team. Baseball is like business, you know. You have to be a leader in the field you are in or you do not amount to anything. You get nowhere, most any team can finish second, third or fourth, but it takes a real team to win the pennant. I have my mind set on having the greatest team in either league in the next year or so and to do so I must have a manager who can pilot it into that position. I believe Hornsby is the man. If he isn't we'll try someone else."

Owner Wrigley was lavish in his praise of Manager McCarthy and revealed that "Marse Joe" had never asked him for a contract and that he had never approached him about a renewal of his present contract.

"When I first signed him," Wrigley said, "he told me 'I probably won't be with you long. If I give you a winner, I'll be a great guy. If I fail I'll be a bum. I know how it is with baseball fans. A man can stay in a spot too long and when I realize my welcome is worn out with the Cub fans, I'll step out.'"

Today, McCarthy refused to comment on the case except that he had nothing but kind regards for the Cub officials, players and fans.

"It's just baseball," McCarthy said.

He left the team at Buffalo for a two day visit before returning to Chicago for the final season's series with Cincinnati, which starts Thursday. His future plans were indefinite, although more rumors had him slated for the managership of the New York Yankees.

Hornsby, if he accepts the managership, will be the seventeenth Cub manager since the team was organized in 1876. "Cap" Anson, the first manager, had the longest managerial life—20 years—while Frank Chance, the "peerless leader" held the managership seven years. McCarthy had the third longest lease on the position in his five years.

If Hornsby accepts the job, it will open another chapter in his transient and colorful baseball career. He was with the St. Louis Cardinals 12 years, the last of which he managed the Red Birds to a world's championship. From there he went to the Giants for a year only to be sold to the Boston Braves the next year—in 1928. He came to the Cubs in 1929 in one of baseball's largest deals and helped the Cubs win a pennant. This season he has been incapacitated with a broken ankle and a sore heel and has been of no material assistance.

CARDS ALMOST CLINCH FLAG BY TROUNCING PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23—(AP)—With the team they hope to meet in the world's series looking on, the St. Louis Cardinals made their position at the top of the National league all but unassailable today as they clouted a 19 to 16 victory over the last-place Phillies.

A season record for base hits in a nine inning game was established as the Cards gathered 26 solid blows from the offerings of four Philly throwers. The humble Phils did some heavy hitting on their own part, driving Flint Rhem from the mound and continuing a sporadic attack against Lindsey and Hallahan for a total of 16 hits.

Phil Collins started on the mound for Philadelphia but gave way in the third inning as the Cards batted around, collecting eight hits and six runs. Elliott, Benge and Hansen split the remaining work without doing much to check the Cardinal slugging.

The Cards piled up an 11 to 0 lead in the first three innings before Tony Rensa put the Phils into the scoring with a home run with the bases loaded. And through the latter part of the game they did not exert themselves to hold down the Philly score.

Frisch, Mancuso, Adams and Klein led the base hit parade with four wallops apiece. The two teams piled up ten doubles.

Wild Bill Hallahan was the most effective of the St. Louis pitchers despite the Phillies' five-run ninth inning. He fanned five men and tightened up when the Phils threatened to overtake the league leaders. Most of the final Philly rally was due to the failure of the Cards to make any effort to stop their base runners.

A Correction

Danny Doyle, of the athletic committee of the New London Knights of Columbus informs The Bulletin that Ted Whiton, who appeared in the outfield during the inter-city series with the Polish Citizens, was a member of the team during the league season and not used just in the series as was announced Monday. This correction is gladly made.

KAPLAN-BATTALINO BOUT AT HARTFORD TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARFORD, Sept. 24—The most interesting ring event ever staged in a Connecticut ring is set for tonight at the big Hurley stadium on the banks of the Connecticut in East Hartford.

Bat Battalino, the world's featherweight champion, and Louis Kid Kaplan, who formerly boasted that title, will meet in a ten-round battle which has stirred fandom from one end of the state to the other and provoked more spirited discussion than any ring duel ever scheduled for a Connecticut ring.

Many unusual angles conspire to make this a unique event: First, one of the rivals is the present champion and the other the former champion in thef eatherweight class; both are of Hartford; it is a ring duel that has sharply divided the two great bodies of fight lovers into great camps—the Italian and the Jewish fans, and fuel has been added to the flame by the clause which demands that Kaplan must scale down to 131 1-4 pounds for the champion.

State-wide interest and the heavy advance sale in Springfield, Holyoke and other cities and towns in that end of Massachusetts lead Promoter Ed Hurley to predict that the gallery will hit well over the 15,000 mark and that the gate will ride over $50,000 with a chance that it may grab the New England record set up by the Kaplan-Herman title affair at Waterbury a few years back.

Many men prominent in the official and business life of the state will be present, among them Governor Trumbull and Lieutenant-Governor Rogers. Jimmy McLarnin accepted an invitation several days ago and Tom McArdle, matchmaker at the Garden, will be at ringside with an appraising eye.

GIANTS PUT BROOKLYN OUT OF PENNANT RACE

BROOKLYN, Sept. 23—(AP)—The New York Giants eliminated Brooklyn from the 1930 National league pennant race today and drew practically even with the Robins in the struggle for third place as they won the last clash of the season, between the two clubs, 8 to 2. It was Brooklyn's sixth straight defeat and left the Robins five games behind the league leading St. Louis Cardinals with only four to play.

The game was tied until the fifth inning when Dazzy Vance was nicked for four Giant runs after Finn had dropped Gilbert's throw to second on what appeared to be a certain double play. The dazzler gave five hits in that frame before Watson Clark relieved him. The Giants continued scoring, tallying twice in the sixth and bringing in Jim Elliott to finish the game for the Robins.

Fred Fitzsimmons pitched a steady game for the Giants. He gave only six hits and a pair of homers produced the only Brooklyn runs. Glenn Wright's 24th four bagger tied the score at 1-1 just before the Giant storm broke while Babe Herman clouted his 35th in the eighth inning. Lindstrom and Hogan had four baggers among the Giants 15 hits. Lindy led the hitting with four blows in five times at bat.

The Giants now are only one point behind the Robins, virtually tied with them for third place. They have two more to play.

REDS TAKE BOTH GAMES FROM PITTSBURGH PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds, behind the excellent pitching of Jakie May in the first game and Ken Ash in the second, won both games of a doubleheader from Pittsburgh today, 8-0 and 5-2. The Pirates made only nine hits in the two frays.

Nick Cullop, home run king of the American association before joining the Reds, hit one of the longest home runs ever made at Forbes field in the third inning of the opener with Crawford on base. Cuccinello hit for the circuit with Cullop on in the second game.

JONES LEADS QUALIFIERS IN NATIONAL AMATEUR WITH A CARD OF 142

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

MERION CRICKET CLUB, Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Continuing his unbroken march of triumph for the year, Bobby Jones today captured the qualifying medal in the national amateur golf championship with a record-equalling score of 69-73—142, in a battle that witnessed the downfall of the defending champion, Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston, of St. Paul and produced unprecedented carnage among other favorites.

Pitch darkness finally halted the hectic struggle over the historic east course of Merion after Jones had emerged the victor by a single stroke over George Von Elm of Los Angeles, who finished the two-day 36-hole test with 73-70—143; after Johnston had been eliminated by a single shot, despite a gallant come-back, as he scored 83-73—156; and after eleven players, with scores of 155, had started but failed to complete a playoff battle for the eight places remaining in the list of 32 qualifiers for match play, starting tomorrow.

Johnston's tragic failure to earn the right to defend his crown at match play marked the second time in the 34-year history of the national amateur tournament that a champion had not qualified.

Robert A. (Bob) Gardner of Chicago, after capturing his first championship in 1909, was not among the qualifiers for the defense of his crown in 1910, when William C. Fownes of Pittsburgh was the winner.

Seventeen years ago, Jerome T. Travers was forced to play off to enter the man-to-man struggle and he went on to win the title, but Johnston missed even this opportunity. What looked like a safe total for him was surpassed by an eleventh hour outburst of low scoring among a flock of unheralded competitors.

So sensational were the upsets the last half of the qualifying round, participated in by more than 160 players, that three of the first ten seeded entries and seven of the first twenty favored names were abruptly removed from the tournament.

Six former American title holders, including Johnston, Jesse Guilford, Chick Evans, Chandler Egan, Davidson Herron and Max Marston were eliminated, along with the big British star, Cyril J. H. Tolley. Another former American and British champion, Jess Sweetser, was among the half dozen who must continue the play off tomorrow to decide the occupants of five remaining places in the draw.

Such stalwarts as Donald K. Moe of Portland, Ore., Walker cup ace; Frank Dolp, also of Portland and a former western amateur champion; Roland MacKenzie, another Walker cup player; Keefe Carter of Oklahoma City, ex-western king; and Francis H. I. Brown of Honolulu, the present California state champion, all failed by varying margins to make the qualifying grade.

Moe, adding an atrocious 83 to his previously good 74, for a total of 157, missed out by only two strokes, as did Guilford, but the downfall of most of the others was complete and effective. Tolley, with 82-81—163, was eight strokes from the low qualifying figure while Dolp had 164, Egan 161, Brown 165, Herron 166 and Marston 159.

The dramatic climax of the day came when the 11 players at 155, teeing off in two groups of six and five, began their struggle into the gathering dusk for the eight places left for any of them to fill. It took so long to finish the first hole that six still tied for five places, after it had been finished, were unable to start the second hole.

Three in the play off clinched their qualifying places by brilliant work, Phillips Finlay, the long-hitting New Yorker, sank a 20-foot putt for a birdie three. Chares Seaver, Los Angeles youngster, and Ross Somerville, the Canadian champion, got par fours that also were good enough to put them in the fold.

With two singles in six times at bat yesterday in the doubleheader against the Cincinnati Reds Lefty Dugas, local boy receiving a tryout with the Pittsburgh Pirates, ended the day with his big-time batting average at .400. The two games Tuesday brought Lefty's big-league total to four for he had played in two against the Phillies last week.

Here is his complete record:

All of the hits were singles.

It is probable that Lefty will again get into action today against Cincinnati in Pittsburgh.

ACADEMY HAS SMALL AND LIGHT TEAM THIS YEAR

In preparation for the opening game of the season Saturday at New London, against Chapman Tech, the Academy is facing the last three days of practice with grim determination and much confidence in their ability to open the campaign successfully.

After about ten days of practice, Coach Whitney is beginning to shape up his first team and by tomorrow or Thursday will probably have a pretty good line on who will start the game. The hot weather has hampered the team a bit and forced the squad into shorts during the practice sessions.

There are five lettermen on the squad in addition to two or three others who were regarded as promising material last year. Capt. Ernie Stevens, Les Crowell and Mike Abugle are on the line with Bob Geer and Golembeskie in the backfield. In addition there are Zictoras and Cotter, backfield men, and Cote and Sheridan, among others, on the line.

The backfield that is finding much favor with the mentor finds Zictoras at quarter, Cotter and Golembeskie at the halves and Geer at fullback. Geer is also doing the passing.

The campus has been changed over from a baseball field to a gridiron. The bleachers have been lined up along the sidelines and the goalposts are to be erected shortly.

Tuesday's practice consisted mainly of teaching of new plays. The 60 members who reported at the first call has been cut almost in half. It is not probable that there will be any more slicing.

In Chapman Tech, the Wildcats meet a team that is to be feared. Tech has been drilling for about three weeks, of which over half the time has been taken up with scrimmage.

The first scrimmage of the year is expected to be held at the campus this afternoon

WAUREGAN INDIES LOSE LAST GAME OF SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin)

WAUREGAN, Sept. 23—The Wauregan Independents lost their last game of the season Sunday to the hard hitting Putnam Blue Caps 14 to 4. The game was very well played on both sides only to be handicapped by a very strong wind which was interfering with the fielding. Every inning that the Blue Caps would score the Indies would turn around and tie them up until the seventh when the Blue Caps came through with a barrage of hits and put the game on ice, the Indies being unable to stop their attack. Although the score was one sided the local fans witnessed plenty of fast plays and excitement, particularly in the 9th inning when the Indies sent in their clown of the team, "Fat Lacharite" known to fans as Tappee. He was passed on balls and stole second on an attempted bunt, then stole third hitting the dust in every occasion head and hands first. Then on a wild throw to third he attempted to steal home, again hitting the dust in such a way that the fans burst in laughter and cheers. Even the umpire could not tell if he was out or not as he was blinded from laughing and there was too much dust.

The score by innings:

Putnam .... 010 102 442—14..
Wauregan .... 010 102 000— 4

FINN LEADS HITTERS IN KACEY-CITIZENS SERIES

Pete Finn, Polish Citizens third baseman, was the leading hitter of the Cits-Kaceys series, the composite box score for the five games (including the no-contest affair) reveal. He collected eight hits in 19 trips to the plate and was also the only player on either club to hit safely in every game. The leading Kacey batter was Bill Coyle, veteran catcher, who had six hits in 19 trips to the plate.

Johnny Greene was the best pitcher, having two wins and no defeats. Boots has one win and one loss while Joe McInnis had no wins and two losses and Tilly Daniels a victory and a defeat.

BIG THRILLS OF WORLD SERIES

No. 1—Baseball's First "Long Pants"

World baseball series today, with all their pomp and excitement, are a far cry from the humble beginning nearly 50 years ago when the first clash of leagues took place.

The initial series, in no sense a world championship affair, was on the order of a demi-tasse, for only two games were played between Chicago, winner of the National league championship, and Cincinnati, champion of the American association.

That was in 1882, and probably the only excuse for the series was an agreement between the clubs, since there was nothing official about the meeting and the two leagues were not friendly.

Beginning in 1884 and continuing to 1890 the champions of the National league and the American association met each year a series of 15 games being played in 1887 between Detroit and St. Louis.

In 1894 W. G. Temple, a Pittsburgh sportsman, donated a silver cup to the National league for a championship series, but these contests were not world championship contests. Only four series were played and the trophy then was returned to the donor.

In 1901 and 1902 there was bitter enmity between the National and American leagues, but the entering wedge was made by a Pittsburgh-Boston series in 1903, and the real world series started in 1905.

The 1903 series was under the jurisdiction of the Pittsburgh and Boston clubs winners in the National and American leagues, and was decided in eight games.

The Red Sox staged a sensational comeback by winning four straight games after the Pirates had captured three of the first four. Bill Dineen, now an American league umpire, won the deciding game, 3 to 0, in a thrilling battle with Deacon Phillippe, who pitched Pittsburgh to all of its three victories.

Dineen won three of the Boston games and Cy Young the other two. Dinneen ended the last game by striking out the famous Hans Wagner.

In 1904 the New York Giants and the Boston Red Sox won in their respective leagues, but no series was played as John T. Brush, president of the New York club, insisted that an annual world championship series should be played under the National commission and the next year this was done.

That arrangement was continued until the National commission was replaced by K. M. Landis as baseball commissioner and he now rules supreme in the autumn classic.

A crew of New York Giants wearing sombre black, ran rough-shod over the Philadelphia Athletics to start the official world series ball rolling in 1905. An odd feature of the series was that the losing team failed to score in each game.

Three times in the week's play the great Christy Mathewson blanked Mack's men, 3 to 0, 9 to 0 and 2 to 0, and Iron Man Joe McGinnity won the other New York victory, 1 to 0. Chief Bender, crafty Indian, turned in the A's lone triumph by a score of 3 to 0. Mathewson allowed only fourteen hits in three shutouts. His performance has not been equaled in 25 years.

The series attracted a total attendance of 90,000 for the five games in New York and Philadelphia, a new attendance record.

RING STARS AT DANIELSON FRIDAY

DANIELSON, Conn., Sept. 23 — There is not a detail left to arrange for the greatest boxing show that has been arranged for this town next Friday evening at the state armory, and it so happens that it is a benefit affair—for the Nurses' Home fund of the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam.

As a sporting event, it is the big shot of a generation in Danielson. It will bring here as ring attractions Benny Leonard, retired undefeated champion lightweight of the world, with his protege, Al Singer, present lightweight champion of the world. They will box an exhibition bout. Jackie Kid Berg, another top-liner in the pugilistic world, Kid Kaplan, who has been up to the heights in the boxing game and the famous announcer, Joe Humphreys, known to hundreds of fight fans throughout the country, and particularly those who patronize fistic affairs at Madison Square Garden in New York, all will lend their aid to make the show a glittering success.

Among those who will sit about the ringside, having accepted invitations to do so, will be Lieut. Gov. Ernest Rogers, republican nominee for governor of Connecticut in the November election, Robert T. Hurley, state police commissioner and many other notables.

It is interesting to note that every net dollar above expenses, and they have been cut to the bone, will go into the Nurses' Home fund. Everyone has lent a hand to make this affair a real outstanding success, and it promises to be just that.

The advance sale of tickets indicates that no such assemblage of people as will see this series of bouts ever has sat in on a boxing exhibition in this part of eastern Connecticut. Millionaires and their wives will rub elbows with the honest-to-goodness fight fan that takes in all the shows, even though he has to work hard for the price of admission. It's going to be a real top-line event.

Promoter Frank Barber has worked for weeks to get the amazing lineup of boxers he has obtained for this affair—amazing for Danielson—and a lion's share of the credit for the already assured success must go to him after it's all over. The advance sale of tickets has made all concerned with the affair enthusiastic. In addition to the exhibition bouts by the famous stars of the prize ring there are to be some real battles where any contest is likely to be sent spinning.

STEDMAN AND MRS. MAIN HELD UNDER SUSPICION IN WESTERLY DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Sept. 23—Warrants to hold Joe Stedman and his bookkeeper, Mrs. Evelyn Main, as suspicious persons were being prepared on Tuesday afternoon, in connection with the sudden and mysterious death of Mrs. Alice E. Stedman, 63, whose lifeless body was first discovered on the bathroom floor of their second-floor apartment, where all resided at 87 Main street. Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon who was the first official to reach the home after the discovery was reported by Mrs. Main to Mr. Stedman when she went home from the printing office of The Stedman Press about 6 p. m. Monday on his arrival found strong fumes of gas in the house and gave his opinion that death was caused by asphyxiation by gas but just how the gas got in its deadly work he was unable to say. Both Stedman and Mrs. Main declared to the examiner and to Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown that they had not turned off any gas. At the Westerly hospital on Tuesday an autopsy was to have been completed on Mrs. Stedman's body after the matter of the sudden death had been communicated to the Rhode Island attorney general's office in Providence.

Stedman, when attempt was made to take his picture at the Westerly police station, after a thorough questioning by Chief Brown, became vituperative, but up to that time had preserved a calm demeanor. Mrs. Main, who is held at the women's detention room, when an attempt was made by examination to go into her past history, beyond saying that her husband, Edward, had deserted her when in Westerly but for a few weeks was most evasive. She said that she had moved from city to city and would not specify any in particular.

A most baffling problem for the police to solve was to explain how Mrs. Stedman reached the position in which she was found on the floor when a cane which she used as a cripple to get around with was found hanging on a hook in the front hall of the home at the head of the front stairs.

Police authorities are working on the case in the manner that Mrs. Stedman met her death by foul play. The authorities admitted that it is one of the most baffling cases they have had to fathom in years, but they intend to go to the bottom of it all to learn the circumstances under which Mrs. Stedman met her death. In addition to holding Stedman and Mrs. Main, the authorities had pictures taken of the bathroom last night before the body had been removed to the Gavitt undertaking rooms.

Medical Examiner Scanlon reported the death to the attorney general's department and a coroner's inquest will probably be opened by Coroner John Ferguson. He was out of town, but is expected to return early to start the investigation. Finger print experts from Providence will also be here to work on the case.

Tuesday morning Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, medical examiner, grilled Joseph Stedman, the dead woman's husband, and Mrs. Evelyn Main, 30, a roomer, and after the questioning stated that the stories told by the two do not agree in several important details.

Dr. Scanlon said last night that death was due to the inhalation of illuminating gas and that the woman had been dead only a short time when her body was discovered a few minutes after 6 o'clock.

According to the authorities, Stedman cast suspicion for his wife's death on another person during his interrogation by the police. This person will be interviewed immediately by the authorities.

Stedman and Mrs. Main, who was the office manager for Stedman in his printing company in Westerly, were returned to their cells following their grilling and will be held there until Coroner John Ferguson begins his inquest.

Dr. Scanlon stated that the death presents "Westerly's toughest mystery in 50 years." He expects to perform an autopsy some time today. Authorities stated this morning that there is some possibility that the woman was drugged and her body carried into the bathroom of her home and the gas then turned on, to make the death appear as suicide. An autopsy will show whether this line of reasoning is correct.

Chief Brown said this morning: "I am working on a theory of murder," and pointed out that it would be impossible for the dead woman to have turned off the gas while suffering from its effects.

Two mysterious circumstances caused the detention of Mr. Stedman and Mrs. Main.

When Dr. Scanlon entered the bathroom the gas was turned off, at a hose connection, a few feet from the body. Both Stedman and Mrs. Main declared to Chief of Police Thomas Brown that they had not turned off the gas though Stedman said he opened the window in the room after he discovered the body. The other mysterious fact is that Mrs. Stedman's cane which she had habitually carried both on the street and in her home was not beside her but was in another room.

As predicted, the formal notice by Westerly highway authorities, posting the Broad street Pawcatuck river bridge in Westerly as dangerous and unsafe, made its appearance on the bridge Tuesday forenoon.

The sign reads: "Warning—Bridge Unsafe Loads Exceeding 10 Tons Not Prohibited. Persons Using This Bridge Do So at Their Own Risk. Highway Commission, Town of Westerly."

To the present time such a notice has not been posted on the Connecticut side of the bridge in Pawcatuck, town of Stonington.

Following the river bridge posting on the Rhode Island side on Tuesday morning at about 11 o'clock, Abram Atwood, head of the R. I. state board of public roads, Chief Engineer Henderson and Bridge Engineer Cargill came here at the invitation of Senator Howard E. Thorp to make an inspection of the structure and talk over the matter with local state and town officials.

The meeting was held at the offices of Senator Thorp in the Briggs building, and among those present in addition to the senator and state board officials were Representatives Clifford W. Campbell and Dr. John M. O'Connell of Westerly, Representative Henry A. Stahle of Stonington, Charles F. Berry, C. Palmer Chapman and Engineer A. L. Leon of the Westerly highway department, and Harry B. Milner and Dr. John Champlin of the Westerly chamber of commerce.

The meeting adjourned at noon for luncheon, but was continued in the afternoon at the office of the highway commission in the town hall. No definite action will be taken but the local residents will have ample opportunity to point out conditions to the state board officials and undoubtedly lay the foundation for repairs to the bridge at an early date.

Investigating Break

Investigation of a break and robbery on Monday night in the I. B. Crandall Co. clothing store on High street in the Potter-Hammond block is thought by police authorities to have been the work of local youths, perhaps in cooperation with young men of Norwich. About 2 p. m. Tuesday, Police Officer Paul McCarthy, in searching for clews and evidence in the vicinity found a young man's sack coat in a pathway leading under the Pawcatuck river railroad bridge leading along the river bank at the rear of the High and Canal street business blocks. Articles of clothing, suspenders and goods to a value of well over $100, was reported to Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown as stolen.

At least a half dozen suspects will be brought into police headquarters for questioning and a finger print expert from Providence is to come here to finger print them, and among them a young Italian, who was by directions given by police, when not found in his usual haunts, requested to report to the Westerly police station. MARKET WAS STRONG, ACTIVE SHARES 2 TO 4 POINTS ABOVE PREVIOUS CLOSE

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Although today's financial news was largely dominated by the weakness of grains and other commodities, the stock market squeezed into prominence by virtue of late short covering which pushed active shares 2 to 4 points above the previous close.

Until the last half hour the market exhibited considerable irregularity. Although it seemed to favor a small advance, the break in wheat to new lows since 1906, as well as recessions in corn, rye and cotton and heaviness of two or three share groups made the rise hesitant and spotty. Toward the close, a rumor that the directors of American Can would declare an extra dividend of $1 a share circulated on the exchange floor and the shorts, who had been having trouble bringing out further losses, began to buy back shares they had sold. Trading failed to become particularly active on the rally, however and total sales fell just short of 2,000,000 shares.

Coppers were weak in expectation of further dividend reductions, especially in the Anaconda group whose boards meet soon. Declines to new lows in the coppers, as well as in the oils, were numerous, but there was some recovery. Scattering liquidation in rails eased prices a point or two before a firmer tone appeared on publication of the August earnings figures of 11 carriers. These showed an increase of 29.3 per cent, in net operating income over July, although the decrease from August last year was 24.3 per cent.

The commodity markets presented a discouraging picture to those who had been hoping for brighter times. September wheat tumbled to 77 7-8 cents against this year's previous maximum of 79 1-8 and closed only half a cent above the bottom for a net loss of 2 cents. Other futures showed similar declines on the day. Corn was off 1 7-8 to 3 cents net and rye touched prices not seen since 1896. Active cotton months established new lows for the season, closing off 6 to 11 points, and raw sugar futures went to record lows.

Domestic bonds were firm. German 5 1-2s, the recently floated international loan, firmed, contrasting with the Young plan 7s, which touched a new low.

Apprehensions over the possibility of political difficulties in the reich seemed to have been allayed, however, and it was suggested that perhaps Wall street had been doing more worrying than had the Germans themselves.

Although stocks closed higher, nearly three score issues touched new lows during the session. Among them were Anaconda, Copper, Kennecott, Andes Copper, Texas Corporation, Standard Oil of New York, International Harvester, Crucible Steel, Republic Steel, and U. S. Rubber.

American Can stood out in the standard industrials, rising 5 points and retaining most of the advance. There were 4 point net gains in Underwood Elliott Fisher, Allied Chemical, Auburn Auto, DuPont and Case, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, Bethlehem Steel, Loew's, Fox, Johns Manville, National Biscuit, Eastman Kodak, Houston Oil, Public Service of New Jersey and others improved 2 or more.

Foreign exchanges were steadier and the German mark made a small recovery from yesterday's low.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—(AP)—While the day's trading showed a continued strong demand for high grade domestic issues, the pressure exerted on foreign loans was again the feature of the bond market today.

There was a faint sign of stability in the list of German bonds in common with the better tone in other world markets but most of them remained under pressure, and while showing some recovery from the lows of the day nearly two dozen issues closed at new bottoms for the year. Best support was attracted to German International 5 1-2s which finished 3-4 higher. But German 7s after prevailing more than a point at the outset, skidded to a new low and its performance was duplicated by municipal and industrial issues on declines of from 1 to 4 points.

There was some unsettlement in other continental European issues and in several South Americans. Italian 7s sagged 1 1-2 points, Italy Public Utility 7s lost 2 and Milan City 6 1-2s, 1 1-2. Rome City 6 1-2s, reached a new low for the year. In the Latin American group a half dozen Chilean issues dropped 1 to 2 points to reach 1930 lows and there were similar weak spots in Brazilian, Colombian and Peruvian issues.

Conditions remained favorable to the continued improvement of domestic corporation bonds, and some of the rail, utility and industrial issues made new high ground. Call money held at 2 per cent and some dealers quoted lower rates in some maturities of time paper.

Utilities were conspicuous in the advance. American Telephone debenture 5s, and sinking fund 5s were among the issues at new highs. Others included Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s C, and New York and Richmond Gas 6s.

Canadian Pacific 5s reached a new high with an advance of more than a point. There was an active demand for St. Paul adjustment 5s, Rock Island 4s, which reached a new high on a large turnover, Big Four 4 1-2s, Pennsylvania 4 1-2s, Reading company 4 1-2s and Southern Pacific 4s.

U. S. governments were fairly steady. Treasury 4 1-4s yielded 1-8 of a point. Liberty 4th 4 1-4s, were well bought.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—A partial recovery from the low levels reached in the last selling movement, was made by pivotal stocks on the curb market today.

The persistent selling that carried the list down sharply with few rallies for more than a week gave way to uncertainty at the outset. Trading turned dull on the rallies and prices moved sluggishly, with fluctuations confined to a point or less. Buyers showed more confidence in the final hour when the best prices of the day were reached and the market closed near the top. Total sales were 410,800 shares.

On a reduced volume of business, the utility group closed firm. Gains for the most part were fractional with only a few strong stocks, notably Electric Bond and Share, up 1 3-4, American and Foreign Power warrants, Middlewest Utilities, Brazilian Traction, Associated Gas and Electric, Northern States Power A, and Electric Power Associates A, up 1 to 2 points. Associated Telephone and Telegraph A, registered a new high for the year on a 11 1-2 point rise.

Weak spots developed in the petroleum group. Fresh selling depressed Standard of Kentucky, Gulf and Cosden to new lows for the year on the movement, the latter closing at 24 1-4, a net loss of 2 5-8. Other active oil shares were firm.

Such active shares as Translux, Technicolor, American Cyanamid B, Safeway Store warrants, Mead Johnson advanced. There were some sharp recessions among the industrials on thin selling. A O. Smith, Aluminum, Ltd., Continental Shovel preferred, General Tire and Rubber dropping several points. Principal changes in the motor and aviation groups showed divergent trends. Ford of Canada and Ford, Ltd., were up about a point each, and Fokker was 3-8 higher. Western Air Express sagged 1 1-2.

Investment holding company stocks were firm.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept. 23—(AP)—Wheat, corn and every other grain today smashed down to record low prices that in many cases have been heretofore unequalled for 24 years. Forged messages purporting to show that the Canadian growers' pool was insolvent, and that its affairs would be taken over by Canadian government officials were largely responsible. In spite of quick authoritative denials that there was any truth in such reports, trade conditions remained demoralized, with Russia under-selling North American wheat in Europe, and announced as having negotiated vessel charters to carry additional out-shipments of 65,-000,000 bushels of Russian grain mostly wheat.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were nervous at only a fractional rally from the day's bottom figures and 1 3-4a2 1-8c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1 3-4a3c down, oats 1a1 7-8c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 30c.

Provisions went lower as a result of falling quotations both for cereals and hogs.

NOANK SARDINE CLUB HAS OUTING AT CRANE'S DOCK

The Sardine club members held their annual outing recently, leaving the club room at 9 o'clock Saturday morning in Fred Clark's truck. This was loaded with happy members, blowing horns and singing, bound for Crane's dock, where the water games could be held and where there was a big field to play a baseball game. It was 9.30 when the truck landed there with 75 members, men and women, all ready for the best outing since the club was formed, over 10 years ago. Steward A. Mace got on his cream-of-wheat suit to do his stuff behind the chowder kettle, while the committee got the games under way. A 100-yard swimming race was arranged and soon 25 were all set. Judge Billie Fitzgerald shot off the horse pistol and the contest was on. E. Hiscock, with a green suit on was ahead almost all the way, with the goal in sight; but a sea bass caught him by the toe and hauled him under, so Smiling Lawrence Sullivan in his orange suit won by several feet with Joe Walsh second. The winner received 12 pair of socks.

Staying under water the longest was a race of every man for himself. Only about five took part and some were under only several seconds; but Billie Barry showed more wind than a fire horse on its way to a million dollar fire and the watch of O. Foote read 5 minutes, 29 seconds. He received a hand painted picture of the town dock on a busy day.

Next on the program was fancy diving, about 25 feet above the surface. Eddie Burns made a perfect jackknife dive that drew a big ovation from the crowd. Huck Taylor came in second with a double-flog dive that was good. Happy Burns got for a prize a new hat that came all the way from England. Next contest was the sack race, some of the young women taking part with short jumps and falling, making more fun than a circus. Miss Nellie Overall took first honor, receiving a pair of Paris gloves. Miss Ida Do Drop won second prize. About then Steward Mace rang the bell for dinner with a Crane dock haddock chowder, Socony green corn, also baked crabs, with radio cake, all eating plenty for it sure did taste good on such an outing. With an hour's rest the big baseball game was called—married men against single men with M Haven umpire. Seven innings were to be played so the fans picked their favorites and were all set to see the battle, wondering if the married men would have enough wind to last to the end. Sub-ball Pitcher Huck Taylor had sure aim and C. Barry was catching for the married men. For the bachelors Smoky Joe Walsh, who has the bullet ball when it reaches the plate, never failed, O. Foote catching the hooks. It was some battle for five innings, the teams on their toes. At first all thought Umpire Havens would have to call out the police when he called a runner out when he ought to be safe; an umpire's job is not to be laughed at. They are talked about and many times the fans could shoot them.

Then came the seventh inning, the married men's last chance to bat, with the score 0 to 0 and two men out. Up came Stretch Morrison with a big bat ready to bring home the bacon; catching the bullet ball of Smoky Walsh like Dazzy Vance he sent it over the right field fence for a home run, winning the game for the benedicts 1 to 0.

It was not long before they started to pack for home, after everybody was browned as a cocoanut from South America. They reached the Sardine hall at a late hour after the best outing yet. The members sang "What a Wonderful Time Was Had By All! Wait Until We Meet Again at Crane's Dock!"

WRECKS, STORMS DON'T TIE UP "BIG BOARD"

There is a huge map of the New York metropolitan district in the personnel director's office, with a small tin flag bearing the name of each employe in the exact spot of his residence.

Between 7 and 9 a. m. the exchange is kept informed of wrecks, storms or other occurrences which might delay arrival of employes. If delays occur, workers are quickly shifted so that vacant positions are filled by the time the gong sounds for the market's opening.

ENERGY "LOST" IN SPACE HELPS EXPAND UNIVERSE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The old question of what becomes of the energy that is radiated into space by the sun and stars in the form of heat, light, ultraviolet rays and so on, is answered by W. deSitter, the world famous astronomer of Leiden.

In a report to the National Academy of Sciences he says it is "more than used up in the work of expanding the universe.

By this deSitter means that the portion of space which contains particles of matter is limited, and that the section containing the matter is constantly expanding in all directions. This portion of space that contains what men call solid substance deSitter says has always been spherical in form.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets
Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

The local market was very quiet and offerings moderate. Tomatoes were still draggy at low prices. Beets, carrots, and celery were steady. Cabbage was slightly firmer for the late stock. Cauliflower in light supply. The potato market is holding firm with receipts liberal and demand fair. According to reports the Maine shipping season has started with several carloads unloaded last week.

The demand for apples in all Connecticut markets is very slow and the markets are generally weak. Supplies are moderate and mostly unclassified stock now reaching the markets.

The department of agriculture is now publishing a weekly special apple market report. This report covers in detail prices by grade, size and variety together with supply and demand conditions. In addition a brief summary of the following markets is given: New York, Boston and Providence. If you wish to be placed on the mailing list to receive this report, write your request to the Department of Agriculture, State Capitol, Hartford. A charge of 50 cents is made to cover the cost of mailing.

POETRY

[illegible] And Repeat To Go To Sleep

When you lay your head on the pillow, go sinking, sinking
Down, down in the fathomless pool of sleep;
Drowsily, drowsily lie, no thinking, thinking;
Let your mind be void, and your breathing slow and deep.

Down, down, down to the rhythmic flowing
Of somnolent waves that ceaselessly roll and roll,
Till you wake and wonder how and whether, unknowing
Softly, stealthily over you slumber stole. . . .

Stole as the waves of the sea go stealing, stealing
Over the shore. . . . When darkness dreams, and the night
Lulls you to pillowy ease for healing, healing
Let care from your heart, like a winging bird, take flight.

Drowsily, drowsily yield, no thinking, thinking;
Let your mind be void, and your breathing slow and deep;
When you lay your head on the pillow go sinking, sinking
Down, down, down in the pool of sleep. . .

Loquacity

Day after day we must admit
We talk more than we ought,
Forgetting every word we say
Should represent a thought.
We talk and talk and talk and talk
To every one we meet,
And very seldom say a thing
That's worthy to repeat.

We say it is a pleasant day,
Or, it is hot or cold,
As if our friends were ignorant
And needed to be told.
We talk of Prohibition, too,
And promulgate our views,
And people listen just because
They don't care to refuse.

Yes, there's no doubt we talk too much;
We talk day after day
Although we haven't anything
Particular to say.
Oh, how much better it would be
If we, upon the brink
Of empty-headed monologue,
Would stop a while and think!

—Somerville Journal.

The sergeant and the lieutenant were discussing a new recruit.

"E's thin as a ramrod and 'e don't look strong enough to help in the storeroom," complained the sergeant.

"Let him clean the rifles," suggested the lieutenant.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL ASKED BY C. OF. C. TO WORK FOR FEDERAL BLDG.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 23—The city council held a meeting of an hour's duration this evening to attend to matters that required attention before the change that is to occur Oct. 1. City Manager Holt asked for the transfer of $16,020 from various funds to several other appropriations. He suggested the transfer of $50 from the small claims court to the police court, $9,240 from the appropriation of director of finance as follows: For the medical expenditure of school children, $213; police department, $2,254; charity, $6,673; sewer maintenance, $125; wharves, $651; ash collection, $5,757; garbage disposal, $139. The contract for the supply of gasoline was awarded to the Gulf Refining Co. The amount is about $2,500.

The city manager suggested the purchase of high-test gasoline on the grounds that it started a machine sooner and was a saving in oil. Councilor Fox said the city paid too much for its gasoline and declared that the Sub-base was buying it for eight or nine cents a gallon. He thought it would be possible for the city to make a better arrangement in price.

The city manager pointed out that that could be done if the city had a place for storing gasoline and Mr. Fox replied that it would pay the city to provide such a place.

Secretary Edgerton of the school board recommended a reduction of $1,650 in the appropriation for grade schools. This was referred to the finance committee.

Michael Colandene was given permission to remove unused cement-lined water pipe where he was digging a cellar for a new house on Colman street.

Gasoline tank installations were authorized in several places.

A contract was awarded to Waurichuk and Rzopnewski to remove for $125 what is known as the Payne house at the coast guard site.

A communication from the chamber of commerce was received asking that a member or members go to the city of Washington to present the need for a federal building here. Referred to committee.

George Packer asked for the removal of a building on Howard street back from the street line to permit widening the sidewalk. Referred to city manager. The public utilities commission gave notice of a hearing on a proposal to have all taxicabs registered on time and distance traveled and the regulation of rates publicly displayed in their car by automatic machine. The hearing is to be held at Hartford Saturday next at 9:30.

The council adjourned to meet October 6, and then went into executive session to consider school appropriation.

Smith Fined $100

Frederick Smith, 253 Montauk avenue, was in the police court this morning, charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. The case was reopened following Smith jumping his bond of $200 yesterday. Today Smith pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs. Smith's bondsman yesterday recovered his bond. Smith was arrested Sunday night and deliberately remained away from court Monday. As a result of his act, a warrant for his arrest was issued and the driver was arrested by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh. He obtained his liberty until today when his brother, Raymond Smith, qualified on a bond of $500.

Frank Meyers, colored youth, was charged with breach of the peace. His case was continued to Oct. 25 and the accused was given into the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. Meyers was arrested last night by Sergeant John Courtney and Patrolman John Sullivan when the youth hurled a bottle into the highway, the glass being scattered several feet.

Four cases of intoxication were tried. One man, a resident of Groton, who has been in court many times within a year, was fined $10 and costs. He was arrested on the approach to the Thames river highway bridge yesterday afternoon by State Police Officers William E. MacKenzie and John Smith and was down and out. The other three men were given suspension of judgment and one of them, a stranger, was ordered to leave the city within 24 hours.

SAILOR DESERTERS STEAL WATCHES AND AUTOMOBILE

Two sailors who deserted from the submarine base last night, are being sought vigorously by the civil and military authorities; for besides being wanted on a charge of desertion, the sailors are also accused of having robbed the optical shop at the base, stealing at least seven watches, also stealing an automobile owned by Louis M. Gardner, Baker's cove, Groton. The watches and the automobile disappeared at the same time as did the bluejackets. The sailors, it is claimed, succeeded in gaining entrance to the optical shop a short time before they left the reservation and after stealing the watches came to New London and, finding Gardner's Buick car parked on Huntington street, drove away in it. The car carries Connecticut registration, 132-805. No trace of it has been found. One of the watches stolen is gold, an open face, and has the following inscription: "To success of John Whalen, U. S. Navy. Presented by his shipmates on U. S. S. Wyoming." Another watch is open face, of white gold, a wrist watch, octagon shape. A third watch, wrist, white gold, is open face and contains the inscription: "H. C. Ford, Rocky Ford, Montana." It is known that three or four other watches were also stolen, but a description of the watches was not obtainable today.

ED. F. BELL TOOK A CHANCE AND HAS ENDED IN JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 23.—Edward F. Bell, proprietor of a small store, 97 Green street, was sentenced to three months in jail in the U. S. district court at New Haven today on a charge of violation of the liquor law. Bell was taken to the New Haven jail. Bell was arrested several weeks ago by Prohibition Enforcement Agent Harry W. Avery. The officer entered the store, accompanied by two New London police officers, and seized a pint of whiskey found on a counter. Bell has been arrested several times for violation of the liquor law, but he never was given a jail sentence until today.

YOUNG SOLDIER'S FOLLY GETS HIM 10 MONTHS IN JAIL

Aubrey MacFarlane, 18, a soldier, stationed at Fort Wright, Fishers Island, was charged with taking an automobile without permission of the owner. He was sentenced to six months in jail and was fined $100. Unless friends go to MacFarlane's rescue he will be compelled to remain in jail nearly ten months. MacFarlane had been on a leave of absence early in the month and being without funds to purchase transportation to New London he was provided with a ticket by an officer of the barracks at Portland, Me. MacFarlane came to this city, but did not return to the fort. He went to Huntington street the following day, and, finding the Ford automobile owned by Wilford Couture, 127 Norwood avenue, MacFarlane entered the car and drove away. MacFarlane went to Somerville, Mass., and there sold the automobile for the ridiculously low price of $35. He continued absent from his post until yesterday and when he reported back for duty he was arrested. This morning MacFarlane was delivered to the civil authorities, being returned to New London by Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty.

DEFENDS WIFE'S GOOD NAME, BUT EDWARDS GETS LOCKED UP

Reese W. Edwards, colored, residing on North Bank street, and Francis Brooks, also colored, a sailor, residing at 31 Hill street, were locked up this evening charged with breach of the peace. Brooks obtained a surety on his bond of $50, but Edwards was less fortunate. Both will be in court tomorrow. Edwards was informed during the day that Brooks had made disrespectful utterances against the former's wife and, shortly after 6 o'clock, Edwards went to Brooks' home and remonstrated with the latter. Harsh words were exchanged and a fight started in which Brooks, a member of the coast guard and assigned to duty on the destroyer Tucker, severely punished Edwards, who had been drinking. While the battle was in progress a resident of Hill street tipped off police headquarters and Patrolmen Frank Philopena and John Sullivan, who went to the Brooks house, arrested the battlers.

TWO NORWICH MEMBERS IN LIST OF OFFICERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 23.—The annual meeting of the New London County Historical society was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the society, the Shaw mansion, Blinman street, and was attended by a large assemblage of members. Following the transaction of business, the gathering listened to an address by Lieut. N. Horowitz, field artillery, United States army. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Ernest E. Rogers; vice-presidents, Howard Palmer, Christopher L. Avery, Groton, Daniel L. Phillips, Jewett City; secretary, Elizabeth H. Gorton; treasurer, Winthrop Trust Co. Advisory committee: Colin S. Buell, P. LeRoy Harwood, Frank V. Chappell, Lawrence W. Miner, Mrs. Benjamin L. Armstrong, William H. Reeves, Rev. Edward M. Chapman, Carey Congdon, Mrs. F. S. Newcomb, Nathan Belcher, Mrs. Herbert L. Crandall, Arthur P. Anderson, Noank; Miss Alexandrine Trumbull, Norwich; Mrs. George Maynard Miner, Waterford; Samuel P. Willard, Colchester; William I. Spicer, Noank, and Mrs. Elisha L. Rogers, Norwich. Lieutenant Horowitz's address was highly interesting, his subject being "The Military Policy of the United States."

SECOND WORTHLESS CHECK WORKED OFF ON MERCHANT

NEW LONDON, Sept. 23.— That New London has harbored a sleek worthless check-passer within a few days there is not the slightest doubt, for with the discovery of a fraudulent check being negotiated Saturday, today a similar check was discovered and tendered by the same person, in a time-worn method by which money or merchandise or both can be obtained.

The checks are printed on the quality of paper generally used for such purpose, but on close scrutiny it is revealed that the checks are not perforated where they are separated or taken from the check book. The checks purport to be the issue of the New London branch of Armour and company, wholesale beef dealers, whose branch is on Railroad avenue. They are drawn on the National Bank of Commerce where the wholesale company is a depositor. They are signed in both instances by "L. Channing, Cashier." Saturday evening the crook went to the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Co., Bank street, and represented that he desired to purchase an auto tire for a Ford car. The tire selected for his auto cost $9.75, but the crook cleverly argued that the tire was too expensive. Finally the prospective customer agreed that he would purchase the tire and tendered a check for $57 in payment, at the same time asserting that the check had been given him as his salary for the week. The check was accepted. It was made payable to "Charlie Leonard" and was endorsed in the latter's name. When the crook was given cash of $47.25, he said that he would leave the tire and have one of the drivers for the beef company call for it. As may be imagined the tire still remains at the Bank street store.

Today it developed that a second check was issued and under like circumstances. Saturday, the crook went to the Economy store, 157 Bank street, and represented that he desired to purchase groceries. He selected goods of the value of about $5 and tendered a check for $54 in payment, receiving in cash the difference between the purchase price and the face of the check. Both checks were dated Sept. 20 and with rubber stamp and they also had been put through a protector in order to make the genuineness of the checks seem apparent. The crook is described as being about 45, about five feet nine and one-half inches in height, stout smooth shaven and wearing a soft gray hat and dark suit. The description tallies with a crook who negotiated several worthless checks in New Britain recently.

Stole From Store Doors

For several days store proprietors have made repeated complaints to the police because of goods deposited at the store entrances prior to the stores being opened for business having been stolen, the goods taken usually being milk, bread, meats and similar foodstuffs. Today, Patrolman Frank Linehan observed a colored youth of 10, residing at 8 Schoolhouse lane, go to one of the stores and start to carry away some of the articles. The boy was taken to police headquarters and later to the police detention room, where he will be detained until such time as he is presented in the juvenile court which will probably be the latter part of the week.

Frank Epps, of this city, was in Waterford town court yesterday, charged with speeding and was fined $10 and costs. He filed notice of appeal and will be tried at the next term of the court of common pleas. Leon B. Mitchell, New Haven, was charged with reckless driving and was fined $50 and costs.

Palace Theatre.

Sheer comedy and sophisticated metropolitan drama are combined in the double feature bill which opens at the Palace theatre on Thursday and will run through Saturday of this week. One of these pictures is the immensely successful photoplay, "On Your Back," starring Irene Rich, Raymond Hackett and H. B. Warner; the other is the rollicking mirth-provoker, "Oh Sailor Behave!" with Irene Delroy, Charles King, Lowell Sherman, Noah Beery and others in its large cast.

In "On Your Back" Irene Rich is an ambitious dressmaker who desires to climb the heights of success. Doing a modest business in a little shop on the East Side of New York city, she resolves to rise to fame in order that her son (Raymond Hackett) shall have all the good things of life that were denied to her when she was in her youth.

Love and intrigue and adventure in old Naples are shown in "Oh Sailor Behave!" Nanette Dodge, an American heiress, comes to Italy and meets Charles Carroll, a reporter. She falls in love with him. Their romance is interrupted when Nanette has to visit her sister in England. When she returns she finds Carroll entangled both politically and socially with Kuni, secretary of a Roumanian general whom his paper has sent him to interview. In the meantime Nanette herself has been married—to a certain Prince Kosoff. How two American sailors, looking for adventure, come ashore and fix things up, makes this one of the most humorous and human dramas ever to come from the Warner studios.

Broadway Theatre

Faith Baldwin, well-known writer, who will be remembered for her novel, "Three Women," caught the modern spirit in a forceful yet charming manner in her novel, "The Office Wife." This story, which, as one of the most popular serial novels, appeared in the Cosmopolitan magazine, and later was published in book form was made into a motion picture at the Warner Bros. studio. It is being presented now at Warner's Broadway.

Of all the present-day pictures, "The Office Wife" is most frank in presenting a situation that occurs constantly in our modern society. It deals with the secretary who takes care of the husband's needs during the day—who works for him—who gives him advice—and takes care of some personal matters that he would otherwise have neglected, who eventually falls in love with him. How does the wife stand in this triangle? What is the husband's choice? All these matters are handled in the most effective manner in "The Office Wife."

Henry Brynan Concert

Mr. Brynan is a musician of high calibre and is earning a deserved artistic reputation. The recital he gives in Slater hall on Tuesday, Sept. 30th, under the auspices of the Norwich Rotary club for the benefit of the John Blackmar fund, is an opportunity to hear this fine young artist.

AWNING FIRE, BRIDGE AND MOTORCYCLE MAKE CALLS FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

The fire department was called out twice Tuesday afternoon and once in the evening. At 12:25 o'clock, Squad A responded to a telephone call for a burning awning at the Disco building, Main street. The awning was over the window of the office occupied by Harry N. Ford and the fire was caused by a careless cigarette smoker, it was reported. The damage was slight.

At 4:14 o'clock, the department received a call for a fire at the N. Y., N. H. and Hartford railroad bridge across the Shetucket river in the local railroad yard. Sparks from a locomotive are thought to have been responsible for the blaze. There was no damage, other than to a couple of railroad ties.

At 10:30 there was a call for a motorcycle with side car which was on fire on South Golden street from backfire in the carburetor. Engine 2 and Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan responded, using six gallons of chemical, but the machine was practically destroyed. It belonged to Edgar J. Robsky of 64 Elizabeth street, a lineman in the employ of the municipal gas and electric department.

NOVENA TO ST. THERESA OPENS THURSDAY AT ST. MARY'S

A novena in honor of St. Theresa of Lesieux begins Thursday evening in St. Mary's Memorial church. It is another indication of "The Little Flower's" growing popularity which threatens even the universal esteem enjoyed by Joan of Arc. In some detail Theresa seems to have the advantage. Even the Catholic church, which is slow and hesitant where holiness and miracles are concerned, actually hurried to canonize "The Little Flower" twenty-eight years after her death. In the case of Joan of Arc there was a wait of some 500 years before her sanctity won the approving word of Rome. To those for whom holiness is "all Greek" it might be interesting to learn why and how this girl at 18, in a sleepy, hidden town deliberately chose to bury herself in the hard hidden life of Carmelite and then within 30 years of her death emerged into a light that is not found on either land or sea. The exercises each evening at 7:30 will consist of rosary, prayers to "The Little Flower", readings from her life by Father Taylor and veneration of a relic of the saint, secured at Lesieux by Rev. George J. Donahue a little more than a year ago. There will be a novena mass each morning at 7:30.

The bride-to-be received many beautiful and useful gifts, among which was a beautiful floor lamp, presented by the members of both societies. Refreshments consisting of assorted sandwiches, fancy cookies, jello whip and coffee were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. H. J. Peckham and Miss Elsie Laycock. Among those present were Mrs. James Spicer, Mrs. Elmer Mulkins, Mrs. George Howard, Mrs. William Sly, Mrs. William Sweet, Mrs. Valentine Sebastian, Mrs. George Haisch, Mrs. Irving Larkin, Mrs. Henry Conklin, Mrs. George Upton, Mrs. Minor Smead, Mrs. Henry Laycock, Mrs. H. I. Peckham, Mrs. Fisher, Mrs. Gladys Upton, Miss Elsie Laycock and Miss Jennie Sebastian. The party broke up at a late hour, all present wishing Miss Sebastian success and happiness in her married life.

More than 40 years of service with the Morgan line will have been concluded by Capt. Charles Potter Maxson, of West Mystic, when he retires on Oct. 1. He is commodore of the line and master of the steamship Dixie, sailing between New York and New Orleans.

Capt. Maxson who is over six feet tall, weighs 200 pounds and radiates good nature. He has the reputation of being one of the most genial skippers sailing out of New York. He leaves the service of the Morgan line as master of the finest ships afloat, which is the goal he has reached from a humble beginning.

Captain Maxson left school at the age of 17 and worked with a fishing fleet for several years off the New England coast. His father then sent him to work as a ship carpenter, and in 1884 he secured a job with the Morgan line. He rose rapidly, and on Feb. 12, 1888, received his master's papers at New Orleans, and sailed on his first command in August of that year as captain of the steamer Aransas of the Morgan line. The Aransas was the first departure from the red side wheelers in that she was painted black and was a propeller ship. He was later promoted to the passenger ships, and was captain of the Proteus, Comus, Momus, Bienville and then transferred as senior captain to the Dixie, the newest ship of the fleet.

The captain was in Havana harbor the night the U. S. S. Maine was blown up, and dispatched a boat to shore offering his deck as a place of safety to any Americans. During the World war he was commissioned a lieutenant commander of the United States naval reserve, and commanded the Morgan line steamship Momus, which carried many troops across. His experiences on the sea run from saving the crew of a sailing vessel in distress to warding off an attack by Chinese contract laborers.

In leaving the service Captain Maxson takes with him the best wishes of hundreds of friends that his future years may be enjoyable ones. Captain Maxson has a wife and three daughters, Mrs. John Wheeler of Mystic, Mrs. James Gilmore of Pittsburgh, and Miss Kathryn Maxson, now of New York. He expects to spend considerable time writing, and may build himself a boat. Whatever he does, he will always be ready to spin a good yarn for his friends.

He will be able to sit up in a few days, it was stated.

$5,000 FIRE DAMAGE TO STORRS HEATING PLANT

STORS, Sept. 23.—The students of Connecticut Agricultural college were awakened early this morning to help extinguish a fire which did approximately $5,000 worth of damage to the college heating plant. The fire, which was caused by spontaneous combustion, started in the coal bunkers which adjoined the building housing the boilers. It is believed to have been burning for several days but at 3 o'clock this morning it broke out in sufficient strength to ignite the coal bunkers, which were soon completely demolished, because of their wooden frame construction.

The fire spread to the boiler building and did considerable damage there, burning the wooden rafters which supported the slate roof. The student volunteer fire company, however, under the direction of R. I. Longley, comptroller of the college; Louis B. Tenney, superintendent of buildings, and Earl W Moore, college fire chief, extinguished the blaze before the roof collapsed. It is believed that it will be possible to resume heating operations within the next few days.

The Canadian province of Ontario has put twenty-five airplanes into its forest patrol service.

HOOVER ADVOCATE OF HOME BUILDING AND OWNERSHIP

Tells Planning Committee That the Greatest Field for Absorption of Surplus National Energy Lies in Better Housing—Said the Second Mortgage System of Financing Homes Was the "Most Backward Segment of Our Whole Credit System"—That It Was Much Easier to Buy an Automobile on the Installment Plan Than to Purchase a House.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 — (AP) — President Hoover today inaugurated his conference on home building and homeownership and in a speech to its planning committee said the "greatest present field for the absorption of our surplus national energy lies in better housing."

Twenty-eight of the 33 members of the committee met and organized at the white house and later heard the president.

The surplus energy Mr. Hoover referred to was the "stream of workers" constantly released from established industry as a result of improvement of method and labor saving devices. This energy, the president said, must be absorbed in "new or expanding industries if we would have for them employment and the articles or services which comprise advancing standards of living."

Mr. Hoover said the second mortgage system of financing homes was the "most backward segment of our whole credit system," and that it was much easier to buy an automobile on the installment plan than it was to purchase a house.

"Part of the difficulty," he added "lies in inadequate financial organizations and part of it you will find in obsolete laws."

The president asked the committee to survey the entire field of housing, including the apartment and rural phases.

"It should be possible in our country," he said "for anybody of sound character and industrious habits to provide himself with adequate housing and preferably to buy his own home."

The president said there were some emergency questions arising from the present depression which the committee could assist in solving, and while it obviously was not the purpose to set up the federal government in the building of homes there were many questions of local government involved.

"It is my hope," he said "that out of this inquiry and the conferences that will follow it we should make so well founded a contribution to our national understanding as to give direction and coordination to thought and action throughout the country.

The names of members of the planning committee later were announced. Those present included Secretary of Commerce Lamont, joint chairman; John M. Gries, commerce department, executive secretary; Harland Bartholomew, president, national conference on city planning, St. Louis; Frederic A. Delano, American Civic association, New York.

Frederick H. Ecker, Association of Life Insurance Presidents, New York; Frederick M. Feiker, Associated Business Papers, New York; James Ford, Better Homes in America, Cambridge, Mass.

Among those who have accepted membership on the committee but were unavoidably absent from the first meeting are:

GERMAN DEFENSE IN THE BLACK TOM EXPLOSION CASE

THE HAGUE, Sept. 24—(AP)— An echo of the Black Tom munitions explosion that shook a great part of the New York metropolitan area in 1916 was heard before the mixed tribunal hearing claims against Germany for damages incident to the World war.

Germany's contention that the explosion was not engineered by her agents was presented by Dr. Tannenberg who attacked the evidence presented by the Americans.

He pointed out that the American spokesman before the tribunal had contended that a German named Kristoff had been the sole perpetrator although he was employed by Captain Frederick Hinsch, German secret service agent. Tannenberg insisted that Kristoff's "so-called confession" to a detective of the Burns agency was inconsistent with an established fact. According to the confession Kristoff had placed dynamite in a large steamship loaded with powder. It has been shown, the German representative told the tribunal, that at the time of the explosion there were only barges at the Black Tom terminal and that the first blaze appeared from the inside of a munitions cart.

There is no evidence whatsoever, he declared, connecting Kristoff with the Black Tom disaster or showing that he was employed by the German government. Furthermore, he insisted, there was no proof that Hinsch, under the false name of Graendnor, had any connection with Kristoff.

TO COMBAT INDECENCY OF MODERN DRESS FOR WOMEN

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 24—(AP)— Methods of combatting what was termed the indecency of modern dress for women were discussed at length today by clergymen attending the National Eucharistic congress. The Rev. Athanasius Steck of Humphrey, Neb., led the discussion.

"The spirit of liberty in its exaggerated form and the lack of delicacy of Christian modesty lost through contact with life in the midst of an overwhelmingly large neo-pagan population, that is Christian in name only," was blamed by Rev. Steck for making "even ordinarily good Catholic women and young ladies unconscious of the indecency of modern dress and its offense against public Christian morality."

U. S. COMMISSIONER WAS SHOT BY AN ANGRY WOMAN

ENID, Okla., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Angered by an unfavorable court decision, Mrs Dolly Douthit, eccentric 60-year-old widow, probably fatally wounded H. E. Wedgwood, United States commissioner, and fired a wild shot at District Judge Arthur Sutton of Alva today in the Garfield county district courtroom here.

Mrs. Douthit, acquitted 26 years ago of the murder of her husband, W. T. Douthit, snatched a revolver from her clothing and fired just after Judge Sutton had announced a decision in favor of Wedgwood, whom she had accused in a law suit of "persecuting" her.

The first bullet struck the commissioner, wounding him in the abdomen. The next missed the presiding judge. Roy Elam, young attorney, disarmed the maddened woman, with the help of court attaches, as she attempted to shoot him.

The court house was thrown into an uproar. About 80 persons were in the court room and confusion prevailed.

Mrs. Douthit was arrested and the filing of charges awaited the outcome of Wedgwood's injuries.

COSTE AND BELLONTE NOW AT SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Sept. 24—(AP)—An uneventful flight across the transcontinental divide today brought Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte here from Denver, where they were halted over-night by a swirling Rocky mountain snow storm.

A throng of admirers greeted the trans-Atlantic fliers at 10:45 a. m. (MST) when their scarlet plane nosed through the haze above the Wasatch mountain range. Continuing their good will flight, the Frenchmen, first to fly from Paris to New York, had taken off at 5:45 a. m. (MST) from Denver.

Coste and Bellonte said they had a fine trip, except for extreme cold part of the way.

Late today they were greeted by thousands of persons, including school children, as they were driven through the city's streets. The parade ended with a civic banquet, at which the fliers were guests of honor.

CURRY AND KOHLER REFUSE TO SIGN IMMUNITY WAIVERS

Both declared they had been "insulted" on emerging from brief appearances before the grand jury.

"The only 'insults' if those gentlemen preferred to construe them as such, were contained in the fact that we asked them to sign waivers," said Hiram C. Todd, special prosecutor in charge of the investigation.

Both refused to sign and were excused as witnesses, Todd said, adding, "Mr. Curry has apparently changed his tactics, apparently he is no longer backing his statement that he would aid the investigation in every way.'

Curry was red in the face and bristling with anger when he came out of the grand jury room.

ROME, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Italo-French naval conversations at Geneva have been broken off completely, according to a spokesman of the foreign office tonight. The hitch was declared here to have come over a French counter proposal whereby France, between 1930 and 1936 would be allowed to build naval vessels of a basis of one and one-half units to Italy's one. The Italians considered this a backward step from the London conference and turned it down, the spokesman averred.

NEW SECRETARY GENERAL OF THE FASCIST PARTY

He succeeded Augusto Turati, secretary since May 1926, whose resignation was announced this afternoon.

Turati, in a letter to Premier Mussolini, said: "Almost five years of the direction of the party are long and exhausting for whoever wishes with all his heart to work in the rythm that you have impressed on Italian life."

Premier Mussolini, in the cold, formal Italian third person singular, although previously he had often used the affectionate second person singular, replied:

"I recognize that after nearly five years of uninterrupted fecund activity you have almost the right to ask for a change in order to reenter the ranks of the blackshirts."

The Duce then nominated Turati to the fascist grand council which is the supreme organ of the state.

The formal taking over of office will take place October 8 at Vidoni palace at which the premier promised a fascist demonstration.

News of Turati's resignation and Giuriati's appointment came with startling suddenness. There was no leak of information until the formal announcement was ready.

SIX YEAR OLD BOY HAS MUSTACHE AND SMOKES

TOLEDO, Ohio Sept. 24—(AP)— What to do with a six year old boy who has a mustache, shaves regularly, smokes cigars inveterately, talks in a deep voice and does strong-man stunts, is puzzling Toledo school officials as well as his parents.

The boy is Clarence Kehr, who is three feet, five inches tall, weighs 84 pounds, and has been doing "strong man" stunts worthy of a grown up since he was three He has a high intelligence quotient.

The boy-man's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kehr, arranged today to go to Columbus to take up the matter of his education with the Ohio department of education.

Toledo public school officials declined to enter Clarence, Jr., in any first grade and schools of the Catholic diocese of Toledo have taken a similar stand after examinations by a physician and psychiatrist. Charles S. Meek, superintendent of schools said that neither the welfare of the boy-man nor the best interest of his classmates, could be served by permitting him to enter the public schools.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Inclusion in the platform of a plank advocating repeal of the 18th amendment, and the nomination of Charles H. Tuttle for governor, appeared certain, tonight on the eve of the republican state convention.

Spokesmen for the repeal advocates claimed to have nearly 700 of the 991 delegates lined up in opposition to the prohibition amendment.

While declining to permit themselves to be quoted, some of the dry leaders admitted that their cause loomed hopeless and that on the surface there was every indication the repeal plank would be included in the platform and that Mr. Tuttle, United States district attorney at New York, would be nominated on the first ballot.

LINKING EWALD CASE WITH DISAPPEARANCE OF CRATER

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)— A link between the Ewald case and the mysterious disappearance of Supreme Court Justice Joseph Force Crater was seen today in the discovery that two telephone calls passed between the justice's Fifth avenue apartment and the summer home of Martin J. Healy nearly a month after Crater vanished.

District Attorney Crain announced that Healy, a Tammany district leader, and former Magistrate George F. Ewald would be summoned to appear before the county grand jury investigating the judge's disappearance. Healy and Ewald are under indictment on charges that Healy accepted $10,000 in consideration of Ewald's appointment to the magistrates bench.

Crain said both calls, one lasting six minutes and the other seven, were made on August 29, several days before the disappearance of Justice Crater who was last seen on August 6, became publicly known.

Schulberg, Paramount studio official, today took cognizance of Reno, Nev., reports that Clara Bow, red headed film actress had repudiated $13,900 in checks given to cover alleged gambling losses, but said it was a "matter of Miss Bow's" that did not concern the studio.

48 Enemies Of Soviet Govt. Shot To Death

Had Been Found Guilty of Seeking to Destroy the Food Reserve of the Country.

MOSCOW, Sept. 24—(AP)—All members of a secret counter-revolutionary society, number 48, who were found guilty of seeking to starve the population of the Soviet union by destroying the food reserve of the country, were shot today by the Ogpu as "unreconcilable enemies of the Soviet government and active counter-revolutionists."

Professor Alexander Ryazantzev and Eugene Karatyguin, headed the list of executed governmental officials as the initiators and organizers of the society.

On September 22 the Soviet government announced the disclosure of a powerful counter revolutionary society embracing organizations of the meat, fish, vegetable and other food industries as well as the commissariat of trade and state planning institutions.

The Ogpu (secret police) charged the society with striving to create a food panic throughout the country, thus exciting the resentment of the population and preparing the ground for overthrow of the proletarian dictatorship. The authorities said it was the purpose of the conspirators to establish a bourgeois democracy.

The society was said to be headed by Prof. Alexander Ryantzev, chairman of the meats products department of the commissariat, formerly a rich landowner and a general in the Czarist army. The society included high officials in all branches of the Soviet food producing and distributing institutions. Most of the members were former noblemen, Czarist officers, manufacturers and property owners.

The secret police declared that according to a confession which they obtained the society was initiated and subsidized by a British meat packing firm.

Those arrested were understood to have been tried by a police body instead of the supreme court.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24—(AP)—A get-rich-quick scheme whereby at least 16 persons are alleged to have been defrauded of $250,000 with a promise of 150 per cent profit was disclosed tonight by Assistant District Attorney Kane.

W. Ayer and Sons.

Kane said the names forged included that of Wilfred Fry, president of the Ayer firm.

Groesbeck, arrested in Boston on the charge of Prof. George C. Autenreite of the College of the City of New York, was brought to New York today. He had been indicted June 12. Autenreite complained that he lost $25,000.

Police said Groesbeck got $30,000 from persons living in Schenectady, N. Y., while operating an advertising and promotion business there. He left Schenectady to go to Bennington, Vt., and North Adams, Mass., where he said he lived for a time as Douglas E. Green.

AMPLE CREDIT TO MARKET THE AGRICULTURAL CROPS

Federal Reserve Board Announced That the 12 Federal Reserve Banks Will Extend Credit Facilities for Financing the Marketing of the Crops in an Orderly Manner—Statement Made After a Review of the General Economic and Credit Situation Throughout the Country.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.— (AP) — Farmers were assured today by the federal reserve board that the federal reserve banks would provide ample credit for marketing agricultural crops this fall at rates cheaper than ever before.

In an announcement following a conference preliminary to the regular meeting between the board and the governors and chairmen of the twelve federal reserve banks, the board said it had been assured the banks had ample facilities to finance the movement of the crops and that such credit was being provided by them and other agencies interested in the orderly marketing of agricultural products.

"The twelve federal reserve banks," the board said, "through rediscounts for their member banks, loans to federal intermediate credit banks on agricultural paper of co-operative associations and purchases of bankers acceptances covering agricultural commodities, are making their resources available for the marketing of the country's crops at the lowest rates in the history of the country."

The rates charge on rediscounts by the banks are at the lowest level they have ever reached ranging from 2 1-2 per cent at New York to 3 per cent at Boston and 3 1-2 per cent in the other banks.

GUARDSMEN MOBILIZED DURING RUN ON BANK

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Sept. 24—(AP)— The Pine Bluff company of the Arkansas National Guard was mobilized here tonight to prevent possible robbery during a run on the Merchants and Planters Bank and Trust company which remained open to pay depositors desiring to withdraw their funds.

Officials of the bank, which has deposits approximating $2,500,000, said they believed the run had been broken about 8:30 tonight and that $5,000,000 was on hand if its use became necessary. Withdrawals during the day were estimated at $30,000.

Withdrawals started at the bank today and by 4 p. m. an estimated $10,000 had been taken out by depositors.

Police authorities said that a false report that the bank planned to close tomorrow might have been started to cause a run so that bandits could "hijack" depositors or hold up the bank.

Early tonight the lobby had taken on a festive air, and sandwiches were being served to depositors while tellers remained in their cages to pay any who wished to withdraw their money.

WOULD REPEAL VOLSTEAD ACT THEN THE 18TH AMENDMENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—(AP)— Less government in business and a return of power to the states were advocated today by James A. Reed, Missouri democratic warrier, as he discussed public questions upon his return from a vacation trip to Europe.

"I am back in Kansas City where I want to be and I am very well contented."

But the old gleam came to his eyes as the silver haired veteran parried questions with newspapermen over public issues and he showed an intense interest in the problems of the day. He said he probably would participate in the fall campaign.

"Prohibition?" he asked back. "I think it is perfectly obvious that the American people have given this law a very thorough trying out and that it has been found to be the ghastliest failure in the last half century of legislation. Repeal the eighteenth amendment and as a preliminary to that repeal the Volstead act."

BUYING WHEAT TO BE SOLD FOR LIVESTOCK FEED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—(AP)— The Farmers National Grain corporation was said today by Samuel R. McKelvie, grain member of the farm board, to be buying wheat in small amounts to be sold for livestock feed.

The purchases, he said, would not result in any large accumulation of wheat stocks, but would fill selling orders which the Farmers National received from its members.

Earlier in the day McKelvie had said the grain stabilization corporation was making purchases of wheat, also to be sold for livestock feed to farmers in the drought areas.

While the stabilization corporation did buy wheat for that purpose at the inception of drought relief efforts, McKelvie said tonight its purchases for that reason have stopped.

In no case, he emphasized, were the purchases to be regarded as a stabilization operation for the 1930 crop. The amount of wheat now held by the corporation will be maintained at its present figure, of between 60,000,000 and 65,000,000 bushels.

CHIANG URGES CHINESE REBELS TO SURRENDER

SHANGHAI, Sept. 24—(AP)—The Kuo Min news agency reports that immediate peace was urged by General Chiang Kai-Shek today in a circular telegram to the northern rebel soldiers. Chiang stressed the futility of further resistance on the part of the rebels and pointed out that retreat in all directions was now cut off by the government troops and the northeastern "Manchurian" soldiers. Chiang also expressed satisfaction at the downfall of the leaders of the rebellion and assured the entire rank and file of the Kuominchun and Shansi rebels that they would be accorded liberal treatment by the government if they will return to their original garrison posts and await the government's orders.

"Further resistance will only hasten your complete extinction," Chiang concluded in his last advice to the rebels.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS EPIDEMIC IN MAINE

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 24—(AP)—The state is in the midst of an infantile paralysis epidemic, Dr. Clarence F. Kendall, state health commissioner, said today in issuing a general call for blood donations from convalesced victims to combat the malady. It was the first time in the history of the state that such a call had been made.

Dr. Kendall stated that 63 cases and eight deaths resulting from infantile paralysis have occurred in Maine since August 1.

"I do not, however, expect the present epidemic will reach the proportions of the 1910 epidemic when 35 persons died," he said, "or the 1916 epidemic, when 26 deaths were reported."

Blood obtained by donation will be used in the preparation of serum which is very rare at this time, the health commissioner said. Serum prepared from the blood of persons who have had the malady is the only known preventive of the paralysis which sometimes follows the disease, he said.

POETRY

The Executioner

The headsman is a huge and somber shape,
  Pacing the gardens in a revery
Wrapped in the blackness of his satin cape
  As if its folds concealed a mystery.

What are his thoughts? Along the garden walks
  Out of the night gleam white-faced pansies,
In the warm dark a plaintive fountain talks—
  What are the headsman's summer fancies?

To him the moonlight is a swinging sword,
  The moon becomes the proud and severed head
Of some white Queen, slain by her jealous lord
  With her last love-laugh, mocking him though dead.

To him the fountain's music is the cry
  Of ghostly maidens white as pansies,
Bowed in the darkness, unresigned to die,
  Such are the headsman's summer fancies.

—Persis Greely Anderson, in Poetry World.

The Great Unsatisfied

The men who are not satisfied
  Are they who set the pace—
The men who do not meet defeat
  With calm, contented face;
The men who labor on and on,
  With minds and fingers skilled—
They are the great unsatisfied
  Who plan, and fight, and build.

The men who are not satisfied—
  They are the ones who lead;
They force humanity ahead
  By strident word and deed;
They bring us out of bygone ways;
  They guide us through the dark
To where some man, unsatisfied
  Has set a shining mark.

The men who are not satisfied—
  They gird the world with wires;
They belt the land with rails of steel,
  And pierce the air with spires;
They loose the leash of sweet content,
  With which mankind is tied.

We'll never pay the debt we owe

—Wilbur D. Nesbit (1871-1927).

The home was decorated with palms and fall flowers. Rev. Manley J. Shaw, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, performed the ceremony. The bride wore a beautiful gown of ivory crepe with a tulle veil in cap style and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies-of-the valley. Miss Frieda Froemel, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and was attired in brown chiffon velvet with hat to correspond. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow carnations and roses. Frank Beckwith, brother of the groom, was best man. Following the ceremony, a reception was held for a few intimate friends and members of the two families. During the afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Beckwith left for a wedding trip which will take them to the White mountains. Upon their return they will make their home in South Windham. For traveling the bride wore a brown ensemble. Many friends wish Mr. and Mrs. Beckwith much happiness and prosperity in their married life.

Owners of all the busses in New York and Chicago; Founder of the Yellow Cab Co. Director Forman-State National Bank, Chicago.

"A champion race horse or a leader in industry, I have found, is seldom a result of chance. Concentration upon quality—that's what counts. When I read the personal reports of your distinguished visitors, revealing your use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos, I knew that you were on the right track. Quality is everything—and the American people demand and appreciate the best."

John Hertz

LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating! Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray.

DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 24.—During the fiscal year ending July 31, last, the indebtedness of the town of Killingly was reduced $20,036.77. This is an all-time record reduction of debt in one year in this town, and is only approximated by the reduction of the year previous, when there was another reduction of about $26,000.

Figures contained in the financial statement that has been prepared in the office of the selectmen for inclusion in the forthcoming annual town reports were released to the press today by First Selectman Charles A. Tillinghast.

The statement shows, among other things, that taxes to the amount of $6,483.65 were charged off the lists of 1928 and 1929 the past year and that the deficit was reduced $26,316.05. During the 12 months covered by the statement herein quoted the indebtedness of the town was reduced from $342,146.13 to $313,109.36. No inventory of the real property of the town enters into the statement. Serial bonds of the town are outstanding to the amount of $287,000.

In connection with the splendid showing that has been made it is pointed out that the past two financial years have been exceptionally favorable ones. Credits in various instances have exceeded expectations, and it has been possible in instances to keep expenditure considerably below budget estimates.

Cases in point are the outside poor account and the road maintenance account. The budget estimate for outside poor costs was $13,000. The gross expenditures for outside poor and child welfare work actually totaled $15,069.06 during the 12 months ending July 31, last, but there was received from the state and from neighboring towns repayments amounting to $3,339.88, this bringing the net cost down to $11,729.18, very considerably under the budget estimate.

Again the budget provided $36,950 for highway, culverts, bridge work, etc. Actually, the net cost last year was $30,912.65. In a measure this fine saving was made possible because of the open winter, relieving the town from heavy snow removal costs.

The forthcoming town reports will show that the net cost of operating the town farm the past year was $4,164. The gross cost was considerably larger, but farm revenue, for the sale of cows, calves, chickens, eggs, milk, cream, vegetables, etc., amounted to $2,307.95. The cost per dependent resident at the farm was at the rate of 1,078 persons for one week, or only $3.89 per person per week. This surprisingly low cost includes medical and other special care.

Always of interest to a great many citizens are the figures having to do with selectmen's compensation. The reports will show that Mr. Tillinghast received $121 for transportation and $385.50 for his services, a total of $506.50. Napoleon P. Gingras received $545.50 for his services and $86 for transportation, a total of $631.50. A. D. Sayles received $737 for services and $24 for transportation, a total of $761. The total for the services of the three selectmen was $1,688, for transportation $231.

Budgets prepared by the selectmen and the town school committee for the current fiscal year of the town of Killingly, the period run from last Aug. 1 to July 31, 1931, total $197,112.64. The selectmen's budget calls for a gross of $117,100, but there are estimated credits that the town will receive from one source or another to bring the selectmen's budget down to $98,460 net.

Major items in the selectmen's budget are: Town farm, $7,000; outside poor, $13,000; state hospitals, $4,000; repair of town roads, $16,000; gravel, special account, $6,000; oiling streets and roads, $7,500; bridges, $2,500; brush, $1,000; snow removal (general), $1,000; snow removal, Danielson, $600; town clerk and treasurer, $800; registrar marriages, births, deaths, $350; selectmen nad transportation, $1,900; selectmen's office and central bookkeeping department, supplies, clerk and telephone, $1,200; personal tax enrollment, $50 personal tax collector (stipend) $300; property tax collector, $950; library appropriation, $400; Memorial day appropriation, $450; Day Kimball hospital, $800; Mansfield Training school, $550.

OCTOGENARIAN ENJOYS ATTENDING BROOKLYN FAIR

DANIELSON, Sept. 24.—Joseph B. Stetson, smiling octogenarian, greeted scores of his friends and chatted with them pleasantly as he made his way through the buildings and about the grounds at the Brooklyn fair today. Mr. Stetson was connected with the Brooklyn fair, in one capacity or another, for 52 years, being secretary of the fair association for close to half a century. Mr. Stetson is 83 years of age.

"I have never missed a Brooklyn fair since I was a child," Mr. Stetson remarked this morning. "The first time I attended was as a little boy, and it probably was 75 years ago. At that time the vegetables, dairy products and exhibits in other such classes were on display in the hall of the Unitarian church on Brooklyn green, and the cattle were shown in a field just west of where the town hall building stands. The fair association had not at that time purchased the present fair grounds. Later they did buy part of the present property, erected some buildings and built a quarter-mile track for the races that were held back in that day, and I recall that some of the greatest race horses in the country back in those days were brought to Brooklyn to entertain the crowds."

Mr. Stetson's first connection with the fair association was when he was 18 years of age. In the more than half century that he served the organization in official ways, he gained a widespread acquaintance. He still enjoys coming to the fair and meeting folks, talking over old times with many of them that were his cronies of years gone by.

Merrill Bennett, a member of the faculty of Leland Stanford university, in the department of economics, at Palo Alto, Cal., came here today for a brief visit. Mr. Bennett, who is staying with his parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Gallup, will leave Thursday for Washington, D. C., where he has business that will claim his attention for about two weeks. Mr. Bennett is a graduate of Killingly High school and of Brown university.

Registrations are sufficient to assure the success of the vocational school that the state board of education has so kindly arranged to inaugurate in this community, supplying the teacher and paying the costs. The class in foods is especially well filled. The course is to begin within a few days.

It is indicated that there will be enrollment from this town for the evening courses that are to be given during the fall and winter at the State Trade school in Putnam. For several years past a considerable number from this town have taken these courses, with much profit to themselves. This year the evening courses will begin on Sept. 29.

After a recess since early summer, members of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Alban's parish have resumed their meetings, and they will assemble periodically from now on until another warm weather season begins.

In political circles the word is going about that State Senator Napoleon Fournier of Moosup is going to make an active drive for election as sheriff of Windham county. Senator Fournier is the democratic candidate, and has such a strong opponent to overcome as Sheriff Charles A. Gates of Willimantic, the republican candidate and incumbent of the office.

Appropriates $700 for Sewer

Last evening's special borough meeting made an appropriation of $700 for the building of a sewer through Potter street, a short thoroughfare, from School street to a point opposite the Torrey property. Dr. W. H. Judson, health officer of the borough, addressed the meeting, which was attended by only 24 voters. Gordon J. Gale was chairman of the meeting and Frank T. Preston clerk. The understanding is that the sewer will be built this fall.

State Officers H. Theodore Strand, John Murphy and Lionel Poirier of the Danielson barracks were assigned to duty at the Brooklyn fair today.

Several hundred people from Danielson were among the large number attending the fair today. The number of exhibitors from this town was considerable.

Mrs. Eugene Vetter of Norwich, a former resident here, was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

Among a herd of cattle that W. H. Herr & Sons exhibited at the Brooklyn fair today was an unusual and handsome young Jersey bull. This animal, but six months old, but as large as the average bull of ten months, is unusual in that instead of being colored like an average Jersey he is almost exactly squirrel-like in coloring.

Tax Collector James R. Walsh has nothing to worry about in the coming town election. A democrat, he not only has the nomination of his own party for re-election, but also the endorsement of the republican party. This has been the case for several years past, and is a tribute to the splendid record he has made in office.

Game officials in this county are keeping a careful watch for deer hunters this early in the fall. There already are reports that hunters have been out jack-lighting for deer in the eastern part of this town, which part runs along the Rhode Island border.

The Brussells sprout crop in nearby territory is reported to have been a good one this year. Various Finnish farmers in Brooklyn and Canterbury specialize in raising this crop, and are very successful with it. Nightly shipments are made out of the territory by truck, growers pooling their pick, much of which goes to the Boston market.

ENCOURAGING REPORT OF CONDITION OF CHIEF THURSTON

PUTNAM, Sept. 24.—An inquiry for the condition of Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston, who is critically ill at the Truesdell hospital in Fall River, Mass., made at the hospital late this afternoon brought the brief but encouraging report that, "Chief Thurston is holding his own."

In early reports received from the hospital today it was mentioned that Mr. Thurston is continuing his brave fight against the seemingly unconquerable odds which have been arrayed against him for the past week. Every possible aid known to medical science, is being used by attending physicians who are doing their best to nurse the stricken fire chief and power company executive back to health. It was said this morning by one of the Connecticut Light and Power officials here that a trained nurse is constantly in attendance at the chief's bedside.

Scientific students at Putnam High school, working under the direction of Coach L. F. Noyes are conducting some interesting experiments with the potential distance toy balloons filled with hydrogen soar before the bouyancy supply of gas becomes exhausted. Two of these balloons were sent up early this week with notes tied to them asking the finders to notify the scientific department of the school, where and at what time the deflated rubbers were found. Yesterday a group of students released another balloon with similar instruction affixed to its opening. The little red bag made a quick ascension and within a few minutes disappeared behind a cloud in the eastern skies, traveling at the time in the general directio nof Westerly, R. I.

Professor Z. W. Coombs of the history department of Worcester Tech delivered an interesting talk on the history of the federal constitution of the United States today at the weekly meeting of the Putnam Rotary club, held at noon at the Putnam Inn. President Alexander Gilman presided and introduced as visiting Rotarians, Clifford H. Starkweather and Henry Dubuc, both of Danielson.

J. S. SPENCER, CIVIL WAR VETERAN ANSWERS LAST CALL

PUTNAM, Sept. 24—In the death, Tuesday, of Joseph S. Spencer of East Woodstock, that little community suffered the loss of its last veteran of the Civil war. Mr. Spencer, who has carried on alone for the past few years the noble traditions of that once mighty host, the ranks of which are constantly thinning with the passing of the years, was in his 91st year. He was widely known in Woodstock where he lived for many years, enjoying the deep respect and high esteem of his fellow citizens.

Mr. Spencer was born in Southbridge, Mass., on February 13, 1840. At the outbreak of the Civil war, he enlisted at Sturbridge, Mass., and served throughout the great conflict with the 51st regiment of Massachusetts volunteers. When mustered out of the service, he returned to Southbridge where he lived for a number of years. About 30 years ago he removed to East Woodstock. He is survived by his son, Irving Spencer of Tacoma, Washington and by two brothers and a sister. At the funeral services, arrangement have been made to have military last rites accorded this soldier of '61 by the younger generation of veterans of the World war, who are receiving everywhere the records and cherished flags and other patriotic mementoes of the Grand Army of the Republic, which are being rapidly turned over by the few surviving veterans, few of which remain in this part of Windham county.

Rev. Joseph Vasey of Terre Haute, Ind., who has accepted a call to become pastor of the Congregational church of this city, will arrive in Putnam next Wednesday, succeeding Rev. James F. English, who resigned June 1. Rev. Mr. Vasey will preach his first sermon on Sunday, Oct. 5.

Selectmen of the various towns in northern Windham county have notified legal voters to meet in town meeting on October 6, at which time slates of officers will be elected and recommended appropriations approved.

Inspected Birthplace

SEVERAL THOUSAND PERSONS VIEW FINE EXHIBITION AT BROOKLYN FAIR

(Special to The Bulletin)

BROOKLYN, Conn., Sept. 24—From all points and over every highway leading into Brooklyn, throngs came today to attend the 81st annual exhibition of the Windham County Agricultural society, oldest in the United States.

Of the several thousand people who were on the grounds during the day many were attending, anywhere from the 10th to the 50th time, and there were those among them for upwards of 60 years.

This year's Brooklyn fair is a creditable exhibition. It is an old-time country fair, preserving the traditions, in large measure, of more than two generations, and combines with them much that is modern and thoroughly up-to-date.

The growing season now drawing to a close is demonstrated by exhibitors at the fair as having been a satisfactory one. Splendid specimens of about every variety of vegetable grown in southern New England are on display, and Windham county's famous apples, shown by several growers, were admired and praised by hundreds.

The midway is not so glittering this year as it has been some years in the recent past, and until well on into the afternoon state officers who were on duty to see that certain laws of the state as to games of chance were observed found nothing to attract their special attention.

The cattle show today was the best the fair has had for years. All space in the cattle sheds was occupied and overflow entries were tied along the rail at the fence near the sheds. All entries in the cattle department are tuberculin tested animals, and many of them were from the high rating herds of the county.

Main Exhibition Hall

The main exhibition hall is almost exclusively given over to displays of fruits and vegetables, flowers, dairy products, preserves and other products of the housewife's art.

In this building outstanding displays are made by Brooklyn and Canterbury granges. The generous section allotted to Brooklyn grange is attractively arranged to show fruits, vegetables, preserves, fancy work, etc., to best advantage.

This exhibit has as its special feature a reproduction of the Brooklyn fair grounds. Miniature replicas of all the buildings on the grounds are shown; also the race track and even the pump where cattle are watered, with tiny "cows" slacking their thirst. S. Irving Frink, Brooklyn, gets credit for conceiving and working out this very clever idea.

Canterbury grange also features miniature reproductions of buildings in that town in its exhibit this year. Amidst a splendid setting of flowers, fruits, vegetables, fancy work, dresses and many other things are set a likeness of the Canterbury Methodist church, and also little duplicates of the Canterbury Green school and the Grange building in that town. This exhibit attracted a great deal of attention throughout the day.

The Windham County Vegetable Growers' association demonstrates by its exhibit of a surprising large variety of vegetables that its members are experts in their line and that the products of their fields rank exceedingly high. All vegetables shown were just about perfect. Included were some varieties, like "oyster plant" that few people attending the fair could identify.

Students Exhibit Vegetables

Worthy competitors of the Vegetable Growers' association at the fair are the boys of Killingly high school's vocational education department. These boys, working with the department head, Walter G. Bruce, show over 30 varieties of vegetables in their fine display, which is very neatly arranged. Mr. Bruce said that the boys have worked during the growing season under the handicap of being limited in their efforts to comparatively small tracts of land, but on a total of less than 10 acres, much of it in quarter or third of an acre tracts, they have made a grand showing.

The Windham County Farmers' association has a display at the fair having to do with interesting people in the use of greater quantities of milk. County Agent Raymond Wing was in charge.

Individual exhibitors of vegetables had many interesting entries, and the judges were busy inspecting them this afternoon preparatory to making awards.

Business Concerns Exhibits

Several business concerns have displays, in charge of attendants, at this year's fair. The Connecticut Light and Power company, Danielson division, shows electrical appliances. D. Blumenthal, Danielson, shows Fada, Clarion and Stromberg-Carlson radios, and also the Thor washer and Lynn range. The Despathy Furniture company of Moosup has a display of furniture, Philco radios, Detroit Jewel ranges and circulating heaters. Chandler and Morse of Putnam show General Electric, Atwater Kent and Victor radios and General Electric refrigerators. The Yantic Grain and Products company shows a line of grains.

Out on the grounds north of the exhibition building several automobile dealers from Danielson and other nearby communities have a showing of attractive new cars.

In the ladies' department there is the usual very extensive showing of fancy work and many varieties of needlecraft. Hundreds of women spent considerable of their time at the fair today inspecting the displays in this department.

Splendid Cattle Show

It appeared today as though more people than for years past were inspecting the entries in the cattle show, and a good show it was. W. H. Herr and Sons, owners of Meadowbrook farm, Brooklyn, showed a herd of 22 fine Jerseys, headed by one of the finest herd sires in eastern Connecticut, Upway's Owl's Floyd, a four year old animal that is a beauty.

Alvan Sweet of Putnam had five Guernseys and one Jersey on display.

William C. Child of the Valleyside farm in Woodstock entered 25 head of sire, cows, heifers and calves. F. W. Wood of Fairchance farm, Danielson, showed a pure bred Ayrshire bull, a pure bred Short Horn bull, less than a year old, grade Short Horn heifer, a grade Ayrshire and a yearly Holstein.

Another large exhibitor was Everill James of the Green Hollow road, Plainfield. His fine herd of 18 Ayrshires were especially pleasing to cattle men.

Mrs. Harold Hibbard of Woodstock showed a herd of 19 head of milking Short Horns, a breed of cattle heretofore not seen in any great numbers at this fair.

M. R. Wibberly of Echoland farm, Canterbury, had some Guernsey entries, and T. H. Clark of Scotland showed three Jerseys.

Attractive Poultry Display

The poultry show is good, but limited this year. Among the awards to exhibitors made up to early this afternoon were the following: F. W. Wood, Danielson; Firsts on White Rock cock, White Rock cockerel, White Rock pullet, S. C. White Leghorn pullet, White Leghorn cockerel, Partridge Rock hen, Patridge Rock pullet, Buff Orpington hen, S. C. R. I. Red cock; seconds for White Rock cockerel, White Leghorn pullet, Partridge Rock hen, Buff Orpington hen, S. C. White Leghorn pullet; third for White Rock cockerel. Additional firsts to Mr. Wood were on black Leghorn pullet, black Minorca hen and R. C. R. I. hen.

G. H. Sanderson won first for R. I. Red hen, R. C. R. I. Red pullet, R. C. R. I. Red cockerel, dark Cornish hen, dark Cornish cock, dark Cornish cockerel, dark Cornish pullet, white Cornish hen, white Cornish cockerel; seconds on R. C. R. I. hen and R. C. R. I. pullet.

Kenneth Andrews received a first for S. C. R. I. Red cockerel and second on a similar entry.

Fine Apple Exhibit

Among exhibitors having fine displays of apples are: William Child, Woodstock, H. B. Buell, Eastford; James Nuttall, Pomfret; A. Ruksteis, Wauregan; Kenneth Andrews, F. W. Newton, Henry Joy, W. R. Wibberly, Canterbury, and Canterbury grange. Mr. Buell showed especially beautiful Red Mackintosh, and declared them to be the best in every respect, and especially as to coloring, that he has ever grown. It appears that there is a bountiful crop of apples this fall, and that prices, even for the best fruit, is depressed from the figures that last year's crop brought.

Little Tot Wins Prize

A youthful prize winner at the fair today was Ruth Wibberly of Canterbury, she being awarded a first for a small pig she brought to the fair. The little girl is but seven years of age.

Crowd Views Horse Races

The customary program of horse races was carried out this afternoon, with the grandstand crowded and the rails lined with spectators. J. C. Witter, as starter, sent the racers away, as he has done for many years. The results:

Band Concert and Vaudeville

A band concert and a vaudeville program were added attractions this afternoon. Secretary Marshad J. Frink expressed himself as pleased with the exhibits at the fair and also over the perfect weather and the fine attendance, attesting to the continued interest of the general public in this fine old fair.

SLASHING PILOTAGE FEES BOOSTS KEY WEST HARBOR

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—By reducing pilotage charges 50 per cent, Key West has attracted wide attention and bids fair to become an important port of call for ships plying between European countries and South America through the Panama canal.

Members of the Key West pilot commission point out that since the low rates became effective, hundreds of foreign vessels have come to the port for refueling and repairs.

Inquiries concerning the port and harbor have been received from many European countries. American shipping interests have also commended the move.

The six per cent tax on gross receipts of busses and trucks in North Carolina yields the state about $379,000 a year.

CURBING CITY NOISES

One city has followed another in the efforts to find ways of eliminating disturbing noises. Some people object to mill bells, whistles and crowing roosters in their search for quiet and sleep, but there is more than passing objection to street noises of various kinds, screeching locomotive whistles, flat wheel cars and automobile horns, to which might be added a wide variety of others.

It is recognized that it is impossible to escape a certain amount of noise and the chief effort is directed at those which are, for the most part, needless. In the rush and bustle there has been little thought by the many contributors to the roar of street noises, to which is added in many instances the loud radio and the rattlety bang of iron-tired vehicles on block pavements. The noise-making has grown steadily in volume and public sentiment against it has been growing stronger and stronger. It has reached the point where there are real demands that a stop be put to much of it. Modern civilization is being asked to place a check on the din to which it has been making additions by leaps and bounds.

Motor Vehicle Commissioner Stoeckel recognizes the contributions to the noises which are made by the thoughtless drivers of automobiles, and he is of the opinion that much of it is unnecessary and has become such a nuisance that authorities may be obliged to take action to end it. While he appreciates that a motor vehicle can be turned into an unnecessary noise-maker until it can be considered the worst in the world, he rates the improper use of the horn as the most objectionable noise. This he rightly insists is carried as a safety device and should be used as such and not to rag a traffic cop, jar the sensibilities of residents, or to summon someone from the house to the street instead of ringing the doorbell.

Much of the objectionable noise can be abated, quite the same as that caused by the indiscreet use of the auto horn. The important thing is to get those responsible to appreciate the need and give their cooperation. That is preferable to penalization, but penalization may be necessary.

IMITATION DANGER SIGNS

Road signs are many. Some draw the fire of the authorities when erected in violation of the law and others disturb the motorists because they are considered needless or are poorly placed. Those which are used for advertising purposes but are erected to catch the eye of the automobile riders by directing them to stop for eats, gas or golf, are special targets for opposition, since they so often fool the driver that he neglects to pay attention to the signs which really mean stop or slow down.

While there are plenty of instances where there are not direction signs enough to accommodate those unfamiliar with cross roads, there are times when it is considered that there are so many signs indicating turns in the road, where it is felt no signs are called for, that motorists are inclined to pay little or no attention to them.

On the new road over Southington mountain there is a steep grade where many accidents and fatalities have occurred. There is a disposition on the part of drivers to rush down the hill, disregarding the sign erected at the top advising them to go down the grade in second gear. Some heed the warning. Others plunge ahead, passing the fellow in second and making a speedway of a really dangerous grade and, when they do participate in an accident, creating an extra hazard for all other users of that highway.

The refusal to abide by the warning sign is attributed to the feeling that in too many instances such signs are not required and because of the habit of quite generally disregarding the constantly appearing signs of one kind or another. It is on a par with the disregard for grade crossing signs and in some instances for red lights. It cannot be said that such practice reflects good judgment and there is plenty of evidence that it results in sudden and horrible deaths.

The imitation warning and danger signs should have no place in the highway, or adjacent thereto, and if their elimination would bring greater respect for those which point out dangerous conditions they cannot be removed too soon.

RUSSIAN WHEAT

Secretary Hyde has directed attention to the manner in which soviet Russia has been dealing in wheat on the Chicago market to depress the price and has called for an investigation by the Chicago board of trade. This should disclose the situation so far as the Russian government's market activities in this country are concerned, to which it is believed it has no intention of sending any wheat. But this doesn't appear to be the only country in which Russia is endeavoring to dump its wheat at ridiculous prices. Reports have it that it is unable to get ships enough to transport the grain to other countries where it is being sold at figures which seriously disturb the wheat market and wheat growers.

The impression created by the Russian invasion of the world wheat market is that it has a tremendous quantity of wheat, so much more than it requires at home that it can sell wheat cheap. Reports do not bear this out, however, for it is maintained that the people of Russia are on a wheat ration and that which would otherwise be consumed by them is being used to disrupt the world market. Russia is taking the grain and, from all indications, selling it for what it can get to pay for the goods it has bought on credit. It is starving the people at home while it is using the product of slave labor to undersell the wheat growers of other nations.

What it is doing with wheat is not so different from what it has been doing with lumber, pulp, manganese and other products. Russia may be able in time to do a large export business in various directions but it doesn't appear to be ready for it now. Certainly it is a serious situation when starvation and suffering are created at home in order to export wheat and other commodities, and when Secretary Hyde declares that Russia has no wheat to export he unquestionably takes into consideration this fact that the needs at home are being neglected.

Dumping Russian products in other countries has been the cause for much discussion and some legislation. The wheat situation may force much more of it and in more countries than this.

WINDHAM'S "MESS"

The situation in the town of Windham, where the town treasurer has decided not to accept his renomination after it was disclosed by the state tax commissioner that the debt of the town was actually twice and possibly three times as large as the townspeople had been told, is attributed to following a practice that has been in vogue for some years.

Instead of telling the taxpayers what the condition actually was, there was considered to be some advantage in keeping it covered up. The treasurer claims it has been going on for more than 30 years and that the situation is "a mess."

The situation must be an eye-opener to Windham. It should demonstrate to the townspeople the necessity of keeping in closer touch with the affairs of their own town, to look into what is really their own business. It likewise reveals to them the importance of the state tax commissioner's office and the value of a vigilant commissioner.

To go along in the belief that the debt of a town is a half or a third of what it really is and then be rudely awakened to the fact that conditions have been covered up and the situation is a mess is enlightening, to say the least. It creates the impression that the townspeople of Windham must have learned a lesson and that they will be more keenly concerned with their town affairs henceforth than they have been for a long time.

But it is not only the people of Windham that may recognize the importance of keeping in better touch with public matters in their own little town. The practice of letting things drift along, right or wrong, because someone else did so, doesnt' create a very favorable impression.

COUNTRY AS WELL AS CITY

While efforts in behalf of fire prevention might be thought to be directed chiefly to the cities, it is evident, from figures which are furnished by the department of agriculture, that there is plenty of need for those living in the country to give heed to the situation.

Last year, it is shown, there were fires on farms which caused an estimated loss of $100,000,000 and took 3,500 lives. That fire loss represents about a quarter of the loss for the entire country, and while the fires were not all preventable, since some of them were due to lightning, any substantial decrease in that waste would have been a great benefit to the owners. Prevention might easily mean valuable farm relief.

While there are certain definite causes which might be removed, there is the forest fire which always threatens serious losses during dry seasons when firebrands are carelessly distributed. Already hundreds of acres have been burned over in Rhode Island thus early this autumn, making it necessary for hundreds of men to do fire service and threatening the opening of the fire towers a month earlier than usual.

This year has been the worst year for forest fires in this state since 1922 and the year is not over. There were 26,000 acres of timberland destroyed in 1922 and there have been 18,000 burned over by eight large fires this year. Surely there is need for every possible effort in behalf of fire prevention. Recognition of fire hazards is not difficult and with the proper cooperation by each individual there could be great reductions in the annual fire losses of all kinds. In the rural districts, as well as the cities, there is opportunity for preventing fires.

"MUSIC CHARMS—"

Such things pass safely into antiquity. Having done a moment's devastating work, they are content to vanish.

And so Paula's fingers vigorously drew forth popular airs from the music department's piano, built rather for tenacity than tone. Round about were loiterers, those with intentions of buying and those without these intentions. In the foreground stood an interesting chap—easily identified by two unique little mustachettes appended fleetingly to upper lip. The wonderful thing about this chap and his little love tufts was that they seemed ever on the verge of blowing away, as though the first deep-lunged wind would scatter the moss to the four corners of the earth.

But he came every day. And each time Paula looked eagerly to see if the mustachettes were still there. They always were, and never a hair longer or thicker.

So Paula exchanged glances with the young man. And he smirked back satisfactorily. As you can guess, it is difficult to get very far when one is held to a piano stool and piano all day long. But one little lift of Paula's silken shoulder, one little twitch of her perfectly applied mouth, a single shift of her gum, aye, even so small a thing as a tasty chewing off of a misbehaving fingernail—they were all expressive and compact.

"There's a Cute Kid hanging around the piano all the time," she whispered to Gracie, who dealt out sweetheart songs to little romance-hungry girls hugging sweetheart magazines. Gracie also collected funds, 30 cents per tonic masterpiece. "I've an idea he'll try to make a date today. Seems kinda bashful. Gee, I like 'em bashful, Gracie. You can do so much with a bashful guy. Your oldest lines work like charms and they're always good spenders."

There was method in the madness of Paula's music. The day when the Cute Kid was supposed to plunge and ask Paula to the show that day Paula helpfully arranged a tremulous repertoire of old heartistic melodies.

"Say, Paula," yelled Gracie, "omit the obituaries, will you? This is supposed to be a popular music department. Step out of it, dearie, and don't wear your heart on your piano. Give a song that lit Broadway's lights for a week at least."

Paula's answer was incomprehension. The Cute Kid leaned on the counter and cast the famous eyes for which sheep are blamed. Once she saw him take out a minute comb, rake through his mustachettes daintily, as a girl brushes her eyebrows. He sighed occasionally, and that, too, was a good sign. It was most romantic to have some one to whom to play "Just a Song at Twilight."

But things were working themselves up to a crisis for Gracie. Paula struck the opening sob of "Home, Sweet Home." This was too much for her modern partner.

"Get down off those keys," she shrieked. "Lemme restore that poor old piano's faith in humanity. Here, get down, we're all sick of these songs grandmother used to sing."

"Well—of all the nerve," Paula stammered, dangling from the bench. In her excitement she tore off another unhappy fingernail that wasn't quite ready yet to be separated from home. This brought forth a little helpless groan that quite touched the manly heart of the Cute Kid.

"See here, big girl, whyn't you let the poor little kid play? We're all sick of Broadway and blues, aren't we, boys?" He turned for the O. K. of the interested gallery.

"Go to it," said "the boys."

"And just because this poor little kid had a soul for real music, just because she appreciates art and its higher values just because—"

In mute astonishment Gracie bowed to this mighty flow of oratory, and resentfully went back to her cash register.

Paula was lost in admiration. Such a brave defense the Cute Kid had made! How marvelous he was! She poured more pathos into "Home, Sweet Home," than she had ever poured before in her life. It positively leaked with tears, and the wonder is that the gallery didn't burst into weeping as it ran blindly for a bunch of flowers and the street car to Englewood.

The Cute Kid stood closer to the piano now, as though he couldn't get enough of it.

"Say," he suggested lucidly.

"Make it Wednesday in the lobby at 6," Paula whispered, for the floor superintendent was approaching down the aisle.

Apparently the Cute Kid hadn't heard.

"Say, I'm going to make you a little present."

She was overcome with terror at the oncoming superintendent, and delight at the subjection of the Cute Kid. But "Never mind the present, now, see you Wednesday."

"The little present I got for you—it isn't everybody would be so lucky but I can see that you appreciate music like me. It's—"

"For heaven's sake—beat it."

"How'd you like a seven-day free trial of a genuine Livera & Baud grand piano in your own little home? Think of it—seven days' free trial—and then if you want to buy it, only $200 down—"

A withering glance—for glances are of all kinds, you know—a crash of keys involving all on the board, and the information regarding the second payment was drowned out.

"All right, Gracie. Here's the song that lit Broadway's lights for a week.'—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

Middle Aged Men

By Walter G. Schulte, M. D., Salt Lake City, Utah.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Many public officials have fallen victims to disease of the prostate gland and increased attention to this gland has been called by the press and by physicians on the lecture platform. After middle age, this gland which is peculiar to the male sex, is prone to become enlarged, and victims of disease of the prostate suffer much discomfort which, if not treated promptly often results fatally.

Because of its location, around the bladder outlet, any enlargement of its tissues results in an obstruction to urination. With such obstruction and incomplete emptying of the bladder, there is a damming up of the urine against the kidneys. When the latter cannot rid the body of its waste, the heart and brain are the first to show the effects of the poisoning. Digestion also suffers and the muscles become weak.

The cause of prostatic disease is probably an infection which may be mild enough to escape early notice. After years of irritation the gland enlarges and the first symptom is difficult or frequent urination. The source of the infection is not always easy to find. Therefore there must be a thorough and complete investigation of all the organs of the body, including the teeth.

Here is a condition that certainly points out the value of regular physical examinations of men, particularly in the third and fourth decade. If such examinations were made, a urinary obstruction after middle age might be prevented. It has been estimated that about one-third of all men have infected prostates, beginning in early adult life, and such infections are often symptomless.

Therefore, you men of middle age, if you have not as yet formed the habit of going once a year to your doctor for a complete physical examination, begin today—call up and make that appointment and keep it. By so doing you will have done your part in keeping yourself fit and free from the danger of this dread disease. Do not forget the annual or semi-annual conference with the dentist as infected teeth may cause the trouble we have just described. Such infections, if not detected early often result seriously in later life.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24— What would happen if the democrats elected enough senators in November to control the senate, yet found themselves still in the minority because two democratic senators-elect chose to defer presenting their credentials for a year or two?

Sounds fantastic, don't it? Yet on the face of primary results in Louisiana and New Hampshire, it could happen.

Huey Long, who beat out the veteran Ransdell, interrupting a 30-year career in Washington public life, definitely states he will not apply for a seat in the senate until 1932. His election, following his primary victory, is of course taken for granted, he being a Louisiana democrat.

Two Offices

Up in New Hampshire, Albert Noone, 84-year young democrat, was nominated both for the senate and the governorship at the same primary. It's unprecedented, but true. He is going to run for both offices simultaneously in November. What his chances of election to either may be the Bystander does not know. New Hampshire has had democratic uprisings in the past.

But if this Hindenberg of American politics, so far as age is concerned, should be any strange freak of chance win both offices, he also announces that he will delay seeking his seat in the senate while he works out various ideas as governor.

Now what might all this mean to control of the senate? There are now 56 republicans, 39 democrats and one farmer-labor man making up the senate. If the democrats gained 10 seats, they would take control. They shout publicly that they are going to do just that. Privately, most of them say they actually expect to gain only six or seven seats but have a chance to get the whole ten.

Consequences

Suppose they did elect ten additional democrats and then two of those ten failed to show up to be seated for a year or two. For that period, at least, a republican-progressive, or republican and sons-of-wild-jackass probably put it would retain republican control. The fact that a regular like Charlie Curtis could vote to break a tie would clinch it.

If that ever happened, Messers. Long and Noone as senators-elect probably would be induced to forget state affairs and come hustling to Washington to claim their seats. There would be a lot of party—and public—pressure on them.

There is a precedent for the Long-Noone raincheck election idea. David B. Hill did it long ago. He was elected senator but deferred presenting his credentials more than a year to complete his term as governor. But no question of party control of the senate was involved then.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Six Minutes in Buenos Aires

Buenos Aires, wonder city of Argentina, and metropolis of the southern hemisphere, is the subject of the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. The bulletin is a communication to the society from Frederick Simpich who recently conducted an aerial survey party from New York to the Argentine capital.

"Fly 8,500 miles south from New York, along new-blazed seaplane paths that hug the western hemisphere," writes Mr. Simpich. "Turn into the vast, muddy mouth of the river Plate—in South America—and fly 150 miles upstream. There is glittering Buenos Aires, one of the most remarkable cities ever built.

"No city in the United States is so important to us as Buenos Aires is to Argentina. It handles four fifths of all Argentina's trade, and houses 20 per cent of all the nation's ten million inhabitants. All its 2,000,000 people are either Europeans, or of European descent. This is true of only one other Latin American city—Montevideo.

"Three times as big as Spain's largest city, modern Buenos Aires—as expanded and rebuilt in the last 30 years—is conspicuous in all the world for its magic growth.

"The whole 25,000-mile railway system of Argentina has its focus here—the finest railroads in South America. No great motor highways radiate from the city, because the vast pampas afford no road-making materials. But by rail and river Buenos Aires handles more than half as much freight as the port of New York, and the net tonnage of ships calling each year is equal to all that passes through the Panama canal.

"Not trade alone makes it great. Its social, artistic and political attractions rank it among the world's most dazzling capitals. To it flock the rich, the influential, the intelligentsia of all Argentina. Our country as a whole would develop faster, said one prominent banker, if more of our best brains would stay in the provinces.

"Yet, although so many land owners live in the city, the swift, prodigious growth of herds and farming on the vast campos is an economic phenomena in this comparatively new country. In Europe the Argentine visitor is noted among hotels, resorts and shop keepers for the freedom with which he spends money. These immense incomes are mostly from the soil. I visited one Estancia in Santa Fe province that runs 50,000 cattle, and boasts of prize bulls costing $10,000 each and upwards. There were 25,000 hogs, 1,200 horses, a creamery making 4,000 pounds of butter daily for export to England; a private telephone system, a rambling chalet set in an artificial forest of imported trees, swimming pools, tennis courts—a princely estate that would make even a Texas cattle king dumb with astonishment. Similar ranches lie near Buenos Aires; others are far away, on the pampas. Their number, size, and money-making organization amazes the tourist—with schoolbook memories of woodcuts showing a hard-riding gaucho swinging a three-balled lasso over his head and chasing a longhorn steer—or an ostrich.

"Nature is kind to Buenos Aires. Up the Parana are the majestic falls of Iguazu—and Guayra, solemn and stupendous, ranking with Niagara and Victoria in Africa. Up the Andes and under the shadow of Aconcagua—highest mountain in the western world—runs a cogwheel railway that lifts you in a few hours from green plains to Alpine heights and snowdrifts 20 feet deep—where Argentine soldiers train on skis. Winter hotels are here now—a new St. Moritz. And there is ancient Cordoba, historic Tucuman, the famous baths of Rosario.

"And as melons and oranges rush to our east from California and Florida, so Argentina's fruits flow into Buenos Aires. It lives well. Whole trainloads of fresh grapes come from the famed vineyards of Mendoza—and many reach our own markets. New York is at one end—Buenos Aires at the other—of a busy trade route. Now both ships and sky ships serve it. And ships are ceaseless shuttles weaving the fabric of international commerce and good will.' Mutual trade has brought huge American investments to Buenos Aires—notably in packing houses, public utilities and banks. Two Yankee concerns alone control more than 100 light and power units in Argentina. Here, too, you see the new policy of great American corporations applied, by which now their Argentine employes are encouraged to become stockholders.

"Youth, vitality, sheer enjoyment of living, they are the attributes of Buenos Aires. Shiny new motor cars; fascinating, Paris-like shop windows are lights glaring on well-dressed midnight crowds in brilliant Calle Florida; cafes, casinos, high-priced restaurants and hotels, all packed with chattering, laughing people. Endless places of amusement, including the great Grecian Colon theater; and, on billboards, many names familiar to Broadway; Titta Schipa, Chaliapin, Spinelli, Mistinguette. 'Peliculas Parlantes,' they call the "talkies.'

"And still it grows. Here lands the immigrant stream. Bearded men in boots, carrying bundles; wondering boys and girls, chattering in strange Slav or Latin tongues; bewildered mothers, their heads wrapped in shawls, hard-handed women bent from work, carrying babies and still more bundles—you see them all come slowly down gangplanks from European ships to stand a bit on the busy wharf and stare at Buenos Aires. Argentina needs these. She has one-third as much land as the United States, but only as many people as live in and about New York city. Or about one and one-third per square mile, as against 490 in the British Isles.

"Italians, English, Spanish, French, Germans, Swiss, Americans, all mingle. So cosmopolitan is the city that its great papers—LaNacion and LaPrensa—must serve news from everywhere. Their circulation is enormous; their advertising huge. The quality, completeness and accuracy of what they print challenges the thought of every visiting journalist. Their absorbing rotogravures, their feature articles on sport, travel, international affairs, science, literature and art—many by world famous writers—astonish the newcomer, at first. Then he reflects; this is a great world city. It thinks like any other; and acts as Paris does, or Berlin, or New York.

"Italian workmen with power drills tear up good pavements. New buildings arise higher and higher. Air students stunt at Palomar field and Yankee free-lance flyers come peddling new planes. A man in fancy gaucho dress, as obsolete now as old time wild west cowboy gear, coils a live snake about his neck and hawks patent medicines. A communist tries to harangue a crowd, and police lead him amiably away. Children ride tame llamas in the parks. A weazened little man struggles through traffic with a huge basket of coconuts, and offers them to a world which seems to spurn coconuts. Around the great diagonal of the financial center grim, towering banks suggest Wall street. Subways, long suburban trains, screaming newsboys, 50,000 football fans jammed before a loudspeaker on Avenida de Mayo—you see this is a city—greatest in South America. Its fog suggests San Francisco. Its flat expanse is like Chicago. The vast plains beyond—with endless leagues of corn, wheat and cattle, conjure up Kansas—or the Illinois prairies. And mules! Fat, with good harness, they compete with trucks. You see a team draw aside, to let a luxurious motor lorry pass hauling glistening race horses out to the track of the Tiajuana-like Jockey club. An unusual organization this is. Its downtown club house, gorgeous as a senate chamber, dominates all others. No club is so exclusive. Its library is famous. Here, when races are over, owners may switch their minds from horses to history, from jockeys to jurisprudence. And its hospitality is perfect.

"A member asked me to hunt partridges, at a great estancia on the pampas. For twelve interesting hours our train hauled us past queer big corncribs, shaped like tanks; wind mills; high-wheeled pampa wagons; endless riders, in flat black hats, baggy breeches, short boots, flying ponchos, riding with short stirrups on clumsy saddles covered with sheep's wool. Leagues of wire fence stretched far as the eye could see, and artificial groves of imported trees dotted the pampas. At last, the lonely prairie station—for all the world like Kansas west of Dodge City—where we were to hunt. Next day partridge were plentiful, and my eye was good. But my mind was diverted by the ostriches. 'I have 2,500,' said the rancher. They ran in all directions, long-legged, swift. You simply can't shoot a partridge that rises beyond your host's tame ostrich—whose tail feathers are his fortune!

"Riding back to Buenos Aires I took the day coach, to hear cowmen talk. It was like riding, in old days, in the caboose of a cattle train from Texas up to Kansas City. Everybody talked herds, horses, fodder, calves, branding, and market prices. I mentioned hunting. 'Our boys never waste a cartridge on a partridge,' said a cowman. 'They use a horse-hair noose on the end of a pole—they just ride the bird down and loop that over his neck. And, anyway, roasted armadillo is better than partridge—not so dry.'

"At the Buenos Aires depot we said hasta duego—a 'so long' which is less abrupt than good bye. As my taxi turned into the traffic tide, the booted, blanketed group waved and smiled. Then the din and crash of a great city in motion engulfed us."

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

It is perhaps not generally known that the inspiration which led S. W. Straus to devote many years of his life and expend a small fortune in his efforts to spread the gospel of thrift among the American people, sprang from the precepts of thrifty parents.

Early in the years of his thrift work he once said: "My father was, in his early days, a poor man but he knew the value of economy and out of a very meager income he saved $500 with which he made a start in business. Fundamentally, the secret of my father's success as he moved into the larger activities of business, was his keen appreciation of thrift. He and my good mother had learned what it meant to live within their means, to spend money carefully, to save wisely. Thus from the days of my earliest youth the value of thrift was instilled within me and now, looking back over the years of early life even up to the period of young manhood and the beginning of my own business career, there comes the consciousness of a debt of gratitude to my father and mother so deep that it can never be repaid. No other inheritance ever could have equaled the lessons in thrift I learned from them. Could a more worthy monument be erected to the memory of my dear parents than the inauguration of a movement through which others might receive the benefit of thrift education?"

In all the activities in which S. W. Straus was engaged there was always this added impulse which came with the memory of these thrifty parents, steadfast in their devotion to a principle which they fully realized meant not only material progress but which contributed to the development of a sturdy character.

While S. W. Straus held to the belief that no man was ever too old to learn the value of thrift, he was particularly impressed with the need of teaching thrift to those of tender years. Looking back over his own life he realized only too well what it meant to gain an understanding of thrift while still in the years of childhood. And so it was that he did everything within his power to encourage the teaching of thrift in our schools and one of the very last articles he wrote on thrift before his pen was laid aside forever was an appeal to the American people to give more heed to this phase of thrift education.—By H. R. Daniel, Secretary American Society for Thrift.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Highway Safety.

Mr. Editor: Tuesday's editorial on safety on the highways was very timely. The writer of this has a few points in mind that would help greatly in this movement:

(1) All persons walking on the highway at dark should carry a light. If they do not indicate their presence on the highway by a light a driver running them down or injuring them should not be held responsible. If the road is dark or if another car is approaching from the opposite direction it is practically impossible to see a pedestrian. The highway is not for pedestrians any way, and especially not at night.

(2) All those holding the steering wheel with one hand and a girl with the other should be stopped by the state police and taken to the place where they belong; that may be a secluded, quiet spot, or the home or in some cases, if not in all, the home for the feeble-minded, but they do not have any business on a public driveway or highway. The driver's license should be taken away.

(3) A drunkard should have his license permanently withdrawn. Many people blame President Hoover and the prohibition for every thing these days, and if people got excited about their religion in former days they get excited about prohibition in this our day. However prohibition is doing a few good turns for the people in the United States; one of them is the lessening of highway accidents. Don't let us forget that we live in 1930 and not in the 19th century. Conditions have changed in the last decade or two, during which we have outstripped every other nation under the sun. Let well enough alone or at least think before you "leap" or vote. A correspondent from the Bronx even blamed unemployment on prohibition, but we know that there are 2,000,000 unemployed people in Great Britain, 3,000,000 in Germany and legions in other countries. This condition is still the result of the war. The machine, too, is partly responsible for unemployment and the industrial growth of other countries, who were still our customers a few years ago. So let us be fair and patient. The law of the 18th amendment has not been strictly observed, it is true, but we have the same trouble with the gambling laws and every other law, although grievous sins have been committed in the name of prohibition. The writer is not a fanatic either for or against prohibition. Neither does he withhold his name from fear except the fear of publicity which he might appear to be seeking.

"My pimples started on my forehead. I did not pay any attention to them at first, thinking they would go away, but a week later they started to grow larger and were very itchy. They were red and hard and the irritation caused me to scratch.

"I tried different kinds of remedies but none of them seemed to help me. A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I sent for a free sample. L. M. CRANDALL SPEAKER AT TORONTO CONVENTION

The International Life Underwriters convention held in Toronto from Wednesday to Friday of this week had for one of its principal speakers Louis M. Crandall, president of the Norwich Lions' club, listed among the first 50 of the companies' leading agents in the country and standing second for consecutive weekly production.

In his talk before the convention, Mr. Crandall said, among other things: "I am perfectly delighted to be here today with such a wonderful gathering of friends of humanity. It is an honor to have a part in the spirit of this great gathering of life underwriters from the four corners of the globe, and a pleasure to be one of the happy recipients of the cordial hospitality extended to this convention by our Canadian friends. We are advertised by our loving friends and I am here because of friends. Whatever success I may have achieved is largely due to my friends, at home and in the state and home office of the company I represent. I most deeply appreciate these many friendships and the honor of being permitted to speak to you today. Salesmanship is wisdom and action, that brings satisfaction — no sale is a sale unless the customer is satisfied."

In many respects the address was very similar to those given before the Boston Sales congress in Ford hall, Boston, a few weeks ago to 1,500 life underwriters and before that to the life underwriters of Rhode Island, Maine, Vermont and New York and many special meetings of underwriters in the large cities of New England.

The president of the Boston Life Underwriters association, George H. Tracy and Mrs. Tracy, were to act for the national association as special host and hostess to see that the visit of Mr. and Mrs. Crandall is as full of happiness as possible.

DISTRICT GOVERNOR DODGE URGES MORE INTER-CLUB ROTARY MEETINGS

Prof. Richard E. Dodge, of Storrs, governor of the 30th Rotary district, made his official visitation to the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday evening. The meeting was held in the private dining room at the Norwich Inn with about 50 Rotarians present. President Harold D. Larrabee presided at the meeting with W. G. Park, F. R. Smith and Henry J. LaFontaine for the song leaders.

Among the many items of business was the voting of the club to donate a prize for the golf tournament in connection with the fall conclave to be held next week at Swampscott. It was also voted to hold a joint meeting with the Danielson club at the Norwich Inn on Oct. 28th.

William G. Park, reporting for the committee in charge of the Henry Brynan concert at Slater hall next week, urged that the Rotary members get out and sell tickets as it was for the benefit of Mr. Brynan and the Boys' Work fund. Charles R. Butts made a brief report for the Blackmar fund saying that several boys were being helped to gain an education and that two crippled children were being supported in the homes for these children. He spoke of the sponsoring of the boys' band. Charles L. Taylor made a report on the trip of the Rotary baseball team to Boston recently. J. Henry Shannon also made a similar report on the trip.

At the conclusion of the business session President Larrabee presented District Governor Dodge. Gov. Dodge in his opening remarks complimented the Norwich club on their excellent work in helping worthy boys and crippled children saying that Norwich was doing more along these lines of work than many of the larger clubs. He urged the promotion of inter-city meetings as a means of extending Rotary friendship.

The main subject of his talk was what Rotary means to New England. He said that he found a finer Rotary spirit and more real Rotarians in New England than in any other section of the country. Out of 163,000 Rotarians in the world 12,000 are members of clubs in New England and these Rotarians are in perfect accord. Rotary friendship, said Gov. Dodge, is one of the biggest things in Rotary and tends to develop a real affection for your fellow man. Although there are no two clubs alike they all adhere to the same Rotary principles.

In speaking of Rotary International, Gov. Dodge said that it was an organization of 163,000 men of all races and creeds bound together by an allegiance to the principles of good living, uprightness and moral integrity. Rotary is an individual proposition in that it educates the individual member to be a better man in his business, community and family life. The strength of Rotary International is entirely dependent upon the individual Rotarian.

Rotary is growing so fast that it is impossible to tell what its influence on world affairs will be in years to come. The many conferences of Rotary International even now have done much in ironing out the many international misunderstandings. A marked example of this was shown only recently when 23 countries of continental Europe were represented at a conference and met and discussed European problems in perfect accord.

In conclusion, Gov. Dodge urged that the Norwich Rotary club try to promote this inter-club meeting movement as a means of cementing friendships among Rotarians of one city with those of another.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE OPENS WITH LARGEST REGISTRATION

Connecticut college at New London began its scholastic year Wednesday with registration of 558 students, the largest enrollment in the history of the college.

Although the student body this year is larger than it has ever been before, nearly as many students have been refused admission, chiefly from lack of room, as compose the present body. A waiting list of about 100 girls who are preparing for college already exists for coming years.

In an address to the students, the president, Dr. Katherine Blunt, mentioned faculty changes when she spoke in part as follows:

"I have several items of news to tell you. The most important, of course is the opening of our wonderful Fanning hall. You can see already what an improvement it is, what satisfaction it will give to you in your own work, to the faculty and to you when you go to interview them in their spacious new offices, to the administrative officers in the convenient offices which they have. Fanning is going to make the greatest difference in the high standard of the college.

"New London hall also has been modified so all the laboratory departments can do much better work because of the expansion there. Chemistry has a beautiful new laboratory, and so have physics, zoology, botany, home economics and art. We all rejoice in the better work which we can do.

"There are several faculty changes. Dr. Benedict will be with us only one half the time, and we are making special arrangements about medical care when she is not here. Miss Burdick is acting dean of students, taking over Dr. Benedict's duties along this line.

"Dr. Margaret S. Chaney, Miss Mildred Burdett and Miss Elizabeth Spicer are the new faculty members in the department of home economics, Miss Hyla M. Snider is new in the secretarial department, Dr. Constance E. Hartt in botany, Miss Marguerite Hanson in fine arts, and Miss Serena G. Hall in English. Dr. Erb and Dr. Roach have returned from a year's leave of absence."

ORGANIZATION FOR YEAR BY GIRL SCOUT TROOPS

On Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 16, the captains and lieutenants of all the local Girl Scout troops met at the home of Miss Marion L. Bishop on Broadway to organize for the year's work. A Girl Scout Leaders association was formed and the officers elected are as follows: Miss Catherine Sullivan, president; Mrs. Frank Grieve, vice president; Miss Marjorie Sibley, secretary and treasurer. The members planned a picnic supper at Fort Shantok for Tuesday of this week and on that afternoon the entire membership journeyed to the famous reservation to pass tests.

A demonstration of the regular scout meeting was given, the leaders for the time being becoming Girl Scouts. The group was then divided into patrols to pass tests in fire building and to cook supper. New scout songs and games were learned, bringing to a close a most delightful evening.

The next meeting of the association, which is to meet once a month, will be held at the home of the Misses Sibley and Manty on Washington street, Oct. 27, at 8 p. m.

SUGGESTS TABLET ON CAPT. ROGERS' HOUSE

Suggestion to perpetuate the memory of Capt. Stevens Rogers of New London, who sailed the City of Savannah on her famous voyage when she was the first steamship to cross the Atlantic, was made in the annual meeting of the New London County Historical society, which was held in New London Tuesday at the Shaw mansion. Representative Dudley C. Perkins of Ledyard made the suggestion that a placard be put on the Rogers house, at the corner of Main and Shapley streets in New London.

The City of Savannah was not only captained by a New London man, but was manned by New London seamen.

Mr. Perkins' proposal will be referred to the New London city council by the Historical society.

Mrs. George Maynard Minor, chairman of the house and grounds committee, reported that since 1929 gifts totaling $1,578 had been received for the repair fund. This with what she had previously received in contributions made $3,078 for expenditure in the repairing of the mansion. She stated that $2,000 more could be used to advantage.

Miss Elizabeth Gorton, secretary, in her annual report said that the sale of the History of Griswold, donated to the society by Daniel L. Phillips, continues to bring in good financial returns, the grand total to date being $840. She said that approximately 300 copies of the book, Life on a Whaler, had been put in immediate circulation following publication by the society. The books were given to members of the society and several historical societies on the exchange list without cost to the recipients and represented an unexpected dividend of $1,500, made possible from the accumulation of interest on the Ernest E. Rogers publishing fund of $5,000.

The report of Edward S. Huntley, treasurer of the society, showed the financial condition of the organization to be excellent with all bills paid and a balance on hand. Forty thousand dollars in endowments is invested.

Howard Palmer, chairman of the publishing committee, reported that no new publications would be undertaken until it was seen what response there was to the appearance of Life on a Whaler. He said that 250 copies had been sold to date and that it was planned to place several copies in various bookstores in the larger cities for Christmas sale.

FLETCHER POST AUXILIARY RESUMES SEASON MEETINGS

After a recess during July and August, the auxiliary to Robert O. Fletcher post, No 4, American Legion, met recently at the armory with a good attendance. The meeting opened in regular form with the salute to the flag and the singing of America. The secretary's report was read and approved.

Several matters of business were talked over but left till later for decision. The reports of the state convention at Bridgeport were given by the president, Mrs. Frances Bogue and the secretary, Mrs. Lila Oat, delegates to the convention.

The auxiliary will be represented at the national convention at Boston by four members. Three members of the auxiliary helped at the Hamburg fair where the auxiliary of the fifth district had a booth. The proceeds from the articles sold go toward the scholarship fund of $250 voted by the district.

The auxiliary table emblem to be used at the time of initiation, having arrived, was tried out and found very satisfactory. The joint district meeting of the legion and auxiliary will be held at Noank, Sept. 25.

DREDGING APPARATUS BACK FOR WORK IN RIVER

After an absence of several weeks the dredging plant of the firm of Morris & Cummings of New York returned to the Thames river Wednesday and operations on the deepening of the river channel to the local harbor have again started. The past summer the dredging plant was at work for several weeks on the channel project when it suddenly disappeared. At the time it was working in the river opposite the plant of the American Thermos Bottle Co.

For some days its whereabouts was something of a mystery locally, but inquiry made to the Providence office of the U. S. army engineers, resulted in the information that the dredger had broken down and had been taken to New York for repairs.

The repairs having been made, the dredging plant has now returned to the river. The channel is to be deepened to a depth of 18 feet in the river, which will be dredged to the width of from 200 to 400 feet.

ENCOURAGING MUSIC AT NORWICH FREE ACADEMY

Students at the Academy who are musically inclined are finding plenty of opportunity to exercise their talents with the opening of the new school year. There are four organizations for this purpose now sponsored and in total membership they number about 160 students.

They include the orchestra and chorus, both under the direction of Frederic R. Cranston, of the faculty, the music appreciation course, supervised by Henry J. LaFontaine and the new school band, which will be a year old this fall and which is directed by John M. Swahn, local bandmaster for many years. The band, incidentally, will make its first appearance of the year at the football game a week from Saturday with Bulkeley high of Hartford at the campus.

CALIFORNIA EX-CONGRESSMAN TO BE RALLY SPEAKER

A former congressman from California, James H. MacLafferty, intimate friend and political adviser of President Hoover, is to be the principal speaker at the county republican rally at Red Top, Harvard quarters, next Wednesday, Oct. 1. This notice was received Wednesday from the republican national committee by Judge Daniel M. Cronin of New London, president of the New London County Republican club.

In securing Mr. MacLafferty, the committee in charge of the arrangements for the outing at which the nomination of Lieutenant Governor Rogers of New London for governor and the other nominations on the state ticket are to be ratified, considers itself to be extremely fortunate, inasmuch as the former California congressman is one of the most able orators in the republican ranks and one whose campaign addresses in the far and middle west have caused much favorable comment and have resulted in materially assisting the cause of the party.

Because of his political and social friendship with the president, Mr. MacLafferty is in a position to speak for the chief executive and it is expected that he will carry to the New London county republicans a direct message from Mr. Hoover.

Mr. MacLafferty was a member of the 67th and 68th sessions in congress from the sixth California district, President Hoover's home district, and left congress to become assistant to Hoover when the latter was secretary of commerce in President Coolidge's cabinet. He is the founder of a string of west coast wholesale paper houses, and a vice president of both the Pacific American Steamship Co., and the Ship Owners' association of the Pacific Coast.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the rally, which is to formally open the republican campaign in this county, is composed of Judge Cronin, Judge C. C. Costello of Groton; High Sheriff George H. Bradford, Montville; Col. W. Ellery Allyn, Waterford, and William L. Apley and John M. Mallon, Jr., both of New London, and they are to be assisted by a reception committee, composed of 90 representative republicans from the 21 towns in this county. The personnel of the reception committee was published Tuesday.

It was announced Wednesday that the outing would be held regardless of weather conditions and in order to be prepared against rain a huge tent is to be erected at Red Top for use if necessary. Shepard and Swahson's orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music and there will be other entertainment features.

Other Speakers

Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, New London, will deliver the invocation and the speakers, in addition to Mr. MacLafferty, will probably be Gov. John H. Trumbull, Lieutenant Governor Rogers, J. Henry Roraback, chairman, and Miss Katherine Byrne, vice chairman of the republican state central committee.

Rov Norman S. Case of Rhode Island has signified his intention of making every effort to be present and if he is able to attend it is probable that he will also be called upon to make a few remarks. Judge Cronin, as president of the County Republican club will officiate as toastmaster.

An old fashioned clambake, prepared by James Hayes, veteran Norwich caterer, will be served at 1 p. m., and the speaking programme will follow immediately.

CRASHED INTO POLE; WET DRIVING CHARGE

As the result of an automobile accident on the Norwich and Westerly highway, near Shewville, Wednesday morning, Allen Raymond, 29, of Hartford, salesman in the employ of George O. Murphy of Westerly, R. I., was arrested by the state police on a charge of driving a machine while under the influence of liquor. It is alleged that he told Officer Whitmarsh, who arrested him that he drank a half gallon of wine before leaving Westerly.

His roadster struck a telegraph pole, snapping it off at the base, crossed the highway and knocked over a gasoline tank on the property of Mrs. Edith Grissilli. The car was considerably damaged but Raymond escaped without injury. Several live wires went down when the pole fell.

On his way to investigate the accident Officer Whitmarsh met Raymond walking along the highway. He took charge of him and a short distance further on the officer noticed a pocketbook in the road. He picked it up and it developed that it was Raymond's. The pocketbook contained about $50. Raymond will be presented in justice court in Preston.

Rickets of Greeneville Congregational church.

Shipherd of Park Congregational Church, who will speak of his vacation spent in England, his subject being "Innocents Abroad". Other members of the association will give impressions of their summer vacations.

FURTHER CONTINUANCE IN EMBEZZLEMENT CASES

The two "bad bill" collectors who are charged with collecting accounts for Norwich merchants and withholding the collections were in city court again Wednesday morning but their cases were further continued. The continuance was granted pending the settlement of two more accounts. The accused are Fred Dulenschneider, 23 and Richard Brownell, 25, both of South Manchester.

Since their arrest the early part of August the men have returned $700 of the money they collected and it is understood that there is still about $800 due from them. The case has been continued for two weeks.

Women always have a suspicion that they are entertaining angels unawares.

After Many Fai
He Discovered
Real Pile Remed

For years he suffered with itching piles. Now and then he'd get a little relief from some salve or other—but nothing much to speak of.

Finally someone told him of Peterson's Ointment—of its powerful healing qualities which had brought such swift, blessed relief to thousands of pile sufferers.

Somewhat doubtful, he bought a box—the first application absolutely convinced him that this was the most marvelous Ointment in the world.

Why, man alive! That agonizing soreness went right out of those piles—the tortuous itching stopped—before he knew it his piles were gone.

Every enterprising druggist in America knows of the mighty healing power of Peterson's Ointment—he knows it ends piles—one 35c box will prove it.

MILD INTEREST SHOWN IN SHARKEY-COMPOLO BOUT AT GARDEN TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The semi-privacy in which Jack Sharkey and Victorio Campolo seemed doomed to battle Thursday night for the "what of it" honors of the heavyweight division was broken somewhat today by inquisitive customers approaching the Madison Square box offices with cash in hand.

The outbreak of interest, mild though it was, sent optimism soaring at the battle palace and brought out a rash of predictions that the lackadaisical sailor and the big disappointment from the Argentine will duel before $150,000 worth of patrons in the final fight rally of the open air season at the Yankee stadium. The struggle is scheduled for 15 rounds.

Financial optimism is based upon the belief that the customers, having held out so long, are bound to weaken tomorrow and rush for places in the reviewing stands. The suspicion has arisen that Campolo, clumsy and slow but a belter with his right hand, may tag Sharkey squarely during the proceedings and many of the faithful, having waited long to see the Boston sailor beaten, feel they cannot take chances by staying home tomorrow night. If the patrons maintain their aloofness, a gate of less than $100,000, the amount guaranteed Sharkey alone for this match, is in prospect.

"Sharkey has worked none too well in training, appears overweight and sluggish, and lacks fire. He was ill for a day from a stomach disorder and prompt offer of postponement and even cancellation was made him. He refused to accept a delay and seems carelessly confident that he will batter down the six foot six Argentine within four rounds. Campolo is in fine condition at about 220 pounds and has labored long to perfect a semblance of a smart left hand to go with his heavy right."

The Garden has high hopes that Campolo may stage the biggest upset of the season and provide an outstanding opponent for Young Stribling in the third annual heavyweight show this winter in Miami. Sharkey and Stribling already have met once in Florida.

Contrary to past policy, last minute arrangements have been made to broadcast the bout over the National Broadcasting Co. network from Station WJZ here. Since early summer the Garden has refused to sell the air rights to outdoor shows in the belief that broadcasting cut down gate receipts.

Failure of the bout to attract a larger clientelle is attributed to Campolo's defeat by Johnny Risko in his last bout here, his loss of a ten-round decision to Phil Scott, and the general suspicion that he is not much of a fighter. He fights rarely, his last match having been a victory over Salvatore Ruggirello in Boston six months ago. Sharkey has not boxed since he lost a chance to win the world's heavyweight championship by fouling Max Schmeling in four rounds here in June.

Despite Sharkey's failure to impress in training and Campolo's great advantage in height, reach and weight, the Boston sailorman is a 2 to 1 favorite.

Two local heavyweights, Mike Sankovitch and Paul Cavalier, meet in one of the supporting ten-rounders and Joe Banovic, of Binghamton, N. Y., boxes Roy Wallace, Indianapolis light-heavyweight, in the other.

LINDER TO OPPOSE JOHNNY GREENE SUNDAY

Something of the old Academy-Deep River high baseball battles that have thrilled Eastern Connecticut fans for the last three seasons will be in evidence Sunday at Martin park as the Polish Citizens, local City league champs, and also just through with a three-out-of-four games victory over the New London winners, the Kaceys, tackle the J. B. Martin team in the first game of a city series.

Walter Linder, who for two years gave the Academy their stiffest tussles, during 1928 and 1929, is expected to be on the mound for the Martinmen, while the Cits' lineup, as everybody knows, is profusely dotted with former Wildcat luminaries, and it may be that Johnny Greene will even be in the box to oppose Linder. If it isn't Johnny, it will be his brother, Boots, who has also earned a name for himself in Academy baseball.

The only means of comparison between the Cits and J. B. Martin lies in their games with the New London Kaceys, this being the only team they have played in common. The Cits took their games by 2-1, 3-2 and 11-1, while losing 2-0 and playing a ten-inning scoreless affair. The J. B.'s beat the Whalers, 11 to 9 and 7 to 2.

Linder, when he pitched against the Academy, always made the Wildcats step to the limit to beat him, although he was backed by a team weaker than the Red and White's nine. Opinion is equally divided as to whether he can halt the Citizens' wild rush and those who speak with cash are talking in even money.

Walker Wins Decision

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, won a ten-round decision over Paul Swiderski at Dreamland park tonight. Walker weighed 162 1-2 pounds, Swiderski 183. The title was not at stake

KAPLAN GIVES BATTALINO TERRIFIC 10-ROUND LACING

A streak of lightning, labeled Louis (Kid) Kaplan, flared across the fistic horizon of Connecticut last night and struck in Hartford, causing considerable damage in the camp of Bat Battalino, featherweight champion of the world. The crown of the champ is safe inasmuch as he had it stowed safely away but when Bat attempts to try it on again it is liable to prove a poor fit, since Bat's features were battered pretty well out of shape.

In brief, Kid Kaplan gave Battalino the beating of his youthful career in a ten-round bout at Hurley stadium. "Louis the Kid," whom the wise ones stated would be too weak, because of his coming down from 139 to 130 pounds, outpunched Battalino in seven of the ten rounds and held Bat even in two others. In but one session, the sixth, did Battalino look the part of a champ and in this round his margin was none too large.

Not only did Kaplan beat the king of the feathers but it wouldn't be the least bit surprising if he softened him up for future opponents. In practically every round, Kaplan ripped through Battalino's defense with damaging body blows, the youngster's wonderful stamina alone keeping him on his feet at times. Battalino tried hard to hold Kaplan at long range but there was no stopping of the Jewish boy. Once inside, Kaplan had things pretty much his own way.

Other results:

Semi-final six rounder, Ralph Lenny, 136, Union City, N. J., won on a knockout in the first round over Dan Perforio, 141 1-2, New York, who substituted for Jose Martinez. In another of the scheduled six-round bouts Tony Leto, 126 3-4, Hartford, also won on a knockout in the first round over Johnny Minerva, 129, New York.

Eddie Reed, 121, Hartford, won a six-round decision over Billy Avera, 125 1-2, Hartford.

Rocky Rao, 136, Hartford, won the decision over Sal Carta, 135, Middletown.

FAST CARD FOR DANIELSON BENEFIT BOXING SHOW

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 24—The complete card of bouts for Friday night's benefit show at the state armory here was announced by Promoter Frank Barber this morning. At the head of the list is the Benny Leonard-Al Singer three-round exhibition. The former lightweight champion of the world and the present lightweight champion have promised to give the fans a fast workout.

Jackie Kid Berg of London, England, who recently defeated the flashy and famous Kid Chocolate, will box a three-round exhibition with a sparring partner that is to accompany him to Danielson.

Other bouts that will not be exhibitions, but real honest-to-goodness affairs will bring together Tony Santello of Worcester and Johnny Pompey of New York, 8 rounds at 138 pounds; Kid Forcier of North Grosvenordale vs. Willie Welch, Worcester, 4 rounds at 112 pounds; Dynamite Lou Brouillard, Danielson, vs. Billy Eskowize, New York, 8 rounds at 148 pounds; Oscar Record, Boston, vs. Joe Smith, the K. O. king, of Hartford, 8 rounds at 122 pounds; Tony Leto, Tampa, Fla., vs. Bucky Keyes, New York, 8 rounds, 122 pounds.

There isn't a dud among the entire group of boxers. They are all speed boys, ready mixers and in each instance with long records of experience within the squared circle. An outstanding bout is about certain to be the one between Dynamite Lou Brouillard, Danielson's idol, and Billy Eskowize, a New York boy who is said to be a whiz in the ring. The Leto-Keyes go is also a promising looking match.

Joe Humphrey, known the country over as the "silver-tongued announcer" and who is the headliner of the nation in his own particular role, will be in there making all the announcements, just like he does down in Madison Square Garden in New York. Billy Taylor's orchestra is to play before the bouts start.

The officer sauntered along his beat swinging his club and whistling softly a plaintive little tune. It was late and all the good people were either in bed or listening to the radio. Suddenly the officer halted, the whistle stopped in the middle of a note, he stared, rubbed his eyes and stared again.

Across the street in a yard something all in white was moving slowly between the houses. Not being a very firm believer in ghosts or anything of the supernatural, he decided that there must be something to it. He decided to investigate, so he stealthily approached the place. Snapping his flashlight he explored every nook and cranny of the yard but there was no evidence of a human being.

Finding no one about he began to wonder if perhaps it was the spirit of some long departed resident of the neighborhood. It gave him quite an uneasy feeling just the same. He thought of calling up the headquarters but knew if he did he would be in for a nice bit of joshing. So he said nothing but determined to keep his weather eye peeled. A few nights later while approaching the same place he caught the flash of white again as the ghostly form marched through the same yard. Again he investigated, and again the ghost had vanished into thin air.

Deciding this time that it was something more than the ethereal spirit of a person, he determined to keep a close watch of the neighborhood. For nearly two weeks he kept vigil from a vantage point across the street but no ghost appeared.

Then came a night when it appeared. It emerged from one house, proceeded slowly across the yard, and disappeared. Summing up all his courage he rushed across the street and into the yard in hot pursuit of the ghost. No, it had disappeared. About to give it up, his light happened to pierce into an extremely dark part of the yard; and there, clearly outlined, was his ghost. It did not try to run away it just moved gently to and fro as if wafted by a mystic hand. He stalked his prey and coming nearer and nearer it took the form of a woman in a long white night gown. But there were no head or feet to the apparition.

It was a night gown hung on a pulley line that the woman of the house had hung out and had run out on the line so that her neighbors would not know that she did her own washing.

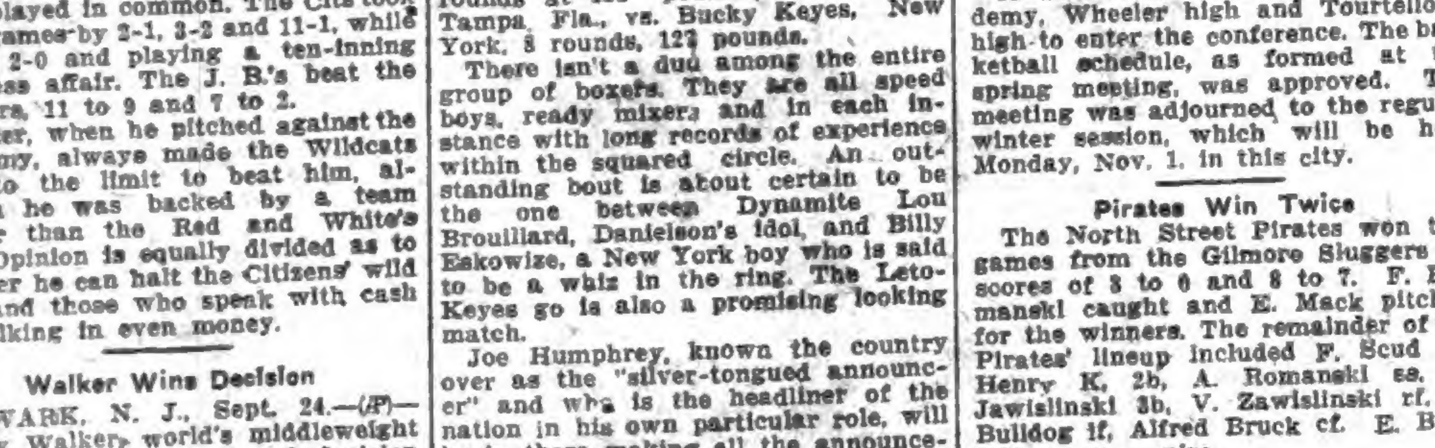
LITTLE WORLD SERIES

Louisville 7, Rochester 5.



No. 2—A Startling Substitute

The 1906 world series, when the two Chicago teams met in a baseball civil war, introduced a most unexpected star.

This outstanding player was George Rohe, a substitute infielder of the White Sox, who was not a conspicuous performer before or after the series. But during that loaded hour he wrecked the great Cub machine.

George Davis, veteran shortstop of the Sox, was hurt just before the championship series opened. Manager Fielder Jones moved Lee Tannehill to short and sent the inexperienced and supposedly light-hitting Rohe in at the vacant third base position.

This was the margin of victory for the Sox, as the game ended 2 to 1.

The Cubs came back behind Reulbach's strong pitching to win easily, 7 to 1, in the second game and even the series.

In the third game Big Ed Walsh opposed Jack Pfeister in a game that was to become a battle of strikeouts. The Cubs nicked Walsh for only two hits, a single by Hofmann and double by Schulte in the first inning. No run resulted, for Hofmann went out stealing before Schulte hit. Walsh fanned 12 Cubs and Pfeister made nine Sox miss third strikes.

Rohe was again the big batting star. The Sox filled the [illegible] with none out in the sixth. [illegible] popped out. Isbell fanned and [illegible] the lowly substitute.

Kling, the clever Cub catcher, began to kid the youngster about his "lucky" triple in the opening game, but the persiflage was interrupted by the sound of bat meeting ball. Rohe crashed another triple, cleaning the bases and winning the game, 3 to 0.

Brown then stopped the Sox, 1 to 0, and tied up the series. The great pitching in the earlier game took their tool in the next, won by the Sox, 8 to 6, Walsh, Reulbach and Pfeister being driven from the mound.

Rohe played a prominent part in the slug fest with a double and two singles. The Sox took the last game 8 to 3. Rohe made only two singles but one of them drove the mighty Three-Fingered Brown from the mound.

The following season Rohe was promoted to a regular position on the basis of his sensational world series performance. But he hit only a few points above the .200 mark and was sent to the minors.

In the memorable 1906 series the two teams lined up in the opening game:

By ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

MERION CRICKET CLUB, Ardmore, Penn., Sept. 24—(AP)—The shades of night again were falling rapidly over the bunkered battleground this evening when George Von Elm of Los Angeles, last survivor of the entire set of "seeded" favorites save only Bobby Jones, lost to Maurice J. McCarthy, Jr., of New York, in a spectacular battle that went exactly ten extra holes to the 28th, and shattered all endurance records for the American amateur golf championship.

Tied after the first nine holes of their second round match, all square again at the 18th as Von Elm and McCarthy, weary but still game, went to the tenth extra hole still deadlocked.

It was the 45th hole of the day for the bronzed, stock McCarthy, who had been forced to play one extra playoff hole this morning to qualify, then gone to the 19th in the first round to eliminate Watts Gunn, of Pittsburgh.

Von Elm had swept through the first round easily, whipping Chuck Hunter by 6 and 5, and stood out as one of the few remaining favorites until he caught the tartar who fought him to a standstill and finally to defeat.

This was to be Von Elm's last amateur tournament and he was fighting with grim desperation to avoid the jinx that has beset him in the opening day's "sudden death" matches ever since he whipped Bobby Jones in the finals four years ago.

McCarthy Wins on 28th

So there was every element of dramatic suspense as these two—blonde George and dark, pugilistic-looking Maurice, stepped up to the 28th tee and whaled out long drives aimed to give them easy approaches to this dogleg, 335-yard layout, uphill.

McCarthy had the longer drive and after Von Elm had pitched well on, the New York youth played a pitch and run dead to the cup. It stopped barely eight inches from the hole and Von Elm was left with a 12 footer to sink if he hoped to continue the fight. He missed by a narrow margin and conceded the putt, the hole and the match to McCarthy, the victor of all he surveyed for the day after an unprecedented stretch of nearly ten hours of competition and a match with Von Elm that alone lasted four and a half hours.

This record breaking match doubled the previous mark of five extra holes for any prolonged encounter in tournament history dating back 34 years. Back in 1913, Paul Hunter, of Chicago, beat A. C. Ullmer, of Florida, at the 23rd hole in a first round match at the Garden City Golf club and in 1920, at the Engineers course, Chick Evans went five extra holes to beat Reggie Lewis at the 41st but these paled by comparison with today's titanic struggle.

McCarthy has always been a "bear" for endurance battles in this championship. He defeated Max Marston at the 22nd hole in 1926 and the following year he came close to beating Bobby Jones at Minneapolis in a first round match that went to the 18th hole before the Georgian won.

Today, however, the fighting New Yorker surpassed himself with an exhibition that furnished a climax to the greatest day of upsets in the history of the national amateur championship.

Jones Comes Through with Two Wins

Reversing the situation of a year ago, at Pebble Beach, where the great Jones was the principal victim of an upset, Bobby came through with flying colors today to win both his 18 hole contests and enter the third round while all seven of the remaining "seeded" contestants were handed knockout wallops.

Jones, brilliant in the first round but extremely erratic in the afternoon, conquered the two Canadian contenders, Cross Somerville and Fred G. Hoblitzel, by the same margin, 5 and 4.

Somerville, the Dominion champion, was buried under a barrage of birdies in the first round. Hoblitzel beat himself by the poorest kind of golf in the second round as Jones, out in an approximate 42, his worst golf of the tournament, played in spots like a duffer.

Surviving the battle of "Black Wednesday" with Jones were Jess Sweetser of New York, a former champion forced himself to go 19 holes to whip a rank outsider, Jack Ahearn of Hamburg, N. Y., in the second round and a group of six younger stars, making up the quarter-final bracket of eight contestants.

How They Play Today

In the manner in which they will meet tomorrow, at 36 holes, the quarter-finalists present this line-up:

Gene Homans of Englewood, N. J., former Princeton star, versus John Lehman of Chicago, the western amateur champion and former big ten titleholder.

Charles Seaver, 19-year-old Los Angeles youth, a qualifier in the tournament for the first time, versus William F. (Billy) McPhail, Boston star and an ex-caddy.

Maurice McCarthy, Jr., the "dawn to dusk" champion and metropolitan titleholder, versus Jess W. Sweetser, ex-British as well as American champion.

Bobby Jones, versus Fay Coleman, 25-year-old sharpshooter from Los Angeles.

Many Fall in First Matches

Behind the blazing paths of these golfers were the blasted hopes of such stars as George Voigt of New York, Johnny Goodman of Omaha, the 1929 conquerer of Jones; Dr. Oscar F. Willing of Portland, Ore., the 1929 runner-up; T. Phillip Perkins of New York, the former British champion; Francis Ouimet of Boston, veteran former amateur and open titleholder, and George T. Dunlap, Jr., of New York, the national intercollegiate king. These six, with Von Elm shared seven of the eight "seeded" brackets when match play began today. Jess Sweetser was on the original list for "seeding" but when he was forced into a playoff to make the qualifying grade, this distinction was withdrawn.

The favorites began taking it on the chin in the very first round as the battle broke loose all over the premises. The chance that Goodman would have a return bout with Jones in the third round was blasted when the Nebraskan bowed to Johnny McHugh of San Francisco, winner by 1 up in a ding-dong battle. Goodman went down fighting as he scored a 32, two under par, over the past nine, only to have McHugh hold his edge with a 33. In the very next round, however, McHugh was eliminated in an all-California battle by Coleman, 3 and 2.

In one of the five extra-hole matches of the day, another record for the tournament, Dr. Willing lost a sensational match to William Lawson Little of San Francisco, at the 20th hole. Little, in turn, was knocked out of the tournament in the second round by Homans, who won by the decisive count of 6 and 3.

Perkins, a finalist in 1928 when he lost to Jones, was a first round victim of the rampant Johnny Lehman in a match decided by 2 and 1. Youth also prevailed when 19-year-old George Kocsis of Detroit, the Michigan state champion, put out Ouimet, titleholder 16 years ago, by 3 and 2, in the first round. Kocsis then fell before McPhail, fellow townsman of Ouimet and the victor by 6 and 4 in the second round.

Voigt, another who had been picked to furnish later trouble for Jones, got by his first round obstacle when he trimmed Lester Bolstead of St. Paul, 2 and 1, but the youthful Seaver, just entered as a freshman at Stanford university, beat the crack New Yorker by 2 and 1, leading nearly all the way and standing off Voigt's most determined rally.

Sweetser Has Hard Fight

Sweetser, with Jones the only survivor to have ever been previously numbered among the "last eight", had a hard fight all day. Big Jess had to go to the third playoff hole bright and early this morning to qualify. He was only one up on the long-hitting Phillips Finlay of New York when he sank a long putt for a birdie on the 17th to clinch his first round match. He had another uphill fight, even more desperate, with Jack Ahearn who also had gone to the last playoff hole and sent in a 30 foot putt to qualify. Ahearn was one up, going to the 18th, with the match apparently clinched when Sweetser rammed home a 40-foot put to win the hole, squared the count and then capped the climax by winning at the 19th.

Ahearn, who had never qualified before in the national championship beat the college champion, George T. Dunlap, Jr., by 3 and 1, in the first round and he came within an eyelash or two of making it a great day for Hamburg, N. Y.

BOSTON HAS BIG FIFTH INNING TO BEAT SENATORS

BOSTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The Red Sox opened their final home stand of the year by gaining a 6 to 3 victory over the second place Washington Senators. One big inning, the fifth, gave Boston the victory in a duel between "General" Al Crowder and Hod Lisenbee.

The Senators opened up with considerable fire, getting to Lisenbee for three runs in the second and third innings, but Hod settled down and allowed but five scattered hits in the last six innings. Brilliant Boston fielding aided in the triumph as Warstler, Reeves and Todt put over three double plays.

The Red Sox put over five runs in the fifth, putting six solid hits in one bunch. Heving, Lisenbee and Oliver led off with singles and Scarritt followed with a long triple to ruin Washington's hopes of victory.

PHILLIES CLOSE HOME SEASON WITH VICTORY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24—(AP)—The Phillies closed their home season today by defeating the Brooklyn Robins by a 6 to 3 count and sending the Robins down to fourth place in the National league standing.

The Phillies clinched the game in the first inning as successive home runs by Chuck Klein and Don Hurst overcame a two run Brooklyn lead. Both wallops were off the pitching of Ray Moss. It was Klein's 40th homer of the season.

Lefty Milligan made a bad start as two hits, followed by Whitney's error and Bissonette's sacrifice fly gave the Robins two runs. But he steadied after Philadelphia had taken the lead and although he was hit rather freely, pitched shutout ball until the ninth. The Phils hammered Moss from the mound in the fifth as they tallied their fifth and sixth runs, getting in a few good licks against Ray Phelps before he stopped their scoring. Thurston hurled the last two innings.

The defeat dropped the Robins a half game behind the New York Giants, who were idle, but left them with a good chance of regaining third as they have three games to play and the Giants only two.

HORNSBY ACCEPTS BERTH AS MANAGER OF CUBS

CHICAGO, Sept. 24—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby was more of a man of mystery today than ever as he prepared to take over the managerial reins of the Cubs and start a rebuilding process, if necessary, to develop them into a world's championship team.

The "Rajah" was formally offered Manager Joe McCarthy's job today, accepted it, and then lapsed into a mental solitude.

One thing was certain, however, and that was that Hornsby intended some wholesale changes in the club for 1931. Even Hack Wilson, the new home run king of the majors, was reported to be on the trading block along with Captain and First Baseman Charlie Grimm, Outfielder Riggs Stephenson, Pitcher Pat Malone and others.

If one or all of them are traded, there would be no great surprise to those close to the "Rajah." He never permits his heart to run away with his baseball judgment and if he could get the players he wants from the Giants, Cardinals and Boston Braves, he would trade for them.

In his association with the Cardinals, Giants and Braves, Hornsby long ago made up his mind to certain players he would have on a baseball club, but, now, as manager-select, he remains silent.

"All I can say at this time is that I am happy to get a chance to manage the Cubs and to deny silly reports that I caused embarrassment to Manager McCarthy," he said. "Mr. Wrigley and Mr. Veeck have asked me to manage the club and I have accepted and will do everything I can to give Chicago a winning baseball club.

"Of course, I plan some changes in the interests of the club for 1931, but nothing is definite yet."

"And, say," he shouted as a parting shot, "if there are any rumors about the Cubs of any kind, any reports of any kind, just ask me. I'll tell you what I can. I do not intend to hold out on any news."

Manager Joe McCarthy came back tonight after a brief visit to his home in Buffalo, N. Y. He had nothing to say except that he had been "treated fairly" and that he and Hornsby were the best of friends. He will manage the Cubs through their concluding series with the Cincinnati Reds tomorrow, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Hornsby is expected to start his managership in the city championship series with the White Sox, which is scheduled to open next Wednesday. Of course, if the seemingly impossible should happen and the Cubs win the "National league flag," there would be no city series and everything would be up in the ether over who would pilot the club in the world series.

McCarthy, meanwhile, is reported to have received offers to manage the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees.

ALEXANDER FACES EIGHT CHARGES ON LIQUOR VIOLATION

GRAND ISLND, Nebr., Sept. 24—(AP)—Grover Cleveland Alexander, former star major league hurler is in jail here, pending hearing on eight separate charges, most of which have to deal with alleged violations of the liquor laws.

Refusing to settle after an automobile accident, Alexander drove off but was caught after a six-mile chase.

Sacs Accept Challenge

The Baltic Sacs accept the challenge of the Montville Indies baseball team and will play them Sunday at Montville.

SHYMAS AND MONTVILLE INDIES CLASH SATURDAY

At the Providence street grounds Saturday afternoon the Shyma All Stars will clash with the Montville Independents. The Independents have strengthened their team somewhat and feel confident that they will be the victors in Saturday's game. However, the All Stars have had some stiff workouts in which the team has shown some real good playing and they feel sure that they will take a fall out of the Indies. Regardless of who wins, a good game is expected.

The Ideal of a Craftsman

In every age men have striven with untiring patience for the achievement of an ideal. The name "STRADIVARIUS", on a violin immortalizes a master craftsman who lived true to his ideals.

Making a cigar of the finest quality was the ideal upon which in 1874, at Manchester, N. H., Roger G. Sullivan—starting with one cigar maker—founded 7-20-4. Today because of its ideal quality, 7-20-4 has grown to the largest hand-made cigar industry in the World.

Quality workmanship and the finest tobaccos are traditional with 7-20-4. The unswerving tenet of its founder—to keep faith with the public—has remained unchanged for over half a century. It is this firm principle which today refuses to alter that method of manufacture which has made 7-20-4 Cigar—FAMOUS FOR ITS CHOICE QUALITY.

CUT FARM FUEL WOOD TO IMPROVE TIMBER CROP

The farmer who can cut his winter fuel wood from his own farm woodland is lucky, says the forest service, United States department of agriculture. He can get his fuel at low cost and at the same time be improving his woodland for timber production.

Farm fuel wood is an important farm crop. About 36,000,000 cords are cut on farms yearly. In one year, during the war, only five other crops exceeded it in value, namely, corn, wheat, oats, hay and cotton.

The cutting of farm fuel wood can be made a means of getting better and faster growth of the most valuable trees in the woodland at the same time that the winter's fuel supply is being laid in. This is what foresters call "improvement cutting." Wood should be cut, the forest service says, with an eye to continuous production on the land. The aim is to keep the land producing, at the fastest rate, timber of the best quality. The trees to cut for fuel wood are not the trees that will make the fastest growth or produce the best timber, or bring the highest returns on the market. The straight, sound, thrifty trees should be left for developing high-grade and high-priced forest products.

The kinds of trees to use for fuel wood are sound wood lying on the ground; dead trees which are sound and still standing; trees rotted, diseased, or injured by insects so they will probably die; crooked trees crowding out the straight ones; large old trees unsuitable for lumber because of their big limbs and branched and short trunks; and trees that shade out numerous smaller ones; small trees overtopped by larger and better ones; and trees badly fire scarred at the butt.

In many sections where cordwood was plentiful 10 years ago it is now relatively scarce, and demand and prices are correspondingly high. The sale of cordwood, says the forest service, frequently brings a substantial profit for the farm on an operation that is at the same time improving the value of the farm woods.

NEW ENGLAND MILK PRODUCTION ABOUT AVERAGE

Average daily milk production per cow for all cows as reported by many New England dairymen on September 1 was 10.3 per cent below what it was on August 1, .8 per cent below that of last year but .1 per cent above the average for the five year period 1924-1928. Production per cow this month is slightly below that of the past five years excepting the unusually low 1925 average at this season of the year.

As compared with the August average milk production there were decreases in all of the New England states except Massachusetts and Rhode Island, both of which states show slight increases. The production this month in Vermont is the lowest for September 1 since 1924 when the average was only 11.47 pounds per cow. The average production per cow for New England as a whole on September 1 was 14.86 pounds compared with 16.56 pounds on August 1, 1930, 14.98 pounds on September 1, 1929 and 14.85 pounds the five year average for September 1. There was a decrease over the average of a year ago in Maine of 2.1 per cent; in Vermont of 4.9 per cent and in Rhode Island of .8 per cent while there was an increase of 3.6 per cent in New Hampshire, 1.8 per cent in Massachusetts and 1.6 per cent in Connecticut.

The proportion of dry cows to all cows in New England increased from a month ago from 17.6 per cent to 22.3 per cent. A year ago the proportion was 21.0 per cent of all cows or the same as the 1924-1928 average. In Maine dry cows were 23.0 per cent of all cows on September 1, in New Hampshire 26.9 per cent, in Vermont 25.1 per cent, in Massachusetts 18.8 per cent, in Rhode Island 13.4 per cent and in Connecticut 19.3 per cent. As compared with a year ago there were increases in dry cows in all states except Rhode Island which shows a slight decrease.

The net price of 3.7 per cent for August 1930 as estimated by the statistician of the New England Milk Producers' association, averaged $2.65 per hundred pounds compared with $2.34 per hundred pounds for July 1930, $2.75 per hundred pounds for August 1929 and $2.53 per hundred pounds the five year average 1924-1928 for August.

CONNECTICUT SEPTEMBER FIRST CROP OUTLOOK

Prospects for all crops except hay and tobacco are greater than the average, according to the joint report issued by the United States and Connecticut departments of agriculture. Nearly all crops except hay and tobacco have had very favorable growing weather this season.

Connecticut potatoes show slight improvement in probable yield over a month ago and the forecast is now placed at 2,320,000 bushels. This compares with 2,050,000 harvested in 1929 and 1,998,000 bushels for the five year average. For New England, the expected production is 50,775,000 bushels, or about 6 per cent above the forecast of a month ago; it compares with 53,938,000 bushels for 1929, and 47,400,000 bushels, the average production from 1924 to 1928. Production in the three southern New England states is expected to exceed that of a year ago; for the three northern states it is likely to be less. The Maine crop is now forecast at 41,360,000 bushels, or about 18 per cent below the record 1929 crop.

Total apple prospects are placed at 1,804,000 bushels, or approximately double what they were last year. It is estimated that 298,000 barrels will enter commercial channels this year as compared with 168,000 barrels last year and 237,000 barrels average. All of the important varieties show prospects of heavier production than last year. The Baldwin crop is expected to be the largest since 1926, while McIntosh may exceed the past two years. For New England as a whole, the commercial apple crop is expected to total 2,267,000 barrels as compared with 2,182,000 barrels, the forecast on August 1; 1,868,000 barrels in 1929; and 1,897,000 barrels, the average production. All of the New England states except Maine and Vermont show larger production totals this year than were harvested in 1929. Peach prospects of 225,000 bushels in Connecticut are about average, while an average, while an average crop of pears and grapes are expected.

Weather conditions during August were unfavorable to growth and maturity of the Connecticut Valley tobacco crop. A severe hailstorm which extended up into Massachusetts did considerable damage to the sun grown varieties. The damage was complete in some instances and has reduced yield prospects considerably. Total production for the valley this season is placed at 40,152,000 pounds as compared with 33,684,000 pounds last year and 48,572,000 pounds, the recent five year average. Of the production this year, 30,480,000 pounds will be produced in Connecticut, while 9,672,000 pounds will come from Massachusetts.

Both corn and oats show somewhat larger prospects than were harvested a year ago. The corn crop is placed at 2,451,000 bushels, while that of oats is 465,000 bushels. Due to slightly reduced yields and a smaller acreage, the Connecticut hay crop, estimated at 456,000 tons, is somewhat smaller than both last year and the average production. Pastures were rated at 82 per cent of normal as compared with 59 per cent of a year ago.

POINTS ON HOUSING PULLETS FOR WINTER

When should pullets be housed for winter? This question should not be answered by the housing space available, neither should it be answered by the time of year or the age of the pullets, but by the maturity and production of the pullets. If maturity and production do not correspond with age and size, there has been some fault in management.

It is a well established fact that early-hatched pullets mature faster, lay in a shorter number of days and at a smaller body weight than the medium-season hatches. Any attempt to hold such birds back is apt to decrease growth and result in failure. If such birds are housed when they start to lay, and fed heavily, they should continue to grow and lay at the same time, reaching normal bird weight and egg size at about the normal age. Any attempt to hold pullets back from maturity should be made when they are from two to four months, not after production actually starts.

The most practical way of holding pullets back in production is to vaccinate them against chicken pox. This delays production approximately two weeks if done when the birds are three to four months old. It slightly increases body weight at the time of production; and according to reports from many commercial poultrymen, it slightly increases egg size at the start.

Moving pullets into winter quarters before this time of year may prove just as unsatisfactory as leaving them on range after they start to lay. No flock of pullets will mature all at the same time. As a rule, the best or most forward 25 or 50 per cent should be housed first. This gives the slower maturing pullets a better chance on range, causing faster growth, so that the second lot of pullets housed may appear in every way equal to the first.—Roy E. Jones.

ADVISES WHEAT OR BARLEY FOR LIVESTOCK

Farmers whose corn crops are short may save money by substituting wheat or barley, pound for pound, for corn and by feeding these grains in much the same way and in the same combinations as they usually feed corn, says the U. S. department of agriculture.

To aid farmers in deciding whether to feed wheat instead of corn, the department has issued Miscellaneous Publication 86-MP, Feeding Wheat to Livestock. This publication discusses relative prices of wheat and other grains, the feeding value of the grains, and wheat rations for cattle, horses, sheep, swine, and poultry.

When the price of corn is $1 a bushel, the value of wheat for feeding poultry and sheep is about $1.07, and for feeding hogs and beef cattle, $1.12, the department says. For all-purpose feeding, the department points out, a pound of cracked wheat or of cracked barley, or a pound of the two mixed in any proportion, is equal in feeding value to a pound of corn.

Success in feeding barley to stock depends upon its quality and the manner in which it is prepared for feeding, says the United States department of agriculture. Barley fed whole is too hard and much of it remains undigested. Do not grind it fine, however, but set the grinding machinery so it is merely cracked. In the west, where there are large mills to do the work, barley is often rolled. Small outfits for rolling barley on the farm may be bought. Eastern farmers could advantageously feed more barley to stock, the department believes.

ASPARAGUS IN THE HOME GARDEN

Asparagus is one of the most popular of green vegetables. Everybody likes it. It is never cheap in the market, yet it is one of the easiest of home-grown vegetables and a bed once started will last for generations. A home with room for a vegetable garden should have an asparagus bed. This is the time to get it going.

The asparagus in its native haunts is a salt marsh plant. This fact gives rise to the practice of salting the asparagus bed each year. It is a moot question whether this does any particular good. Some maintain that it gives a tender quality to the vegetable not otherwise obtainable. Others maintain that it is a waste of salt and the only good it does is to keep down weeds.

However, fertility is the main factor in producing fine big tender asparagus stalks. The asparagus bed should be as deeply dug as possible. It should be heavily manured. After that, if the plants live at all, the asparagus will increase in production each year and last a lifetime. It is permanent garden asset.

Asparagus should be planted three feet apart each way, according to garden experts, to give it a chance for maximum developments. Most gardeners do not have that amount of room available and plant it two feet apart and find it succeeds admirably in the closer quarters. Each year it should be given plenty of fertilizer, such as nitrate of soda.

The asparagus should be planted deeply. Dig a hole a foot deep and two feet wide, sufficient to permit the spreading out of the roots spoke fashion, placing the plant on a six-inch mound in the center of the hole. Then cover and firm the soil. Two year old plants are on sale as well as three year old sizes. Two year old roots take hold well and the second season will be ready to cut.

There are several fine new varieties on the market, the government rust-proof varieties being especially highly esteemed. The old Conover Colossal is a good one. Asparagus plants in quantity may be raised from seed. Fall sown seed will germinate next spring and give much quicker results than if held back until spring.

FEEDING AND MANAGEMENT OF THE PULLETS

Moving pullets from range to winter houses frequently means a change from hopper to hand-fed grain. Conditions are entirely different, and the birds should be given every advantage. Use a very thin layer of litter at first and feed grain frequently in small amounts on the floor, even though grain may be trough-fed at night. At least a part of the mash-hopper feeding space should be low, where the pullets will find it readily, because range hoppers are much lower than the average laying-house hopper.

Mash should be kept in hoppers constantly before the pullets with at least two inches of running hopper space per bird. The practice of hopper-feeding grain has proved very satisfactory on range, but most poultrymen in Connecticut have been better satisfied with hand-feeding after the pullets are housed.

If the night feeding of grain is given in open hoppers or troughs, all of the sanitation and management in connection with hopper-feeding grain is obtained. Feeding a small amount of wheat in the litter during the day will keep the birds busy and the litter stirred up so that it will dry out.

Pullets usually get an abundance of green food on range, and consequently that part of the ration should not be neglected after they are housed. Feeding early and late and making every effort to keep the birds busy will do much toward controlling bad habits.

SOILS DEVELOP THROUGH PROCESS OF EVOLUTION

The soils of the world in their development pass through a process of evolution from youth, through maturity and to old age, according to Dr. Curtis F. Marbut, chief of the soil survey, bureau of chemistry and soils, United States department of agriculture.

"Dynamic factors of the environment consist of the forces residing in climate and organic life," he says. In the first stages of soil evolution, he points out, the plant cover a particular region has more influence on the soil apparently than the soil has on the plant; "but after full development of the soil is reached, it is apparent that the soil influences the plant to a much greater extent than the plant influences the soil.

"The soil is not only a product of its environment but it in turn reacts and determines to a certain extent the character of the environment," says Doctor Marbut, who emphasizes the importance of soil surveys in the determination of a nation's economic possibilities as viewed from an agricultural standpoint. A soil survey, he says, is a study of the relationships of soil characteristics to the natural environment in which their evolution has taken place.

QUART MILK BOTTLES BREAK MOST EASILY

The quart milk bottle "gets it in the neck," so to speak.

A survey made by the bureau of dairy industry, United States department of agriculture, indicates that quart bottles break more readily than pints or smaller bottles. In nearly half of the milk plants studied this was the case. Half-pint and smaller bottles, known to the milk trade as "jars," led the breakage in a third of the plants, and pints made the best showing.

As a rule, quart bottles break more easily than smaller bottles when subjected to the same blow, and pints probably break more easily than "jars." But the smaller bottles generally get more blows and strains in the average plant, especially in the washing machines, conveyors, and bottling machines. When bottling cream, the light jar often sticks to the valve and is dropped on the floor.

In the survey, covering 69 plants, each time 1,000 quart bottles were handled 9.6 of them were broken; each handling of 1,000 pints resulted in the breakage of 7.2; and each handling of 1,000 "jars" resulted in 8.1 being broken.

SUGGEST LAWS TO CONTROL SHEEP-KILLING DOGS

Legislation, if properly enforced, is the most effective method of dealing with the sheep-killing-dog problem, although dog-proof fences for night pastures help to prevent losses to flock owners. Several states have laws which give reasonable protection to sheep owners, but dog laws may fail in their purpose if enforcement is lax. Suggestions for the formulation of effective dog laws appear in Farmers' Bulletin 1268-F "Sheep-Killing Dogs," which has just been issued in revised edition by the U. S. department of agriculture.

One of the most important considerations in formulating a dog law, the bulletin shows, is to obtain the moral support of the people. An unjust law does not have the support of the people, and without their support officers will not enforce the law. Effective dog laws, when properly enforced, limit the number of stray dogs, control their rovings, and provide a fund from which sheep owners may be compensated for losses. The dog law of Michigan, published in full in the bulletin, is an example of one which offers protection.

WESTERLY

WESTERLY WOMAN'S ORGANS TAKEN TO PROVIDENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Sept. 24.—Up to Wednesday evening there had been no arraignment by Westerly police authorities in the suspicious and sudden death of Mrs. Alice E. Stedman, found dead on Monday night apparently from gas poisoning, on the floor of the bathroom, in her up-stairs apartment at 37 Main street. Her husband, Joe Stedman, and the bookkeeper, Mrs. Evelyn Main, of the Stedman printing office, who resided also at the Main street apartments, continued to be held under suspicion at the Westerly police station.

The representatives of the Rhode Island state board of public health, present at the autopsy held by Westerly Medical Examiner Dr. M. H. Scanlon on Tuesday afternoon at the Westerly hospital, on returning to Providence took vital organs and the result of their findings will probably not be known for several days.

Coroner and Town Prosecutor John Ferguson, who had been out of town the first of the week, began his coroner's inquest, also, on Tuesday afternoon, and the examination of Mrs. Main lasted for over two hours. Mrs. Main is reported to have said that Mr. Stedman was deeply in love with his wife and for the last few weeks, when they have been living apart, to have been solicitous as to her health. She has related that while at work at his Main street printing office he had inquired if any of the help had seen her pass the shop and when, for a period of several days, she had not been seen on the street to have worried that she might be ill at her home. Later, when her passing was reported, Mr. Stedman was said to have expressed a feeling of relief. Mrs. Main has declared that Mr. Stedman fell in love with his late wife when he had worked on a shoe fitting for her crippled foot.

Benjamin McIntyre, elderly boarder at the Stedman home and retired seafaring man, was examined in the coroner's inquest on Wednesday and also Michael J. Burke, keeper at the Stedman Press plant on Main street, and at which a mortgagee's sale is to be held today (Thursday) to satisfy a claim for money advanced by Angelo J. Cappuccio, of Westerly.

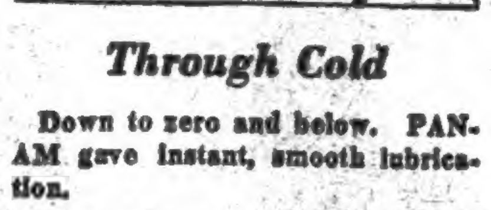
OILS

New higher speeds mean increased strain on your motor. More revolutions per minute . . . blistering heat. You need a tougher motor oil, built for today's driving conditions . . . PAN-AM's new motor oils are triple-refined to stand up under fire, fight heat and friction, giving your motor full protection, longer life. A million miles of gruelling road tests have proven them for your motor.

Drive today to a PAN-AM station. The PAN-AM man knows the "prescription grade" of PAN-AM motor oil tested for your car.

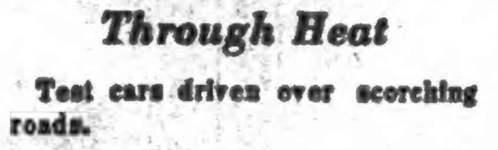
A MILLION MILES OF ROAD TESTS



Through Cold

Down to zero and below. PAN-AM gave instant, smooth lubrication.

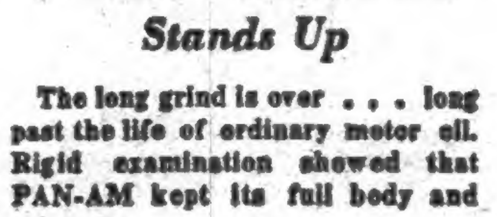
Many motor oils thicken at freezing temperatures. PAN-AM's triple-refining process removes wax-like particles. No matter how cold, PAN-AM motor oil answers, "Ready!"



Through Heat

Test cars driven over scorching roads.

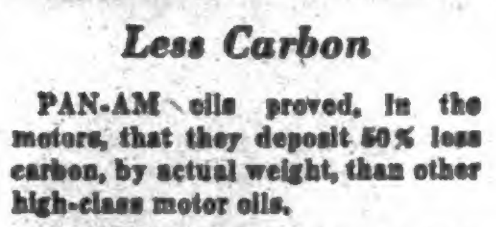
Down in the motor . . . greater heat. Up go the revolutions per minute. Up goes the temperature of every moving part. PAN-AM "stands up under fire" at temperatures far above ordinary motor-heat.



Stands Up

The long grind is over . . . long past the life of ordinary motor oil. Rigid examination showed that PAN-AM kept its full body and color.

PAN-AM motor-tested motor oil stands up like a soldier full of fight . . . and ready to "keep going."



Less Carbon

PAN-AM oils proved, in the motors, that they deposit 50% less carbon, by actual weight, than other high-class motor oils.

PAN-AM means cleaner motors. Less grinding of valves. Smaller repair bills. Longer life for your motor.

HEAVY LOSSES PARTIALLY REGAINED IN CLOSING HOUR OF THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)— The stock market barely had time to draw its breath today after Tuesday's technical recovery when it plunged into a fresh and pronounced decline. Although short covering came to the rescue in the late trading, eating substantially into the extreme losses of 3 to 10 points, the close was generally 1 to 5 points net lower.

So heavy was the selling during the afternoon that the turnover was pushed to 3,442,000 shares, the largest volume since June 23, when it aggregated 4,530,000 shares. Rallies were feeble and only the final spurt was able to accomplish much.

The break appeared suddenly around noon after the market had been making some headway with the aid of better reports from the steel industry, whose operating ratio was said to have increased 3 per cent during the past week. A collapse in wheat, which had been going along rather steadily in the morning, and an announcement that an extra or increased dividend by American Can need not be expected, plunged speculative sentiment into a fit of bearishness and brought out vigorous selling throughout the list. U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, Radio, Anaconda, American Telephone, Atchison and others, together with such pool favorites as United Aircraft and Vanadium, went skidding and several, among them Steel Common, dropped to new lows for the reaction before important support was uncovered.

The rally in wheat proved to be the cushion against which the market finally bounced. When fractional net advances were posted on that grain stock prices turned up and although there was no flurry of selling thereafter, covering became more active in the last ten minutes. U. S. Steel, which had been down to 158 1-4, closed at 161 1-4 off 1 1-8. American Can's 4 point low was reduced to a similar amount and Westinghouse, off 7 points at the bottom, regained all but 3 points of the drop. Nevertheless, the averages based on final prices closed at 159.7, the lowest since August 12. The composite decline was 2.6 points.

One of the reports that found ready circulation said federal reserve member banks were liquidating security loans at the suggestion of important circles, but this was quickly and authoritatively denied. Rumor also had it that an economic conference was to be called in Washington to consider the general economic situation.

Wheat snapped up violently in the last 15 minutes of the Chicago market. May, after selling close to 86 cents, recovered to above 89 and gains of similar proportions appeared in the other futures. The closing was unchanged to 3-4 higher. Corn's net gains were 1-8 to 5-8. Cotton ended the day irregularly, 3 points higher to 3 lower.

Vanadium Steel was heavily liquidated, breaking more than 14 points and closing 10 off. Foster Wheeler and Case lost 6 on the day, Johns Manville 4, Stone and Webster, United Aircraft, Anaconda, Gillette, American Telephone DuPont, North American and Union Carbide, 2 to 4, and General Electric, Radio, Bethlehem Steel, and General Motors, one or more. Radio had equalled its year's low, American Smelting, in sympathy with the weakness of the coppers, tumbled 7, but ended the day with a loss of around 4.

Domestic bonds were strong and foreign issues, especially German governments, improved. Exchanges firmed and most of the continental rates rallied slightly.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.— (AP)— In sharp contrast with the trend of equity issues today was the bullish tone of the bond market where buying stimulated by the paring of time money rates carried more than three dozen domestic obligations to new highs for the year.

Railroad bonds were especially strong. The broadened inquiry for both high grade and some second grade issues brought advances that in some instances ranged from 1 to 4 points, whereas movements ordinarily are fractional. The volume of trading was at high level, total transactions for the session surpassing $11,000,000.

The feature of the foreign list was the improved tone of key German issues as the uneasiness over the political situation in the reich waned. The recovery was only partial however, some bonds continuing under pressure to reach new year's lows, and there was considerable irregularity also in the South American group of bonds that have been sold because of uncertainty over the outlook.

Convertible bonds felt the unsettling influence of a sagging stock market. U. S. governments were steady to firm, Treasury 3 3-8s and Liberty 3 1-2s, making small gains.

Bond investors accepted the reduction on four months paper to 2 3-4 per cent as additional assurance that the easy tone of the money market will not be disturbed for the present despite earlier predictions that the usual seasonal outflow of funds to the interior would have a firming influence. Call money remained at 2 per cent and the volume of new offerings was negligible.

Several large issues are in prospect for tomorrow. The Argentine government has arranged for refinancing of notes bearing 5 per cent interest which probably will be offered tomorrow, together with at least two other large issues. These are the $12,000,000, 4 1-2 per cent mortgage bond issue of the Cincinnati Union Terminal which has been expected for some time, and a $21,000,000 financing program of the Chicago District Electric Generating corporation, formerly known as the State Line Generating company. The financing will be in the form of a $15,000,000, 4 1-2 per cent bond issue, and $8,000,000 in 5 year 5 1-2 per cent debentures.

The change of sentiment in investment circles towards the German situation was reflected in a sharp rally of German 5 1-2s and 7s, and advances in several other municipal and industrial obligations. On a large turnover the 7s rose 1 3-8, and the 5 1-2s, 1 1-2 to 83, a gain of 3 points from the bottom reached Monday. German Central Agricultural bank bonds, also were well bought. Italian governments and municipals more than recovered the losses of yesterday. Chilean issues were the weak spot in the Latin American group.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)— More than a dozen stocks, including Electric Bond and Share and several other pivotal issues broke into new low ground for the year today, as the curb market was unsettled by a bear drive that netted losses of from 1 to 5 points.

The selling movement brought out considerable liquidation and the volume of trading reached the best level in four months transactions involving 645,400 shares. The day began and ended with covering operations, the movement at the start being a resumption of the upward trend that was in effect at the previous close. Price movement was narrow and trading dull on the rise but business picked up steadily as prices receded. Short selling and liquidation combined to force prices down to the low levels of August in the afternoon before a nominal rally erased a portion of the losses.

In the heaviest turnover in many weeks, Electric Bond and Share toppled from its opening of 73 3-4 to 69 1-2, 3-4 under its year's low and closed at 70 5-8 for a net loss of 3 1-2 points. American Super Power reached its year's bottom price on the reaction and American Commonwealth A, and Cosden Oil reached new low ground but made a partial recovery.

At the close about a dozen issues rested in new low ground for the year, including American Cynanamid B, American States Public Service A, Dow Chemical new, Diamond Match, New Fajardo Sugar, New York, Rio, Buenos Aires Line, Insull Utility Investment, Ford Motor of Canada, Gulf Oil, Standard Oil of Kentucky, Standard Oil of Ohio, Technicolor and Vacuum Oil.

The whole list was unsettled by the selling but the utility group was in the forefront. Losses of 1 to 3 points were registered by American and Foreign Power warrants, American Super Power, Brazilian Traction, Tampa Electric, Electric Power Associates A, Hydro Electric Service, American Light and Traction, Missousi Kansas Pipe Line, Northern States Power A, St. Regis Paper, United Gas new, and United Light and Power A. In a thin market Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Duke Power rose 4 and 6 points, respectively.

The bearishness of professional traders toward petroleum stocks was accentuated by the cuts in gasoline by prominent companies. Standard Oil of Ohio broke 2 7-8 to 70, and Gulf, Vacuum, Cosden and Humble yielded a point or more. Cities Service and Standard of Indiana, resisted the decline and were only 3-8 off at the close.

Mercantile Stores and Aviation of Americas led the decline in the industrial section, down 5 points each. Technicolor, Mead Johnson, Newmont Mining, Driver Harris, Dresser Manufacturing B, Diamond Match, Aluminum Company of America, Glen Alden Coal receded 1 to 3 points.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept. 24— (AP)— Grain prices rebounded excitedly in last minutes of trading today after having smashed low price records because of wild selling to stop losses of holders. The sudden final upward jerk of the wheat market was due to a buying stampede which accompanied reports that Russia had begun repurchasing millions of bushels of wheat futures deliveries that she had recently sold here. There were also late reports current that United States government-sponsored agencies were buying December delivery of wheat at Minneapolis.

The wheat market closed stormy and irregular, ranging from 1-4c lower than yesterday's finish to 1-2c net advance. Corn closed 1-8a5-8c up, oats 1-4c off to 1-8c gain, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 25c. Provisions were responsive to declines in values of hogs.

BABY SEA COWS GET THEIR DISCIPLINE, TOO

"Maggie Murphy" and her 143-pound son, who is just past three months old, have been having a merry battle to see whether or not sonny eats eel grass, plentiful in their quarters in the Miami aquarium.

Every time sonny makes a grab for grass, mamma slaps him down and his diet is still milk.

The infant manatee is the first sea cow ever born in captivity. It weighed 65 pounds at birth.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

I Saw a Ship A-Sailing

I saw a ship a-sailing,
A-sailing on the sea;
And it was full of pretty things
For baby and for me.

There were sweetmeats in the cabin,
And apples in the hold;
The sails were made of silk,
And the masts were made of gold.

The four and twenty sailors
That stood between the decks
Were four and twenty white mice,
With chains about their necks.

The captain was a duck
With a packet on his back;
And when the ship began to move,
The captain cried, "Quack, quack!"

A Dog's "If"

If, as you go your way sometime, you meet me,
And don't ignore my friendly eager glance,
But hesitate a moment, just to greet me,
Or stretch your hand and pat my head, perchance;

If you will give me comfort where I'm lying,
While you are sleeping "soundly as a bell";
And if, when food and drink you may be buying,
You'll see MY MEALS are regular
as well;

If, when the summer sun is hot and burning,
And I lie listless, fagged, with lolling tongue,
You'll see that for some water, cool,
I'm yearning,
And do not keep me waiting for it long;

If you will know each evening that I'm waiting,
That promised "run" before you go to bed,
And do not find my conduct irritating,
If I should bark, or scamper on ahead;

If you will seek my FRIENDSHIP—
and you win it,
Through simple Duty towards me
fairly done,
YOU'LL [illegible] "Doggy" heart, and all
[illegible]
And—what is more—you've found a
PAL, My Son.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

The mule is one of the most neglected and misunderstood animals, with the exception of perhaps the poor swine, in the world. Not only is the mule misunderstood but he is abused.

Most people regard a mule as mean and stubborn. It is true, he will not go to the limit of his endurance performing tasks for man's idle pleasure, as will a horse. A horse, generally speaking, will work himself, pull himself, run himself, to death, to obey the commands of man. He takes a tremendous pride in himself and his accomplishments. But a mule is an altogether different creature—a horse of a different color, so to speak. He is not so foolish as to work or run his legs off trying to please his master. He is too independent. Mule races are scarcely known, and it is not altogether because a mule lacks the speed of a horse; it is a good deal because a mule has no desire to race his legs off, or puff his heart out, merely to provide pleasure for man.

The mule is a very old resident on the surface of the earth. Exactly when he first announced his arrival by a bray, no one seems to be definitely aware. His has always been a lowly and humble role his ever to perform those menial, unspectacular, though strictly necessary tasks for mankind. To the horse and other animals all the glory goes. For the mule is left only the arduous toil. In the animal world he is truly a hewer of wood and a drawer of water.

A mule has several peculiarities. He can in general, stand neglect and ill-treatment better than a horse. He is tougher and hardier in every way and his hide is thicker, so that a whip doesn't hurt him quite as much as it does a horse. He is a sure-footed animal and is not so likely to fall into holes or over embankments or other dangerous places and hurt himself as a horse often does when driven by cruel and careless drivers.

My First Hunting Trip

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a chilly day in October when my girl friend and I decided to go hunting. We started about five o'clock p. m. We didn't have guns and so in place of that we used good sized sticks.

Walking side by side with our sticks in our hands we really looked as if we'd have a great struggle with some animal. The sun went down already and the moon was seen. We both walked about a half hour more, and what do we see! Something black with its fierce eyes turned towards us. My girl friend became excited and yelled out "A skunk!" We crept nearer, dragging our sticks behind us, we now picked them up and were ready to start at the animal. Getting still closer we this time took a good look at the animal and to our surprise found it to be a cat. We petted him awhile and then went on hunting.

Darkness overcome us, then a fog and we couldn't see where we were going. Suddenly a drop of rain fell on my face. I looked upward and found that it was raining. I told my girl friend to start homeward. At first she refused, but when I told her to think of the distance we have in front of us, she later agreed. My girl friend and I walked about an hour, not knowing where we were going. I got frightened and said to her, "Alice, I'm afraid that we've lost our way." She looked at me with her eyes wide open and said, "Goodness, I hope not." We both didn't say another word, but kept on walking. We came to a fence and so we crossed it. I looked ahead of me and there we saw a road. What a relief it was to us both. Being on the road we soon found where we were. Nearing our homes we threw our sticks away and said that next time we shall have better luck. Going into the yard we both said good-night to each other and soon departed. Entering the house, everyone was anxious to see what I killed. But I told them the whole story, later ate my supper and went to bed.

LETTERS FROM WIDE AWAKES

About Lace

Dear Uncle Jed: In England lace has long been made in the counties of Bedford, Buckingham, and Northampton. In Bedfordshire there is a tradition that the manufacture of lace was introduced into the county by Catharine of Aragon, who brought the art from Spain. In the reign of Charles II Flemish lace-makers came over and settled in England, but they could not obtain flax of the requisite quality from which to spin the exquisitely fine thread required, and the lace they produced was very much inferior to the Flanders lace. Devonshire also became famous as a lace-making county, and its Honiton lace is unquestionably the best that has ever been made in England, although it is only equal to a second or third rate Brussels lace. The old Honiton ground which was made on the pillow, went out of fashion when bobbinet was invented, and is now superseded by modern guipure, on which the Honiton sprigs are sewed.

The Devonshire lace-workers were, unfortunately for themselves, old-fashioned and prejudiced. For a long time they clung obstinately to heavy, clumsy patterns which had been in date from the infancy of the art, but now a spirit of progress has taken possession of them, and they have obtained from the authorities of South Kensington a number of beautiful designs. The discovery of bobbinet, which annually consumes a large quantity of Scotch cotton thread, produced a great change in the history of lace; and shortly afterwards a still greater revolution was caused by the adaption of the Jacquard loom to lace-making, a manufacture which was speedily introduced into Nottingham on a large scale. Some of these machine-made laces imitate most faithfully the costliest needle-point and pillow lace, and the better classes of them have portions of the work executed by hand.

Oak Trees in Connecticut

Dear Uncle Jed and the Wide Awakes: There are in the world about 280 different kinds of oaks. Thirty-seven are given as common to the United States. Of these thirty-two are trees and five are shrubs. In Connecticut there are about a dozen varieties and it is hoped the number will be increased by one or two before long. The kinds in Connecticut all belong to the section with cup whose mouth is wide enough for the acorn to fall out. With most of the others the cup incloses the acorn.

Our home oaks are of two series: The first are white oaks; the second are red and black oaks.

Of the white oaks Connecticut has seven species. The lobes of the leaves are rounded and cut in deeply. The acorns are long and rough, with a hemispherical cup. The name "white oak" is given because the bark is of a light color. The largest and most famous white oak was the Charter oak at Hartford. About two hundred years ago it was a large and ancient tree. The historical connections which have made it famous are well known.

The Hunter

Dear Wide Awakes: Once upon a time there was a brave hunter whose name was George Nidiver. He was one of the bravest hunters in the Californian mountains.

He had a little Indian boy who followed him everywhere, and he was always near when the hunter shot anything.

George Nidiver was one of the best marksmen for many miles around.

One day as he and the Indian boy were going through a cleft between two large mountains, they saw two large, fierce grizzy bears rushing toward them.

The Indian boy turned and ran away. One of the bears ran after him.

The hunter saw that he would have to act quickly. He had only one ball in his gun. He fired this at the bear that was pursuing the boy. The bear fell over on his side and died.

George turned around and saw that the other bear was almost upon him. He saw that it was of no use to use year. One winter day Daddy Booth happened to be away. And on that morning they had snow. Not a little, but blankets of it! As daddy was away, who was going to shovel the snow and make a path from the porch to the road? Mother asked Jackie this: "Why!" he said, "When Dad's away, I'm going to make the path."

"Alright," said mother. "Dress up warm."

"Let me take dad's shovel," said Jackie.

"No," said mother." Take your small one. Dad's shovel is too big for you." So Jackie took his shovel and went out to make the path. As he was shoveling the snow, some boys went by and called to Jack to come slide with them. Jackie told them he would come later. Pretty soon other children went by and called to him. He said the same thing, so they went on. In about a half-hour Jackie finished. He was very proud because it was very hard to shovel snow and make a path. His mother was also glad and said she was very glad he finished what he started to do.

An Autumn Day

Dear Uncle Jed: It is a long time since I wrote to you and the Wide Awakes, and I hope you will enjoy my story. It was a pleasant day in autumn in the country. The leaves were turning red and yellow. Birds were flying in groups to their winter homes in the south. They rested here and there on their journey. Squirrels chatted and scampered about gathering acorns and nuts, to store away in their homes in the trees. Blue fringed gentians noodded as the little breezes passed by. The goldenrod was blossoming. Branches of the fruit tree were clinging to the ground laden with golden and yellow fruit. The odor of grapes was in the air. Farmers were gathering their harvests. The sun was setting beneath the horizon, then sank in darkness. It was the end of a perfect autumn day.

Getting Ready For Winter

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing a story hoping you and the Wide Awake circle will enjoy it.

Last week mother got a cord of wood. She gave me a quarter for throwing it in the cellar for her.

As you all know every one is getting ready for winter. The people living around us are anyways. All the neighbors know me as I run errands for them often, so they keep their wood for me to throw in for them. I always hurry home from school and get it done before dusk. They always give me a quarter or at least fifteen cents to repay me for it.

I have already got one dollar and eighty cents put away. I expect to buy some Christmas gifts with it. At this rate I'll have quite a little saved. Then I'll be able to buy all my friends a little token.

Last year I was disappointed as I couldn't give all my friends what I wanted to give them. So this year I am starting in early as I'd advise all my Wide Awake friends.

LILLIAN JODOIN, age 12.
Plainfield.

Making A Path

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you and the Wide Awakes will like my story, although it isn't for this time of the the rifle butt for a club against those great paws, so he stood still and looked the bear in the face. The bear stopped, amazed, and then came forward very slowly.

The hunter stood firm and again the bear stopped and looked at him. At last the bear turned and moved away slowly. George and the boy went back to camp, glad that they were still alive, for they had expected to be eaten up by those two hungry bears.

A Lucky Boy

Uncle Jed: One summer's night at sunset as a farmer and his family were at their supper table a poor boy came to the door, asking if the farmer knew any one who would employ him on a farm, to plow, sow and be a farmer's boy.

"Oh!" cried the farmer's daughter, "do employ him, for by the look on his face I really think he will try his best."

So the good farmer took him in to be their boy.

The tender care of the farmer's family brought him to think of his dear parents, who had died a year before. He did do his best, and at last the farmer and his wife became very gray and the boy, now a man, took charge of the farm. Years passed, and the kind old farmer died and left the farm to the young man and his daughter, who was his bride.

He oftentimes said to the farmer's widow: "How lucky I was to come to this farmer's door, to plow and sow and be a farmer's boy."

A Bootblack

Uncle Jed: A little city bootblack was busy putting a fine polish on a customer's shoes.

"How much do you earn a week?" asked the man, kindly.

"Oh, about seven dollars," answered the bootblack, proudly.

"Is that so?" exclaimed the man in surprise. "Ever go to school?"

"Yes, sir," the little fellow replied. "I studied lots of things—reading and arithmetic and physiology."

"Did you ever hear of that study which teaches you what alcohol and cigarettes do to you?"

"I never smoke or drink, sir. Guess if I did, I wouldn't be making seven dollars a week. Do you think so, sir?"

"You're right, my boy," said the man. "I wouldn't even touch the things if I were you. Good luck to you!" he added, dropping a shining half-dollar into the boy's hand.

CONSTRUCTING A SCHEME OF GENERAL DISARMAMENT

GENEVA, Sept. 24.—(AP)—A vehement and sometimes impatient demonstration, urging the hastening of the League of Nations disarmament program and early calling of a general conference for reduction and limitation of armaments, was witnessed in the league assembly's disarmament committee tonight.

A survey of the hearing of 1,800 school children showed that boys suffer from defects in hearing more frequently than girls.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Sammy Jay Has Something to Say

Possession is the rule of might;
But this is often far from right.
—Sammy Jay.

Sammy Jay who most of the time knows most of what is going on, occasionally visited Impy, the black Chipmunk, and little Mrs. Impy. He liked to stop for a bit of gossip now and then. Now, there is no one with a wiser head on his feathered shoulders than Sammy Jay. Sammy is smart. He always was smart. He was smart from the time when he first poked his bill through the shell of an egg. So there isn't much going on anywhere in the Green Forest, in the Old Orchard, on the Green Meadows or up in the Old Pasture that Sammy doesn't know about. If you want the news of any of these places go to Sammy Jay for it.

It was shortly after Chatterer the Red Squirrel had driven Impy and Mrs. Impy away from the nut trees that Sammy dropped down on a fence post near their home. His sharp eyes noted right away that something was wrong with the two young Chipmunks.

"Hello!" exclaimed Sammy. "What is the matter with you folks?"

"Nothing," replied Impy rather shortly.

Sammy cocked his head on one side and his bright eyes twinkled. "Would you look any happier if something was the matter?" he demanded.

Little Mrs. Impy had a sudden and bright thought. Sammy Jay would be likely to know who owned the nuts on those trees. "Neighbor Jay," said she, "there is something the matter and I believe you can help us."

"I am always ready and glad to help any one as pretty as you," replied Sammy Jay gallantly.

"Who owns the nuts on those trees over there?" asked Mrs. Impy.

"Whoever gets them," replied Sammy promptly.

"Chatterer the Red Squirrel says they all belong to him," spoke up Impy.

"Chatterer would," chuckled Sammy. "Those nuts don't belong to him any more than they belong to you or to me. Chatterer will get his share of them, but no more. A number of people are interested in those nuts."

"We are," spoke up little Mrs. Impy. "We want some of them to store away for winter, but Chatterer says we cannot have any."

"Hello!" exclaimed Sammy, "What is the matter with you folks?"

"That sounds just like Chatterer," replied Sammy. "He knew that you didn't know the laws of the Green Forest. He knew that you have had no experience. He probably is chuckling to himself right now because he made you run away. He probably thinks he scared you so that you will never come back, and this would just suit him. You see, Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel and Frisky the Red Squirrel will each demand a share of those nuts, and he thinks that the fewer he has to share them with the more he will get himself."

"Will he fight if we don't run the next time?" asked Impy.

"Chatterer is no coward. That much I'll have to say in his favor," said Sammy. "He is a good fighter and he isn't afraid of some one bigger than himself. But you are two to his one. So I guess if you stand up to your rights you will be able to hold him. But why all this trouble about nuts now? It isn't nut time yet."

"We were just looking things over and planning ahead," replied Impy.

"A good idea, a very good idea," said Sammy. "If you want some of those nuts you plan to get them and never mind what Chatterer says."

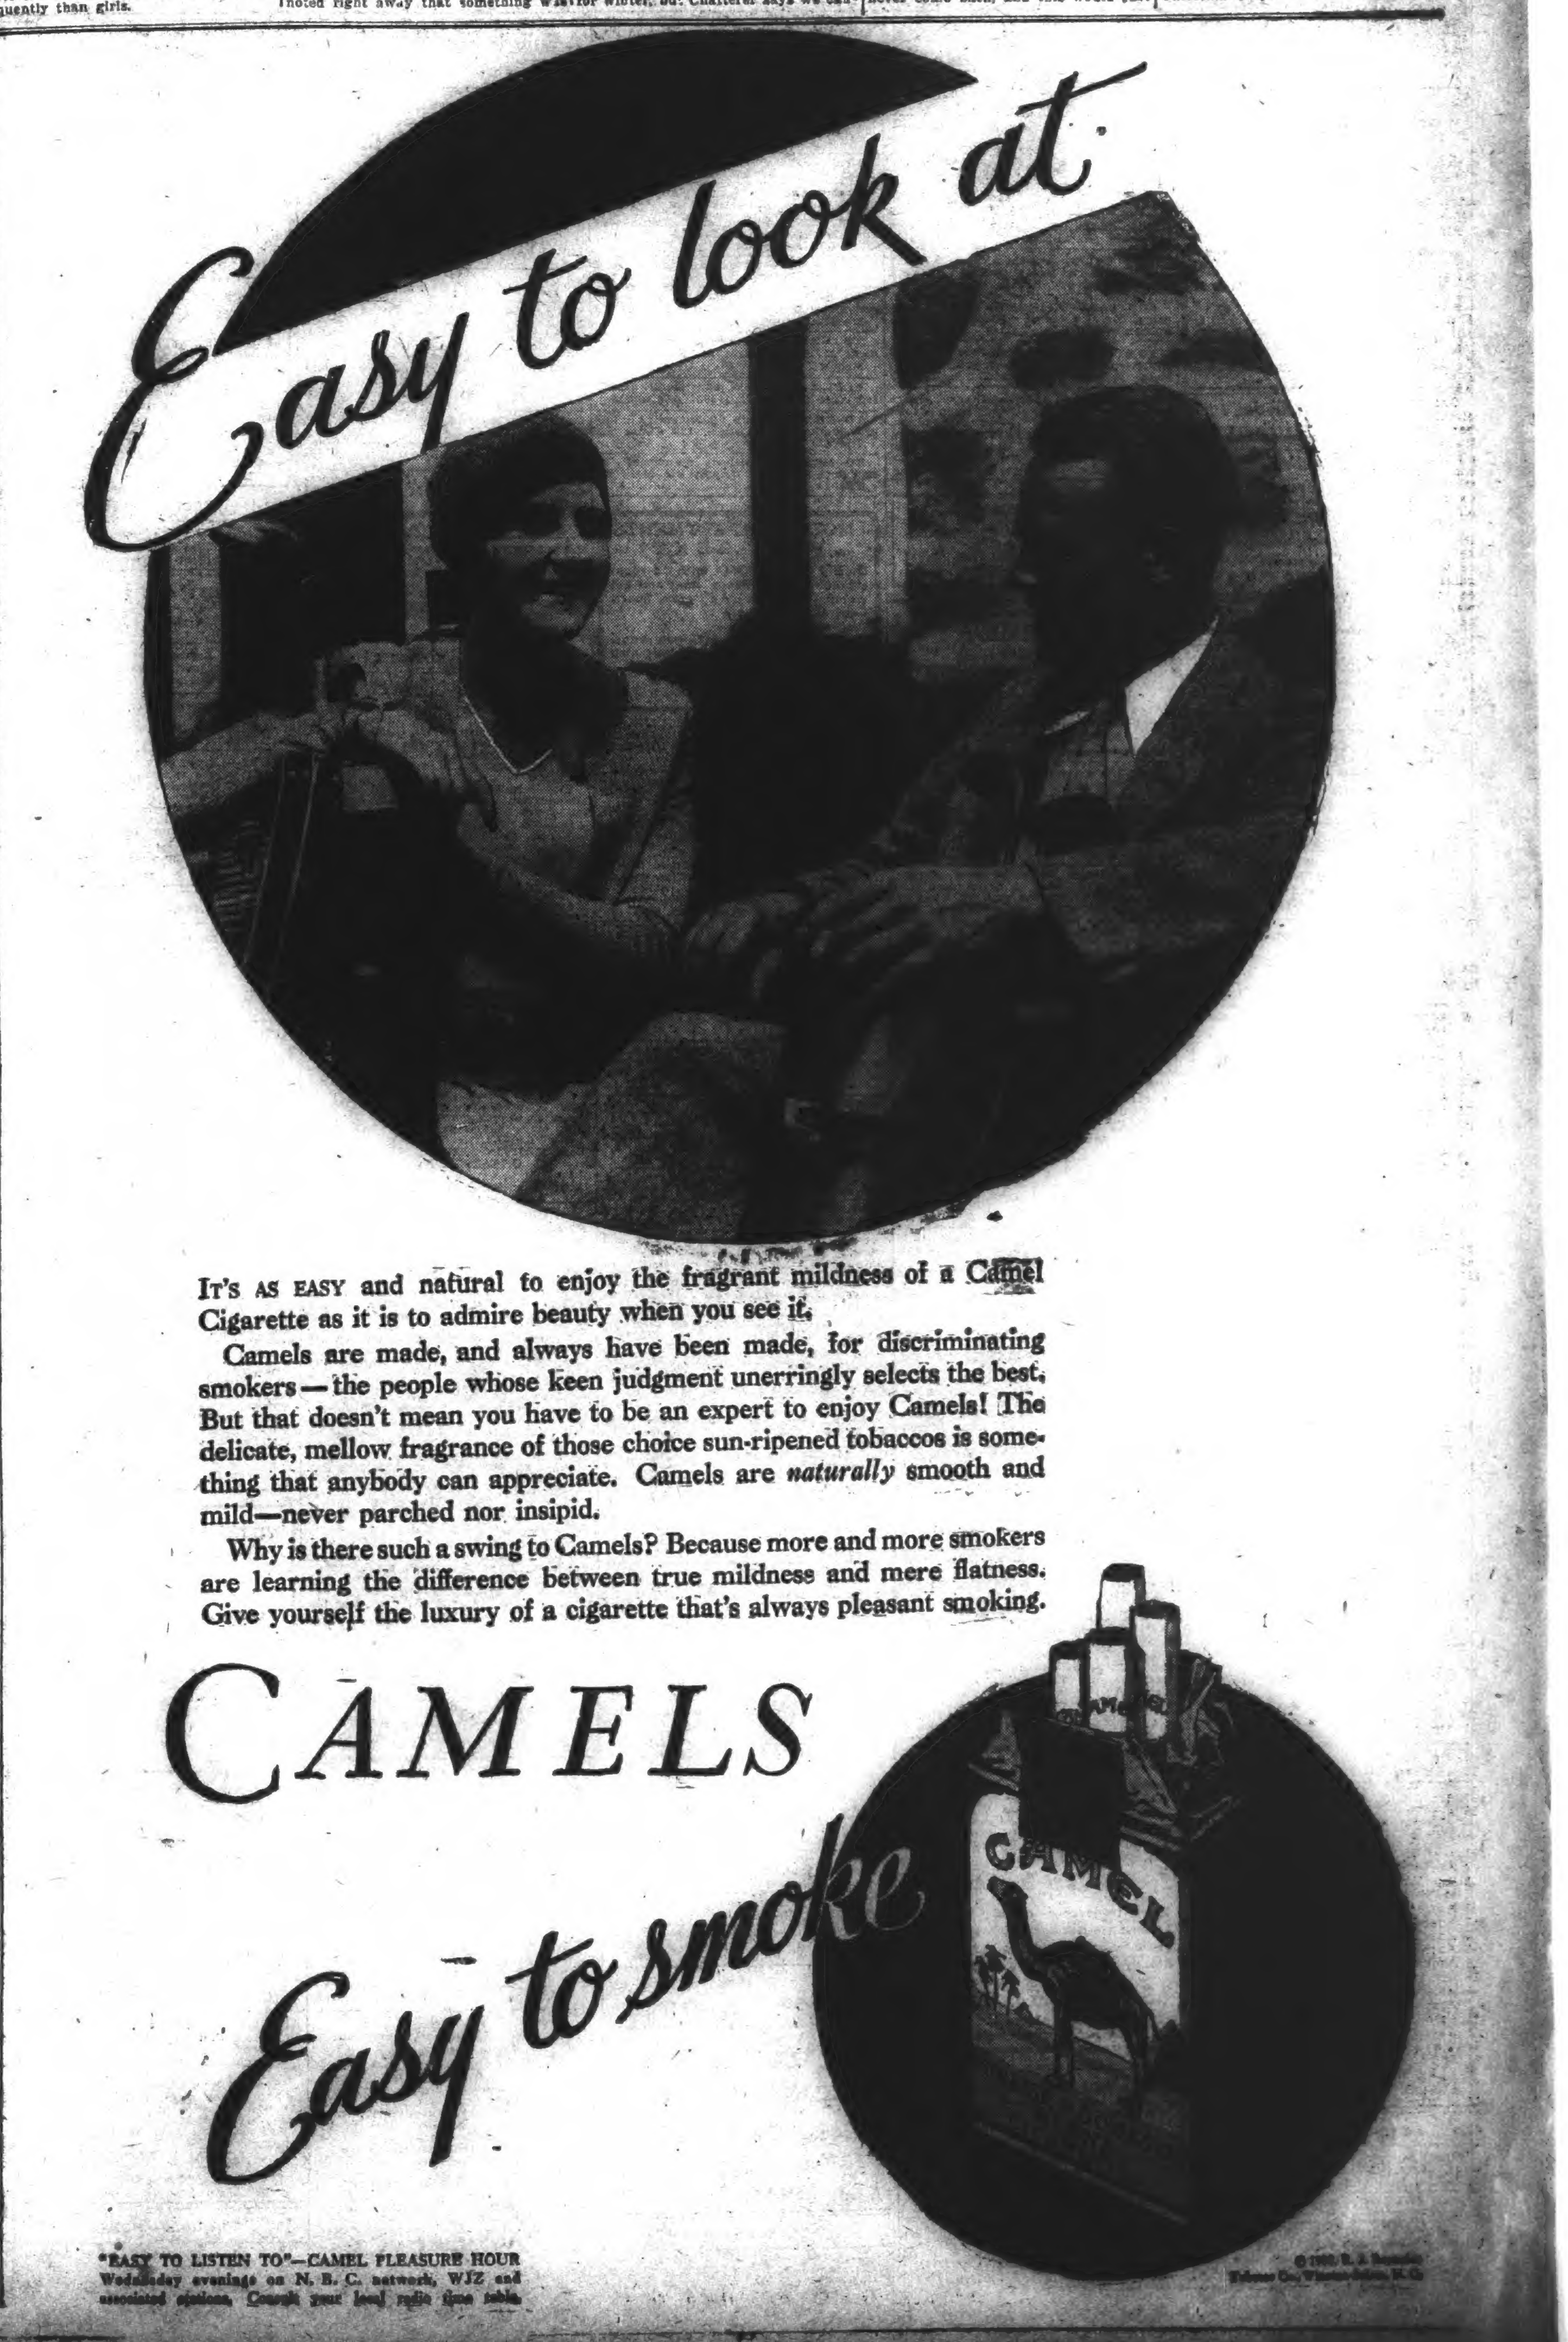
Mrs. Fannie Williams, age seventy-nine, of New Bern, N. C., has held a political job forty-two years. She is superintendent of the Craven County Poor Farm, having succeeded her husband. Mrs. Williams has brought order out of chaos, which existed when she took over the work as "a Christian duty."



It's as easy and natural to enjoy the fragrant mildness of a Camel Cigarette as it is to admire beauty when you see it.

Camels are made, and always have been made, for discriminating smokers—the people whose keen judgment unerringly selects the best. But that doesn't mean you have to be an expert to enjoy Camels! The delicate, mellow fragrance of those choice sun-ripened tobaccos is something that anybody can appreciate. Camels are naturally smooth and mild—never parched nor insipid.

Why is there such a swing to Camels? Because more and more smokers are learning the difference between true mildness and mere flatness. Give yourself the luxury of a cigarette that's always pleasant smoking.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

"The Office Wife" opened last night at Warner's Broadway theatre to a capacity audience. The picture shows what can be done with a rather simple plot with a good cast and a good director. If I were to say that there is a "triangle" plot in this film, and leave it like that—my readers would immediately turn up their noses. So I must specify that this is a triangle plot—different from anything I have ever seen. There is a twist to it. It is not done in the usual stilted style. It is an intelligent and absorbing piece of work. That is enough for the story. It must be seen to be appreciated.

Dorothy Mackaill is, as usual, charming and clever in the role of the private secretary. Lewis Stone makes a dashing and interesting employer. Natalie Moorhead does wonders with her part as the wife of the employer.

It is always pleasant to see Hobart Bosworth. He can be counted upon to give a good performance. In fact, the entire cast deserves credit for contributing to make this picture the entertainment it is.

Palace Theatre

"Oh Sailor Behave!" has a cast that includes Irene Delroy, the celebrated Broadway musical comedy star who is making her first appearance on the screen opposite handsome Charles King who has already sung his way to fame and popularity on the screen.

The story opens with the love romance of Nanette Dodge and Charles Carroll in Naples. They meet and fall head over heels in love with each other, but fate and a telegram intervene, and the first thing we know, Nanette has become the wife of the rascally Prince Kosogg and Carroll is deeply entangled with Kunz, secretary to the general. The timely arrival of two [illegible] American sailors who pretend they are looking for a one-legged man, but who are really looking for whatever mischief they can find, helps to clear up the tangle.

Irene Rich in "On Your Back" plays the part of a poor little dressmaker on the East Side of New York who is suddenly consumed with ambition. She never had anything herself when she was young, so she decides that her son, Raymond Hackett, is not going to suffer the same way. She becomes immensely successful, and nearly ruins everything that the plot which started out brightly, soon turns into a sort of tragedy, with everybody heading for unhappiness and despair. Not the least beautiful part of the picture is the fashion show in which alluring mannequins display the latest in gowns, furs and lingerie.

ALABAMA TIMBER OUTPUT SIX BILLION FEET YEARLY

The forest lands of the state, he said, are capable of producing a minimum of 6,000,000,000 board feet of timber annually, valued at not less than $84,000,000.

He pointed out that Alabama has been forging to the front in development of forest lands, which cover two-thirds of the land surface in the state and afford employment to over 20 per cent of the wage earners.

The New Zealand farmer has the reputation of being the wealthiest per capita farmer in the world.

MISS CATHERINE GANEY, NEW LONDON, STRUCK BY UNLIGHTED MOTORCYCLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 24.—Miss Catherine J. Ganey, employed as housekeeper by Edmund D. Barker, 45 Channing street, was seriously injured this evening when run down by a motorcyclist, Leroy Buffington, of 59 Connecticut avenue. Miss Ganey, who was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital, is suffering from a fractured arm, leg and jaw, besides numerous bruises and scratches. Miss Ganey is also suffering greatly from shock and although she is not on the danger list the outcome of her injuries cannot be determined. Buffington was arrested on a charge of reckless driving and will be presented in the police court tomorrow.

Buffington had guided his motorcycle from Broad street to Williams street and it was being operated without lights. At the corner of Williams and Granite streets, Miss Ganey was crossing the intersecting street. When she was about midway of the highway the cycle struck her, throwing her violently to the ground. She was rendered helpless and was taken to the office of her brother, Dr. Joseph M. Ganey, who resides at the corner where the accident occurred. An examination of his sister by the physician revealed the severe injuries Miss Ganey had suffered and she was taken without delay to the hospital. Buffington said that while driving the cycle the lights suddenly were extinguished and that when the cycle hit Miss Ganey he was on his way to a service station to have the defect remedied.

Bridge Guard Rail Gone

Automobile Patrol Officer George Bruhns discovered an exceedingly dangerous highway condition, particularly so to pedestrians, this evening and made a report of the condition at police headquarters. The officer was driving on Bayonet street when he discovered the frail fence across a small bridge, which spans a brook near the dye house of the Corticelli Silk Co., destroyed from an undetermined cause. The fence had been removed from the bridge and a pedestrian was in danger of walking off the bridge, to drop about eight feet into the water. The highway department was informed of the dangerous condition and red lanterns were displayed there for the balance of the night. Tomorrow repairs will be made.

W. J. THRALL, MYSTIC, TOOK WALLET FROM STORE

Walter J. Thrall, Mystic, is locked up at Groton police station, charged with the theft of money from the C. S. W. Davis pharmacy, corner of Thames and Ferry streets, Groton. Thrall, it is claimed, watched his opportunity and stole a wallet containing about $75. He will be in Groton town court Monday next.

Westerly Car Stolen

A Pontiac coach, 1927 model, dark blue body with black fenders, owned by Clifford Barnes, R. F. D. Westerly, was stolen from that city this evening. The machine was stolen by a youth and when last seen was headed in an easterly direction. The state police and New London police have been requested to be on the lookout for the auto, which carries Rhode Island registration, 13225.

Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Motorcycle Officer Clarence Martin are on their vacations of two weeks.

Groton Driver Held

Edward G. Pearce, residing on the Shore road, Groton, was arrested this afternoon charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and will be in the police court tomorrow. Pearce, who was driving a Hudson brougham, was on Truman street and at a time when children were leaving the Saltonstall school. Patrolman George Laboue was at the corner of Truman and Hempstead streets, maintaining safety for the youngsters, when the auto approached. Leaving Norwich Monday morning, the route was by way of Plainfield to Providence, through Fall River, New Bedford, Fair Haven and Wareham to Buzzard's Bay. There, they crossed Cape Cod canal to Sagamore, continuing to Sandwich and Barnstable. Here the tourists followed the lower route through South Yarmouth, West Dennis, Harwich, Chatham and Orleans to Wellfleet, where they remained overnight at Wellfleet Tourists' Home after driving 181 miles the first day. It was a most interesting sight when the draw bridge opened to let craft through the canal.

Mrs. Whiteman and Miss Briggs had just finished dinner, when the bell rang, which was the signal that the bridge was to open. They were greatly interested to witness the sight. This canal was constructed to shorten the distance for boats plying between Boston and New York, and is considered a safer route than the outside passage.

Tuesday morning when leaving Wellfleet for Provincetown, a very pleasant part of the journey for about six miles was through a wooded section disclosing beautiful scenery. Before reaching Provincetown the tourists passed through Truro and North Truro. At Provincetown exceedingly narrow streets were the rule. When circling this place on a thirteen mile drive, called the bluff drive, about two miles of this section, they passed under beautiful arched trees. The sand dunes were especially interesting on one side of the highway when proceeding north to Provincetown with the picturesque bay on the other. A visit was made to the Pilgrim memorial monument, 252 feet tall, erected at a cost of $90,000. A wonderful view was obtained from this location, even without going to the top of the monument. Having had breakfast at Provincetown, the route was retraced through to North Truro, where a stop was made to inspect Highland Light. This light is considered one of the strongest known. It is the first discerned by in-coming ships and the last to be seen when outward bound. After leaving this light house of interesting history, the homeward trip was by way of Brewster, Orleans, Dennis and Sagamore to Buzzard's Bay again, where a stop was made for dinner. From here, an 18-mile drive was taken to Plymouth to inspect Plymouth rock and the monument, the tourists continuing through Middleboro, Taunton, Providence, to Westerly and on to Norwich, covering in two days, 395 miles over excellent roads, with no tire or other trouble.

Attending Brooklyn Fair from Norwich Town Wednesday, were Mrs. Andrew Gardner, Mrs. Allen Kinney, and Mrs. William H. Whiteman in Mrs. Whiteman's car. Miss Maria Briggs of Norwich attended, also.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Browning of Colchester had as guest a day recently, Mr. Browning's sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles Browning of Norwich Town.

Mrs. John L. Browning and little daughter Lois, are visiting for a week with Mrs. Dwight W. Avery of Norwich Town, who is passing some time at Lord's Point.

Relatives, family friends and neighbors, assembled at the Sacred Heart church, Monday morning at 7:30, when the pastor, Rev. Edward J. Quinn celebrated an anniversary requiem high mass for the repose of the soul of Mrs. Charles Carvan (Alice Casey). The music in the mass was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. William A. Murphy. Miss Mary Buckley sang De Profundis at the offertory and at the conclusion of the mass she sang Abide With Me. Members of the choir sang during the mass, which was attended by several from out of town.

Charles Browning and daughters, Misses Lillian and Florence Browning of Plain Hill, also Mr. Browning's cousin, Mrs. Annie Crowell of Norwich, attended Springfield fair Saturday. Another automobile party from Norwich Town attending that fair included Mr. and Mrs. John L. Browning and family, also of Plain Hill road.

Cafeteria Supper

In the chapel of the First Congregational church Wednesday evening, from five to seven, a successful cafeteria supper was held under the auspices of the Drop-in class of the Sunday school, Mrs. Frank Wheeler president. Mrs. David M. Dean was chairman of the supper committee who had provided salads, meat loaf, sliced tomatoes, rolls, cake and coffee. Two long tables were arranged in the chapel on which were vases of the season's flowers. Several individual tables were placed on the lawn at the rear of the chapel. Henry T. Frazier was cashier for the supper which was well patronized. Assisting Mrs. Dean were Mrs. Frank Wheeler, Mrs. Charles Learned, Mrs. Clyde M. Beebe, Mrs. Henry T. Frazier, Mrs. Ernest Washington, Mrs. Frederick Ross, Mrs. Philip B. Whaley, Mrs. C. H. Nylen, Mrs. Frank Skinner, Mrs. Michael Buckley, Miss Bessie M. Grant and others.

PROVIDENCE CYCLISTS RAISED QUESTIONS IN WESTERLY

WESTERLY, Sept. 24.—Michael A. Saccoccia, 20, of 9 Briggs street, Cranston, R. I., and two companions on motorcycles came into Westerly Wednesday night shortly after 10 o'clock and proceeded down High street, making a lot of noise. They were stopped by Patrolman Robert Kessel, who found that Saccoccia was riding an Indian Chief on each side of which were painted the letters, Providence Police Dept. The operator told the officer that he had no registration and that he was not a police officer. The three drivers were taken to the police station and Inspector Murphy of the Providence department notified.

His investigation showed that the Providence police department had sold the machines to the Arnold motor shop, from which the men had purchased them. When it was found that their application for plates was in the mail and on instruction from Inspector Murphy that the lettering be painted off the sides, they were released by the police here.

A. L. PEALE SPEAKER ON ROCKY NECK BEACH PARK

Three members of the state park commission, Walter O. Filley, treasurer, Robert Ross, secretary, and Arthur L. Peale of this city, attended a meeting of New London chamber of commerce Wednesday evening at which they gave the New London men information about Rocky Neck beach in the town of East Lyme, where a meeting of the State Park and Forest association is to be held on Saturday, Oct. 4.

The beach property is now held by a group of ten public-spirited citizens, whose purpose in securing control of the site is to preserve it so that the state can acquire it for a public park. There are over 500 acres in the property with more than half a mile of white beach.

Samoans have dedicated a large church on the Island of Savaii to the memory of John W. Williams, British missionary.

STEWED FRESH FRUIT SHOULD BE IN DIET THE YEAR 'ROUND

It is a Pleasing Change From Raw Fruit and Often More Wholesome

It is often the tendency to overindulge in raw fruit. In many cases an upset digestive system can be traced to raw fruit.

However, when the fruit is stewed and sweetened to taste with pure cane sugar, there is less danger of digestive disorders. As far as taste-appeal is concerned, stewed peaches, apples, berries, plums and pears are most enjoyable when chilled and served for dessert.

In view of the fact that pure cane sugar is now at the lowest price it has been in a generation, and since fruit is still abundant, the value of storing away preserves of all kinds for winter use should not be overlooked. Not only is home-canning profitable, but grocers everywhere are offering worth-while bargains in preserved fruits, jellies and jams.

Pickles and relishes made of cucumbers, green tomatoes and cabbage are also economical to preserve. Their spicy, tart-sweet goodness encourages the consumption of essential foods such as meat, fish and vegetables. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

Nature grows the wheat but WHO makes the FLOUR?

- Between the wheat fields and the food you serve on your table are the millers. • The millers make flour. • Some make cheap flour for the cheap market. Some make "pretty good" flour. Others make the very best flour that human honor and brains can make. • Heckers' Flour is in the "very best" class.

- Good cooks avoid cheap flour and "pretty good" flour. For two reasons . . . 1—Cheap flour and even "pretty good" flour vary too much and thus ruin other expensive materials. 2—The good cook's hard earned reputation can't afford to take chances.
- Heckers' Flour is dry, satiny in texture, rich in body and flavor . . . and has that working "feel" expert cooks appreciate.

TROUBLE OVER WET PLANK AT N. Y. STATE REP. CONVENTION

Two-Thirds of the Members of the Platform Committee of 51 Are Conceded to Be Wet—An Effort is Being Made to Draft a Plank That Will Not Be Offensive to the Drys—Each Side Has Threatened to Carry the Fight to the Floor of the Convention if Its Attitude Was Not Reflected in the Prohibition Declaration—The Convention Itself is of Pronounced Wet Tendencies.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 25—(AP)—A resolutions committee preponderantly wet struggled tonight to frame a prohibition plank for the New York state republican platform which would be acceptable to a convention of pronounced wet tendencies, to the man who will be nominated tomorrow for governor, and to the rank and file of a party which is strongly against prohibition in urban centers and as strongly in favor of it in rural sections.

That the plank would incline to wetness was conceded by all the leaders including those eager to hold the party in the state in line with the republican national administration on prohibition.

Of gubernatorial candidates there was little talk today, and of nominees for other state offices even less. The Erie county delegation, led by a gaily-uniformed feminine fife and drum corps, paraded around the convention hall today and whooped it up for Attorney General Hamilton Ward as gubernatorial nominee. The widespread conviction was, however, that if the prohibition plank was in line with the repeal views of Charles H. Tuttle, federal district attorney at New York, he would be named at the head of the ticket on the first ballot.

On the platform committee of 51, two-thirds of whom were conceded to be wet, was a fighting minority which included Representative Fred M. Davenport, former Senate Leader Clayton R. Lusk; Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman, and John Knight, temporary president of the state senate, the committee chairman.

The contest in the committee room was waged between a wet majority favoring an outspoken demand for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and a dry minority, which sought to use a softer synonym.

Each side threatened to carry the fight to the floor of the convention if its attitude was not reflected in the prohibition declaration.

The resolutions committee held a brief preliminary meeting shortly after the adjournment of the first formal session of the convention today. At this meeting hearing was granted on suggested planks other than that dealing with prohibition. The committee held an open meeting tonight to hear the suggestions of any interested person regarding the form of the prohibition plank after which it went into executive session.

Today's convention session lasted an hour and a half. The greater part of this time was given to the keynote speech, dealing with national issues, by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, temporary chairman. Mr. Stimson reviewed the accomplishments of the Hoover administration and said no word about prohibition. He made four points.

"First," he said, "no president in recent years has so completely translated his campaign pledges into performance.

"Second, this has been accomplished in the face of difficulties produced by an economic depression and at a time when a large part of the energies of the administration were being devoted to the problems created by that depression, particularly toward keeping down unemployment and the consequent suffering.

"Third, this was accomplished only by means of effective cooperation between the president and congress, a cooperation rendered unusually difficult by factional divisions in his own party in the senate.

"Fourth, these accomplishments were the result of study, planning and foresight by the executive, and the constructive solutions thus obtained will be of fundamental and increasing benefit to the public."

The greatest demonstration came when, in a review of the president's conquests of friendship in foreign relations, the secretary of state mentioned Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico and republican nominee for the United States senate from New Jersey on a wet platform.

Cheering swept the convention hall, died down for a second, then was renewed more loudly.

At the final session tomorrow permanent organization will be effected with Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies of the state assembly as chairman.

The resolutions committee will report the platform to the convention for adoption, after which the candidates for governor, lieutenant governor, comptroller and attorney general will be named.

WADSWORTH SUBMITS WET PLANK TO CONVENTION

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth tonight submitted to the platform committee of the republican state convention his proposed repeal plank. The plank follows:

"We urge repeal of the 18th amendment. In order that the people in the several states may exercise their undoubted right to pass up on the question, we urge that the repealing amendment be submitted by the congress to conventions of the people in the several states, as provided in Article 5 of the constitution.

"We urge enactment of such federal laws under the interstate commerce clause of the constitution as will secure each dry state against the importation of intoxicating liquors for consumption within its borders.

"Pending repeal of the 18th amendment we urge that existing laws be obeyed.

"In anticipation of the return to the people of New York of their aforetime power to regulate traffic in liquor we urge the legislature to provide for a commission whose duties shall be to study the problem of liquor control and to recommend such measures as, when put into effect, will meet the enlightened sentiments of the people.

"Finally and especially we pledge our party to the immediate amendment of the constitution of the state of New York in such a fashion as will effectually and forever forbid and prevent the return of the saloon."

HOOVER TO MAKE THREE SPEECHES IN BAY STATE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—(AP)—President Hoover has virtually completed the itinerary for the trips which during the next two weeks will take him into two of the states in which republicans and democrats will match oratory and wits in a hotly contested struggle for congressional seats in the campaign now under way.

In addition to the three speeches he will make in Massachusetts and Ohio, two traditional battlegrounds of the parties, the president decided today to make a stop on his way to Kings Mountain, S. C., in one of the North Carolina congressional districts which exchanged a democrat for a republican representative in the landslide which gave him that state's electoral vote in 1928.

His visit to Boston on October 6 will bring him before the American Legion in the morning and the American Federation of Labor in the afternoon. Between times, he will be a luncheon guest of Boston business men at the Copley-Plaza hotel.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Marching to the strains of solemn chants through a cold drizzle, 25,000 Catholics took part in a colorful procession here this afternoon to close the sixth national eucharistic congress.

Thousands more lined the sidewalks about St. Cecelia's cathedral to witness the public demonstration of Catholic belief in the sanctity of their sacrament of holy eucharist.

Preceded by an army band, the marchers, men, women and children, pushed through the rain for several miles, then climaxed their procession by kneeling on the wet cathedral grounds to attend benediction celebrated simultaneously on three outdoor altars.

A host was borne through the procession by members of the clergy, arrayed in rich vestments, and was placed on one of the altars upon which benediction was celebrated.

FIRE CHIEF HILL OF HAZARD FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

HAZARD, Ky., Sept. 25.—(AP)—B. E. Hill, special traffic policeman and fire chief of Hazard, was found guilty of murder today and sentenced to life imprisonment for slaying Norma Lee Maggard, 21 months old baby, as she was riding in an automobile with her parents.

Hill claimed he fired at the tires of the automobile to stop it, and that the bullet accidentally glanced into the car.

The slain infant was the child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maggard of Hard Burly. She was shot while sitting on her mother's lap in the car September 6.

The defense argued that the policeman had a right to shoot at the tires when the driver, Miss Artie Engle, refused to stop. Hill charged that the car was speeding.

HEYWOOD BROUN OFFERS HIS SERVICES AS PICKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Heywood Broun, columnist and socialist candidate for congress, admits he's no dressmaker but today he decided he would substitute for one by offering his services as a picket to Local No. 38 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers union, which went on strike today for a $3 a week increase.

Addressing the strikers, Broun told of how, while he was serving in a similar capacity a week ago, the boss of the establishment asked a police sergeant to scatter the pickets.

"I can't arrest the fat fellow. He's running for office and it would get into the papers," Broun said the sergeant replied.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic flier, suffered slight injuries this afternoon when her plane crashed as she was landing at the Hampton Roads navy airport, here.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Further denial that German agents had anything to do with the Black Tom munitions explosion in 1916 was made today before the mixed claims commission by Germany's representatives who are opposing American efforts to collect damages from Germany for sabotage in the United States before America's entry into the World war

DRYS NOT IN ACCORD ON PLAN OF LAW ENFORCEMENT COM.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Protest went up today in the camp of the congressional drys against proposals that the Hoover law enforcement commission outline its views on prohibition.

Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, a dry leader, asserted the function of this commission was only "to determine ways of strengthening enforcement" of prohibition and all other laws.

Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, another dry, said it was the duty of the commission "to give us the facts." He joined Sheppard in asserting it was "the business of congress and of the people what to do about prohibition."

"I am not interested in what the commission says or does," said Brookhart "just so they give us the facts. I don't want any concealment of data when they announce their conclusions."

However, there seems to be some difference of opinion among the drys on the function of the commission. Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, an outspoken dry, insisted last session that the commission confine its work solely to the subject of prohibition and make an exhaustive report on it.

2-YEAR-OLD GIRL INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

WATERBURY, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Germaine Ashe, two-year-old daughter of Mrs. Minnie Ashe, 49, Hartford, is in a critical condition at St. Mary's hospital here with death imminent, as a result of an automobile accident on the Meriden road here today. The child's mother was held for the coroner but later released on her own recognizance.

Mrs. Ashe told Coroner John T. Monzani and police that while driving her car to Hartford, her baby suddenly started to climb up on her arm. The movement was so sudden and strong, she said, that her hand was wrenched from the steering wheel, causing the car to swerve off the road and into a telephone pole. Mrs. Ashe suffered slight injuries to her head and knee, but her baby was thrown against the instrument board and is believed to have received a fracture of the skull.

TRAGEDY RESULTS FROM ARGUMENT OVER MONEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Enraged by an argument over money, Charles Reiter, 55, police said, shot and killed Mrs. Martha Siering, seriously wounded another woman and then killed himself in a Bronx apartment tonight.

As police reconstructed the tragedy, Reiter went to Mrs. Siering's apartment and demanded, in the presence of Mrs. Catherine Crause, 60, a friend of Mrs. Siering, money he said was owed him. After an argument he drew a revolver and shot the women.

Then he locked himself in an adjoining bedroom, piled pillows behind his head and shot himself in the right temple. The pillows were ignited, the flames spread, and before the fire could be extinguished, Reiter was burned to death.

Once Famous Scout Of Early West Dies

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Death today overtook "Arapahoe Harve," Indian scout of the early '70s, whose life was declared forfeit 60 years ago and then was saved by a friendly redskin while his funeral pyre was being built.

Harvey S. Faucett, associate of Buffalo Bill and Kit Carson, died in a hospital here at the age of 86 as a result of a broken hip suffered when he was knocked to the pavement by two men in a friendly scuffle.

The aged scout, who bore wounds inflicted by all manner of Indian weapons, had been employed at the market as a night watchman the last ten years.

"Arapahoe Harve, The Eagle of the Trail," serving as a scout for Gen. George H. Custer, is said to have been the only white man who had a forewarning of the massacre of the general and his 276 men on the Little Big Horn river in June, 1876.

An Indian scout befriended by Faucett told him of the assembling of Indians under Chiefs Crazy Horse, Sitting Bull, Two Moons and others. The scout, 200 miles from the scene of the massacre, rode frantically northward in an effort to warn Custer, but his pony dropped dead after galloping over the broken prairie of Wyoming for 20 hours.

In skirmishes with the Cheyennes and Sioux before the defeat of Chief Dull Knife and his 1,000 warriors, Faucett was captured by a band of 200 and sentenced to be burned alive. His trial was held before a great council fire at night. After sentence was pronounced he was tied to a stake and wood was heaped high about him, while the sachems went into a second huddle over division of his property, one taking his rifle, another his horse, another his saddle, and so on.

The death dance was interrupted by an Indian scout who pleaded for Faucett's life, describing the condemned man as a brother of the Indians. Another council was called and Faucett subsequently was set free and his property was restored.

On his last scouting expedition, with a United States geological survey in the Black Hills, the party was attacked by Indians and one of the scientists was killed. The white men fought a running battle while Faucett, an arrow piercing his shoulder, stood off the Indians with his rifle.

When peace was declared and mining developed "Arapahoe Harve" was made chief of police at Leadville, Colo., and his services against road agents won him a diamond studded star which remains in his trophies here.

Faucett was married and had lived here since 1896. Two children and his widow survive.

MISSING WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN CLUMP OF BUSHES

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25—(AP)—The body of Miss Grace DeLancey V. Newlin, 30-year-old member of a socially prominent family of Bryn Mawr, who disappeared from her home Tuesday morning, was found today in a clump of bushes five miles south of Malvern.

Coroner Herbert C. Ford, of Coatesville, said he was convinced Miss Newlin had committed suicide by poison.

Police believe Miss Newlin drove to the isolated spot when she left her home Tuesday, ostensibly to summon a physician for an ill nurse in the Newlin home.

Leroy Ruley, Negro, Ernest Hoppers and J. W. McDowell, employes on the Delchester farm, found the body and said they had noticed her car parked near the spot yesterday.

The car had been driven off the Gradyville road and into a narrow dirt trail about half a mile. Then Miss Newlin evidently walked to a spot thick with brushes and large trees.

In her handbag, found beside the body, were two small bottles containing poison. A small amount had been drawn from one of them. A water glass containing traces of another poison was found near her head.

In the front seat of Miss Newlin's car was a carton which had contained a bottle of poison. A roll of money also was found in her bag.

INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION OF LIFE INS. UNDERWRITERS

TORONTO, Sept. 25—(AP)—Insurance companies, if granted legal authority which they now lack, could do much to relieve the rigors of unemployment, John G. Lonsdale, of St. Louis, president of the American Bankers association, told the International Convention of Life Underwriters today in a paper read in his absence.

They could come to the rescue he said, and help set up funds to be held in trusteeship "to keep the wolf from the door in times of distress and assure the employe and his family that they will not be wards of the community."

He declared that even after business conditions improve there will still be capable persons without jobs. Industry must look upon the problem as one to be solved by itself and not by the state, he said.

JUDGE CRATER SAID TO HAVE BEEN SEEN AT MONCTON, N. B.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—(AP)—The search for Supreme Court Justice Joseph F. Crater, missing since Aug. 6, took on new life today with receipt of a telegram from Moncton, New Brunswick, saying three persons had positively identified a man seen there Sept. 8, as the missing jurist.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney said the report would be carefully investigated. The telegram was received by the board of aldermen, which has offered a reward of $5,000 for information concerning Crater's whereabouts.

ENDURANCE PLANE FORCED DOWN BY STORM CONDITIONS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 25.—(AP)—The endurance plane flown by Bennett Griffin and Roy Hunt of Oklahoma City was forced down at Norman, about 20 miles south of here, by storm conditions about 8:15 o'clock tonight after completing approximately 293 hours in the air.

Cleveland Plane And Two Men Are Mis[illegible]ng

Possibility That [illegible] lane Might Have [illegible] n Into Lake Erie.

CLEVELAN[illegible] 25.—(AP)—Messages to airp[illegible] within a radius of 300 miles of Cle[illegible]and today failed to bring any indication of the whereabouts of Willard Parker of Cleveland, pilot, and William McNulty of Columbus, a salt manufacturer, who took off here in a Curtiss Robin cabin plane at 1:30 a. m., yesterday, and have not been heard from since.

When they took off they said their immediate destination was Buffalo, N. Y., and from there they would go to Mifflinburg, Pa. When no word of them came from those cities, it was believed they might have flown to Canada.

The fact that they had only enough gasoline to keep them in the air five hours increased apprehension for their safety.

The only lighted airport along the Canadian border in this vicinity is at Windsor, Ontario, but the Associated Press was told the plane had not been seen there.

The possibility that the plane might have fallen into Lake Erie did not diminish fears for their safety. It was also considered possible that the landing may have been made in an out-of-the-way place not within immediate reach of a telephone or telegraph.

Parker, a wartime pilot, was an experienced flyer, but it was said at the Cleveland airport that his experience in cross country night flights was limited. McNulty often made business and pleasure trips by air, but was not an experienced pilot.

Officials of the Curtiss-Wright Flying service at Columbus sent word to Cleveland airport officials that John P. Corrodi of Columbus was the only pilot authorized to fly the plane, which the Curtiss-Wright officials said belonged to their company.

12 PERSONS HURT WHEN RACE HORSE PLUNGED INTO CROWD

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Sept. 25—(AP)—Twelve persons received injuries requiring hospital treatment today when a frightened race horse leaped the rail and plunged into the crowd at Bloomsburg fair grounds. At least a dozen others were slightly hurt as they attempted to scramble from the horses path.

Mrs. Ursula James, 46, of Northumberland, suffered a possible skull fracture and was in a critical condition. Three of the others suffered fractured limbs. The rest had severe lacerations of the body.

The accident was the second in quick succession as the first race of the afternoon got under way after being postponed two hours by rain. At the furlong post, Patsy McDonald, the leading horse, threw its jockey, Ivory Dillon of Fredericksburg, Va. Dillon was badly trampled before he could roll under the rail.

At the quarter mile, Bluemont, with Livingston up, reared and threw its rider. The horse then made three complete laps of the half mile track and as it passed the grand stand the fourth time, leaped the barrier into the crowd.

THREE PERSONS KILLED IN AIR MAIL ACCIDENT

CALGARY, Alta. Sept. 25—(AP)—Three persons were killed today in the first air mail accident in western Canada since the service started last November.

A western Canada Airways biplane en route from Calgary to Moose Jaw, Sask., crashed at Southesk, 90 miles east of Calgary, killing Pilot W. G. "Pat" Holden and two passengers, C. McDonald and J. G. Gibson, both residents of Calgary.

The machine left Calgary shortly before two a. m., and it is believed the crash occurred less than an hour later.

When Pilot Holden did not report at Moose Jaw at 5 a. m., Pilot H. H. Kenyon, ready to start the air mail flight westward to Calgary, was instructed to watch for the missing machine. When flying over Southesk, Kenyon discovered the wreckage and came down.

20 GANGSTERS ARRESTED IN RAID IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Sept. 25—(AP)—That Capone gangsters were in possession of confidential police records was revealed today by documents seized in a raid on the Carleton hotel, alleged headquarters of Capone lieutenants. The raid, staged by federal agents and detectives, netted 20 prisoners besides the records of gangster dealings.

Raiders said the police memoranda they had seized included copies of communications between officers of the detective bureau relating to plans for arresting gangsters on vagrancy warrants.

In addition to the police data, a list of detectives who have been active in harassing gangsters was seized. Chief of Police Alcock announced he was astounded by the discovery of the police communications and indicated that he would start investigation immediately to discover who was responsible for the leak.

HITLER TALKS OF SETTING UP A GERMAN "THIRD EMPIRE"

As a Witness at the Trial of Three German Reichswehr Officers, Hitler Sketched a Plan Involving the Tearing Up of the Versailles Peace Treaty—Declared That as Soon as German Fascists By Legal Means Had Secured Political Ascendancy They Would Disrupt the Peace Treaty—Intimated That Blood Would Flow at Home Once His "Revolutionary Tribunals" Were Set to Work.

LEIPSIC, Germany, Sept. 25—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, chieftain of fascism in Germany, took advantage of a ready made platform in the Leipsic supreme court today to tell Germans and the world how he would set up a German "third empire."

The plan he sketched while a witness in the trial of three German reichswehr officers on charges of subversive activities involved tearing up the Versailles treaty, with such consequences as might follow that action and intimation that blood would flow at home once his "revolutionary tribunals" were set to working.

With all of the conviction and confidence of a man who stakes his all on a cause, he asserted that 35 or 40 million German voters soon would rally under the fascist banner.

The court at intervals exerted a modulating influence upon the fascist leader and the boerse, ever sensitive politically, reacted downward, evidently not liking the prospect Hitler unveiled.

The trial itself, occupying public attention for several days, lost its own prominence in the light of Hitler's personality. While he testified in the courtroom swarms of his followers remained in the streets before the building, lustily voicing their slogan, "Germany, awake." So great did the pressure become in the area around the court building that finally after police reinforcements had been unable to make enough of an impression upon the mob, firemen turned streams of cold water on the shouting fascists and the throng gave way quickly.

Hitler was outspoken, he said that just as soon as German fascists by legal means had secured political ascendancy they would disrupt the peace treaty, if necessary by means looked upon by the world as illegal. He said his party did not regard Germany's international post-war agreements as law but as something "forced upon us."

He asserted that fascists did not acknowledge Germany's war guilt, "especially not the guilt of future generations."

Hitler declared that after two or three more elections his party would be in the majority in Germany.

Hitler made frequent use of the word revolution. Asked by the court why he did so he responded promptly:

"What other name can we give to a movement which aims to overturn the present state and construct a new Germany on entirely new lines?"

Hitler, technically a man without a country, it was developed, lost his Austrian citizenship fighting in German ranks throughout the war and had not gained German citizenship. He explained today that he had made many attempts to legalize his German citizenship but so far had failed. He declared, "I refuse to beg for a citizenship which I have become entitled to before my own conscience."

The fascist chieftain's opportunity to expose his revolutionary program came in the trial of Lieutenants Richard Scheringer, Hans Ludien and retired Lieutenant Hans Friedrich Wendt before Judge Baumgarten. He was called as a witness and reminded that he had the right to refuse to give evidence incriminating himself.

It was announced tonight that a fascist parade planned for Sept. 28 at Potsdam had been called off.

Long after Hitler had smilingly received flowers from waiting feminine admirers and passed into the court room, the square in front of the building rang with, "Hail Our Hitler," and snatches of fascist songs.

This evening passed without any serious encounters between fascists and the authorities. The police have been greatly augmented and tireless in their activities throughout the city. They were reinforced by troops and mounted constabulary, who were much in evidence throughout the business district.

OVERTHROW OF SCHOBER CABINET IN AUSTRALIA

VIENNA, Sept. 25.—(AP)—The cabinet of Chancellor Johan Schober fell today and thereby dealt a severe blow to the greater part of the country, both because it regards the pretext of the Christian social party for overthrowing Schober frivolous and because the business community believed Austria will suffer irreparable economic damage.

This later effect would be the result of postponement of measures which the chancellor had promised to apply at once out of the proceeds of a foreign loan.

A dispute which resulted in a hurried special cabinet meeting reached a climax last night and resulted today in the chancellor's resignation. Until late this afternoon it had been hoped that a means might be found to keep the present government in office but, one after another, the clerical party ministers tendered their resignations.

It was expected in official circles tonight that Herr Miklas, president of the republic, would ask the resigned chancellor to carry on the office provisionally, at the same time charging Herr Vaugoin, the vice-chancellor, and leader of the Christian social party, with the formation of a new government.

The appointment of a fascist, Dr. Trafella, to the office of minister of state railways, yesterday influenced later developments, and with the chancellor and Vaugoin at loggerheads upon that point, it was only a question of which would yield, political observers declared, the chancellor himself capitulating today.

CHARGED WITH ATTACK ON LIFE OF PRINCE HUMBERT

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 25—(AP)—Fernande De Rosa, young and debonnair Italian student appeared in court today charged with attempting to assassinate Prince Humbert of Piedmont, crown prince of Italy, in Brussels last October.

The case has created great interest not only because charges of attempting royal assassination are rare but because the case has strong political and personal aspects. De Rosa has said his action was a protest against fascism. Several leading Italian anti-fascists will appear as witnesses for the defense.

Today's proceedings consisted of a review of the charge by the prosecution and an impassioned speech by the prisoner who described the growth of his "hatred" for fascism and how it led him to his dramatic action in Brussels.

The professor subsequently learned, he said, that the contract was a forgery.

NEW BENCH OF JURISTS FOR THE WORLD COURT

GENEVA, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Amid scenes strikingly like a political convention in the United States, the council and the assembly of the League of Nations today elected a new bench of 15 jurists for the world court.

Frank B. Kellogg, former American secretary of state, whose name is historically perpetuated in the pact for outlawing war, was among those chosen to serve for nine years, beginning next Jan. 1, when the membership of the court will be increased from 11 to 15.

Latin America won three places on the international bench, Antonio Sanchez de Bustamente, of Cuba, was reelected, while J. Gustavo of El Salvador and Francisco Jose Urrutia of Colombia were newly named to sit in judgment in the international tribunal at The Hague. Epitacio Pessoa, former president of Brazil and a member of the present court, did not wish to be reelected due to his advanced age.

The other 11 members of the court elected today ar:

TO FIGHT FOR RETENTION OF GRAIN RATE REDUCTION

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 25—(AP)—Representatives of grain-producing states of the middle west and the Pacific coast voted here today to resist efforts of the railroads and other dissatisfied groups to force reopening of the western grain rate reduction decision of the interstate commerce commission which becomes effective Jan. 1.

After the order was made by the commission as an aftermath of numerous hearings, the railroads indicated they would seek to reopen the case on the contention that the reduction would mean a great loss to them in revenue.

The conference today was called by Governor Clyde M. Reed of Kansas, who presided.

NO ACTION TAKEN TO PREVENT SHORT SELLING OF WHEAT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—(AP)—What steps will be taken by the Chicago board of trade to prevent short selling of wheat such as that indulged in by traders for the soviet government was undecided after a conference here today between members of the board and high federal officials.

Silas H. Strawn, general counsel, and three members of the Chicago board conferred at length at the agriculture department with Secretaries Hyde and Lamont and Chairman Legge of the farm board, but aside from informal statements by both sides that no unfriendly feelings existed and an expression by board members that they would cooperate in any preventive measures, nothing concrete developed.

"We have left it with them in the hope they will do something," said Secretary Hyde after the meeting. "We are not asking that they do anything but clean their own house."

REPORT OF AUDITOR REVEALS INEFFICIENT HANDLING OF TOWN'S FUNDS IN WINDHAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 25—Evidence of apparent diversion of funds and discrepancies based on the "irregular" handling of bonds, checks and money of the town, is disclosed in a preliminary report made public today by the W. T. Musgrave company, certified public accountants, now engaged in an audit of the books of the town clerk and treasurer of the town of Windham. The report is signed by Walter T. Musgrave, head of the concern, and has been submitted to First Selectman William A. Buck.

The report specifically states that the system employed in keeping accounts has been very inadequate, incomplete and utterly lacking in control. The audit has now been under way for about eight weeks and the working hours have been intensive.

The report: "Referring to our conversation in your office (that of First Selectman Buck being the one indicated) under date of September 21, in which you requested that I attach my signature to the memorandum setting forth the apparent shortages in the treasurer's accounts of the town of Windham, please be advised that during the interim the situation has changed to such an extent that it becomes necessary to amplify the unsigned statement previously submitted.

"As you know, my associates and myself have been employed steadily on the examination of the accounts of your town approximately eight weeks and due to the lack and incompleteness of the books of original entry, especially as regards the cash receipts and disbursements, it was necessary that we virtually 'write-up' the accounts (on working paper) insofar as it was possible to do so from information obtained from sources other than the records themselves for the period covering the 11 years under review.

"For example: The cash records submitted to us by Frank P. Fenton, town treasurer, are lacking in the following essentials:

"1. That they merely show monthly totals, developed from memoranda kept on file and afterwards disposed of, or destroyed.

"2. In the absence of memoranda supporting the total figures entered in the cash record and the fact that transactions have not been recorded in chronological order, it is impossible to identify and trace through the individual cash items into the depositories and reconcile with the monthly statements furnished by the banks.

"3. That the cash record covering the preceding four years prior to the current year ending September 15, 1930, submitted for examination has the appearance of having been recently prepared before our examination.

"For the above reasons and the fact that the system now in use is entirely lacking in internal check and control, it has been necessary to reconstruct the accounts for the 11 years beginning September 14, 1919, and ending September 15, 1930, inclusive.

"During the course of our examination, we are disclosing from week to week, evidence of apparent diversion of funds and discrepancies and your attention is called to the following specific transactions:

Fenton's personal account.

Total proceeds from bonds deposited to F. P. Fenton's personal account $18,541.07

"The two five-thousand dollar Fourth 4 1-4s are identified by serial numbers. The $500 Third 4 104s we believe is the remaining bond purchased by the town of Windham August 19, 1918.

"Although we have discussed at length these transactions with Mr. Fenton, as yet no satisfactory explanation has been forthcoming.

"In addition to the above, our examination covering the initial period of five to six years indicates discrepancies running into many thousands of dollars. These apparent shortages in cash receipts may or may not, be neutralized as the examination progresses.

"In this connection it might be of interest to you to know that the audit to date has disclosed amounts due to the town of Windham because of old outstanding cheques received but never deposited, amounting in total to approximately $15,000.

"At 4 p. m., September 22, 1930, $8,469.95 in total of old cheques were shown to us which varied in dates from 1919 to 1929. We understand that our discussions with Mr. Fenton, the town treasurer, resulted in a search of the vault where these cheques were discovered.

"We also understand that approximately $4,000 more in old cheques (from one to several years) which have been received but not deposited will shortly be turned over for deposit. It is possible that payment on some of these cheques may be stopped until the indebtedness is again proven.

"In conclusion, may we state that the system employed in recording the financial transactions is, to say the least, inadequate, incomplete, and utterly lacking in control. In a word the records submitted to us for audit are not even good memoranda because of their incompleteness. In our final report this phase will be dwelt upon at length.

"Yours very truly,
"W. T. Musgrave."

FENTON BLAMES TOWN'S METHOD OF BORROWING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 25—Frank P. Fenton, clerk and treasurer of the town of Windham, whose books are undergoing an audit, blames the practice of borrowing money at high rates of interest from individuals over a period of the past 40 years, for the presence of a town debt of about $500,000.

In the face of criticism from State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett and revelations of "irregularities" disclosed by the auditors, Mr. Fenton attributes the failure to include the larger part of the total town indebtedness in the town report of 1929 to lack of attention to details in preparing the report, rather than any deliberate attempt to conceal the true condition of the town finances.

He claims that when he became town clerk and treasurer 31 years ago he "inherited" a system of conducting the town's financial affairs from previous administrations. The desire of townspeople to hold town notes as investments and an inclination on the part of town officials to allow these persons to profit somewhat by lending money to the town has been continued, according to Mr. Fenton. During the war the interest of 6 per cent to individuals was fixed, the banks receiving the same rate at that time but when the bank interest charges declined in more recent years, the 6 per cent rate was continued to individual lenders. The treasurer states that there are at least $250,000 in outstanding notes held by individuals, these notes having been executed by the selectmen after a proper vote and drafts on the treasurer were prepared for them.

While he has withdrawn his candidacy for re-election in the town elections October 6, Mr. Fenton declared his confidence prior to publication of the preliminary report of the auditors, that all town funds will be accounted for.

Prominent residents state that the practice of borrowing from individuals has been common knowledge in the town and that there apparently has never been a protest against it.

G. O. P. Senatorial Convention Sat.

Delegates from the nine towns of the 29th republican senatorial district will convene in the Nathan Hale hotel here Saturday noon to nominate a candidate for state senator and to select a district committee for the ensuing two years. A. Linn Weatherhead of Windham and Andrew T. J. Clarke of Canterbury are seeking the nomination. There are 26 delegates, making 14 votes necessary for choice. After a quiet, but none the less intensive campaign, both candidates feel confident of securing a sufficient number of votes.

Joseph George of Hampton called at police headquarters this morning to report an accident that took place on West Main street, near Columbia avenue junction about midnight, in which a truck driven by him crashed into an electric light pole, demolishing the pole and striking a second pole on the opposite side of the street. Chief Thomas F. Grady promptly placed George under arrest and notified him to appear in police court Friday morning to answer to charges of evading responsibility and reckless driving. The damage to the pole put the street lighting system in that part of the town out of commission. When the police officers arrived at the scene of the accident George had left and he was not again located until he called at headquarters today.

CITY PAYS FINAL TRIBUTE TO PIERRE BOULAINE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 25—(P)—Business was suspended for an hour in Danielson this morning in tribute of respect to Pierre Boulaine, long associated in the commercial life of this community and whose funeral was held from his home on Hawkins street just after 9 o'clock. The funeral was the largest here in a long time and was attended by persons from many walks of life.

A delegation from the supreme council of the Union St. John Baptist was in attendance and there were other delegations of the order from councils in Norwich, Taftville, Putnam, Grosvenordale, Willimantic, Occum, Baltic, Plainfield, Goodyear, Moosup and Wauregan as well as from Danielson, Mr. Boulaine having been president of local council No. 52 at the time of his death. These delegations acted as escort from the home to St. James' church and from the church to Holy Cross cemetery following the solemn high mass of requiem.

Representing the supreme council of the order were its president general, Henri T. Ledoux of Nashua, N. H.; Vice-President General Alma Forcier of Goodyear; Secretary Elie Vezina, Philippe Boucher, Alfred Tougas, Moise Barrieau, all of Woonsocket, where the home offices of the Union St. John Baptist are located.

Rev. Ludovic Paradis of Occum, a relative of Mr. Boulaine, was celebrant of the mass with Rev. U. O. Bellerose of St. Mary's parish, Putnam, Rev. Anthelme Mollard, M. S., pastor of St. James', and Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S., respectively as deacon, sub-deacon and master of ceremonies. Seated within the sanctuary during the service were Rev. Ignatius Kost, Dayville; Rev. J. H. Quinn, Wauregan; Rev. Rev. Henry Chagnon, Moosup; Rev, Fr. Jouvin, Woonsocket; Rev. Fr. Lavallee, North Grosvenordale; Rev. F. X. Baldwin, M. S., Danielson; Rev. Fr. Tobin, M. S., Danielson. The funeral congregation was an unusually large one.

A harmonized Gregorian requiem mass for four voices was sung during the service, Mrs. Joseph Gareau being organist. The offertory solo, Pie Jesu, was sung by Mrs Henry Bodo, and at the close of the service a duet, The Crucifix, by Raymond Ballard, baritone, and Henry Woisard, tenor.

At the cemetery the officers of the mass conducted the committal service. The bearers were Abel L. Reeves, Paul Dubuc, Damase Boulais, Henry Lague, Rene Buteau and Amedee Bernier. There was a wealth of beautiful flowers, representing the remembrances of family, relatives, friends, business associates and organizations. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

BROOKLYN FAIR CLOSES AFTER SUCCESSFUL RUN

DANIELSON, Sept. 25—When the last of those who had come today to attend the Brooklyn fair were leaving the grounds toward dusk tonight, fair association officials were congratulating each other on having conducted what likely will figure up to be the most successful one in the society's annals.

There was a goodly crowd at the fair this afternoon, though nowhere near as large as the estimated 8,000 on the grounds Wednesday. Secretary Marshall J. Frink said at noon today that final figures on Wednesday's attendance and gate receipts had not been tabulated, but that he believed, that the crowd probably was the largest that has been on the grounds. This, too, is the opinion of others who have known and attended the Brooklyn fair for many years. The large attendance was highly gratifying to the fair officials, who for a fortnight past had been more or less convinced that general business conditions might tend to decrease the attendance. The reverse appears to have been the case. It would have been impossible, even with the very generous parking space available, to get all the automobiles onto the grounds that were driven to the fair yesterday. With the space within the grounds filled, late arrivals had to leave their cars outside, and long lines of machines stretched away from the main gate along the various highways converging at that point.

It was possible today to view the exhibits with much more comfort than on Wednesday, when something approximating a subway traffic jam was the rule within the exhibition buildings. Of the grange exhibits, that of Brooklyn was awarded first prize, second prize going to Canterbury grange. In the group vegetable display the Windham County Vegetable Growers' association was awarded first premium, the K. H. S. Vocational Education department second premium.

The Woodstock band played throughout this afternoon, and the vaudeville acts of yesterday were put on again between heats of the race program. J. Carl Witter of Danielson again acted as starter.

If, as was indicated today, there are going to be five candidates for the three places to be filled on the board of selectmen of Killingly, even a hotter battle of ballots may be looked for in the town election a week from Monday than the hot one already forecasted.

There are some political undercurrents just now that make it appear that more cutting and slashing will be done in the coming town election than has been witnessed here for years. It was stated this morning that the name of Alcott D. Sayles present democratic member of the board of selectmen, but who failed of renomination in the party caucus, is to be written in by a large number of his supporters. For years he has been a strong candidate and has polled a heavy vote. This is a matter of record. He concededly can poll strength from the ranks of both parties. How much from each is the question. There are those who profess to believe that it may be sufficient to elect him, even with the handicap his supporters must face because he is not regularly nominated. Even though he should fail of election the strength he draws must be lost to other candidates, but how much from each one no one can tell, nor the effect of it all on the chances of the candidates for being elected as selectmen.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Bouchard announce the engagement of their daughter, Beatrice Jean Bouchard to Elbridge K. Leonard of Rockville, Conn. Miss Bouchard is well known in Danielson. She is a graduate of St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, Conn., and is now employed at the Manchester Memorial Hospital, Manchester, Conn.

John Flood, resident here and owner of Commodore Direct, said while down at the racing stables on the Brooklyn fair grounds today that there is a prospect of a driving club being formed in Danielson. Such a club would be after the manner of a small company, each member being a stockholder in the one or more horses the club would own. Mr. Flood said there appears to be sufficient interest in Danielson to form such a club.

The drought has another matter to answer for, at least an additional charge is alleged against it. There are those who believe that the near epidemic of colds from which people here are suffering is due to the long continued dry weather and the manner in which dust laden germs are being blown about from day to day.

County Agent Raymond Wing of the Windham County Farmers' association is to conduct what may be termed an educational campaign through the press of the county during the fall and winter season. Papers are to be supplied from his office with matter dealing with improved and approved methods of doing various things on the farm and in the home. The subjects will be varied, but all of interest and value, Mr. Wing said today.

State officers from the Danielson barracks were in and about Jewett City today investigating relative to several burglaries that have been committed there, and in one of which a filling station that was broken into, was robbed of about all of its stock.

Miss Elizabeth Dunn was the guest today of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Vetter at Norwich.

The Flying Spinners of Putnam are to play the Goodyear Wingfoot soccer team at Goodyear Sunday afternoon. Danielson will see much of this stirring variety of football during the present fall season.

Friday evening members of Dorcas Rebekah lodge are to meet in Odd Fellows' hall here to observe with a special program the 179th anniversary of the founding of the Rebekah branch of the order. Following the program refreshments are to be served.

The Entre Nous club, which played bridge throughout last winter, has resumed its meetings after the summer recess. Mrs. L. A. Woisard was hostess at the first meeting of the season. Winners at bridge were Mrs. Lucien Lambert, Mrs. William McLaughlin and Mrs. George J. Heneault.

Judge W. Fenner Woodward, who has been a patient at the Hartford hospital for a little more than a week, is expected to return to his home here within a few days.

Albert Hazen, for years a resident here and later at Putnam, was among those who came to attend the Brooklyn fair. At the present time Mr. Hazen is driving race horses as an occupation, and will be in action at the Brattleboro fair this week.

The very cleverly designed miniature reproductions of the Canterbury Methodist church, the Canterbury Green school and Canterbury grange hall that were in that grange's impressive exhibit at the Brooklyn fair are the handiwork of Miss Grace Dawley, master of Canterbury grange, and of Mrs. Dwight Bushnell, also of Canterbury.

PUTNAM

SALE OF FACTORY EQUIPMENT OF ADAMS CO. NETS $34,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 25.—Officials of important textile organizations in New England and a large number of real estate speculators gathered on the premises of the Adams Manufacturing Co. on Main street this morning, where the entire plant, rows of tenement houses, machine equipment and land holdings of the organization were offered for sale at public auction. The first item offered to prospective buyers was the mill, which failed to attract a single valid bid, after several minutes on the block. A representative of the Samuel T. Freeman Co., Philadelphia and Boston auctioneers, stated that a low price of $50,000 was solicited. The auctioneers then resorted to the sale of catalogue items, 2 to 23, which consisted principally of the machinery, land holdings and tenements. These parcels were disposed of in individual lots, the majority of which were purchased by Putnam people. The sale netted $27,500. The machinery and other manufacturing equipment, which was not removed to the Adams plant in Shelton, Conn., when consolidation operations were started early this year, was sold to agents of Fall River and Fitchburg textile supply houses at a price of $6,500. Several tons of iron junk were purchased by local junk dealers.

The failure of auctioneers to secure a purchaser of the plant brought a statement from one of the auctioneers tonight to the effect that no other attempt to negotiate a sale of the mill by public auction will be made, although efforts to dispose of the property privately will be made by officials of the Adams company. The total receipts of $34,000 meet with the satisfaction of company officials, the auctioneers' representative stated.

Following up his announcement made yesterday concerning the possible establishment of an aircraft training school at the State Trade school in this city, Principal H. H. Ellis today disclosed more definite and detailed plans of what the courses would consist of if established. The announcement made last week in regard to aviation training has brought some response, he said, but the school management would like to see more definite applications made for instruction in this work and all interested are asked to secure application blanks for enrollment. Owing to the nature of the work, it is thought best that enrollment be restricted to those over 16 years of age and to those who have a little broader range of educational experience. The school has received considerable material from the federal board of vocational education in regard to established outlines in aircraft training. All such schools must meet the national department of commerce regulations, both as to equipment and instructional facilities, as well as meeting the prescribed requirements of the Connecticut state board of education. There are a number of phases in aviation mechanics work that may be pursued as a particular calling, such as specialization in engine or plane work, and welding is also an especially important branch of the aircraft mechanics industry.

Airplane work generally covers wire work, fabric work, wood work, metal work, welding and rigging. The matter of break down and overhauling of the plane alone covers 23 scientific operations, each one of which must be definitely treated. In engine work the particular sub-divisions of instructions are: 1—inspection, adjustment and repair work on the ignition system; 2—inspection, adjustment and repair work on the carburation system; 3—inspection, adjustment and repair work on the lubrication and cooling system; 4—overhauling and repair work on the engine; 5—engine tests and adjustments.

The operation analysis of an engine mechanics job reveals 139 major operations with an additional 13 operations for water-cooled engines. Instructors in this work must not only have requisite education and training to do a job of instruction but must have, in addition to these qualifications, the U. S. department of commerce license as an aircraft engine mechanic, otherwise the engines repaired under his supervision cannot be approved for flight and the school would be, on this account, prevented from doing work of a practical nature.

While the time spent in school cannot definitely count as experience toward a department of commerce license, however, a thorough course of this nature would be largely instrumental in permitting persons to qualify both on the practical and theoretical examinations required.

The school will be able to secure much equipment from the war department and it is planned, if the course is established, to secure considerable of this material, such as complete airplanes, as well as engines and extra parts, which can be worked on by the student in receiving his training. It would also be planned to incorporate certain phases of machine shop practice and electrical work in connection with the course wherever it would be helpful in making for a thorough and complete understanding of the principles and practice involved in aviation mechanics generally.

ASSAULT CASE TRIED BEFORE SUPERIOR COURT

PUTNAM, Sept. 25.—At a session of superior court here today, at which only newspapermen and attorneys were permitted to attend, the state opened its case against Pedro De Clark, 34, of 66 School street, this city, who is on trial on a charge of a serious statutory nature. When previously arraigned, at the opening of the criminal term on Tuesday, De Clark entered a plea of not guilty.

A jury was immediately empaneled and the trial began shortly before 11 o'clock with Judge Newell Jennings of Bristol on the bench. The first state witness was Mary De Clark, 14-year-old daughter of the accused. Her mother, Mrs. Albertina De Clark, was the second witness to be called. Her testimony dealt with the revealing of the unpleasant developments transpiring after the day, April 26, when De Clark is alleged to have made the criminal assault upon his child. Dr J. J. Russell after making a hurried examination of the girl, testified as to his findings. Lloyd J. Gerry, a Willimantic photographer, was called to

THAMES RIVER TRAFFIC

Better utilization of the Thames river is not a new suggestion. Stress has long been placed upon the value of water transportation as a city asset, and repeatedly has attention been called to the failure to make better use of it.

With the deepening of the channel to this city, there will be the opportunity for more river traffic, and it is a pertinent suggestion that is made by Christopher M. Gallup, chairman of the committee on the deepening of the Thames river named by the local chamber of commerce, that it is none too soon to consolidate local and vicinity efforts to increase the river transportation.

Mr. Gallup has directed attention to the possibility of having the river channel further deepened to 25 feet. Such a prospect is not to be overlooked but, in the meantime, with the channel deepened to 18 feet, which will be accomplished before winter sets in, the importance of this added advantage in getting vessels of greater draught and larger size up the river should not be overlooked.

There were the days when a much greater volume of the raw material was brought to this city by steamboats and the products of the mills and factories in Norwich and for many miles around were carried away in like manner. Handicaps have existed in the fact that the river channel has not permitted present-day vessels to reach this city with any definite assurance that they would not go aground but, with that difficulty removed, a better use of this important facility can and should be made.

There is an opportunity for this entire region, of which Norwich is the center, to join hands in helping itself. If there are advantages to be obtained, the time is ripe to go after them. Mr. Gallup has offered suggestions of a character which are deserving of careful study. It must be made in the light of present-day conditions and with full regard for the need and importance of cooperative action. With the deepened channel completed, early evidence of increased water transportation to this city should be forthcoming.

A COMMISSION VERDICT

Widespread interest has been displayed in the commission named by President Hoover, which has come to be known as the Wickersham commission, because of the belief that there was need for just such an investigation as it is making and the conviction that it will furnish a solution for the general situation concerning law enforcement.

The commission has made certain reports of progress but has not completed its work. While there are those who have had the impression that its activities surrounded solely prohibition enforcement, such is not the case. Nevertheless that important question is included with general law enforcement and what may be expected in that direction is indicated by a statement by Judge Mackintosh of the commission that he will insist upon a definite report by the commission concerning the enforcability of the dry law.

Such a statement might indicate that Judge Mackintosh is particularly interested in one side of the question. Such isn't the case, and it is probable that the commission members hold open minds on the subject, as the judge claims. The fact is that Judge Mackintosh, formerly on the supreme court bench of the state of Washington, is a dry, but he is taking the attitude that the commission should not only present the facts as it is finding them but that it should declare itself regarding them. If it finds that the dry law cannot be enforced he wants it to say so and then to indicate what step should be taken to meet the situation.

The position taken by Judge Mackintosh is quite in keeping with what might be expected from a judicial mind. Along with the facts should go a decision. As an impartial jury, none of the members being professional advocates on either side of the question though both sides are represented, the commission is expected to give an impartial verdict, that is, a verdict based upon the facts as they find them, regardless of their personal feelings. That is apparently the purpose of Judge Mackintosh and it is believed the position is one that will get general endorsement.

DISCARDING FIREBRANDS

For the purpose of preventing fires during the dry spell, the state commissioner of conservation in Massachusetts has issued orders prohibiting the setting of fires in the open. He thus strikes at one of the causes of needless fires.

At the same time, he directs attention to another cause of forest fires and points out that those who are responsible for setting fires in such a manner are violating a state law. What he refers to is the practice of throwing lighted cigarettes and other similar lighted material on the roadside from passing vehicles.

It is a well known fact that lighted firebrands carelessly thrown from autos have been the cause of many fires. Dropped in the dry material by the roadside, or dropped in the road and blown by wind or suction from cars to the gutters, cigarettes which have not been extinguished may easily start bad and costly woodland fires. So fully has this been recognized in Massachusetts that legislation has been adopted to prevent it. The law reads:

"Whoever drops or throws from any vehicle while the same is upon a public or private way, running along or near forest land, or, except as permitted by law, drops, throws, deposits or otherwise places in or upon forest lands any lighted cigarette, cigar, match, live ashes, or other flaming or glowing substance, or any substance or thing which in and of itself is likely to cause a fire, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $25."

This law doesn't impose a fine equal to the damage caused by such fires, but any fine that is actually imposed for such an offense is sufficient to serve as a warning to those who are in the habit of doing such things that it is an expensive practice that should be stopped. It is not probable that many deliberately set fires in such a manner, but the thoughtless action has resulted in so much needless loss that more than persuasion is needed to correct it.

How well such a law can be enforced may be questioned but, through enforcement and directing attention to the law, better compliance with the intent of the law should result. If the cooperation of the thoughtless can be obtained the law will serve its purpose even if there are no prosecutions. It might be helpful in other states.

ROOSEVELT'S RESIGNATION

Nicholas Roosevelt of New York was named as vice-governor of the Philippines by President Hoover. He is acquainted with the islands and the problems there and it was believed that he would be an ideal man to aid in the guidance of Philippine affairs.

Before going to the islands there arose strong opposition to Mr. Roosevelt from certain Filipino politicians. They based their objections to a large extent upon certain things which the appointee had written concerning the islands and, while they declared they would not refuse to let him take the office, it would be most unwelcome on their part if the plan was carried through.

Instead of inviting additional friction, Mr. Roosevelt has decided to decline the appointment and been named to diplomatic service in Europe and it is not improbable that by so doing he has avoided what might prove to be objections in the senate to his confirmation and the creation of ill will in the islands. It appears to be a case where Mr. Roosevelt has heeded the sentiment voiced by the objectors and considered it unwise to endeavor to force his presence upon them, and his action doubtless is a relief to the administration in view of the ease with which hostile sentiment can be created with little or no foundation.

It is desired to provide efficient officials for the islands and to create harmonious conditions so far as possible and, inasmuch as Mr. Roosevelt had prejudiced certain leaders in the Philippines by his writings, it is quite as well that the vice-governor should go there without any such handicap to self or administration. His talent can be and is being utilized elsewhere.

EXTENDING THE DRAFT

Close study has been given to the various means of preventing war since the World war. One of them has involved the question of drafting the men for war service and the belief has been expressed that if there was the drafting of munitions and capital as well as men there would be less eagerness to rush into conflict.

The idea has gained considerable approval and at its convention the Reserve Officers' association in the state of Ohio went on record as endorsing that principle. The feeling was that if all the resources of the nation are treated in the same way that human resources are, there will be more thought of what is being undertaken and more regard for the lives of men. There is the belief that it will cause minds to turn more seriously to the adjustment of international disputes by other means than rushing into battle.

Endorsement of the principle doesn't put it into effect, but this isn't the only organization holding such belief. It fits in well with the treaties which have been signed for the prevention of war, and it jibes with extensive peace time sentiment. It is prompted by the manner in which many make huge profits out of the war, while others are giving up their lives or permanently sacrificing their health and well-being. The idea is that if the soldiers must sacrifice through suffering why shouldn't others do so also in other ways.

Whatever the result of this proposal, it indicates that thought is being given to the prevention of certain injustices which have featured all past wars and when that thought exists it is evidence that there is a strengthening of the sentiment for peaceful adjustment of international disputes. Each and every contribution of that character must be looked upon as a help to world peace.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Hot enough? Well, Indian summer is still ahead.

Pretty lucky if you haven't thrown that straw hat away.

Those Pittsburgh men shook hands steadily for 383 hours. Hope they didn't stand in the middle of the sidewalk.

The man on the corner says: Safety zones are all well enough as long as you watch your step and keep out of the way.

Detroit has inaugurated its new mayor, Mayor Murphy, which name must sound familiar to any former Norwich residents who happen to be in that city.

FREE AND WILD

"It seems to me," said the lady with ideas as she brought in the fruit salad and the silly little sandwiches to the afternoon bridge table, "that all these international conferences and midnight sessions are trials we might do without. All that would be necessary would be to copy the brutal frankness and cold-blooded truthfulness of our children for everybody to know right where he stood and there would be no misapprehension and chicanery whatever.

"I am just recovering from Junior's eighth birthday party. There is something particularly important about an eighth birthday. A boy is too old to be babied and too young to have any sense of social proprieties. He has no more diplomacy than a savage. This party was in full swing when Junior came rushing out to me in the kitchen.

"'Mother,' he whispered shrilly, 'Harper has got here at last, but he didn't bring me any birthday present. I let him come in, though!'

"'Junior,' I said carefully, 'that's quite all right. I particularly didn't mention to any one that this is your birthday. You're too old to have children bringing you presents. I'm glad he didn't.'"

"'Oh!' said Junior. He rushed back to the front room. 'Hey, Harper,' I heard him yell. 'It's all right that you didn't bring me a present. I don't mind, much. Besides, maybe you can bring it to me tomorrow.' 'All right,' agreed Harper. 'I'll bring you the book my aunt sent me Christmas. I don't like it.'

"'Has it got pitchers?' Junior demanded.

"'One,' said Harper. 'A swell one of a nangel.'

"'Aw, shucks,' said my son disgustedly. 'Ain't it got even a bear or a Nindian or nothing?'

"'I'm the host,' I heard Junior announce a little later. 'What I say goes. If you're the host you're the boss, you know, and have to see to things. We'll play this game because I always win at it and I like to win. Tommy, you can't hold the counters—you're dumb and will spill them. You don't pay attention.'

"'I do!' Tommy cried indignantly. 'You just want to run everything!'

"Now, I submit that as a clear, concise and to-the-point model of procedure. There were presents, of course. Any party under the age of 12 automatically resolves itself into a birthday party. Junior was especially entranced by a small flashlight. 'Gee,' he said for the fifteenth time, turning it over and over, 'This is swell, Fatty. It's great! Why, it's a lot better present than what you brought me, Hank—or you, Chubby!'

"Far from being offended, Chubby and Hank clustered around and solemnly agreed in this great truth. Hank pointed out a bit triumphantly that there were two nicks in the flash and probably Fatty had used it before he brought it over. Whereupon Fat proclaimed bitterly that Hank was a liar. Hank retorted that Fat was a crybaby. Whereupon they pummeled one another enthusiastically. The refreshments produced a general armistice.

"I had spread myself on those eats and set the boys down to a dainty table on the theory that custom makes perfect. I waited for acclaim to burst forth when I produced the creamed chicken and sandwiches. All of them surveyed their plate seriously and appraisingly. As I left the room I heard Chubby say disgustedly, 'Gee! My mother gives lots larger servings than this! This ain't half what I can eat!'

"'You're going to have ice cream besides this, aren't you?' two other boys asked Junior anxiously. 'Gee, I thought we'd get ice cream right away!'

"I've often wanted to revert to a state of nature at a dinner party and tell the hostess what I thought of her entertainment," said one of the bridge players with great interest. "I believe these boys have the right idea after all!"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—It seems quite possible that Vice President Charlie Curtis takes much less joy these days in that huge, carved chair that looms like a throne in his palatial suite in the senate office building.

He was very proud of it when it was installed immediately after his inauguration. It is so big and impressive that it rivets the eye as you enter the room.

Mr. Curtis developed a wholly unexpected complex for fitting out his private offices with unique decorative effects when he was elevated to the vice-presidency.

As senator he had a few souvenirs scattered about; yet nobody suspected that he longed for surroundings of greater grandeur as he toiled at his desk. But he did.

And when his new honors gave him opportunity to take over more spacious quarters, to bulge out and squat in a corridor end to provide anteroom space, he gave his fancy full rein.

Gifts

Gifts from constituents appeared on the walls, particularly Indian gifts reminiscent of his own Indian blood.

The flag that flew over the senate itself at the time he was inaugurated showed up to add its bright coloring to the interior effects. Cartoons telling the long story of Senator Charlie's political rise found a place on the walls. But the center of it all was the huge, carved chair set before the vast desk.

Now that chair seemed by its carving also to recall the Curtis Indian origin. Callers got the impression that it had been presented by Indian chiefs of the tribe from which Curtis springs.

Yet when they went around in back and saw the plate telling who had sent it, they must have been puzzled. The names displayed had rather a New York eastside flavor. They didn't sound like Indian names. And that of Matthew Quay Glaser, New York organizer of the 1928 "Curtis-for-president" club, led all the rest.

Coolness

That was all very well until after the Hoover-Curtis ticket took office. Then a gradual cooling of relations between the Kansan and his enthusiastic New York booster was noted.

A day came when visitors to the vice-president's office, which is something of a Washington show place nowadays, did not have their attention called to the Glaser plate on the back of the throne chair.

That happened even before Maurice Campbell, former New York prohibition director, began writing his spicey memoirs. Glaser's name and also that of the vice president appeared very frequently in his account and Mr. Curtis found it necessary to put out that his name had never been used with his knowledge or consent in the various transactions recited by Campbell.

And if he saw Glaser about that time, what did Mr. Curtis say to him? Wouldn't it be interesting to know?

The Club Footed Baby

By C. L. Lowman, M. D., Los Angeles.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The first knowledge that her baby has been born with twisted feet is always a great shock to a mother, especially when it is the first child. There are several forms of this deviation but the commonest is that in which the foot turns with the sole, up and in, the toes down and in, and the heel cord tightly drawn up. Fortunately in this age practically all types can be corrected, with excellent results, as the family doctor usually advises early orthopedic surgery. Well-meaning friends and relatives, in their desire to save the mother from worry, often tell her that "they will straighten out in time all right," but this is rather dangerous advice as very few such conditions are outgrown by natural processes.

The most essential things to be ascertained are the factors causing and promoting the deformity; or at least whether the deviation is due to unequal bone growth, faulty muscle balance, or both. The actual cause of most cases is not known, and it is frequently inherited. It is known that the feet and legs may be folded up in the mothers' womb with the soles of the feet turned toward each other, and bent inward from the ankle in such a position that there is no freedom of movement for outward motion. The muscles on the inner side of the foot can pull the foot inward but the wall of the uterus may prevent movements outward. This development taking place during the active period of growth of the foot allows the muscles and structures on the inner aspect of the feet to tighten up and become shortened while the muscles on the outside become very much stretched and weakened, sometimes almost to the point of a real paresis.

Mothers may still be told many times "just to manipulate the child's foot—nothing need be done surgically for about a year." Today this teaching is hardly considered a safe doctrine as the foot makes its greatest growth in the first year and hence is more susceptible of correction during this period. It is believed that orthopedic surgery should begin on these cases at ten days to two weeks. It is encouraging for all young mothers to know that such cases can practically all be corrected, and if proper early treatment is used, very little surgery of the cutting type has to be done. Manipulative surgery, followed by plaster casts and braces during the walking stage usually do the work.

Emphasis should here be placed on the fact that until such time as there is both a complete growth of the bone as well as balance between opposing muscles, one should not say that the case is completely corrected. Many individuals stop treatment when they see the foot brought around straight, and as a consequence, when the case is not under observation, a relapsed state occurs at which time the bones become so hardened that operations are necessary to correct bony deformity, and the foot will never be as long or as shapely as if it had had early and continuous attention.

After correction by plaster casts and retentive braces until the bones tend to grow straight, the child may wear corrective shoes and should be observed at least once or twice a year after all correction is supposed to be done. It would be wise for this to be kept up until at least the tenth year or until the body has grown strong and all the bones are rather maturely developed.

Early observation, early treatment, continuous care and later intermittent observation is the secret which will give practically normal feet and legs to many of these babies who started out with a hideous deformity, and the old fashioned "reel foot" which we used to see in adults on the street, causing the person to walk practically on the outer border of the foot, with the foot upside down, will not be seen in the coming generation.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

A Flying Trip to Devil's Island

How Devil's island, famous penal station in French Guiana, looks from the air is told in a report to the National Geographical society by Frederick Simpich, recently in charge of the society's aerial survey party which made a study of air traffic lanes between Washington and Buenos Aires.

"With M. Siadous, Governor General of French Guiana," writes Mr. Simpich, "we flew from Cayenne to Devil's Island. Here Captain Dreyfus languished through long, lonely years till freed by Emile Zola's aid. His dramatic trial, uncovering the amazing Count Esterhazy plot, stirred the civilized world.

"Three tiny green dots rise from the sea 27 miles south of Cayenne. They form the penal group, 'Isles du Salut,' which include St. Joseph—with its prison hospital—Isles Royale, with tiers of tiny stone cells for incorrigibles, and Devil's Island, so famed in tales of fact and fiction.

"Men without women gazed up from behind high walls as we idled overhead. For women are no longer sent to this 'great penitentiary of France.' Here, and in Cayenne are about 7,000 French prisoners— including such colonials as Arabs, Africans and even French Indo-Chinese.

"But on Devil's Island today, despite its world-wide notoriety, only nine men are confined—mostly spies. But they are lifers. Three aviators are there. They were among the little group gazing up at us. I wonder what their thoughts must be, as they saw our big ship flying free in their own once familiar element—able to carry them so quickly to freedom were they only up in it.... Hard by, on Isle Royale, are prison graves row on row, where now men of high and low degree sleep side by side, their earthly penalties paid.

"A dismal land is Cayenne, or French Guiana, as you fly from Paramaribo along its 'lonely' coast. Mud flats far out to sea, brightened only by flocks of two thousand or more pink ibis, and low, jungle-grown swamps broken by grassy savannas stretching inland to distant low hills. Once past the plantations below Paramaribo, so many long abandoned, the only signs of white man's work we saw were about the mouth of the River Maroni. Up it steamers go, some to unload prisoners for the penal colonies. The last ship brought about 580 from France.

"Returning from Devil's Island, we took Governor Siadous for a ride over the delta of the Kourou. It was up this river that a French colonizing company once sent 10,000 immigrants from Alsace. Badly equipped, unwisely chosen—for the party included jewelers, dancing masters and even dressmakers—but few experienced farmers or miners—nearly all perished. That disaster is historical. Only about 2,000 survived, and returned to France.

"Miles inland we could see low, tree-painted ridges, with round-top hills enjoying such local names as Monkey hill and Devil mountain. Into that hard land gold-seekers go. Gold now, in ever dwindling volume, is the chief export. Incredibly rich as the soil is, agriculture is limited by lack of labor. Most of the 'Condamnees,' though farmed out by the government to work for private masters, are too weak in mind or body—or both—to till the soil in this trying climate. Efforts to colonize free men, on a big scale, have brought no good results. The average potential immigrant shuns French Guiana, because so many convicts are here. But one is amazed at the good order. By seven o'clock the small town of Cayenne is dark.

"Dilapidated Cayenne, with weed-grown plazas, weather-beaten houses, and its rough streets cleaned only by buzzards, is a blot of gloom depressing to normal souls. Weeping women and despondent men sit idly about its cheap cafes—or wander under the small grove of strangely conspicuous royal palms which lift their graceful trunks above the squalor of its principal plaza. 'Liberes,' such half-free prisoners are called. Though their days of actual confinement are ended, they are at liberty only within the borders of Cayenne. A convict, sent here for a term longer than 8 years, must remain for life; he is known as a 'prisoner in perpetuity.' But a man sent for a lesser period, say for five years, must remain an additional five in the colony—or one year on the 'island' for each year spent in its jails—before he can return to France. Then he must pay his own way home. For the government does not repatriate the exiles. Often such a man's relatives or friends send him money to come home on; occasionally, he can earn enough in the colony. French Arabs, industrious and thrifty, support a sort of community chest which buys home-bound tickets for each Arab, as his day of complete liberty arrives.

"Lawyers, doctors, engineers, artists, skilled artisans—as well as criminals from the peasant class and the slums of Paris—these you see in the streets. Many seek to earn a few francs, at any kind of work, in a lost city where even petty tasks are few. 'That tall, ragged, bare-footed man driving that milk-goat from house to house is a French gentleman of a fine old family,' said my guide. 'My chauffeur is a convict,' said the governor as we took a short ride around the dispiriting place. 'Practically everybody you see in the streets is a convict. The "liberes" are free to work for wages, and some of them are in partnership with natives in various kinds of business.' Figurines of jaguars, women and birds, beautifully carved from hardwood—and even cleverly fashioned little guillotines, are the work of one—who thus gains money for champagne. He was a successful Paris sculptor. 'The dry Guillotine' is the convicts' grim nickname for this penal colony—officially designed as such by Napoleon III in 1854.

"I killed a centipede in the room where I slept the night I passed in the penal colony—and was glad when we took the air and flew over vapor-draped jungles in the early morning down towards the great River Oyapock, beyond which lies Brazil."

Impy Brings Home a Prize

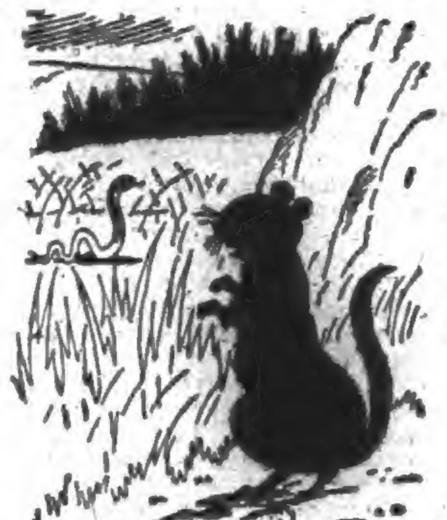
Say what you please, most folk who eat
Are better for a little meat.
—Impy the Chipmunk.

Every day Impy, the black Chipmunk did a little hunting. Please don't think that Impy and little Mrs. Impy lived entirely on nuts and seeds and things of that kind. All the members of the Squirrel family, and of course this includes the Chipmunks, like a little meat now and then. Yes, sir, they do so. They not only like it, but they get it.

So, this particular morning Impy had started out to look for some meat. He felt hungry for meat. Of course, some good big insects would do very nicely. He thought of grasshoppers, but he hadn't had much luck getting grasshoppers of late. You see, they were beginning to be a little out of season. Nevertheless, Impy started out to look for some. He knew that if he could only find some, they would be easier to catch now than they had been earlier in the season when it was warmer.

Impy had hunted about for some time in places where he had found grasshoppers before, but without success this time. He was getting discouraged when he noticed a little movement in the grass just ahead of him. Instantly he was all alertness. He stole forward softly, but rapidly, peering ahead with those bright little eyes of his for whatever might be there. Something, or some one, was moving through that grass. Presently he saw something green. The grass was no longer green, it was brown. It was a half-grown grass snake. Impy's eyes sparkled. Here was the meat he needed.

Just then the little snake saw him and faced him. There was nothing cowardly about the little snake. He raised his head and ran his tongue out at Impy, and if he was afraid he didn't show it. Impy danced this way and danced that way, looking for a chance to spring in and seize that little snake by the back of his head. Presently he saw his chance and, darting forward, he seized the little snake. The latter struggled and struggled, but in vain. Very proudly Impy started home with his prize.



Just then the Little Snake saw him and faced him

Mrs. Impy saw Impy coming. "What have you there?" she demanded.

"Fresh meat," replied Impy. "I was very meat hungry. Nuts and seeds and mushrooms are all very well, but one needs a little meat to go with them once in a while."

"Quite right, my dear," replied Mrs. Impy. "I was meat hungry myself. I have been outlooking for a mouse, but I couldn't find one. This will do quite as well."

So Impy and Mrs. Impy dined on the little snake. I suspect that many of their friends do not know that Chipmunks go snake-hunting once in a while. They do, however, just as they go stealing the eggs and young of the nests of birds who are foolish enough to build on the ground. It is all because they do have the need of a little meat once in a while.

"I feel better," said Impy.

"So do I," replied Mrs. Impy. "I don't suppose we'll have any meat through the winter."

"I don't suppose we shall," replied Impy.

They were quite right. There would be no chance for them to get meat in the winter.

The next story: Cousin Chatterer's Great Mistake.

The first annual report of the department of health for Scotland mentions that "in one parish where the council have an arrangement with a householder to supply supper, bed and breakfast for vagrants, it is not uncommon for tramps to ask for, say, another egg for breakfast, and to offer to pay for it themselves."

The H. L. Judd company was founded by Morton Judd of New Britain, in 1817, as a small machine shop and foundry. The business prospered under the direction of Mr. Judd and in 1862 moved to New Haven, the name being changed to the Judd Manufacturing company.

In 1870 H. L. Judd, oldest son of Morton Judd opened a sales office in New York city. The New Haven plant was moved to Wallingford, in 1875, and the next year a new factory was started in Brooklyn, N. Y.

In 1879 H. L. Judd took in partners and the business was run as H. L. Judd & Co. In 1880 a wood-turning factory was started in Chattanooga to produce wood curtain poles and fixtures. The business was incorporated as H. L. Judd & Co., incorporated, in 1884.

In 1895 the Brooklyn plant was moved to Wallingford and the Wallingford factory greatly enlarged to take care of a growing business.

In 1900 the company was again incorporated as H. L. Judd company.

In 1922 the company was re-incorporated under Delaware laws as H. L. Judd company, Incorporated.

In 1928 a factory was started in Los Angeles, California, manufacturing artistic wrought iron drapery hardware and art metal goods.

The company now produces drapery hardware, carpet hardware, stationery hardware to meet the requirements of the small cottage or the most expensive mansion; also numerous items which find a ready sale in the chain stores and a beautiful assortment of art metal goods.

The New York office has been located at 87 Chambers street since 1870, this building which they have occupied for over 45 years being owned by the company.

The product of the Judd factories is sold in nearly every state of the union and every province in Canada. It is also to be found in many foreign countries.

John Day, the active president of the company at this time, first associated himself with H. L. Judd in 1870, becoming a partner in 1879 and since 1900 has been president and active manager of the business. The other officers are:

C. P. Day, vice president and managing director of factories; R. D. H. Vroom, secretary and general manager; D. O. Price, treasurer; A. M. Woodworth, manager, Wallingford.

Stories That Recall Others

Both Ways

The beginner at golf was well used to the ways of the sea and the language thereof, and it happened that his teacher told him to call "fore!" if he saw his ball was about to come too near to some other player.

Taking a mighty swing at his ball on the tee, his club flew backward out of his hands, and with great presence of mind he called: "Fore!—and aft"

In the Same Boat

Billy came to school Monday for the first time. Shortly after the opening of the first session he walked up to the teacher's desk and said: "I ain't got no pencil."

The teacher with a shocked expression on her face, said: "Oh, Billy, I haven't any pencil."

A systematic look came over Billy's face and he replied: "Ye ain't? Well, we're both in the same fix, ain't we?"

Hair that sparkles !

No one can deny the importance of having the hair arranged in the style best suited to the individual type. Much of the effect is lost, however, unless the hair is kept soft, abundant, lustrous.

A million busy women and girls know the easiest way to keep the hair in perfect condition is with Danderine. The first application will show you how marvelously it removes excess oil from the hair; cleanses it; makes it sparkle with new life and lustre. It's so simple to use Danderine. All you do is put a little on your brush each time you arrange your hair! The consistent use of Danderine will dissolve the worst crust of dandruff; soothe, heal the scalp; stimulate the growth of long, silky abundant hair.

Danderine isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show. It makes the hair easy to manage; holds it in place for hours. "Set" your waves with it and see how much longer they stay in.

CAMPOLO-SHARKEY BOUT POSTPONED TO OCT. 3RD

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—(AP)—The 15-round bout between Victorio Campolo and Jack Sharkey, scheduled for tonight in the Yankee stadium, has been postponed until October 3, when it will be staged in Madison Square Garden.

The bout had been called off earlier in the evening on account of rain and tentatively re-scheduled for tomorrow night. Garden officials went into a huddle, however, and decided that the match might more profitably be held in the Garden, a week from tomorrow night.

Although the Garden made no announcement of the reasons for transferring the match from the Stadium to the Garden itself, it was no secret that it had aroused little general interest—scarcely enough, in fact, to warrant holding it in so large an arena as the Stadium. The question of possible further postponements because of adverse weather conditions also was believed to have entered into the decision to hold the match in the Garden.

As a result of the transfer, the Garden announced that all of the indoor shows already scheduled would be moved back one week.

DICK BARTELL IN ROW WITH PIRATE OWNER

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 25—(AP)—Dick Bartell, regular shortstop for the Pittsburgh Pirates, has been suspended and fined the balance of this season's salary as a result of a row with Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the club, it was learned today.

Bartell had an argument with Dreyfuss over the amount of transportation money he was to receive to cover his trip back to his home in California. Dreyfuss said the player became "impertinent."

As a result of the row, Ben Sankey, a young infielder recently recalled from Bridgeport, was at shortstop in today's game between the Pirates and Cardinals.

Bartell probably will be traded this winter, Dreyfuss intimated.

CITIZENS AND VELVETMEN ARE VERY EVENLY MATCHED

That the Polish Citizens and J. B Martin are very evenly matched for their coming city series, which opens at Martin park Sunday, can be seen by the tentative lineups which were announced Thursday evening. In the rosters of the two clubs are found the cream of local diamond talent and probably the best ball of the year will be brought out during the coming set of games.

The Martinmen plan to send Walter Linder to the mound, with Jimmy Murphy catching, Middy Dugas on first, Nap Liberty second, Carlie Krauss short, Hal Cummings third, Magnan, Lemieux and Smith in the outfield.

The fifth district of the American Legion held a largely attended meeting Thursday evening at the town hall in Noank. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and the treasurer's report was accepted. The report showed that the various posts have paid their hospital assessments.

Comrade Killeen of Montville reported that the Connecticut headquarters of the American Legion convention at Boston will be at the Hotel Statler in that city. He advised all Connecticut Legion men to register there immediately on their arrival in Boston.

Comrade Fowler reported on the housing situation in Boston and stated that few rooms are at the present time available. He said that if the Legion men will get in touch with Comrade Boode on their arrival in Boston he will without doubt be able to provide a room for them up to the night before the formal opening of the convention.

It was voted, at Comrade Edwin Cruise's suggestion, that the meeting rescind a previous motion that the district have a fife and drum corps. Comrade Harold Hubbard of Stonington spoke relative to the memorial service to be held in Stonington, Armistice day. He requested that all Legionnaires attend and participate in the exercises.

Comrade John Morrison was appointed a delegate to the national convention at Boston. He was also appointed chairman of the committee in charge of the fifth district arrangements for the national parade, to be held in Boston, October 7th.

It has been requested that every member of the district who wishes to parade, provide himself a uniform of white duck trousers, white shirt, dark blue bow tie, Legion cap and a red sash, this to be the official Legion uniform of the state of Connecticut.

Accommodations on this train can be secured for $12.45 round trip. The Pullman cars will serve as a hotel for the Legionnaires. This will do away with the trouble of engaging hotel accommodations. He also stated that a special excursion train, open to the public, will leave New London at 7:20 a. m., October 7th, arriving in Boston in time for the parade. This train will leave Boston at 9 p. m., on the return trip. The round trip will be $2.75. It is believed that this is one way in which funds can be raised for this scholarship. It was voted that $25 be advanced as expense money for the delegate to Boston, Mrs. Grace McNally, of Groton. Both the post and auxiliary meetings were largely attended.

MASTER PAINTERS' STATE COUNCIL STANDS FOR HIGH CLASS WORKMANSHIP

In the afternoon at 3 o'clock there was a business meeting with an attendance of 40 at which Fred C. Pietsch of Hartford, president of the council, presided and leaders in the craft who were present included E. M. Walsh of New Haven, international vice president, E. W. Nelson of Hartford, international representative. These with Walter C. Pfeil of Meriden, executive secretary, and others took part in the discussion upon business matters and the afternoon meeting concluded with an hour of open discussion upon problems of the craft.

In the evening there was a dinner meeting at which the National Lead company was host to the council and to non-members, including dealers and distributors. There was an attendance of 72.

An educational and interesting part of the evening's programme was provided by Mr. McFadden of the National Lead company, who showed a motion picture, One Painter to Another, from which were made a number of pertinent suggestions. He spoke of the importance of costs, correct estimating, as he called it, not "guesstimating", and of the necessity of considering the conditions of a job in relation to the necessary work to be done and the proper preparation of the surface. Emphasis was also placed upon the importance of submitting detailed estimates to the interested parties, which can be understood, and will give an accurate list of materials, qualities, etc., which will produce the job that looks well and has lasting qualities. The speaker also stressed the necessity of master painters getting credit information on their customers and following collections up closely so as to keep their own credit good. There is also a necessity of looking up new customers and keeping in touch with old ones.

Mr. McFadden pointed out that it was poor policy to experiment with materials, but the master painters should stick to the best and he spoke of National Lead company maintaining an experiment station, which is not for advertising, but for obtaining technical information on all kinds of materials in relation to their composition and lasting qualities.

In the latter part of the evening the officers of the executive board addressed the gathering and explained the purposes of the Connecticut council.

SPEAKS OF FUTURE THAMES RIVER DEEPENING

The Norwich Lions club, with the usual attendance, held its weekly noon luncheon meeting Thursday at the Wauregan hotel. In the absence of President L. M. Crandall, the vice president, Jean Kieffer, presided. Leon Dix was the song leader, and was also the five minute speaker.

Mr. Gallup expressed the opinion that there is a possibility that the Thames river channel may be deepened to 25 feet within the next two or three years. Coal and lumber are at present being brought to Norwich by water for re-shipment and for local consumption. There is no reason why beef, cotton, cotton seed meal, molasses, etc., cannot be shipped here by water for re-distribution, Mr. Gallup said. Mr. Gallup was given a rising vote of thanks for his address and the Lions' roar and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner brought the meeting to a close.

BUILDING HEALTH DURING WINTER MONTHS

Building Health During the Winter was the subject of a radio talk by A. Elizabeth Ingraham, M. D., director of bureau of child hygiene, state department of health, over WTIC, this noon. She said:

All children whether sturdy or frail are made stronger and their bodies more resistant to disease, by sun baths properly given. During the winter months when many of our days are cold and stormy and the daylight hours are short, it is often difficult to give young children outdoor sun baths. But these can be managed indoors by placing the child by the side of a window which is open at the top or bottom. It is important to place the bed so that the little one may sit or lie in the band of sun-light that comes through the open space. Ordinary window glass filters out the ultraviolet rays.

When the days are dark and cloudy and sun baths cannot be taken, there are two ways of bringing the sun indoors. Ordinary window glass filters out the invisible or ultraviolet rays of sun-light. Scientists have learned that the invisible rays of the sun pass freely through quartz crystals. Following this discovery a special kind of glass made from these quartz crystals, has been supplied. But this window glass is expensive. It is also found to partly lose its power of ray-transmission, after being in use two or three years. We will have to lay this glass aside on the grounds of its not being available for general use because of its expense, as well as its short time of usefulness.

The second way of bringing sunshine indoors even on cloudy days, is by the use of the ultraviolet ray producing lamps. These are extensively advertised in many of our magazines and periodicals. Their usefulness is extolled by their makers. But the public is never told that harm can be done by them through their injudicious use. Let us never forget that real harm may come when they are used unskillfully. If you are thinking of getting one for your home take your family doctor into your confidence, and act under his advice as to its installation and use. You should know when and how long to use it, also the strength of the applied light. Any artificial light produced is not quite like sunlight any more than the finest effort on canvass can be quite like the landscape it represents. These lamps never should be used except under proper medical supervision.

Other ways to build a health wall of protection about the bodies of our children is through outdoor play, sleeping with open windows and wearing proper clothing. Dress according to the season. The child that is put into heavy winter clothing in the late fall and compelled to wear it until early spring, no matter what the thermometer may register, is to be pitied. We don't wear fur coats until decidedly cold weather comes, why then make a child carry about woolen under garments, and a thick sweater, to say nothing of an overcoat, until the weather is severe enough to call for them. Too heavy clothing on warm days throws the child into a perspiration which lowers its resistance and makes it more susceptible to disease.

During the winter when doors and windows must be closed, good ventilation is a necessity if we are to keep well. If we read health department reports we can but note the prevalence of contageous diseases during these months. This can be explained through closer contact of living, less fresh air in homes, places of public amusement, etc.

The time allotted for this talk is obviously too brief for extended discussion of the subject. But may we close with the suggestions that we coax the direct sunshine and fresh air into our houses as much as possible, and dress according to the weather. Briefly, that we follow the laws of health through applied common sense.

FREAKISH REASONS FOR AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

About 70 or 75 causes of automobile accidents appear year after year on the records of the Connecticut department of motor vehicles as the chief reasons for highway mishaps. But there are other causes, listed less frequently, which vividly illustrate the necessity for constant care and alertness in traffic.

"Accident reports show many unusual and bizarre cases," said Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel in an article prepared for and read from Station WTIC, the Travelers, this afternoon. "Not long ago, a Connecticut man was taking home a turtle, as a present for his small son. He put the turtle in the rear of his car and started off. In some manner it crawled to the front of the car, entangled itself with the foot pedals, and when the driver attempted to stop the car, he was unable to put on the brakes or release the clutch.

"Pistol throwing, in connection with automobile accidents, certainly must be uncommon, but one man reports that it was the cause of serious trouble for him. He was driving on a certain street and a boy, who was in a car passing from the opposite direction, suddenly threw a pistol. The missile hit the man in the face, broke his nose, cut several deep gashes, and caused an automobile accident.

"Another man was driving near a golf course and a golf ball hit and broke the windshield of his car. The glass flew into the driver's face, and he lost control of his car. Recently, a man parked his car to watch a parade. Some fireworks nearby exploded unexpectedly and a stone was blown through a window injuring a passenger.

"A frisky dog in one car knocked off the driver's spectacles and caused an accident. Cigarette sparks flying into the eyes of an operator once caused a crash. A trailing rope from a truck became entangled with a pedestrian's feet and he was badly hurt before he could be released. A heavy tire rolled off another truck and fatally injured a man who was working on the road.

"Two Connecticut girls went through trying experiences recently with admirable composure. They were in a car which was in a line of heavy traffic. One noticed a mouse scampering around the back of the car. Soon another mouse was spied coming from under the cushions of the rear seat, and then another. Despite any fears she may have had the driver kept cool until the car reached a place where it was convenient to park without interfering with traffic. Investigation disclosed a nest of mice in the cushions. The girls chased the mice out of the car and continued their journey. They had avoided accident by refusing to have their nerve shaken by even such supposedly fearsome creatures as mice.

"All of these cases make it evident that it is always well to be ready for the unusual as well as the usual, when participating in modern traffic."

Only 23 persons were deported out of 60,000 examined by immigration officers at Duluth during the fiscal year 1929-30.

Never Had a Good Appetite

"I was very nervous and weak and never had a good appetite. Almost every day I would have to lie down. My aunt used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and so did other women. I often wondered if it would help me but I hesitated to try it. After the first bottle I felt better, so I kept on. I have already taken five bottles and feel as strong as can be."—Jane Witek, 263 Lawrie Street, Perth Amboy, N. J.

MANY RING NOTABLES AT DANIELSON TONIGHT FOR HOSPITAL BENEFIT SHOW

DANIELSON, Sept. 26.—The big drill shed of the state armory here was transformed tonight. The wide open spaces where the artillerymen drill around when the armory is in use for military purposes were filled with seats about the ring in which some famed persons will do some boxing Friday night, and in which some other boxers, though they be less famed, will hammer each other to a fare ye well.

Counting the balcony seats, for which the customers have gladly paid $10 a throw, seating has been provided for just under 1200 people. Only a few of the balcony and ringside seats remained unsold tonight. No effort at all has been made to dispose of the general admission tickets. Promoter Frank Barber, confident that the fans of eastern Connecticut will take them before the show opens, has reserved them for sale as the customers call for them. That gives the average fan a fair chance to see the big doings and to see them without paying the fancier prices that several hundred people have paid, and paid willingly, to boost such a worthy project as the Nurses' Home fund of the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam.

Danielson people will get their first look at Benny Leonard, Al Singer, Jackie Kid Berg and Joe Humphrey along about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. Promoter Barber said that the New York party is due to be in New London on a train arriving there from the big town at 1:23 p. m. Prior to that time State Officer John Murphy of the Danielson barracks will drive to the home of Lieutenant Governor Ernest Rogers in New London, get that executive and drive to the New London railroad station. Immediately after the arrival of the New York train the several cars will start for Danielson. A state police escort will be provided from New London to Danielson. Commissioner Robert T. Hurley of the state police department is expected to arrive here Friday at about 2 p. m. Thomas Donahue of the national boxing commission also will be numbered among the outstanding guests of the evening.

During the afternoon the New York party, Lieut. Governor Rogers, Commissioner Hurley and Commissioner Donahue will be among the guests to be entertained at the Russian Bear in Thompson.

HORNSBY BRINGS CUBS THROUGH AGAINST REDS

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—(AP)— Rogers Hornsby snatched the Chicago Cub reins as they dropped from Joe McCarthy's hands today and steered his charges to a 4 to 3 victory over the pestiferous Cincinnati Reds. The victory enabled the Cubs to remain mathematically in the National league pennant race for at least one more day as the St. Louis Cardinals needed two triumphs, including today's game, to clinch the title.

McCarthy, deposed in favor of Hornsby 48 hours before with the understanding that he was to finish the season, suddenly requested that he immediately be relieved. His request was granted by President William L. Veeck, who handed the club over to Hornsby shortly before game time.

The contest was a battle of home runs and came very close to becoming a Cincinnati victory in the ninth inning. Leading by 4 to 1 as he went into the ninth, Young Bud Teachout, who had pitched effectively, saw Tony Cuccinello crash his second homer of the game over the left field wall and Harry Heilmann, the next batsman, slam one over the same barrier.

Ford followed with a single and Hornsby stuck his head out of the dugout and motioned Pat Malone to the mound. Malone ended the rally, quickly disposing of two pinch batters.

The first two Cub runs were individual efforts by Woody English and Gabby Hartnett. English dropped a homer into the right field stand in the first inning and Hartnett duplicated the clout in the second. Dan Taylor tallied the third Cub run, sprinting home from first on Kelly's short single to left center, in the sixth. Teachout's single, followed by a sacrifice, a single, by English and a force-out, brought in the last Chicago counter in the seventh.

Teachout pitched well until he made his two wrong guesses in the ninth. Cuccinello's first homer, a wallop over the left field wall like the second, came in the sixth. Bennie Frey, usually troublesome to Cub batsmen, was slugged for eleven of the 12 Chicago hits in his seven innings on the mound.

ATHLETICS POUND OUT EASY WIN OVER YANKEES

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25. — (AP) — The Athletics turned the first game of their final series of the season into a session of batting practice against the New York Yankees today, pounding out a 13 to 3 victory before the game was halted at the end of the sixth inning by rain.

Lou Gehrig accounted for all the Yankee runs in the first inning as he hit his 41st home run of the season after Reese had doubled and Ruth had reached first on an error. George Walberg held the Yanks to six hits, of which Reese made three.

The champions pounded Ruffing and Johnson for a total of 17 hits. They drove the first pitcher from the hill in the fourth inning by bunching six hits for as many runs and scored two more off Johnson in the sixth.

CARDS BLANK PIRATES TO ASSURE THEMSELVES OF A TIE

ST. LOUIS Sept. 25.—(AP)—Cheered on by more than 20,000 home town fans, the St. Louis Cardinals shut out the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9 to 0, here this afternoon and now need only one more game to clinch the 1930 National league pennant.

"Sunny Jim" Bottomley, big Red Bird first baseman, sent the fans into a frenzy early in the first inning with a long home run over the right field pavilion, scoring Adams and Frisch ahead of him. Just before this, Douthit, who had doubled when the inning opened, had scored on Frisch's single.

Spencer went to the mound for Pittsburgh in the second, but the confident Cards kept on hitting, scoring two more runs in that inning, one in the third and two in the sixth.

In the second Gelbert tripled and scored on Grimes' single. Grimes advanced on Douthit's single and Frisch's walk, then scored on Bottomley's sacrifice fly. Watkins tripled in the third and came home on an infield out. In the sixth Grimes singled. Douthit doubled, scoring Grimes, and went to third on the throw to the plate. Adams singled and Douthit scored.

Manager Gabby Street and his Birds were happy men tonight and vowed they would take the second game from the Pirates tomorrow and meet the Philadelphia Athletics American league champions, in the world's series.

SENATORS WIN CLOSE GAME FROM RED SOX

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—(AP)—With Joe Judge, veteran first baseman, directing the team and Art Shires taking his place on the line-up, the Washington Senators tacked a close 3 to 2 defeat on the Red Sox, here today. Each team managed to touch Ad Liska or Danny MacFayden for a goodly share of hits but the hurlers kept them well scattered.

The Sox picked up a one run lead in the fifth but the southerners went to work on MacFayden in the sixth and seventh with Manush, Myer and Rice providing the punch necessary to score enough runs to win. The only error of the game was by Bobby Reeves, the Sox second baseman, who did plenty work afield. Score:

NOBLE MILLER WINS HOTEL TOURNAMENT AT MANCHESTER

Noble C. Miller, resident manager of the Norwich Inn, was the cream of the field at the annual golf tournament of the New England Hotel Association and Travel News, held Tuesday at the Manchester Country club at Manchester, N. H. Mr. Miller shot a round of 78, four over par, on the tough 74-par course to lead a field of 175 hotel men gathered for the tournament and convention. Besides winning the low gross prize offered by the Travel News the local player took low net prize.

H. N. S. Vs. Ashland

Sunday, at Ashland park, the H. N. S. will play the second game of the series with the Ashland A. A. Although the H. N. S. were defeated by the Accos last Sunday they will endeavor to turn the table. Bernal, no doubt will get the pitching assignment for this game, with Pezzo, catching Derda or Juber will pitch for the Accos. This game should be a fast thriller as Bernal is pitching good ball. The H. N. S. boys are practicing hard and are sure of winning. There is keen interest displayed for this game and a record crowd is expected.

What fond memories were recalled when those four-wheeled relics of the days gone by passed in review in the Style Evolution parade last night.

Especially did that moth-eaten and tubercular Rambler, which was the last word of the automotive industry in 1903, bring back recollections of those days when automobiles were bought for cash and not on the installment plan.

Remember when we would stand on the curb and gaze in awe upon those who sat painfully erect and gripping the sides of the car as a dare-devil driver sent it hurtling along at the terrific speed of ten miles per hour.

How we used to wonder if the time would ever come when we would be the proud owner of one of these elegant contraptions. Then remember how when jealousy got the upper hand we would derisively shout after them, "Aw, go get a horse." All the time we wished we would be asked to ride.

Then came the day when we were invited to go for a ride. How the old heart fluttered and we fervently prayed that Mrs. So and So would be on her porch when we rode elegantly by. Remember how us women stood before the mirror adjusting that broad and floppy brimmed hat over which we had tied out motor veil. Everybody bought a motor veil in those days just in anticipation of someday riding in an automobile.

Wasn't that first ride a wonderful thing? Didn't we feel grand when we climbed up through that little door in the back and sat down on the plush cushions and spread out dresses so that only the tips of our shoes showed? Then the driver started to crank. Remember how foolish we felt when we asked if he had to wind it up every time he went riding.

Then the hills. Wasn't it fun when we came to the hills to have to pile out and help push it over the brow. Remember how the engine wheezed and coughed as it labored up the hill until sometimes we thought a good dose of rhubarb and soda might help it. Oh yes, those were the happy days, even if motoring was rather strenuous.

What didja think of that coach-in-four or the Tally-Ho labeled the "Gay Nineties"? Believe me, they had to be gay to risk their necks in one of those things. But even at that I suppose they were just as safe as the old Lizzie with the driver half over the seas. At any rate, if you got a little tipsey on cider the old horses had sense enough to stay in the middle of the road and not crack you up against a tree.

It don't make much difference what age you live in it is the same. Here we stood on the curb and watched the parade pass. We laughed at the old 1903 model car but we still wondered if we would ever own one of these 16-cylinder jobs, just as we stood and wondered many years ago.

Styles change but human nature remains about the same.

ACADEMY HAS LONG PRACTICE FOR OPENER

A long practice session Thursday marked the final serious preparation for the opening game of the season for the Academy football team. The lid will be pried off tomorrow afternoon at Mercer field, New London, against Chapman Tech in a league clash.

This week the practices have averaged over three hours in duration, as Coach Whitney has given the team plays and also seen them in scrimmage sessions. Today there will be only a light workout and then the Wildcats move against Tech, a team which has not been able to beat them since 1926. Last year's game at the campus ended 13 to 0, while two years ago at New London the locals came out on top when a safety secured by Freddie Fox furnished the only points.

JONES DISPOSES OF COLEMAN TO MEET SWEETSER IN SEMI-FINALS TODAY

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

MERION CRICKET CLUB, Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 25.—(AP)—It is not news when the ordinary golfer drives out of bounds, slices into a trap or takes three putts.

It is hot news when Bobby Jones does these things.

But after a day and a half of embarrassing moments, the great Georgian suddenly snapped out of his slump this afternoon, applied the par crusher to Fay Coleman, 23-year-old Californian, and swept into the semi-finals of the national amateur golf championship.

Jones, after an erratic morning round in which he looked like anything but a triple champion, staged a characteristic return to form to wallop Coleman by 6 and 5, in the 36-hole quarter finals. As a result Bobby has only two more all-day battles between him and the goal that no other golfer has ever approached — a clean sweep of all four British and American championships in one year.

Jones Plays Sweetser

Tomorrow Jones will play an old rival, Jess W. Sweetser, Kentucky-bred New Yorker, who shares with Jones the distinction of having held both the American and British amateur titles.

Sweetser, who had to engage in a playoff to qualify in this tournament, put on a comeback himself today to beat the youthful iron-man, Maurice J. McCarthy, of New York, conqueror of George Von Elm, in a record-breaking 28-hole second round match. Sweetser captured his quarter-final match 5 and 4, after being one down at the end of the morning 18 holes.

Homans Vs. Seaver

The other semi-final tomorrow brings together two youngsters who have been upsetting golfing dope by the wholesale in this tournament—19-year-old Charles Seaver, thick-set Los Angeles youth, and Eugene V. Homans of Englewood, N. J., 22-year-old, frail-looking former Princeton golf captain.

Sharp contrasts in physique and playing style, the two youngsters came through their quarter-final contests in smashing manner. Homans, in the biggest upset of the day, swamped Johnny Lehman, of Chicago, the western amateur champion, 8 and 7, with a game that was close to par all the way. Seaver, after a nervous start, just managed to gain a one hole lead at the 18th hole in the morning and then settled down to eliminate 37-year-old Billy McPhail of Boston, 5 and 4.

Seaver, who has just entered as a freshman at Stanford university, has never so much as reached the match play of a national tournament before, and Homans' chief claims to fame heretofore were his metropolitan championship victory in 1928 and a tie with Bobby Jones for the medal at Pebble beach last year. Yet these two comparatively inexperienced youths have survived a flock of favorites and tomorrow will battle for the right to enter the championship final and—probably—play the one and only Mr. Jones.

In the only other time they have met in the national amateur, Sweetser walloped Jones 8 and 7 at Brookline in 1922, the year that Big Jess won the tournament, but the Georgian has become the giant of the links since then, holder of more national titles than any other man in golfing history. Moreover, Jones never has been beaten twice by the same player in any championship competition and he is a top-heavy favorite to beat the New Yorker tomorrow, especially since his manifestation of a return to form this afternoon.

Had Coleman done any consistent work at all with his putter today, the Californian might have given Jones an unpleasantly close call, for Bobby was clearly off his game throughout the morning round. On the fourth hole, 595 yards, the Georgian topped his second shot and put his third in a trap but he got a half in six. He three-putted the first but so did Coleman. He three-putted the sixth and lost it. He drove out of bounds on the 15th and lost the hole, but nevertheless he finished the round 2 up on a youngster who was unable to answer old man opportunity's knock at the door.

Jones Practices With Woods

Before he started the afternoon round, Jones did something unusual for him by practicing fifteen minutes with the wood and it paid immediate dividends.

Despite two more lapses on the part of "Calamity Jane," his famous putter, Jones became six up at the 27th and played the last six holes in one under par to beat Coleman 6 and 5 on the 31st green. Seven down, with eight to go, the Californian made a game stand by winning two successive holes, the 29th and 30th, with birdie threes, but it was just a gesture, for Bobby's par three was good enough to gain the short 31st and settle the match.

Jones was only one over par for the 13 holes he played in the afternoon but so was Sweetser, for 14 holes, and Big Jess may give the Georgian a battle if he can keep the mashie niblick touch he displayed today.

Sweetser, however, needed the breaks to gain any kind of lead over McCarthy, whose propensities as a hard fighter have been conspicuous from the start of this tournament. McCarthy needed his famous hole in one on the 215-yard 17th to have even a chance to qualify and his two extra hole matches yesterday, the last going ten extra holes with Von Elm, were classics of fighting courage.

Twice McCarthy lost easy chances to win holes from Sweetser when the latter laid stymies, on the first and eighth holes.

McCarthy was only five feet from the first hole for a win and barely a foot from the 5th for another win but failed to hurdle Sweetser's ball and halved each hole.

In spite of these bad breaks, the youngster ended the morning round one up and it looked like another finish fight, but in the afternoon Sweetser struck a streak of par golf while the "Ironman" cracked.

Big Jess squared the match at the 19th, took the lead at the 21st, increased it to 3 up at the 27th and wound up the victor, 5 and 4, on the 32nd hole.

Sweetser got a break on the 28th, where his drive went out of bounds into the road and bounced back on the fairway. On the 29th, he put his second in a trap, came out weakly and took three more to get down for six but McCarthy duplicated the performance and the hole was halved.

Homans Swamps Lehman

Homans began the rout of Lehman by taking the last three holes of the morning round in quick succession, but the Jersey youth was in the lead from the second hole to the finish at the 29th green. The western star's putter, usually so reliable, failed him consistently, with the exception of two holes, the 5th and 10th, on which he ran down putts of 40 and 30 feet, respectively. Homans, on the other hand, was the personification of steadiness all the way. He had the best medal score of the day when he posted 73, three over par, for his morning round and he was even par for the 11 holes he played in the afternoon.

An 18-foot putt for a birdie four on the 595-yard 22nd and another long putt for a birdie three on the 28th helped the Jersey star settle the match quickly.

Seaver, who looks like a prospective Stanford half back, with a pair of hands that would make a shortstop envious, did a workmanlike job of beating McPhail, the slim Bostonian, after a shaky time of it in the morning. The California youngster was two down at the 11th but squared the match at the 14th and became one up at the 18th when McPhail missed a two-foot putt.

Seaver was unable to increase his lead through the outward nine of the afternoon play but he kept it intact after a battle and then reeled off three straight fours, all pars, to take complete command. McPhail wilted from the effects of the day's intense heat and so did his game. He prolonged the match to the 32nd by halving the last two holes Seaver winning by 5 and 4.

Less than a half hour after the quarter-finals were completed, a terrific storm broke and flooded the Merion course, chasing some 5,000 perspiring spectators to cover, but it brought a welcome end to the hot spell.

The schedule for the semi-final matches tomorrow calls for the Homans-Seaver contest at 8:30 a. m., (E. S. T.) and the Jones-Sweetser match at 9.

McCARTHY RESIGNS AS MANAGER OF THE CUBS

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—(AP)— Rogers Hornsby already is on the job as manager of the Chicago Cubs.

The "Rajah" assumed charge of the National league pennant contenders just in time to direct them to a 4 to 3 victory over Cincinnati today. Joe McCarthy, the deposed leader, resigned after an hour's conference with Owner William Wrigley, Jr., and President William L. Veeck, refusing to finish the season, with four games, all with Cincinnati, to go.

Hornsby, who had been named as McCarthy's successor, starting with the 1931 season, immediately was placed in charge. He will direct the activities of the Cubs through the remaining three games of the season and through the post-season series with the White Sox, in case the Cubs fail to get into the world series, which is regarded as a very remote possibility.

McCarthy, who was advised he would not be re-engaged as manager two days ago, had been expected to finish the season as pilot of the Cubs. But, after matured deliberation, he said he decided it would be for the best for all concerned to retire at once. He did not seem at all downcast and made no indication as to his future employment. He said he was in no immediate rush about lining up a new baseball job, and would not say what positions, if any, were open to him.

GAGNON IS WINNER OVER FRIEDMAN BY A SHADE

BOSTON, Sept. 25—(AP)—Al Friedman of Boston lost a close verdict to Jack Gagnon, also a Boston heavyweight, in their return bout in the Boston arena here tonight. To many it appeared that Friedman's consistent and aggressive two-handed attack for the greater part of the contest entitled him to the verdict but a last round rally by Gagnon apparently helped away the judges in awarding the verdict to Gagnon.

"RIP" HIMSELF, with typewriter and O. G.

Old Gold most Appealing Cigarette

By ROBERT RIPLEY

"OLD GOLD seems to me to be one of the biggest 'believe-it-or-nots' to be found.

"That's why I accepted OLD GOLD'S challenge to conduct a series of taste-tests in public places, with the distinct understanding that they would publish the results . . . WIN, LOSE OR DRAW.

"I've just completed the first test at the New York Athletic Club. Fifteen guests each smoked the four leading brands of cigarettes, with names concealed. Each picked one as best and I removed the masks.

"And, believe it or not . . . OLD GOLD won! Picked by 7 smokers to 3 for the next brand.

"'Believe it or not' fans know I prove my facts. I'll gladly send you an auditor's report of the score."

BIG THRILLS OF WORLD SERIES

BY BRIAN BELL

Associated Press Sports Writer

No. 3—The Great Battle Of 1910

One of the most interesting of all world series was the 1910 battle between the Chicago Cubs and the Philadelphia Athletics.

The "old college spirit" was in evidence before play began, for while the Athletics were waiting for the National league schedule to be completed, a series of games was played with an All-Star American league team to put the champions on edge.

"The salvation of the Athletics" was the tribute of Connie Mack to these tuning up games. Jimmy McAleer managed the All-Stars, including such outstanding players as Ty Cobb, Jake Stahl, Clyde Milan, Ed Walsh Doc White and Gabby Street.

Johnny Evers, Cub second baseman, affectionately known as the "keystone king," suffered a broken leg two weeks before the start of the series and Heine Zimmerman, later a Giant star, played second for the Cubs.

Frank Chance, manager of the Cubs, was put out of the park for protesting a decision by the umpires in the first game at Chicago. He was the first player to be ejected in a world series, and there have been very few through the years.

The Cubs fell in four of five games through the terrific hitting of the Athletics. In the five games the As made 56 hits and 20 were for extra bases.

The As were out in front when Chief Bender pitched them to a 4 to 1 victory in the first game. The Cubs got only three hits, while the big Indian himself made that many from Overall and McIntire.

Coombs followed with a 9 to 3 decision over Brown, then came back to win the third game, 12 to 5. Bender was beaten by Cole and Brown, 4 to 3, in ten innings; then Colby Jack Coombs pitched and won his third game of the series, 7 to 2.

The 1911 series between the Athletics and Giants marked the first at the Polo grounds. The first game attracted 32,281 paid spectators, a record attendance, and caused a writer to describe it thus:

"A marvel, a city in itself. Let them be set down in a fertile valley as the emigrants of old sought their homes and in the twinkling of an eye a great and thriving municipality would be born."

The Athletics scored revenge over the Giants for the defeat of 1905, although Mathewson, who had shut them out three times six years before, won the first game, 2 to 1, from Chief Bender. Eddie Plank evened the series by beating Marquard, 3 to 1, in the second. The Mack cohorts were not headed thereafter. Frank Baker won a game by hitting a home run with one on.

In New York, October 17, the Athletics won, 3 to 2, in 11 thrilling innings. Mathewson pitching against Coombs. Baker hit a home run in the ninth inning to tie the score at 1 to 1. In the eleventh the Giants scored once and the Athletics twice.

The rains came then and the fourth game was not played until October 24, when the Athletics won, 4 to 2, Bender against Mathewson. The Giants came back to take the fifth game, 4 to 3, in ten innings, but they were swamped in the last engagement, 13 to 2.

GAS PRESSURE INCREASED BY SPECIAL LIGHT RAYS

This light is approximately of only one color. The increase in gas pressure under the light is greater than that to be expected from the heating effects. The extra pressure is attributed to chemical action set up by the light in the gas itself.

WESTERLY

STEDMAN TO BE ARRAIGNED IN WESTERLY COURT TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Sept. 25—Arraignment of Joe Stedman and Mrs. Evelyn Main, bookkeeper, of the Stedman Press, who have been held under suspicion in the mysterious death of Mrs. Alice E. Stedman, Mr. Stedman's wife, will probably be made this (Friday) morning in the regular session of third district court, before Judge Oliver H. Williams. Mrs. Stedman was found last Monday night on the floor of the bathroom in the second floor apartments occupied by them at 87 Main street, and Westerly Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, gave his opinion that death was caused by gas, but unknown how administered.

Coroner and Town Prosecutor John Ferguson for the past few days has been examining witnesses and more have yet to be heard. Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown on Thursday afternoon stated that there had been no new developments in the case. It is understood that as yet unsuccessful attempts had been made by the authorities in the checking up on the previous life of Mrs. Main and her stories that she had knocked around from place to place. On Thursday Mrs. Main had become more used to her confinement at the woman's detention room at Westerly police headquarters under care of Police Matron Mrs. Mariette B. Brown. She at first complained of feeling ill and did not care to take meals regularly. On Thursday she called for and obtained the current issue of "Breezy Stories" with which to pass away the time.

Mr. Stedman's son, who has come to Westerly from New Jersey, has been to see his father several times at police headquarters. The prisoner has asked for copies of current newspapers but as yet has not been allowed to have them. At first he expressed a wish to attend the funeral of his wife and permission would have been given, only if he were accompanied by an officer in plain clothes. When he learned that Mrs. Stedman's funeral, was to be conducted by Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ Episcopal church, he declared that he did not desire to be present.

No additional report had been received in Westerly on Thursday night from Providence representatives of the Rhode Island State Board of Health who were making an analysis of the vital organs and their contents.

Real Estate Transfers

Sept. 24. Tuxedo Houses, Inc., to Ruth Teal Betts a certain lot or tract of land at Watch Hill bounded southerly by Wapan road, and northerly by the waters of Misquamicut Inn Bay.

Several wells in the village have gone dry. Many local people are being supplied by the spring that empties into the trough by the Goff residence, at Pequot, which seems to be well filled, or by going to neighbors' houses. Many of the old-timers declare they have never seem so many wells go dry as has been the case this year.

LOSING WEIGHT?

MAYBE IT'S WORMS

MYSTERIOUS loss of weight may mean that your little one is harboring worms which are robbing her of nourishment. Worms are much more common than most mothers think.

Look also for the following symptoms: grinding of teeth, picking the nose, crossness, crying in sleep, offensive breath, loss of appetite, nausea or general restlessness. Any one of these signs may be your warning that worms are present.

Wise mothers take no chances with these dangerous and disgusting childhood pests. Even if worms are only suspected they give the child

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

REACTING TO FAITHFUL PUBLIC SERVICE

(Written Specially For The Bulletin)

I don't suppose that a republican caucus out in Kansas seems really interesting news to a farmer in Connecticut.

"What do I know or care about politics 'way out there?" That would be a perfectly natural attitude for him to take

So far as the personalities and local issues of the campaign are concerned, he would be dead right, too. He has too many weeds in his own fields to waste time worrying over those in his neighbors' lots.

But when the principles involved in a Kansas scrap are much the same as those in a Connecticut scrimmage, the facts may be illuminating and instructive, if not absorbingly exciting.

Wise men are often shown by the mistakes of others how to avoid them for themselves.

If you're walking through the woods with a companion just ahead, and you see him trip and stumble over a hidden snag, his mishap tells you where to watch your own step. His fall enables you to avoid a tumble, yourself.

So, when you see a political party out in Kansas bite off its own nose to spite its face, the spectacle of its folly teaches you to avoid that sort of self-mutilation. It isn't pretty; it isn't helpful; it's just a copy rather emphatically telling you what NOT to do.

For two years Kansas has had an unusually capable, hard-working and public-spirited governor, Clyde M. Reed. (No relation, so far as I know, of Missouri's fire-eating ex-senator, "Jim" Reed.) Gov. Reed, quite unlike the Missourian, is no spell-binder. He can say what he means in phrases no one need misunderstand but he's been too much occupied with questions of taxation, of good roads, of state welfare generally, to go fishing for popularity. He's been no "glad-hander" no baby-kisser, no back-slapper and "hail-fellow-well-met."

He found the state's finances somewhat tangled, its tax system partial and inequitable its highways a mismanaged mix-up, with county commissions and state boards contending for supremacy without much regard for the state's larger interests.

Gov Reed promptly took a hand in all these and other state problems. As a result, during his two years' term the financial position was much improved, the tax muddle at least partially cleared up, and the roads question put on the track of a sound policy.

Naturally, in doing this, he made enemies. There are always people interested in befuddling a state's finances, since the less they are understood by the electorate, the more frequent the chances for "honest grafters" to rake off unsuspected tolls. When Gov. Reed turned the light on them, they got mad.

Likewise, there are always people who want an unfair tax system, since it gives them the chance to escape some part of their own fair burden and load it on to other shoulders. Those who were profiting by this sort of legalized injustice took it as a personal affront when Gov. Reed turned the light on them.

When it comes to highway work, the opportunities for showing special favor and letting loose contracts and covering up poor construction are so numerous that it is no wonder the hyenas made a big howl when the governor, thinking in terms of state welfare rather than local pickings, began interfering with their graft.

So on through numerous other phases of state management. The ringsters and the bosses and the wire-pullers and the plain crooks were, one after another, routed or exposed by the governor who actually seemed to think his first duty was to the state and not to them. They didn't like it. They didn't like the executive who was balking them.

The testimony of practically all the un-bossed newspapers of Kansas agree as to Gov. Reed's character and the efficiency of his administration. William A. White of The Emporia Gazette says: "Kansas has never had a better governor than Clyde M. Reed. He has been honest and intelligent and courageous—a combination of qualities rarely found in one man." Another mid-state paper remarks that if Gov. Reed had "adopted the policy of being for nothing that would arouse opposition and of opposing no one, he probably would have been renominated without opposition. But he did not do that."

And so when the politicians mustered their cohorts and drilled their snipers at the state convention, Gov. Reed was turned down, and the nomination given to a professional "glad-hander," whose chief qualification for the office seems to be his ability to make every casual he meets feel himself the candidate's nearest and dearest friend.

The consensus of opinion through the state is reported by The Kansas City Star to be that Reed "talked himself out of a renomination," and that Haucke—the successful aspirant—"smiled his way into the nomination."

This ought to be worth considering by aspirants for office, who care more for the "honor" and the salary and the fees and the opportunities for jobbery than for the welfare of the community.

It certainly is worth more than mere consideration—it is worth earnest and prayerful reflection by all conscientious citizens. Here is a case where a devoted and unselfish public servant was discharged by his political masters, simply because he had been a capable and efficient workman. He had been "honest and intelligent and courageous." So he was fired.

Is that the sort of treatment which the American people, whether in Kansas or Connecticut or New York or the whole United States, want meted out to their employes in public office? Kansas is only one state in 48. But is its reaction to faithful public service an indication of the general feeling? It is only in that sense that its treatment of such an official becomes of interest to the voters elsewhere. You and I are not given either the authority or the power to censor other peoples' thoughts. But we have some degree of control over our own. Suppose we should take a few minutes off, some day, and give calm consideration to the real motives which actuate us in our political conduct. It wouldn't do any harm and it might reveal certain tendencies which call for revision.

If we have a man working for us who is steady and competent and regardful of our interests we don't discharge him and give his job to some "fly-by-night" who jumps over the fence to wring our hands and tell us how fine we're looking and what noble fellows we are. All that is, of course, interesting, but it isn't "business." When it comes down to a matter of farm help we stick to the chap who knows the difference between a hoe and a hammer, and who has proved by continued test his ability to use both efficiently. We don't hire men because they want the job, but because they can do the job.

Do we act in the same spirit when it comes to political jobs? If not, why not, please?

We don't fire good help, once we've got it, just for the sake of trying out some simpering greenhorn. We know on which side our bread is buttered and we propose to keep it butter side up.

Think it over coolly, as a mere matter of common sense. You elect a man to some office, no matter what. He promptly takes off his coat, spits on his hands, picks up his axe and goes at the particular wood-pile he's been employed to split up. He sticks to the task; he bluntly refuses to "sodger" on it; he works overtime if conditions demand; he cleans it up in fine shape. And then, when it comes time to re-hire him, you give him the grand bounce

What sort of way is that to encourage good work?

I can recall a time, 'way back in the ancient days, when the Norwich city council used to re-appoint "Joe" Carrier chief of the fire department, year after year. The city council in those days was practically always republican. And "Joe" Carrier was a democrat. But he was without question, the best man for fire-chief in the city. He was "on the job" day and night. He nosed out hidden fire-hazards and either had them removed or laid plans to fight them if necessary. He might not actually have slept with his boots on, but he could get into them and to a fire at a speed measured by split seconds. He had the loyalty of his men and the confidence of the people of the city. What did it matter what his opinions about the tariff might be? His work was to fight fire, not to collect customs. And so, because he was devoted to his task and untiring in his service and exceptionally competent he was reappointed, year after year.

Even then, this was an exceptional case. But "Joe" Carrier was an exceptional man, and the "city fathers" of the then Norwich were perhaps exceptionally level-headed.

But why should common-sense be any more exceptional in selecting public employes than in picking private workmen?

When a public servant does his work well, why shouldn't we, his employers, show our appreciation of his fidelity and efficiency by keeping him on the job? Why should we repay faithful service by dismissal?

Occasionally one hears it said: "Oh well, so-and-so has had the place long enough; it's time to give somebody else a chance." A "chance" at what? This sort of talk is born of the idea that public office is a private snap. Is that what you and I consider it?

There are a whole lot of things in our national life which are seriously muddled. One potent reason for this is our own failure to pick our governmental servants with good judgment, and adequately back up those who deserve such backing.

After all, the kind of government we have and the sort of officials we get are up to use. We can have about what we want in those lines if only enough of us want it and want it badly enough.

THE FARMER

EASTERN VOLUNTOWN

Farmers are having nice weather to do their harvesting.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood of Eastern Voluntown, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington of Oneco, attended the funeral Saturday of Mrs. George Bromley at Voluntown. On their way back from the cemetery they called on Mrs. Margaret Bitgood, Mrs. Bromley's mother. They found her in poor health. She is 87 years old. Mr. Bromley has our sympathy in his loss as we all know what a lovely wife he had. She also had a nice husband. He is left very lonely. He has no brothers or sisters.

William Bitgood gets up at 4 or 4:30 in the morning. The first thing he does he goes to the well and gets a fresh pail of water. Then he goes to see to his hens, then to the barn and milks his cow. Then he goes to the garden and gets something for the cows to eat Then he eats his breakfast. Then he and a young man, one of his neighbors, go to the cider mill and grind some apples that someone has taken in. Then they go and husk some field corn and that is what he does day in and day out. He furnished his two daughters and his home with all the sweet corn they wanted to can besides all they wanted to eat. Just got through having sweet corn to eat. He is 80 years old

Charles Douglas has gone back to Plainfield to help his cousin awhile so she can go to the Brooklyn fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dawley and family visited with their daughter and family, Mr and Mrs. Harold Bitgood, in Pachaug last Sunday.

Maurice Harrington and Amy Gravlin called at the Pine Grove farm recently.

Someone has been mean enough to go to Vine Barber's place and break out most of the windows, sash, glass and all. Whoever is mean enough to do such work should have a home for awhile where they would have something to do besides break windows and doors.

A big fire is raging east of Mr. Bitgood's house. They can't seem to locate it. It is in the range of Escoheag hill. It is so dry a fire will go fast in the woods.

Albert Dawley has dug his potatoes but he says he did not get as many as he had last year, but they are large and nice ones.

Mrs. Bronson and little girl and Grace Bitgood of Voluntown were callers at Mrs. Bitgood's recently.

There were four pheasants at Mr. Bitgood's house Tuesday morning.

Mr. Bitgood and Maurice Harrington took in the Brooklyn fair Wednesday.

LEBANON

At the Baptist church, Sunday morning, Rev. A. G. Littlefield took for his text, Matt 25-40, "And the King shall answer and say unto them, verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me. The C. E. meeting was led by Mrs. Abraham Aspinall.

Hens that Fail to Produce

..more than 175 eggs a year are cutting down your flock profits. Just as many culls result from poor feeding as poor breeding. That's why money invested in the right kind of feed pays big dividends. Most users of Bull Brand vitamized poultry feed show a flock average of 200 eggs and better. Why be satisfied with less yourself? We guarantee B-B to be more productive per dollar of feed cost, or return your money on the spot.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets
Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

Trading in farm products has been very quiet the early part of the week due to the Jewish New Year holidays. Many buyers have been absent from markets and growers have brought in less than normally in anticipation of this condition. Prices have not been effected either upward or downward to any marked degree.

Vegetables were showing usual seasonal shifts in rate of supply and kinds offered. Many of those which have been liberally offered during the past month or more have decreased, or almost disappeared, while fall and winter kinds have started making their appearance. Supplies are decreasing and prices showing more or less gain for tomatoes, sweet corn and summer squash. Cauliflower has been showing improved quality and increasing in supply lately. Cut carrots and beets, parsnips, turnips and winter squash have appeared and show increases daily. Native potato marketing is on in full blast, several markets of the state now being almost entirely supplied from Connecticut potato fields.

Reward of Merit

Perhaps no one will thank you for the efforts that you make
  To spare the feelings of a friend or foe
When you listen to a story just for old acquaintance sake
  A laugh at anecdotes of long ago.
Your great forbearance toward the man who slaps you on the back
  And wrings your hand until 'tis limp and lame
Its due appreciation on this earth may sadly lack,
  But the angels will record it just the same.
Be patient, friend, and do not smite the person at the play
  Whose rhythmic feet keep tapping on your chair
Nor threaten him who hums the tunes the orchestra may play
  Or to his friend relates the plot with cares.
'Tis true, your little sacrifices made from day to day
  Scant notice from the busy world will claim.
They may be dismissed as tries, as the crowd moves on its way,
  But the angels will record them just the same.

Philander Johnson, in Washington Star.

For his own particular pet Alec Milne, of Mt. Vernon, N. H., prefers a snake, and for an excellent reason. Most people select pets for companionship or because of a fondness for a particular species. Not so with Mr. Milne; he says he likes his pet snake because it performs a good days work and asks nothing in return. Mr. Milne is a truck farmer and is hampered in his work by a leg injury, which makes it impossible for him to reach down to remove grubs, worms and insects which destroy plants. So every morning the three-foot striped snake starts out with his master and follows him along through the rows of vegetables. The snake enjoys itself immensely removing the pests and eating them, says the Boston Globe. At the end of the day the "pet" returns to its haunt in a nearby pile of rocks to rest for the night.

GOLDIE GORIO

HE TURNED CHICAGO UPSIDE DOWN FOR A GIRL

WHEN legal means of springing the beautiful Polack Annie failed, Goldie Gorio drove to Chicago's police headquarters one night in his armored car (the exhaust pipe was of gold) and personally directed a carefully planned raid on the place by his gunmen. They had her out in a minute. It was the best newspaper story that ever broke in Chicago, but the story behind it which Jack Lait has ferreted out is an even better one. Don't miss it.

Mr. and Mrs. John Crofts were in North Stonington last week, with their son, Fred Crofts, who was active in promoting the interests of the grange fair held at North Stonington during three days, one of the best exhibits during the [illegible] years of the life of the fair.

Myron and Raymond Allen attended Springfield fair.

Judge and Mrs. Henry A. Adams spent Monday in Hartford on a business and pleasure trip.

Miss Florence Buck, of Stonington, is making a short visit at the Parsonage-by-the-River.

The Ladies' guild, under the direction of Miss [illegible] chairman for this quarter, is planning increased activity in its work.

Both of the Hanover brooks are as dry as the traveled portion of the state road, thus sending the boys over to Little river for their fishing expeditions. A number of the wells of the village have gone dry. However, as most of the people are supplied from the water system connected with the Airlie Mills pond or artesian wells, in both of which there is a sufficient quantity of water, there is comparatively little inconvenience at present.

In one particular, at least, we are like the great city of New York—the housing facilities for the local school children are far from adequate this year.

COLUMBIA

the witness stand by State Attorney Howard C. Bradford to identify photographs which he made, depicting the scene on the state road between Danielson and Wauregan, where the assault charged against De Clark is alleged to have taken place. The state rested its case at this point.

De Clark took the stand in his own behalf, following the reconvening of court after the noon recess. In direct and cross-examination he denied the charges brought against him by his wife and daughter, labeling their statements as "absolute lies."

Dr. Warren C. Tanner of Danielson was the only witness introduced by the defense. Reopening its case, the state, through Attorney Arthur G. Bill of Danielson, who is assisting State Attorney Bradford with the prosecution, produced a bundle of letters which Mrs. De Clark stated were written her by her husband during the days of their courtship in 1914. Desiring to know the contents of the missives, the defense counsel requested sufficient time to go over them in order to determine their validity, at which time Judge Jennings declared an adjournment until Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

LAPORTE ACQUITTED ON AUTO VIOLATION CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 25.—Failure of the statute relative to automobile lighting equipment, to state more definitely the meaning of the sub-section concerning reflectors for commercial vehicles, resulted in Philip Laporte of North Grosvenordale being found not guilty of a charge of violating this chapter of motor vehicle laws, when his case was heard by Judge Newell Jennings of Bristol at a session of superior criminal court this morning. Laporte was arrested on July 28, at 3:40 o'clock in the afternoon, and was charged with operating a commercially registered motor vehicle which was not equipped with the reflector now required on all vehicles of this type. In justice court in Thompson he was found guilty of the offense and fined $1 and costs. He appealed the lower court disposition and maintained his innocence when arraigned in court today.

His attorney, Harry E. Back of Danielson, argued that the law chapter was not clear in its passage, and in view of the fact that his client was not operating after sunset, and that the day was bright and clear there was no necessity for lights of any kind. Judge Jennings explained he had occasion to have this law construed before and in the Laporte case there was a question of doubt as to violation. Under the circumstances he said that he could not find the accused guilty and immediately cleared Laporte of the charges.

Mrs. Nettie C. Porter of Mansfield appeared in court this morning on a charge of failure to grant right of way. Her arrest followed an investigation of an automobile accident which occurred on July 13 of this year at intersecting roads in the vicinity of the Hampton hill, between the town of Hampton and Canterbury. The Porter car was in collision with another car owned and operated by Gable Manning of Waterbury, Conn. State Officer George F. Martin of Danielson barracks testified as to conditions as they appeared to him following his investigation. Three witnesses for the defense testified as to the precautionary measures taken by Mrs. Porter before she attempted to cross the intersecting roads. It appeared that both drivers used extreme caution, but the accident was of an unavoidable nature. Judge Jennings, in deciding the case, was in accord with this conception when he ruled that the woman was not guilty.

Landlord E. C. Rogers of the Putnam Inn has announced that approximately 150 members of the Brunswick Fox club and as many hounds of fox hunting species, will come to Putnam on Oct. 12, when the annual field trials will be held. There will be many followers of the sport who will gather here during the trials. The dogs will not hunt foxes, but will be set on the trails and judged according to their performances. This year will mark the first time in 34 years that the Fox club has not held its annual meet in Barre, Vt.

Seeking to stimulate the interest of Putnam boys in aviation, a group of local men have organized a unit of the American Air Cadet corps in this city. Alexander Gilman is chairman of the board of governors and others sharing in the organization work are R. C. Bosworth, Rev. J. D. Casey, Supt. of Schools Leon M. Farrin, Principal E. L. Robinson of Putnam High school, S. Nikoloff and Ferdinand Gagnon. L. G. Cullen of New London, a member of the national chapter interested in the spread of this idea, was in this city this week and assisted with the organization of the local unit. Each boy enrolling builds a model airplane. Upon completion of the plane it is given a flight test and if it stays in the air ten seconds or more the maker is given a pilot's badge. With the building of a second specimen the pilot is advanced to membership in the American Air Cadets corps of aces. If his plane remains in sustained flight for a period of one and a half minutes he is then given the insignia of the aces.

The model builders of the local chapter are eligible to enter their planes in the state and national tournaments. Local tournaments will be held here at regular periods.

The nurses' home fund treasury is rolling forward and during the past week, by the adding of another $1,000, entered the realm of big money. Many noteworthy events are planned for the next week, which should bring the total amount on hand at the expiration of that period nigh onto the drive finish line, which is $25,000.

Hayden "Bud" Franklin, former Putnam High school moundsman, in the final game of interclass baseball series played at Northeastern university in Boston, where he is a student, which was played Tuesday, pitched the sophomore class to a series victory. Franklin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Franklin of Chapman street.

PLAINFIELD

Mrs. Arthur Moffitt, of Providence, is visiting Mrs. Everett Dawley.

Many local people attended Brooklyn fair Wednesday.

Mrs. William P. Barstow was taken to Backus hospital, Norwich, Wednesday morning for an x-ray. She fell a week ago and injured her leg and has not been able to walk since.

Mrs. Harry Holloway returned home Tuesday, after spending a few days in New Bedford with Mrs. Irving Phillips.

Clarke—Rising Invitations

Invitations have been received to the wedding of Miss Thelma Clarke and Herbert W. Rising, Oct. 11, at the First Church of Christ, Congregational, Springfield, Mass. Miss Clarke is well known in Plainfield and Canterbury, where she has spent several summers.

JEWETT CITY

NEW BRIDGE OPENING IS UP TO CONTRACTOR

Within two more days the balustrades on the new viaduct will have been completed. Following this last act of the cement laying exhibition that has been going on all summer, oftentimes by night and day shifts, it is learned that the whole upper part, floor and side guards, are to be washed and polished. Much picking-up of odds and ends, removal of equipment and the job of taking out the log cribs in the river, yet remains to be done. Contractor M. A. Gammino has made some fine offers in the line of an opening celebration. The residents of the town of Griswold and the borough of Jewett City would be more than pleased to see him put it on big, and go over the top.

There are over 300 persons right here now out of work, who will volunteer to cheer, ride over the great bridge in a big Packard, and help shoot off the Roman candles and skyrockets. A considerable number of citizens have been approached in regard to a formal opening. While no local resident fails to fully realize what a beautiful example of modern architecture has been erected and actually nears completion, yet, here are some facts as expressed Thursday. Griswold as a town acting with the borough of Jewett City, has already voted $20,000 to be applied to a curb to curb street and for lights to extend as far as the town's Quinebaug boundary, which will be erected on the viaduct balustrade. The state of Connecticut refused to light the bridge, or to build the road over 20 feet in width, with this Main street 40 feet wide. Here appears to be the local situation. First Selectman D. F. Finn and Warden E. J. Jodoin hardly feel justified in appealing to the taxpaying public for further appropriations.

Down to brass tacks, if the contractor feels that he can do so, this great and beautiful viaduct merits any celebration he can give, at its final opening to the state highway traffic.

STONE HILL RESERVOIR IS STANDING UP WELL

P. A. Weaver, caretaker at the Stone Hill reservoir for the Jewett City Water Co. reports the big pond as 54 inches low. Last year at this time the gauges showed 10 inches less water then is recorded today. During September so far there has been on the Stone Hill water-shed a rainfall of only sixty-five one hundredths of an inch. In the fall of 1929, for the same 25 days period, the precipitation was 1.17 inches. In several cases local people returning from vacations, have expressed their pleasure at being able to again get a drink of Stone Hill water. Unlike many other community reservoirs, the local water does not deteriorate as the supply recedes. Thursday, with the figures showing almost 5 feet below the spill-way, the supply is colorless, clear and cool. On the other hand, the great Pachaug reservoir hasn't been as low for years. Down to its natural stream, the muddy water winds along through the grass grown pond bottom in a narrow crooked channel, seemingly sliced down into the hard clay by means of a great knife. Great bass, pickerel, bull heads and eels are literally crowding in this narrow sluiceway. If one steps over a few miles to the now quite famous Beach pond, there the water lines on the ledges are showing the marks of full pond.

It is a good thing to be a newsboy at any time, but more so just now. On their early morning rounds they are the early birds that get the first rake-off of the handsome brown horse chestnuts that have fallen during the night. Next arrive the school kids, and one would think a horse chestnut was made of gold the way two small boys will scrap over the possession of a nut. Put a nice shining horse chestnut out in sight on the sidewalk, partly covered with a brown leaf, and it is dollars to doughnuts that the next person to pass stoops and picks it up. Yes, even if it was the president.

VOLCANIC PRESSURE MADE "SQUEEZE-UP" ROCK FORM

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP)—The origin of "squeeze-ups," an unusual rock formation in Arizona, is explained in a report to the southwestern division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

This rock is basalt, heaviest of all stones. Harold S. Colton says volcanic pressure squeezed it up through the surface while still so hot that it was plastic like clay.

Some of them as they thrust into the air before cooling bent of their own weight in places forming graceful arches.

UTILITIES WERE HARDEST HIT IN LOSSES OF 1 TO 5 POINTS IN THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—(AP)—Refusing to accept the cheer it might have had from the firmness of the commodities, the strength of bonds and the cheapness of money, the stock market shrouded itself in gloom today and took another tumble.

Although the net losses of 1 to 5 points did not represent bottom prices touched on the wave of selling that rolled over the market in the afternoon, rallying tendencies in the late trading were feeble, indicating that the shorts felt confident of their position. Sales just exceeded 3,000,000 shares.

The average loss on the day was [illegible] points and the composite for 90 shares dropped to 156.7 only 2.7 points above the year's low, established on June 24. Utilities were hardest hit, but the industrials were not far behind.

Only at the opening did the market exhibit strength. The initial gains were quickly lost and prices then began an up and down movement that carried into afternoon, displaying little or no recuperative powers on the rallies and manifesting a willingness to go lower on increasing activity, until the list toppled over toward the beginning of the final hour.

The domestic news, such as it was, was on the whole moderately favorable. A large copper company cut its dividend and two affiliates omitted theirs, but the reduction was smaller than had been expected and the omissions were no surprise. Net operating income of 21 large railroads for August proved to be about 29 per cent larger than in July, although [illegible] per cent below August, 1929. Wheat rallied briskly for a time, sending September up to 80 cents. Grains closed steady. Bonds, especially the rails, took another spurt, aided by the easiest time money in two decades. Call loans were available at 1 per cent, but so feeble was the demand that some $50,000,000 went unloaned. In addition, the American Federation of Labor reported a definitely better trend this month in the employment situation.

Despite these favorable factors, speculative sentiment declined to come out of its slump. News of the Austrian cabinet's resignation and the fiery speech made by Hitler, the German fascist, concerning his plans for opposition to the Versailles treaty, seemed to re-kindle nervousness, although sources professing to have an intimate knowledge of central European affairs refused to be alarmed.

The break was not as sudden as yesterday's but it was nonetheless violent. Offerings were large in such important shares as U. S. Steel, American Telephone and General Electric, while scores of others dropped to new lows for the week, and the number making new minimums for the year reached a total considerably over 100. Among them were Radio, Gillette, Kennecott, Standard Oil of New York, International Harvester, Texas corporation, Shell Union Oil, Baltimore and Ohio, Chicago Northwestern and Chrysler. Petroleum and copper shares were particularly weak. The tobaccos and amusements, whose earnings give brighter promise, were steady. New York city tractions showed strength on a growing belief that unification of the systems was nearer.

Net losses in the more active stocks were not so large, but the cumulative effect of the recent breaks seemed to give them an added importance, especially since the market was approaching the June lows. U. S. Steel slid down to 157 3-4, or six points from its year's minimum, closing at 158 5-8, off 2 5-8. Consolidated Gas, American Telephone, North American, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, Westinghouse Electric, and Standard Oil of New Jersey, also yielded 2 or more net and there were 3 point losses at the close in International Harvester, American Smelting, Radio and United Aircraft. Eastman Kodak, Electric Auto Lite, and Worthington Pump broke 5 and J. I. Case, 10. Anaconda, after advancing 2 points on the dividend announcement, was up 5-8 net.

Wheat closed 1-2c lower to 1-2c higher. Corn's net gains ranged from 1-8 to 3-4. Cotton sagged 5 to 11 points.

Foreign exchanges were easier.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—(AP)—There was a bull market for railroad bonds again today in the New York Stock exchange.

Several dozen obligations of railroads moved up sharply into new high ground for the year on the strength of investment buying by institutions and some individuals. Some utilities also improved, and both groups—railroads and utilities—set new high figures in the averages, reaching the highest level in two years.

Irregularity marked the movement of the industrial list and the changes in the foreign list also were of a divergent nature, but the unsettlement which has been almost a daily feature for a week or more appeared to have waned.

Bond buying again received impetus from an easier tone in the money market, as further reductions were made on 4, 5 and 6 months loans. Call money remained at 2 per cent officially and loaned under that figure outside. Business was again at a $12,000,000 clip for the day, and on the basis of the past four days, the turnover for the week, should be close to the highest level of the year.

There was a large volume of new offerings and the $23,000,000 Chicago District Electric bonds, the largest piece of financing today, was reported over-subscribed. A new issue of $7,000,000 Tennessee Public Service company 5 per cent mortgage bonds is being offered tomorrow. Among municipal issues sold today were $3,500,000 Winnipeg, Canada, 4 1-2s and $1,000,000 City of Minneapolis, Minn., 5 per cent certificates.

The long list of new high prices for the year included Allegheny Valley general 4s, Baltimore and Ohio 1st 5s, Canadian National 5s, Canadian Pacific 5s, and 4 1-2s, Cincinnati Gas & Electric 4s, Colorado and Southern 4 1-2s, Federal Light and Traction 5s, Hocking Valley 4 1-2s, Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis 4s, New England Telephone and Telegraph 5s, New York Central 4 1-2s, and 4s, Nickel Plate 4 1-2s, Pennsylvania 4 3-4s, Pere Marquette 4s B, Western Union 6 1-2s, and Wabash 1st 5s.

A feature of the movement of utilities was the widespread activity in New York traction issues. They were strong on the election of directors for the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit interests to the board of the Interborough Rapid Transit. Some gains of 1 to 2 points, were registered on a turnover running into large figures.

Obligations of oil companies felt the influence of stocks, as did many bonds with stock privilege features. Amusement company bonds were especially weak. Pathe 7s, Loew's 6s, General Theatres 6s sold off from 1-2 to 1 1-2 points, Warner Brothers 6s, sagged 2 1-4 to a new year's low and Shubert 6s. lost 3 1-4 points.

The tone of the foreign market continued to improve. There was a flurry of selling of Austrian 7s on reports that the cabinet had resigned but the 7s closed unchanged after earlier weakness. German 5 1-2s sagged 1-2 point but the 7s, were unchanged. Buying of other German issues were the strong spot in the Latin American section.

Another large offering tomorrow is the $50,000,000 government of the Argentine nation one year 5 per cent treasury gold notes, proceeds of which will be applied toward payment of notes maturing October 1.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—(AP)—Futures closed steady. 5 to 11 points lower; spot steady; middling 10.55.

MONEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—(AP)—Call money steady 2 per cent all day. Time loans 30 days, 2; 60 days, 2a2 1-4; 90 days, 2 1-4a2 1-2; 4-6 months, 2 1-2a2 3-4. Prime commercial paper, 3a3 1-4. Bankers' acceptances, unchanged.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Sept. 23, were $11,911,567.82; expenditures $7,556,695.31: balance $339,203,015.36.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—(AP)—Oil shares provided the leadership for a further break in curb stocks today.

With activity at the best level of the year, a half dozen of the most active petroleum stocks, including Standard of Indiana, broke into new low ground for the year, on losses ranging from 1 to 4 points. Recessions in the general list ranged from a small fraction to 25 points.

The reactionary trend which carried many stocks to the lowest level of the year gained headway during the afternoon in sympathy with the trend on the big board. It followed a morning of uncertain price movements when many pivotal issues which have been under pressure steadied. Oil shares, however, moved downward from the start and the unsettling influence gradually spread to the rest of the market.

Standard Oil of Indiana, which has been fairly well supported in recent selling movements broke sharply under heavy volume of offerings, selling down 2 points and closing 1 1-4 off. Cosden sagged 5, but reached half of its loss, but together with Standard Oil of Kentucky, Gulf, Vacuum, and Richfield with warrants rested on new bottoms at the close. Cities Service was very steady, moving narrowly to finish 3-8 off.

There were indications that the principal interest of the bearish element had swung from utilities to petroleum and industrial issues for the reaction in the utility group was less violent than yesterday. Electric Bond and Share found support just above yesterday's low and lost only 1-4. However, United Light and Power, American Light and Traction, United Gas, Central States Electric, American and Foreign Power warrants lost about a point each, and American Gas and Electric, Electric Power and Light warrants, Tampa Electric, and New England Telephone and Telegraph, 2 to 4.

There was further crumbling of quoted values among industrials. Aluminum, Ltd., dropped 25 points to a new year's low, Consolidated Mining, 12, Huylers of Delaware preferred 20 1-2, Continental Shovel preferred, Cooper Bessemer, Crocker Wheeler, Aluminum Company of America, U. S. Radiator sagged 2 to 5 most of them to new lows for the year. Among the more active stocks weakness of Fokker Aircraft off 2 1-4, and Technicolor down 1 1-4, both to new 1930 lows stood out.

Small losses were the rule among investment and holding company shares. Ungerleider Financial slid 3 points on thin sales. Goldman Sachs lost 7-8.

Broadway Theatre

The story of "The Office Wife," the Warner Bros. and Vitaphone picture which closes its local engagement at Warner's Broadway today, is one that should interest every wife and every husband. It is a vital drama that might confront any man and any woman.

Lawrence Fellows, president of a publishing firm, believes that every wife is jealous of her husband's secretary, and every secretary jealous of the wife. He marries—and finds out later that every wife is not jealous of her husband's secretary. While he is becoming attached to his secretary, Anne Murdock, his wife, Linda, begins a flirtation with a young man of her acquaintance. Fellows does not know that his wife is falling in love with Jameson, and he does not know that Miss Murdock is falling in love with him. He only knows that he needs her—and when he goes away, he finds he has to send for her.

This intricate problem is finally worked out with Linda's asking for a divorce, and Fellows' awakening to the fact that Anne loves him, and that he loves her.

Dorothy Mackaill, who was such a sensation in "The Captive Woman," "The Barker," and "Strictly Modern," plays the role of Anne Murdock. Lewis Stone, famous for "Wonder of Women," "The Trial of Mary Dugan," "Madame X," "A Woman of Affairs," and innumerable others, plays the role of the unsuspecting husband. Others in the cast include Hobart Bosworth, Blanche Friderici, Joan Blondell, Natalie Moorhead, Brooks Benedict, Dale Fuller, and Walter Merrill.

Lloyd Bacon directed "The Office Wife."

Palace Theatre

"On Your Back," a drama with an entirely new plot and "Oh Sailor Behave!" a comedy full of fun are now playing at the Palace theatre on the double-feature bill which will be shown there through Saturday of this week.

"On Your Back" is the story of a mother who rises to great fame as a dressmaker so that she can give her son the best that there is in life. Her son is graduated from college and instead of getting down to business with the firm who has agreed to hire him, he falls in love with a chorus girl the mother has outfitted to attract his employer. He makes his choice in a very dramatic situation and the little chorus girl learns that greed can never justify the cause of true love.

The other feature on this program is "Oh Sailor Behave" which deals with the romance of a young newspaper man and his sweetheart, who though very much in love, manage to get into a scrape with a Roumanian general and a Russian prince which results in a temporary misunderstanding.

On Sunday the Palace will present John Barrymore in his third talking picture, "Moby Dick," the story of the great white whale which was the terror of the seas. This is easily Barrymore's greatest work and will long be remembered as one of the most thrilling productions in screen history.

SMALLEST SPLIT SECOND ONCE EVERY 3,000 YEARS

NEW YORK (AP)—Of all split seconds for time pieces the smallest is a fraction of one second in 30 centuries. This fine distinction can be made with a crystal clock described in a report to the National Academy of Sciences by W. A. Marrison.

The clock, he says, can be made to operate one clock on mean sun time and the other on sidereal time, which are only about one second apart in 30 centuries.

The crystal, of quartz, vibrates 100,000 times a second, and this is reduced by electrical gears to the required number of beats to operate a clock accurately.

The sun time clock, says Marrison, would operate at 366 cycles per second, while the sidereal clock would have 366 cycles minus 0.000,701,365 cycles per second, and the crystal arrangement can be made to maintain this fine distinction.

Shamrock Not Coming Back

Officials of the Electric Boat Co. at Groton have received a letter of appreciation and farewell from Col. Duncan Neill, sailing adviser for Sir Thomas Lipton. The colonel is now supervising the work of fitting out the defeated Shamrock V at the Herreshoff yard in Bristol, preparatory to the return voyage of the sloop to England. Shamrock, convoyed by Sir Thomas' steam yacht, Erin, will start soon, according to present plans. The jury rig is being placed. It had been expected that Shamrock would be brought to the Electric Boat Co.'s shipyard to be fitted for the ocean passage, but Colonel Neill explained that Bristol had been selected because the Shamrock, her tender Killarney and the Erin were in the vicinity of that place following the international races, and it was deemed more convenient to have work done there than to make a run to this port. Shamrock was fitted out for the races at the Electric Boat Co.'s yard.

ROCKET BOMBS REDUCE HAIL, SAY FRENCH FARMERS

This is the center of the hail prevention service in which many French farmers have absolute faith.

Here in the suburb Cusset are made most of the rocket bombs, and the seven-mile semi-circular line of outposts that protects farms around the city is one of the best organized in France.

The theory is that big rockets shot into storm clouds, exploded by precisely timed fuses, create waves that dissipate clouds and prevent the formation of hail.

When scientists question the efficacy of the method the farmers' associations show statistics to prove that where rockets are used there is a tremendous saving in lessened damage from hail, one of the scourges of this region. Hail stones of great size often are reported.

There are thirty "firing posts," to each of which are detailed two men, usually farmers, one of whom must always be on duty to act at the approach of a storm. As soon as storm clouds approach, the sentinels estimate the height and fire the rockets.

This hail service costs each farmer about eight cents an acre a year. Once cannon were used firing shells, but the rockets are said to be cheaper and better. Before that, there often were used big iron funnels with the large end up. A charge of powder rammed in the small end was exploded sending up waves that widened.

Bell ringing is practiced at Arronnes near here. A big inverted bell is rung loudly. As the village itself is in a funnel-shaped hollow, the sound waves rise and spread and the believers in this protection assert clouds are prevented from forming hail.

YANKEE FLIERS SET WORLD AIR MAIL PACE

In the first half of 1930 they carried 3,744,463 pounds, 202,575 more than they flew in all of 1928. European countries, though covered with a fine network of lines, have been unable to challenge the record.

Where the United States carried 7,097,281 pounds of mail in 1929, Germany reported 897,878 pounds; France, 216,714 pounds; and Italy, 141,652 pounds.

W. Irving Glover, assistant postmaster general under whom the American network has largely been routed, says that the air mail system "has done more to build up and stimulate the field of commercial aviation than any other governmental agency."

American mail pilots fly an average of 52,121 scheduled airplane-miles daily, speeding their cargo throughout the nation, feeding into lines that have spread in Pan-America and Canada, and to steamships that find planes waiting for them in foreign ports.

Great Britain, with little development possible on its isles, has pushed airways down into India; France has spread to Africa possessions and across to South America; and Japan is linked with the Asiatic mainland by air.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept. 25—(AP)—In a late selling flurry today, the wheat market suffered quick loss of 2 1-4c a bushel advance that earlier had step by step been attained. The sudden drop in wheat values went hand in hand with reports that James C. Stone, a member of the federal farm board, said he agreed with the theory that the price trend would be downward for the next few years. Many standing orders to stop losses at various set limits were forced into execution by the market tumble, but hurried rallies were in progress as trading came to an end.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous and irregular, ranging from 1-2c under yesterday's finish to 5-8c gain. Corn closed unchanged to 7-8c higher, oats 1-4a1c advance, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 12c.

Provisions were easy owing to scantiness of demand for lard.

FINE AND JAIL SENTENCE FOR LIQUOR SELLER

Found guilty of violation of the liquor law, William Urbanek, Central avenue grocer, was fined $200 and costs and sent to jail for ten days, in the city court Thursday morning. An undercover man for the police went into Urbanek's store Wednesday night and asked for some liquor to take out with him. He was refused, it is said, but was told that he could have a drink. This the police aid purchased, tendering a dollar bill in payment, while the storekeeper was making change at the cash register, the police aid took advantage of the situation and raced to the street with his purchase. Urbanek put chase after him but was caught by a police squad which was waiting for the trap to be sprung. Urbanek told the court he gave the police aid the liquor and said that the reason he chased the man was that he was anxious to return the dollar bill given him in payment.

STYLE EVOLUTION PARADE MAKES NOVEL FEATURE FOR FALL OPENING

A style procession, in which many of the Norwich retail merchants and automobile dealers participated, marked the official opening of the fall shopping season Thursday evening. Thousands of people lined the sidewalks in the principal streets of the city to watch the procession. As early as 7 o'clock people began to congregate along the curbings waiting for the parade to start.

The procession formed on Main street, east of Preston bridge, and got underway about 7:45 o'clock. Headed by Swain's military band the long line of machines moved through Burnham square, through Main street, to Washington square, down Water street, through Shetucket street, up Broadway to Chestnut street, through Chestnut to Willow street, down Franklin street, and back to Preston bridge where it disbanded. The parade marshals were Herman Sharpe, John P. Morley, Willard Haugh, and A. L. Lillibridge, who rode in a 1930 Cadillac immediately behind the band. The marshals comprised the parade committee, Mr. Sharpe, chairman.

From a strand in Franklin square the parade was reviewed by three judges who made the five prize awards offered as follows:

Lee & Osgood Co., prize of $25 for the oldest automobile, 1903 Rambler, entered in the parade. Hudson and Essex Co., second prize, $15, for 1909 Hudson entered. Third prize, $10, to Porteous and Mitchell Co., for 1913 Cadillac entered. Honorable mention to Norwich Gas and Electric company. The judges were Henry S. Lyon, Arthur E. Story and Earl W. Taggart.

From Horseback to 16-Cylinder

The Porteous and Mitchell company's entry was the most striking and the prize winning entry in the procession. Their display was headed by an Indian chief in full regalia, and on horseback, representing the original American style of dress and transportation of 1491. Then followed a stage coach about 150 years old with eight models costumed in the style of the year 1800, the "empire" period. The models were Miss Elizabeth Hallahan, Mrs. George Alstadt, Miss Mary Kirby, Miss Dorothy Edwards, Mrs. J. Callahan, Carl Kellner, George Alstadt and James F. Fleming.

Next was a tally-ho of the gay nineties with seven models costumed in the style of that period. The models were Mrs. Elizabeth Sheridan, Mrs. Dorothy Rogers, Miss Charlotte Bellows, Miss Mary Lynch, Francis T. Diggins, Joseph Ladzinski, Ralph Armstrong. The horses in the exhibit were lent by Chaney's outfit.

Riding in a 1913 Cadillac, lent by the A. C. Swan Co., were four models costumed in the styles in vogue 17 years ago. The models were Miss Julia Dunleavy, Miss Mary Goldberg, John Herbert and Joseph Connell.

The final section of the Porteous and Mitchell company's display was a 1930, sixteen cylinder Cadillac, with models costumed in the current fall mode. The models were Miss Futhrie Brynan and Herbert Ziegelmayer.

Covering 110 Years

Another most interesting exhibit was that of The Reid & Hughes Co. The Boston store displayed styles of dress covering a period of 110 years, as follows:

Year 1820—Mrs. George Phillips costumed in brown and blue checked taffeta with full skirt, measuring 15 feet around the lower edge with coat sleeve and long shoulder, finished with blue silk braid and covered buttons. The bonnet was of black silk with long plume on side. This dress was entirely handmade and was made in 1820.

An 1822 style of dress was an old fashioned dress made in that year of maroon taffeta with wide full skirt and large leg-o-mutton sleeves with short shoulder cape. The bonnet was of shirred taffeta with ties. Miss Edna Hastadt was the model.

Depicting the style in vogue in 1903 was a model, Mrs. Ella Smith, wearing a gown of white Hamburg embroidered valance lace, with full skirt, worn with black Fichu cape and leghorn hat with Louis the Fourteenth bandeau of flowers. They rode in a 1914 Chevrolet, loaned by the Austin-Chevrolet Co.

Models showing the latest in 1930 fall styles displayed a brown sport coat, gray wolf collar, with hat to match and a brown dress coat with Jip mink collar and oak brown soliel hat. They rode in a 1930 Chevrolet roadster, lent by the Austin-Chevrolet Co.

Three attractive models appeared in the entry by Caron's Ladies' Specialty Shop. They rode in a new Packard lent by E. B. Patterson, Inc., of New London. The models were Iva Cormier, Anne Anthony and Beatrice Caron. The styles displayed were: muskrat coat with Fitch collar; racoon coat; grey American broadtail coat; brown broadcloth coat trimmed with beaver; squirrel coat. The hats were by Collins.

W. C. Noyes, automobile dealer, showed the new eight Chrysler.

The Worth Shop's model, Gladys Sakowitz, rode in a Packard, entered by E. B. Patterson of New London. Miss Sakowitz displayed the black moire evening gown with transparent velvet wrap trimmed with Belgium lynx.

The new fall styles in shoes were exhibited by the Model Booterie, the models being the Misses Nattie Goldblatt, Mary Ibbison and Helen Lynch. Two pairs of shoes were on display on two pedestals in a 1931 Willys sedan, furnished by the Fontaine Motor Car Co., dealers in Willys-Knight and Whippet.

21 Years Development in Autos

Three machines were entered by the Hudson-Essex company, and showed the difference of development of machines in 21 years. An old 1909 Hudson roadster, with three passengers dressed in costume of that period, was followed by a Hudson brougham, 1931 model, and an Essex coach, 1931 make, bright and shiny in appearance. Riding in the model of ancient vintage were Miss Victoria LaBelle, Zeke Leffingwell and Louis Rivera.

A 1930 Auburn sedan was the entry of Olson's garage.

Modern Kitchen Exhibit

The finest display in its class was that of the city gas and electric department, which showed how a modern kitchen of 1930 should appear. This consisted of a small stainless porcelain table, at which was seated Miss Estella Mell, busily engaged in plying her trade, surrounded by an assortment of the latest in cooking utensils, an Easy Washing machine, a Crawford cooking range and a Ruud Instantaneous water heater. The small table was the exhibit of the N. S. Gilbert Co. The setting was illuminated with lights placed effectively about the machine.

An Automobile Antique

The antique of the automobiles in line was the old red Rambler touring car of 1903, belonging to Harry L. Lathrop, its driver, who had with him Henry Plante, Tom Smith and Leslie George, all in rube costumes. The machine had a single headlight in front of the radiator and two dash lights, these having kerosene lamps.

Entries in Parade

Among other entries were: The Baby Shoppe, showing the latest in infants' and young children's wear. Packard lent by E. B. Patterson of New London.

Silberman's Furniture Co. in new Marmon-Roosevelt sedan, Wm. H. Bailey distributor.

Buick 8 coupe, from Julian W. Williams, with Prentice Chase driver, Smith's Shoe store, models Miss Rita Cormier and Miss Alice Nuttur. Also Buick 8 sedan, Louis Maples driver.

Hupmobile 8 sedan, from George Moore, Morley's hat store, Jack Ward and Walter Brown models, B. Nightingale driver.

To Miss Mary Bundy, acting secretary of the Norwich chamber of commerce is due a good share of the credit for the success of the style parade and the window contest. Miss Bundy, in a most efficient manner, handled most of the detail work in connection with both features of the opening night's programme.

TWO STYLE SHOWS AT THE PALACE THEATRE TODAY

The second day's programme of the annual fall opening will comprise two style shows, today (Friday). This afternoon there will be a style show at the Palace theatre in which models will display women's intimate wearing apparel. Most of the Norwich merchants dealing in women's apparel will be represented in the show this afternoon. The matinee show is for women only.

There will also be a style show at the evening performance this evening when the latest in fall fashions will be displayed on the stage by models.

WANTS ROADSIDE FLOWERS LEFT FOR BEES AND BEAUTY

Pointing out that the wild flowers growing along the highways of the state form no inconsiderable source of honey supply for bees, Allen Latham of Norwich Town, a well known beekeeper, raises the question why town officials need to make a clean sweep of every growing thing when they start out to trim along the sides of the highways.

Mr. Latham presents his case in the current issue of The Connecticut Honey Bee. In part he says:

Most people little realize where the bees get their honey. . . . It is only the wild flora that amounts to anything for the honey bees. This must be said cautiously, for the buckwheat as a cultivated plant in restricted localities yields prodigiously. Then certain clovers are farm crops and these clovers yield honey. In general, however, it may be said that bees depend upon wild flora, and the beekeeper selects the site of his apiary according to the prospects offered by nature.

Beekeeping in localities very fully cultivated is very precarious. In rich farming districts few bees are kept with profit. In hilly districts, varied by low-lying lands, swamps and brooks, there is much waste land. Upon this waste land grow many plants that yield honey. The waste land is of two sorts, land which cannot be conveniently cultivated and land owned by the public and hence not cultivated.

If anyone will do a little figuring he will find that within reach of every beehive in Connecticut there are hundreds of acres of waste land of one special kind. This is the land bordering our country roads. Most of our road-ways are about six rods in width with a ten-foot road roughly in the middle. There is on either side of the road a strip varying from a few feet up to even 50 feet of waste land.

A few years ago this land was left for years untouched, then the brush and trees would be cut down. Again the land would be left untouched. Times have changed. The automobile calls for clear vision ahead. It has brought about the custom of trimming the roadsides every year. This custom has come with great loss to beekeepers.

Not for one moment would I be understood as under-rating the importance of clean and well-kept roadsides. As an automobile driver I fully appreciate the need of clear vision on the roads. But there is a happy medium in most of the problems of life. This happy medium is already being reached by the wise supervisors in the case of our state roads. The men trimming the state highways are instructed to leave the flowers, the low-growing and beautiful sumac, the goldenrod, the joepieweed, the asters, the brakes and ferns. They are told to cut away only that which grows up to obstruct the vision.

The wisdom of most of our town officials is of a different sort. A man in Norwich gets a job to cut the highways. He is told, "Cut everything." He does so. He enters a beautiful country road whose sides are thick with bloom of various sorts and with brakes and ferns and he slashes down everything. For a moment picture the result. Before he starts in the roadside is beautiful and to drive along it is a joy. There is a three-foot mat of varying color running from ditch to wall on either side. Then comes the cutter. Drive along the road a week later. Now there is brown and dead stuff lying between hundreds of ugly rocks and boulders. The roadside is an eyesore. There is not a thing of beauty left. All is ugly. Go over the road two or three weeks later. The brown stuff is no longer there. Now there are black spots six feet across every two rods, where the stuff has been piled and burned. Only stubble between smoke-begrimed rocks greets the eye of the traveler. Surely a splendid advertisement of the intellectual development of the man in charge of our highways.

I speak for the beekeeper primarily, but I also speak as a citizen who loves the beautiful. I see no need of making our roadsides hideous. There is no call for cutting more than six feet either side of the road. Let the rocks here be moved further out to make easier cutting. Then there can be two or three cuttings a year. The result will be beautiful. The road will have a clear vision. There will be a green border either side of the road. Between this green border and walls will be beautiful growth to cover the hideous rocks left by the road-makers, not to mention various dumps left by the highly-civilized portion of our citizenry. Discarded beds, stoves, etc.

Let all beekeepers work for this desirable end. It will bring added charm to our country roads and will bring larger crops of honey.

We might encourage the planting of desirable flora in the waste land. The state is doing this already. Instead of cutting down the beautiful sumac why not plant more of it along our roadsides. Put in goldenrod where it will add beauty. Cut down and uproot those plants which are not desirable. At present a great deal of public money is of loss. It might be made of profit.

NAME OCTOBER 9 AS REPUBLICAN CAUCUS DATE

Thursday, Oct. 9, was selected Wednesday by the republican state central committee as the date for the holding of town caucuses to nominate candidates for representatives in the legislature and for justices of the peace, and calls for these caucuses were issued Wednesday afternoon at republican state headquarters at Hartford. The call also specifies that this date is the designated one for holding probate conventions in such probate districts as consist of but a single town.

The state central committee meeting was held at the Farmington Country club and was preceded by a luncheon. In addition to selecting the caucus date, the committee adopted a resolution making a member of the state central committee the party treasurer for each senatorial district. In most cases, the treasurer will be the state central committeeman, but in the 35th district the state central committeewoman, Mrs. Annie E. Vinton of Mansfield, will be treasurer instead of the committeeman, United States District Attorney John Buckley.

The real issue of the campaign, the committee was told by speakers at the meeting, is the continuation of good state government. There was also a discussion of general plans for the campaign and details of organization. The speakers were Chairman J. Henry Roraback and Vice-Chairman Katherine Byrne of the committee, Governor Trumbull, Lieutenant Governor Ernest E. Rogers, candidate for governor, State Treasurer Samuel R. Spencer, candidate for lieutenant governor, Dr. William L. Higgins, candidate for reelection as secretary of the state, and Judge Warren B. Burrows, candidate for attorney general.

To the republican electors of the state of Connecticut:

"In accordance with the rule of the republican party providing that all caucuses and primaries for the nomination of candidates for representatives in the general assembly and justices of the peace shall be held in the several towns upon the same day, notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the republican state central committee held in Farmington, Sept. 24, 1930, Thursday, Oct. 9, was determined as the date for holding caucuses and primaries for the nomination of representatives, justices of the peace and judges of probate in probate districts comprising one town only.

"The chairman of the town committee in each town will give due notice of these caucuses and primaries by posting a call for such primary or caucus specifying the date, hour, place and purpose thereof on the public signpost in such town and also by publishing said call in a republican newspaper having a substantial circulation in such town, at least five days before the day of such primary or caucus.

"Wherever, in cities which include more than one senatorial district, the caucuses for selection of delegates to a city or town convention for the purpose of making nominations of representatives and justices of the peace have been held, such city or town conventions should be called on Thursday, Oct. 9, for the purpose of making said nomination.

"Town chairmen will take notice that in accordance with the statute all such nominations must be filed with the secretary of state on or before Oct. 17, 1930. Blanks for the return of such nominations have been mailed by the secretary of state to the town clerks of the various towns. Immediate return to the secretary's office is necessary.

"By order of the Republican State Central Committee.

"J. Henry Roraback, Chairman.

"Clarence G. Willard, Secretary."

Commander Bryant was present at the surrender of the German high sea fleet. From 1921 to 1924 he served on the U. S. S. Pennsylvania as fire control officer. From 1924 to 1926 his next assignment was as inspector of ordnance at the Midvale Steel Co. and Crampe shipyard, Philadelphia, Pa. At the latter place Commander Bryant was assigned to duty on the aircraft carrier Saratoga, which ship he put in commission in November, 1927, and served on her to August, 1930, as gunnery officer, when he was then detached and ordered by the navy department to take charge of navy recruiting in Connecticut.

Commander Bryant will be at the navy recruiting headquarters for the next two years for his tour of shore duty.

Art and originality shown by the 45 Norwich stores that were in the window display contest for the fall opening Thursday night made the work of the judges no easy matter to pick the winners in the different classes and it was after midnight before the results were announced.

Immediately after the style parade, three judges, Marguerite Hanson, assistant professor of art at Connecticut College for Women, Miss Ethel Woodward of Connecticut Agricultural college and Mrs. Ozias Dodge, of this city, started on an inspection tour of the numerous window displays arranged by Norwich merchants in competition for loving cup prizes offered in the various classes. SCHOLARSHIP AWARDED TO MISS MAUD BAILEY

The Connecticut Council of Catholic Women has granted a year's study in Washington to a Thomaston girl. Miss Maud Bailey, of Thomaston, was awarded a year's scholarship to the National Catholic School of Social Service, Washington, at a recent meeting of the administrative committee of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, held at the Polish orphanage, New Britain.

Miss Bailey, a graduate of Danbury Normal school and Boston university, is the fifth recipient of the scholarship, offered annually by the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women to candidates who show adaptability and promise in social work. In previous years, Miss Mary Lengen, Bridgeport; Miss Alice Moran, New London; Miss Jane O'Neill, New Haven, and Miss Doris McKeon, Hartford, have held the scholarship.

The meeting was held at the orphanage to give the members of the committee an opportunity to inspect the institution and especially to see the newly decorated dining room. This room, done over in a green and yellow scheme, is very pleasant. It was pointed out that much equipment is needed for the recreation room and it is hoped that these needs will be supplied by local groups of the council. It was voted that a state-wide institutional visiting committee be appointed. Miss Josephine Sullivan of the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service is to be staff-advisor on this committee.

Plans for the tenth annual meeting of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women were discussed also. It was announced that Miss Mary G. Hawks, president of the National Council of Catholic Women, will be one of the speakers. The meeting will be held at a luncheon in Hartford, early in November. Further plans will be forthcoming at an early date.

How Old Are You?

Today Said She — I'm 43

Am I Fat?—Not Me.

Yes! A year ago I had twenty-two more pounds of fat than I needed—I was fat—and very sentive about it—but now I say it is foolish for anyone to be overweight.

What did I do? Nothing very hard, I can assure you—I cut out pies—candy and all sweets—ate moderately and every morning before breakfast I took one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water—Never missed a morning.

I lost fat—gained in energy—vigor—charm and vivaciousness and have a shapely figure I am proud of—anyone can do the same.

A North Carolina woman lost 47 pounds in 3 months — a Montana woman lost 19 pounds in 4 weeks—Wisconsin woman 11 pounds in 6 weeks.

Every druggist in the world sells Kruschen Salts—a Bottle that lasts 4 weeks—costs 85 cents.

When YOU WANT to put your business before the public, there is no medium better than through the advertising columns of The Bulletin.

ZONING BOARD HAS THREE HEARINGS SCHEDULED

A. E. Shedd who has several gasoline pumps on his premises abutting on 557 Main street asks for the right to put a building over them for the sale of gasoline, which has been denied him because this is in a Class A residential district.

LONG PRISON SENTENCE FOR LEROY BUDDINGTON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 25—State prison sentences which will probably keep LeRoy Buddington of Center Groton in confinement for the rest of his life were imposed upon him late today by Judge C. L. Avery in the superior court, where a jury returned a verdict of not guilty on one count but guilty on four other counts of offenses against minor boys. The "not guilty" verdict was on a count alleging assault on a minor female.

The sentences were from 8 to 10 years on one count, and not more than four, three and two years on three other counts, making a minimum of 17 years for the total.

Buddington has been committed to the Norwich State hospital two or three times, getting into trouble with the law each time after he had been released on parole. On one occasion he ran off with the state hospital's motor fire engine.

Trial of Buddington occupied all of Thursday and the jury verdict was not returned till 6 o'clock, after the jury had been out less than an hour. Attorney Perry Hollandersky was counsel for the accused.

Witnesses who testified for the state were Ronald Hewitt, Robert Dart, Jr., George Dart, Carlisle Shelly, and Carolina Weeman of Poquonoc and State Trooper John H. Smith.

The jury members were the following:

New London—Orville E. Clark and C. Oscar Tracy. Stonington—James Cooper, George D. Johnson, Joseph H. McGuinness. Montville—John J. Doyle and Robert C. Burchard. Waterford—John Gallaher and George Gallup East Lyme—Walter Crocker and Frank Harris.

CASSIDY AND BROWN FOR SENATORIAL NOMINATIONS

Attorney Charles W. Cassidy, who was representative from this town in the last legislature, is the only candidate mentioned for the republican nomination for senator from the 19th district, which comprises the towns of Norwich, Ledyard and Preston. The senatorial convention for the nomination is to be held here Saturday.

The 20th, or shoestring district, is to hold its convention here on Saturday also, and prospects of a contest there have been dispelled by the announcement of the withdrawal of George Ross of Lisbon as a candidate.

This leaves the field clear for the nomination of Curtis F. Brown of Colchester, a former representative from that town.

HARTFORD MAN FINED IN PRESTON COURT

In Preston town court Wednesday evening, Allen Raymond, 29, of Hartford, was fined $100 and costs for driving a machine while under the influence of liquor. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

Wednesday morning a machine driven by Raymond crashed into a telephone pole and then knocked down a gasoline pump at Shewville on the Norwich and Westerly highway. He was shortly afterwards arrested by State Officer Arthur Whitmarsh on a charge of drunken driving. It is said that he told the arresting officer that he drank a half gallon of wine before he left Westerly, shortly before the crash. He is employed by a Westerly business man as salesman.

N. Y. REPUBLICANS NOMINATE TUTTLE FOR GOVERNOR ON REPEAL PLATFORM DRYS TO PUT THIRD PARTY IN FIELD

Republican Convention Nominated Charles H. Tuttle For Governor by Acclamation After a Tumultuous Demonstration—Secondary Nominations Also Were Made by Acclamation—Delegates Ratified the Repeal Plank by a Vote of 733 to 258—Dry Forces, Without Debate, Went on Record in a Roll Call as Opposing the Repeal Plank—Last Night the Dry Leaders Decided to Put a Third Ticket in the State Campaign.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Charles H. Tuttle, who came out of political obscurity three years ago and won wide attention in the federal district attorneyship of New York city by his prosecution of Tammany officeholders for violations of federal laws, was nominated today by the republican party for governor of New York.

He was nominated on a platform to his exact liking, the principal plank of which, phrased in his own language, called for repeal of the 18th amendment and substitution of an amendment outlawing the saloon and extending federal cooperation to dry states in the enforcement of state prohibition laws.

He was nominated by acclamation, after the most tumultuous demonstration a republican convention in New York has witnessed in ten years, and he accepted the call in an address in which he defined the issue thus: "Are we to have a governor who is bigger than Tammany hall?"

Once the prohibition issue was hurdled, the convention moved quickly to a harmonious flood tide of enthusiasm for Tuttle's nomination. Fears that the party would come to a break on prohibition faded this morning when the delegates ratified the repeal plank by a vote of 733 to 258. Dry forces did not debate the issue from the floor, but were satisfied to go on record in a roll call as opposing the repealer.

Mr. Tuttle's name was offered to the convention by General James G. Harbord and was greeted with a parade into which, within six minutes, every county banner had been thrust.

Attorney-General Hamilton Ward, only other candidate for the nomination, withdrew his name and asked his Erie county delegation to second and support the naming of Tuttle.

Mr. Tuttle told the convention that "the issue has been thrust upon us clearly in the 24 hours."

Referring, without naming him, to the refusal of John F. Curry, chieftain of Tammany hall, to waive immunity and testify before a special grand jury investigating charges of judgeship purchase in New York city, Mr. Tuttle said:

"Clean government asks no immunity. The issue of this campaign has been made by Tammany hall and it is this: Are we to have a governor who is bigger than Tammany hall or not?"

The prohibition issue was regarded as having been relegated to the background of the campaign by republican endorsement of repeal, since the democrats are committed to such a plank, although organized drys threatened to name an independent dry candidate for governor.

Nomination by acclamation became the order of the convention in the wake of the Tuttle demonstration, and the delegates proceeded quickly to nominate Caleb H Baumes of Newburgh, state senator and author of the Baumes laws, for lieutenant-governor; Daniel H. Conway, Oswego manufacturer, for comptroller; Isadore Bookstein, Albany attorney, for attorney-general, and Cuthberg W. Pound of Lockport for associate judge of the state court of appeals. Judge Pound's was a renomination in which the democratic party will concur at its Syracuse convention next week.

DRYS TO PUT THIRD PARTY IN THE FIELD

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 26—(AP)—Dry leaders decided here tonight to put a third party into the state campaign this fall. There was no decision as to the gubernatorial nominee.

The decision was announced in a statement which said the action of the republican convention in nominating an opponent of prohibition for governor and in adopting a plank asking the dry law's repeal had "made it impossible for the dry forces to support the ticket."

It said the worst elements in the party were put in the ascendency by the state convention's action.

"To assume that such forces are qualified to reform the state government and purify politics is ridiculous," the statement continued. The spokesman said there had been no decision as to who would be chosen as the gubernatorial nominee. A series of conferences within the next few days were expected to decide this.

Seven organizations were represented at the dry conference. They were the Women's Christian Temperance union, the Anti-saloon league, the New York State Civic league, the Prohibition Educational committee, the Prohibition State committee, the Woman's Committee on Law Enforcement, and the National Temperance society.

Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, state president of the W. C. T. U., said the drys were assured of plenty of money to finance their campaign. Among other leaders who attended the conference were Canon William Sheafe Chase, of New York, and Rev. O. R. Miller, of Albany, representing the Civic league; and Fred A. Victor, superintendent of the Anti-saloon league.

PROF. CARROLL DECIDES TO REMAIN IN RACE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Professor Robert P. Carroll, of Syracuse university, who announced today that he would withdraw as dry independent candidate for governor, tonight reconsidered and said he would remain in the race.

His latest announcement followed the statement in Albany today by Charles Seaman, field secretary for the Republican club for law enforcement, that Dr. Carroll would be the candidate of the law preservation party in the November election. At the same time, Mr. Seaman was quoted as saying that Mrs. Grace Robinson Hale, of Canton, would be a candidate for attorney general on the same ticket.

Dr. Carroll's earlier decision to retire from the field, was influenced by the withdrawal of W. C. T. U. support, indicated by statements made by Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, state president of the organization at Albany during the republican convention that Dr. Carroll would be asked to make way for a candidate more widely known in politics.

COAL MINE OF ILLINOIS WAS SCENE OF A RIOT

DUQUOIN, Ill., Sept. 26.— (AP) — United Coal and Electric mine number 11, near here, the largest strip mine in the world, was the scene of a riot today when miners in sympathy with the Howat-Fischwick faction of the United Mine Workers clashed with members of the John L. Lewis group.

Two men were cut with knives during the disorder, which occurred about 7 a. m., and many were injured in fist fights. No one was seriously injured, and no arrests were made.

Police said from 60 to 100 miners were in the fight, which started when sympathizers of the re-organized miners' union attempted to picket the mine in an effort to keep other miners from working until their members, who had been expelled from the union by Lewis, had been reinstated. Both sides have indicated they will swear out warrants. All the men live in Duquoin.

GUILTY OF THEFT, BREACH OF PEACE AND NON-SUPPORT

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 26—(AP)—Frank G. Anderson, 35, who was arrested yesterday in a barber shop three days after a suicide note written by him had been found, pleaded guilty to charges of theft, breach of peace, and non-support today in city court.

Judge Stanley Dunn sentenced him to jail for 90 days on the theft and breach of peace charges and gave him his choice of serving an additional 60 days in jail or posting a bond guaranteeing the payment of $15 a week toward the support of his wife and two children. The jail terms are to run concurrently if Anderson fails to post the bond.

Mrs. Anderson, who had the nonsupport warrant sworn out a few hours before her husband wrote the suicide note, made a futile plea for clemency in court in behalf of the accused.

ISMET PASHA RE-APPOINTED AS PREMIER OF TURKEY

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Ismet Pasha, who resigned last night as premier, today resumed that office by re-appointment of President Mustapha Kemal and possibly smoothed out a somewhat ruffled Turkish political situation.

Ismet's return to the premiership was considered to have forecast several cabinet changes, the most important being in the ministries of justice and economy. Tonight's survey of the situation indicated that Foreign Minister Tewfik Ruchdi and the finance, interior and defense ministers would retain their portfolios in the new cabinet.

POLICEMAN ARRESTED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 26.—(AP)— Patrolman Bernard C. Regan, of the local police department, was arrested today on a reckless driving charge following an automobile accident in North Haven in which two persons were severely injured.

Frederick Upton, 32, and his wife, Anna, 30, received multiple lacerations when a car driven by the policeman crashed into a telegraph pole after failing to negotiate a turn in the highway. They were taken to New Haven hospital. Regan escaped injury.

TWO CHILDREN LOCKED IN UNOCCUPIED HOUSE

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Two weary, weeping and thoroughly frightened six-year-old children for a time believed kidnaped, were returned to their parents here today after being imprisoned forty hours in the basement of an unoccupied house.

Juvenile court and school authorities planned severe disciplining of two ten-year-old boys, Everett Zell and Curtis Gilbert, accused of locking the children in the house as a prank after luring them there on a promise of "a bean shooter."

LAWYERS IN TROUBLE FOR ALLEGED FALSE STATEMENTS

HARTFORD, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The second lawyer within two days to be called upon to answer to a judge of the superior court for alleged false statements, Thomas F. McDonough, 28 years old, New Britain attorney, who despite his youth, has had an unusually successful career at the bar, was given a hearing before Judge Earnest C. Simpson today.

Mr. McDonough took the stand at the request of State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn and admitted that part of an explanation he gave to Judge Simpson in chambers Tuesday morning, concerning his tardiness in appearing in court, where he had two important cases scheduled for trial was false.

State's Attorney Alcorn asked for summary disbarment of Mr. McDonough, declaring that the judges are being imposed upon, "not only by the falsehood of witnesses upon the witness stand, but, in many instances, by false statements of counsel." The court room was filled with lawyers, who sat with rapt attention during the proceedings.

When Mr. Alcorn had finished, Mr. McDonough jumped to his feet and said it was pretty short notice to be called upon to defend himself, that he had no knowledge of the proceedings until just before the case was called and that the matter was one properly for the consideration of the grievance committee. He said that as a matter of law his offense was not one for disbarment.

"It was undoubtedly contempt of court for which the court could issue summary punishment to anyone, but I do not think it constitutes a basis for removing an attorney from practice, ruining his livelihood, and ruining his career, ruining his life," the young lawyer declared.

"I am uncertain," said Judge Simpson, "what I should do under the circumstances, and before you made a statement I thought perhaps I ought to give it further consideration, and I will consider it further until Tuesday morning and I will let you know what I shall do about it."

The case of Morton E. Cole, Hartford lawyer, who is about Mr. McDonough's age, is pending before Judge Allyn L. Brown and also has been continued to next Tuesday morning. Judge Brown summoned Mr. Cole before him Thursday to explain why he had given as a reason that a case assigned for trial Tuesday should go over for re-assignment by the claim that two of his important witnesses were in a hospital recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident when, as a matter of fact, they had been discharged some time previously. State's Attorney Alcorn is interested in that case.

ALLEGED SPIES IN CHICAGO POLICE DETECTIVE BUREAU

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.— (AP)— Acting Commissioner John H. Alcock deviated temporarily today from his gangster offensive to ferret out spies in the police detective bureau.

The inter-department investigation was opened when it was revealed that the names of eight "Scarface Al" Capone gangsters had been deleted from an arrest memorandum in the interim between the theft of an original copy from the chief of detectives' office and the preparation of the list.

"The department is infested with traitors who tip off the underworld," Commissioner Alcock said.

"This investigation will be the most thorough ever made in a police department. I'll find that leak. The detective bureau has been run in such a manner that it will take some time to weed out the racketeers and informers connected with it," Alcock said.

Tangible evidence of leaks was turned up last night by federal agents, when they raided the aCrleon hotel. Hidden in the room of Tony Tagenti, Capone bondsman, they found a secret police memorandum, listing 81 police characters slated for arrest.

BODY OF M. I. T. SENIOR WAS FOUND IN A FIELD

CAMBRIDGE Mass., Sept. 26.—(AP)—The body of Perry C. Davidson, of Marseilles, Ill., a member of the class of 1930 at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was found in a field owned by the institute here today. Both his arms had been slashed as by a razor blade and notes left for his wife, who lives in Marseilles, and his roommate convinced police it was a suicide.

MIDDLETOWN, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Peter G. Werbiski went to Meriden this morning and paid an installment on a mortgage on his home. When he returned only the chimney stood. Fire had started in the house, which was three miles from the town's center, and his family could not stop it. He set his loss at $5,000.

Soviet Document In Hands Of Committee

American Branch Communists Was Founded by a Man Hunted Out of Japan.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—(AP)—An official Soviet document was quoted in translation today to inform a congressional committee that the American branch of the communist third international was founded by a man hunted out of Japan by the police.

The document was the 1930 edition of the Soviet government "calendar" and it was produced before the congressional committee investigating communistic activities in the United States by George Djamgaroff, former czarist officer who said it had been "smuggled" out of Russia.

One of the excerpts translated by the witness said Sen Katayama, born in Japan in 1859, came to this country in 1884 and that he had been "forced to leave Japan where the police were hunting him." It was said that in 1916 he organized the left socialist group which was later merged with the Kommintern on third international. In 1918 he was appointed chairman of the American section of the Kommintern and is at present a member of its presidium.

The calendar listed William Z. Foster, communist candidate for the presidency in 1924, as a member of the executive committee of the oKmmintern and a candidate for the presidium, a position subordinate to Katayama's.

The first witness today was a detective from the police radical squad who showed a letter to the New York police from the chief of police of Seattle, Wash., enclosing a check for $5,200 found on a man arrested in Seattle. The check was signed by an organiaztion called the Friends of the Soviet union and was payable to an auxiliary of the Amtorg Trading corporation. The Seattle police chief said the man who had it described himself as a representative of the Daily Worker, New York communist newspaper.

Most of today's session was taken up by the reading of a long statement by Ellis Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers Journal, who appeared as a representative of John L. Lewis, head of the mine workers. Searles said the coal industry was in a state of disruption, disorganization and disaster, and asserted that because of these conditions the miners were fertile soil for communistic propaganda. He advocated legislation to regulate and stabilize the industry.

CHICAGO, S[illegible] (AP) —The board of trade[illegible]ed today to bar foreign g[illegible]s from selling grain future[illegible]xchange.

Aroused [illegible] short selling of wheat on[illegible]icago market by soviet R[illegible]ectors of the board ordered [illegible]ness conduct committee to pu[illegible]end to bear raids and price manip[illegible]ations. The committee was advised that unduly large short sales might be regarded as prima facie evidence of manipulation as distinguished from ordinary hedging sales.

Action of the board was announced in a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, dispatched after the close of a dull market day in which wheat futures, still lacking any element of appeal to buyers, slid down to bottom prices unfamiliar in 24 years.

The day's loss was from 2 to 2 3-4 cents a bushel. December wheat reached 80 1-4 cents and recovered only to 80 3-8 to 5-8. So quiet was the pit that the smallest transaction caused price fluctuations, and buyers displayed meager interest in large Canadian export sales and drought reports from the eastern hemisphere. The last minute decline coincided with renewal of reports of Russian offerings at Liverpool.

Without summoning witnesses, the board of trade business conduct committee resumed its inquiry this afternoon into the soviet Russian sales. It had the new mandate of the board directorate to employ vigorous measures to prevent bear raids, and it was expected the committee would formulate some plan to detect operations of foreign governments on the domestic market and perhaps draft a rule forbidding its members to handle such transactions

CREW REMOVED FROM A SINKING SCHOONER

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 26. — (AP) — Shortly before 3 p. m. today radio advices said the freighter William Nelson had succeeded in removing the crew of seven from the schooner "Our Son," waterlogged and in a sinking condition 20 miles off Ludington, Mich.

The William Nelson, her captain at first reported, was buffeted by such large waves that it was feared she would founder if brought about to take off the crew of the schooner.

The "Our Son," built in 1875, had been used to carry pulp wood from Canada to Muskegon, Mich., about 100 miles down the shore from Ludington. Her captain is Fred Nelson.

Northwest storm warnings had been hoisted this morning on all the upper lakes as the waves reached a fury comparable with that of early fall storms during the disastrous season of 1939.

The position of the schooner was in a part of the lake absolutely devoid of sheltering islands, and filled with bars and reefs. Charts indicated she was a short way south of Ludington.

L. OF N. EAGER FOR GENERAL DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE

GENEVA, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The assembly of the League of Nations, through its disarmament committee, went cautiously on record today as desiring the convening of a general disarmament conference in 1931, but declined to instruct the league's council to call such a conference specifically for next year.

Mindful of the necessity for full and careful preparation, the committee, which is composed of representatives of all delegations in the assembly, authorized the council to summon a general conference "as soon as possible." The committee also expressed the conviction that the next session of the preparatory disarmament commission, beginning November 3, would complete its work and leave the way entirely clear for a general gathering of nations to take up the problem of limitation of arms.

FOR GERMANY'S ECONOMIC AND POLITICAL SALVATION

Chancellor Bruening is Carrying Forward a Vigorous Program—Not Deterred by the Revolutionary Utterances of Adolf Hitler—Hitler, Questioned About the Meaning of the Third Empire, Left the Impression That He Did Not Know Himself—Hohenzollerns Are Not Slated to Play a Role in the Third Empire.

BERLIN, Sept. 26—(AP)—Chancellor Bruening carried forward vigorously today a program for Germany's economic and political salvation with which the cabinet has been wrestling practically continuously for the last two days.

Undeterred by the revolutionary utterances of the fascist Adolf Hitler and its effect upon the country, neither President Von Hindenberg nor his chancellor could be prevailed upon today to break their silence regarding the potentialities of the Hitler program.

In Wilhelmstrasse circles it was deemed their silence meant they felt it inopportune to make a statement which might be considered as an attempt to influence a pending decision of the attorney-general whether to indict the fascist generalissimo for treason. Others said any form of government utterance would give Hitler's fiery oratory before the Leipsic court an importance it did not deserve.

Chancellor Bruening intends to step before the people with a proclamation embodying the results of the cabinet's persistent efforts of the last 48 hours and asking the nation's support thereof.

Should parliament refuse to endorse the government program persons close to Dr. Bruening declared the chancellor would find some way of putting his policies through without the assistance of the reichstag. Just what card the chancellor had up his sleeve he would not divulge but let it be known he considered it his duty not to yield to the group of disgruntled ones swept into the reichstag in Germany's hour of economic depression. In other words, Dr. Bruening seems determined to be a dictator in fact, if not in name, if necessary.

Reviewing Hitler's testimony in Leipsic, German politicians found today that the fascist chief had proclaimed as his goal the erection of a "current empire" but apparently his followers, and even Hitler himself, did not know just what form it is to assume.

It seemed certain, however, that the Hohenzollerns are not slated to play a role in the Hitler third empire. This is apparent both from the fascist leader's utterances on the witness stand and from the attitude of German monarchists, who have been quick to deny that any Hohenzollern has allied himself with or joined Hitler's movement.

Hitler stated the case for the third empire thus:

"For us the old German empire, which ended in 1918, was a highly honorable state for which we fought and a state of glorious events, but was so constructed that the conception of the people did not form its very core. The second state, founded in 1918, placed democracy and pacificism in the foreground. The hope for the third empire, all of whose institutions will be devoted to keeping nationalism alive."

The judges of the Leipsic court made repeated attempts to get Hitler to explain his meaning of the third empire but Hitler kept on replying to their questions in abstruce terms, giving the impression that he did not know himself.

That Hitler did not intend to erect a monarchy would seem evident from the statement he had made after the election of Sept. 13 when asked whether he would form a coalition with the Hugerburg nationalists who are avowedly monarchistic. "We national socialists are a social-revolutionary party," Hitler asserted, "while the German nationalists are social-reactionaries. This difference constitutes a chasm that cannot be bridged."

35 TAMMANY LEADERS ARE TO BE SUBPOENAED

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The extraordinary grand jury investigating corruption in the city judiciary virtually marked time today while nine Tammany district leaders appeared before it only long enough to refuse to sign waivers of immunity and be excused as witnesses.

The parade of recalcitrant Tammany henchmen before the grand jury was started by John F. Curry, leader of Tammany hall, who on Wednesday declared he was "insulted" by a request to waive immunity. In all, 17 Tammany leaders have balked at the opportunity to tell the investigating body what or whether they know about existence of a system of barter controlling appointments to the bench in New York.

The reason given by some of the leaders for their refusal to sign waivers was that the purpose of calling them was not specified and that the inquiry is of a political nature. Hiram C. Todd, special prosecutor in charge of the investigation, denied the charge of politics.

All 36 Tammany leaders in Manhattan will be subpoenaed, he said. Four, so far, have signed waivers of immunity and have testified. Regardless of whether the remaining 14 leaders testify, he said, the grand jury will take its evidence wherever it can be procured. He declined to indicate where this evidence may be found.

APPELLATE COURT GRANTS APPEAL OF ALEX. PANTAGES

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The appellate court today granted the appeal of Alexander Pantages, theatrical magnate from his conviction and prison sentence for assaulting Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, ordering a new trial. Pantages, who was sentenced to one to 50 years in prison, has been at liberty under $100,000 bail.

The appellate court's decision was made on the elderly theatre magnate's appeal from the superior court's refusal to grant a new trial. The higher court reversed the lower court's findings.

The first reason assigned for ordering a new trial was the appellate court's finding of prejudicial error on the part of the district attorney, Buron Fitts, and his deputy, James Costello. A second cause was set forth as error by the trial court in refusing to allow defense counsel to examine a prosecution witness regarding whether a criminal charge had been brought against the witness in Texas.

FASCISM FIGURES IN TRIAL AT BRUSSELS

"It is the fascist rule that is being tried," declared De Rosa's counsel, at the end of an impassioned speech.

Prominent Italian anti-fascists and Belgian liberals have taken the witness stand to suggest that fascism being what, in their view, it is, De Rosa's action was natural to an emotional young man who is also a patriot, but according to the public prosecutor, fascism has nothing whatever to do with the case. The prosecutor insists the purpose of the trial is to determine whether De Rosa attempted to assassinate Prince Umberto and declared that the evidence showed clearly that the youth did attempt such a crime.

To this declaration the defense counsel replied that, on the contrary, De Rosa obviously did not intend to kill the prince, since he was too far from the royal visitor when he fired the shot to make a reasonable attempt against his life. Furthermore, the defense pointed out, De Rosa did not fire a second shot.

END OF CIVIL WAR IN CHINA PROMISED IN FORTNIGHT

NANKING, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Government dispatches tonight said nationalist troops had smashingly defeated northern alliance rebels on a wide front in Honan province, hurling them into their base at Chengchow. End of the civil war which with banditry and famine has devastated China since May, was promised within a fortnight.

Headed by their president and generalissimo, Chiang Kaishek, the nationalists plunged westward along the railroad from Kaifeng, captured Wednesday. The demoralized insurgents gave way rapidly but fought a sharp engagement near Chengchow before taking refuge behind the city's high walls.

The nationalist hammered at the gates while their airplanes dropped bombs with intent to drive the rebels across the Yellow river ten miles northward.

HOSPITAL WILL BE NAMED WINDHAM COUNTY MEMORIAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 26—The new community hospital, for which a drive for $500,000 will be launched soon, will be known as the Windham Community Memorial hospital if a resolution of the board of directors to that effect is approved by the incorporators next Wednesday. The change of name from St. Joseph's hospital is recommended by the directors as indication of a complete withdrawal from the use and administration of the present hospital and as further attest to the non-sectarian character of the new institution.

The proposed change of name meets with the approval of the present administration of St. Joseph's hospital. St. Joseph's church which has furnished the building for hospital usage for the past 20 years is now in need of the building for other purposes and has so notified the hospital directors.

In view of this desire of the church to be released of the responsibility of providing a hospital with the free use of its buildings and the services of the Sisters of Charity of its convent, the church raises no objection to the proposed change of name. While the church is anxious for the release of its buildings, it has agreed to give the directors full co-operation in every way and to continue the full operation of St. Joseph's hospital until the new structure is completed and occupancy of it begins. The directors have made frequent expression of the gratitude to the Catholic church and to the sisters for carrying the community's hospital responsibilities for the past score of years.

There will be two trains removed, one arriving here from Boston at 3:00 p. m. and the train due here at 12:59 p. m. for Boston, the latter train having been a through train here.

Despite the fact that changes and reductions on the schedule are slight, the new time table will, nevertheless show the smallest number of passenger trains arriving and leaving this city in the history of railroading. For some years past passenger trains over the Air Line and Providence divisions have not been run. The new schedule provides for but eight trains, four east bound and four west bound on week days and Sunday and a train leaving here for Hartford daily except Saturdays and Sundays at 6:55 a. m. The motor-driven passenger train of the Central Vermont railway will run on the following schedule: South bound, leave at 10:55 a. m. and 5:24 p. m.; north bound, 6:57 a. m. and 3:15 p. m.

Stickney, a graduate of Brown university, reports a total of one hundred forty-eight in the four classes. From a hundred to a hundred twenty-five pupils have been the average in past years. One reason for the increase in attendance this year is the larger number of tuition pupils coming to the academy from surrounding towns. Last year there were only five tuition pupils whereas this year the number has increased to twenty-two. In order to care for this increased enrollment, it has been found necessary to secure the services of an additional instructor. DANIELSON

LARGE CROWD GREETS RING AND POLITICAL NOTABLES

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 26—A very considerable gallery of spectators gathered at Railroad square here just before 3 o'clock this afternoon to await the arrival from New York of the delegation from that city coming here to help make a big success of the benefit boxing show at the state armery this evening.

In one of the cars, driven by State Officer John Murphy of the Danielson barracks, was Lieut. Governor Ernest E. Rogers, the republican nominee for governor, who came along from his home in New London as a special guest of the day.

After remaining here for a time the visitors were joined by a party of about twenty professional men, business men and borough and town officials and proceeded to Thompson, where they were entertained at a dinner at the Russian Bear. At this affair Judge Sabin S. Russell of Danielson presided as toastmaster.

The party remained in Thompson until shortly after 7 o'clock, when all motored back to Danielson, to arrive in time for the opening of the boxing show shortly after 8 o'clock.

Entertains State Officers

Dr. H. D. Klots, a noted New York physician who has a summer cottage on the shores of Old Killingly pond at East Killingly, kindly gave a showing of motion pictures he made during a trip to Europe the past summer in the large garage at the barracks on North Main street last evening. State officers and a number of guests greatly enjoyed them. The opening scenes were aboard the Leviathan, the great vessel commanded by Commodore Harold Cunningham a personal friend of Dr. Klots. The pictures shown were made in England, Italy and France and were delightfully entertaining. Refreshments were served.

Prize drills under the New England association rules are to be held in the town hall here on Saturday, Oct. 11, with St. James' guard of Danielson as host. Prior to the contest drills, which will be judged by members of Danielson military units, there is to be a parade of the visiting guards, headed by the well known Sharpshooters' Drum corps of New Bedford. Entries from ten guards have been received to date, five of these made up of girls, five of men.

Rev. Harding W. Gaylord has been elected president of the Council of the Danielson Federation of Churches for the ensuing year. Sidney H. Perry of the Methodist Episcopal church was elected vice-president, Miss Grace M. Stanton of the Baptist church, secretary and George B Guild of the Westfield Congregational church treasurer.

Reports covering the past year's activities of the Federation showed it to have been an active period.

The courses in vocational home economics arranged by the state board of education will open at the high school next Monday. So widespread is the interest shown in these courses, which are to continue for a period of nine weeks that upwards of 180 enrollments have been received. Because of the large number who will attend Mrs. Lela Cummings, who will be in charge, will be given assistants. In the classes having to do with foods there are 90 registrants.

Miss Dorothy Hill, a graduate of Brown university, has been added to the faculty of Killingly high school. It has been found necessary to add a teacher because of the unusually large enrollment at the school this year.

After having spent the past week with Treasurer Sidney W. Bard of the Brooklyn Savings bank and Mrs. Bard at the Bard home in Brooklyn, Mrs. John D. Hull wife of a former rector of St. Paul's church at Plainfield will motor with Mr. and Mrs. Bard to her home in Leominster on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Hull spent the past week end here.

PUTNAM

DECLARK IS SENTENCED TO 8-15 YEARS IN PRISON

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 26—Pedro DeClark, 34, colored, of 66 School street, this city, was sentenced this morning to serve a term of not less than eight years nor more than 15, in the state prison at Wethersfield on a charge of incest. Sentence was by Judge Newell Jennings of Bristol, presiding over the criminal and civil terms of superior court now in session here.

The DeClark case was the first to be taken up following the closing of the short calendar session today. The state had rested its case with the adjourning of court Thursday afternoon and, had the trial continued, it would have been carried on by the defense. During a short recess after the closing of short calendar business, defense and state attorneys conferred in chambers with Judge Jennings and immediately upon DeClark's presentation he pleaded guilty.

State Attorney Howard C. Bradford, addressing the court, stated that as much of the case as can be heard has been entered and with the sordid tales of the 14-year-old daughter of DeClark and Mrs. DeClark already on record, he saw no necessity for continuing further. Defense Attorney Harry E. Back of Danielson pleaded with the court for leniency, asserting his client is the father of a large family and their future, together with the fact that he is an excellent tradesman, should be considered.

Judge Jennings said that the seriousness of the offense in its treatment by the legislature shocks the conscience of every normal mind. He said cases of this nature are difficult ones because, in each instance, the court is entirely dependent upon the testimony of a minor girl.

"I am satisfied," Judge Jennings said, "that this is the correct plea and had the accused not decided upon it at this time, I was prepared to deal with him with great severity, because the testimony given by him on the stand yesterday I did not believe, he did not believe, nor did anyone else in the room believe. The sentence of this court shall be not less than eight years nor more than 15 years in the state prison."

His wife, Mrs. Albertina DeClark, and his daughter Mary, whose sordid damaging testimony was made against the defendant yesterday, were not present when the fate of the husband and father was made known today.

Shorr Gets Year In Jail

A sentence of one year in the county jail at Brooklyn was given to Solomon Shorr of Willimantic. Shorr pleaded guilty to a charge of theft of $68 from John Midger of Willimantic. According to State Attorney Howard C. Bradford, Shorr was arrested in Danielson some weeks ago while he was attending a carnival there. The offense alleged in the complaint against him occurred in Willimantic, while a large crowd of spectators was watching a police investigation of an automobile accident that occurred at the intersection of Ash and Main streets. Shorr milled his way through the crowd and picked the purse of money from Midger's pocket. Midger felt the frisking he had received and turned in time to see Shorr making his escape. He followed him to an automobile and, during an altercation that ensued, forced Shorr to return the purse. A warrant for Shorr's arrest was issued at a later date, resulting in his being arrested a few days later in Danielson. When previously arraigned, Shorr entered a plea of not guilty and elected trial by jury However, on the advice of his counsel, he reconsidered and accepted the jail sentence, recommended by the state attorney.

State Rests in Adultery Case

Court was adjourned at 4:30 o'clock by Judge Newell Jennings, when State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford informed the court that the state rested in the trial of the cases of Ira L. Raynsford and Viola Bennett Hubbard, both of Mashentuck district, East Killingly, who are jointly charged with adultery. The trial of these cases occupied the greater part of today's session. Among the state witnesses testifying today were State Officers Elton T. Nolan and Henry M. Mayo of Danielson barracks and Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, barracks commandant, all of whom were connected with the arrest and questioning of Raynsford and Mrs. Hubbard, on Aug. 24.

The state officers told of going to the Raynsford farm in East Killingly on the night of Aug. 24, where they found sufficient evidence to warrant the arrest of the farmer and his housekeeper on charges stipulated in the warrant, procured the following day.

Attorney Irving H. Miron, a member of the defense counsel, was the first witness to testify—for the defense. Under examination by Attorney S. B. Harvey of Willimantic he told of going to the office of Attorney A. G. Bill of Danielson on the day following the arrest of Raynsford and Mrs. Hubbard. He said he was accompanied by Judge William Fenner Woodward, judge of the town court of Killingly. Mrs. Hubbard, he said, had been taken before Mr. Bill, who is prosecuting attorney in the Killingly court, where improper attempts had been made to induce her to make incriminating statements against Raynsford, her employer. Mr. Miron stated that he inquired of Attorney Bill why Mrs. Hubbard was being detained. The reply was, "she is a state's witness and is going to talk." Officers Mayo and Nolan were present at the time, the attorney asserted. Inquiring of Mrs. Hubbard if he was her attorney and receiving an affirmative reply, Mr. Miron said he asked his client if she wished to go home, to which she answered, "Yes."

As she reached the door of Attorney Bill's office, Officer Mayo prevented her exit by placing his foot in front of the door. Mr. Miron said he then appealed to Judge Woodward, who said that he did not wish to have any part in the transactions. At length Mrs. Hubbard was allowed to depart and she was quickly followed by Mr. Miron. This gesture brought the state officers along and Attorney Bill, who informed the Putnam lawyer that he was going to secure his arrest on grounds of tampering with a state witness. Attorney Miron said he invited execution of the threat, but no action was taken. However, he retained Attorney Harry E. Back of Danielson to defend him, in case the prosecuting attorney should pursue his original intentions.

Attorney Miron's testimony brought some laughter from the court audience.

Raynsford and Mrs. Hubbard both denied the allegations of the state officers and asserted that some parts of the policemen's testimony were without foundation.

The jury empaneled for the Raynsford case today was made up of Lester B. Williams of Brooklyn, William Carroll of Plainfield, James J. Byrnes and Arthur Grosvenor of Pomfret, Leon J. Moffitt of Scotland, Ernest B. Kent of Putnam, Leander Wright of Ashford, Elbert L. Baker of Brooklyn, Wilfred E. Burdick of Chaplin, Byron Bingham of Canterbury, George S. Platt of Pomfret and J. Lennen Sumner of Woodstock.

The trial of the case will be resumed with the reconvening of court on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

The Anselm Mayotte post, No. 13, American Legion, has opened its convention headquarters at the Putnam inn. The rooms chartered by the post will remain open until after the close of the national convention of the veterans' organization, which is to be held next month in Boston. Signs, containing directions to the post headquarters, are posted along the trunk line highways entering the city and in Bugbee square, two markers are attractively placed on the traffic beacon there for the guidance of the touring Legionnaires, seeking road information and directions to the convention city. The Putnam Legion bureau is in charge of members of the auxiliary during the day time hours, while its affairs are being managed by the post members themselves at night. During the one week period preceding the opening of the convention, the local post expects to

SEVERAL FINED FOR AUTO LAW VIOLATIONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Sept. 26—Judge Oliver H. Williams held the Friday session of third district court when court matters were disposed of as follows:

Criminal Docket—State vs. Herbert B. Tragaskis. Continued one month.

State vs. Joseph Tavernesto, charging assault upon his wife. Attorney C. E. Roche appeared for the defendant and asked for a week's continuance, but Chief of Police Brown declared the state was ready. The chief said that the man and his wife, the complaining witness, were ready to get together again. Judge Williams said he would interview parties in his office at the close of the court session and direction was given for witnesses under summons to appear without further summons at the continuance of the case, Oct. 3rd.

Frederick Mellow, charged with violent assault upon his wife, Jennie Mellow, on Sept. 25th, plead guilty to the complaint. Prosecutor Ferguson told the court that the defendant had gone to his home after midnight, pulled his wife out of bed, struck her with his fist and had a rock in his hand with which he hit her over the head. He also declared that he had a knife and was going to use it. To what length he would have gone with his threat the prosecutor did not know for at this point his wife escaped. The accused said he was sorry for what happened when he was intoxicated and would go to work on next Monday morning. Judge Williams continued the case subject to a hearing with all parties and Chief Brown in his office.

John A. Shawney, 49 East Canton street, Boston, was before the court charged with driving of his auto in Richmond on the Nooseneck Hill road on Sept. 4th in a reckless manner. The accused plead guilty, saying that he was speeding to the bedside of a dying relative. Corp. Taylor said the defendant drove at a rate of 60 to 65 miles per hour from the Richmond-Exeter town line, 68 miles an hour down Tefft Hill where numerous accidents had occurred and 58 miles an hour through Hope Valley. The defendant said he had driven for 5 years and had two ill relatives in Boston and one in New York. This, the judge declared, did not excuse him from the charge of reckless driving. He was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs which the accused had difficulty in raising.

To answer to charges of speeding autos there was no appearance by Harry L. Gossaline, summoned by Corp. Taylor; Louis Abrahamson, who was also summoned by Corp. Taylor, and James L. Hagan, summoned by Trooper Albert L. Hill.

Civil docket—In the case of Thurman Eldredge vs. Leonard R. Main, Attorney George R. McKenna argued a motion for discharge and release of bail, stating that certain necessary elements were lacking in the affidavits. On Attorney's Ferguson's objection, court continued the hearing to consider the matters, and in event the case came to court, by agreement of counsel it was set down for trial on next Friday.

As Prosecutor and Coroner John Ferguson had not completed the hearing of all his witnesses in the case of Joe Stedman, who is held on suspicion in connection with the death by gas of his wife, Alice E. Stedman, the arraignment will go over until next week. He is being held without bail by Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown. His bookkeeper is also held without bail as a material witness. Attorney Clarence E. Roche has been retained for the Stedman defense.

On the subject, "A Prophet is Without Honor in His Own Country," and "Distance Lends Enchantment to the View," Mr. Potter gave a synopsis of the late Russell H. Conwell's famous lecture, "Acres of Diamonds," and in closing referred to local objects and affairs and paid tribute to Griswold's largest oak, speaking as follows:

Address by John Potter

"Upon the threshold of nearly every New England home there stands a boy with longing eyes, seeking some new field in which to carry his modest patrimony.

"Far be it from me to attempt to discourage the energetic or progressive, but the roadway leading to fortune and success is lined with deserted vehicles that have failed to reach their journey's end.

"There are opportunities so near us that sometimes we look over and beyond them and sometimes we stumble upon them with our head in the clouds and our eyes fixed on the stars.

"The sun shines as brightly upon the church across the river as it does upon the skyscrapers of New York. It shines as brightly upon Pachaug pond, when it is there, as it does upon the lakes of Switzerland, the golden sands of California, or that paradise we call Florida.

"People from foreign countries, unacquainted with our customs or habits and unable to speak our language, locate in our midst and prosper and thrive. Certainly we can do as well.

"Just across the roadway, upon the green, in front of yonder church, there stands a mighty oak. It has stood there for probably 200 years, possibly for a longer period, and to all outward appearances it seems capable of standing there for 200 years to come. It is large of girth and long of limb. Many years ago this tree was credited in the annual report of the Connecticut state board of agriculture with being one of the largest trees in the state of Connecticut, and it still enjoys that distinction. The germ from which it sprung was once contained in an acorn which a person could hold between the thumb and finger, and previous to that it was enclosed in a bud smaller still, and before that it was a tiny speck so small as to be invisible to the naked eye.

"Yet, from these small beginnings has sprung this giant, to breast the storms of centuries.

"Each spring time it has covered itself with a cloak of gray, each summer it has dressed itself in green, each autumn it has robed itself in raiments of crimson, and each winter it has covered the earth about it with a carpet of golden brown.

"Both summer and winter, with outstretched arms, it has offered its shelter and protection to bird and beast and man.

"It has withstood a thousand storms, and it has grown stronger and larger and better, as the years have come and gone.

"It has never moved from the spot where it first was placed, but during the many years of its existence, it has drawn all of its strength and energy and beauty from the earth and air about it, within the area of a circle whose diameter would not be more than 200 feet.

"Might we not take a lesson from this old oak?"

Refreshments were served and dancing followed. The orchestra played and Adam Medick and Albert Lindell prompted. The committee for the next meeting is Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Roode and Miss Etta York.

TWO-LANE WATER TRAFFIC

When the steamer Fairfax struck and sank the tanker Pinthis off the coast of Massachusetts last June with the loss of all aboard the tanker, the investigation resulted in the recommendation by Dickerson Hoover of the steamboat inspection service that water traffic along that coast should be maintained in two channels, the north and south-bound traveling in different lanes so far apart that there would be little or no danger of a collision. Fog was responsible for the crash of the vessels and, under similar conditions, it is possible for such a disaster to be repeated.

While the inquiry developed no cause for punishing the captain of the Fairfax and he was exonerated from blame, the need of preventing such a collision, or near collision, in the future was manifest, and it is probably apparent to those who guide ships that that is not the only point along our coastline where a similar protective measure is needed. Whether it can be developed is being left to a committee of shipping men who have been appointed to study the situation and report on the advisability of directional shipping lanes, not only along the Massachusetts coast but in Long Island sound, and at such other points as need it.

The answer will be awaited with interest but the desirability of such a step is apparent. Although promising reports are made regarding the overcoming of fog, it is apparent that those who operate ships must look to all possible methods of preventing collisions when the curtain shuts down. That they should be anxious to have separate lanes established seems probable. That there should be efforts to put into operation this preventive measure cannot fail to get due recognition. It is a move to do something that will make other crashes less likely and whatever will operate to such an end is entitled to all possible cooperation. It indicates that the steamboat inspection service is making real efforts to fulfill its duty. Too often it is the case under such circumstances that nothing in the way of a preventive move is undertaken.

NEW YORK REPUBLICANS

In their convention in New York state the republicans have met the issue of prohibition, met it squarely, and met it in accordance with the sentiment of the man who has been desired as candidate for governor and who has been given the nomination by acclamation. New York is one of the states where there is a strong wet sentiment and where it is certain that the democrats will place a repeal plank in their platform. If we can judge from the vote of about three to one in favor of the wet plank in the republican platform, there is a belief that conditions surrounding prohibition are not what they should be, that a change should be made and in making that change there is every desire to prevent the return of the saloon, but that, because of the failure of prohibition to accomplish what was expected, there should be a return to state control of liquor with such states as desire to be dry being given every bit of federal assistance needed to insure it.

New York republicans have produced a platform that meets the approval of Charles H. Tuttle, who has been named for governor. Mr. Tuttle, formerly federal district attorney, who has gained much attention for the manner in which he administered his office, is personally dry. He doesn't believe there should be a prohibition amendment, his experience has convinced him that it should be repealed and that liquor sales should be controlled by the respective states. His attitude may not exactly have won over the drys, but it must have convinced them that he was sincere and that there is need for changed conditions. Further, they cannot fail to appreciate that if there is a change to be made it cannot be brought about under more favorable conditions than with him as governor. He has given good reasons why he should command the respect of the drys as well as the wets.

In addition to the tussle that has been waged over the wet plank, it is apparent that Mr. Tuttle is going to appeal to New York to get away from the throttling influence of Tammany. As a prosecutor, Mr. Tuttle has not balked at tackling that organization. As a governor, there can be no question but what he would be beyond its dictation, and there are conditions being revealed in the Empire state which disclose the desirability of such independence.

ILLITERATE AUTO DRIVERS

Recently reference has been made to the number of signs in the highway and the inclination of many to disregard them because they have found in some instances they did not appear to be necessary and gave warning of conditions which in the minds of certain drivers did not call for special signs.

Road signs are important and there is much to be said in support of the position taken by the Automobile Association of America in believing that illiterate drivers should be barred from the highways. The point is that such drivers are dangerous to others and a menace to highway safety from the fact that they are not able to read the signs and, therefore, cannot profit from them. If they cannot understand what they mean they are unable to obey them. The association doesn't maintain that such drivers are a major cause of fatalities and accidents but it finds that in states where the driver's license law requires all to understand signs there is a marked decrease in the accident list.

As the result of its study of the situation the association believes that not only the 13 states which now require all drivers to understand road signs, but all states, should insist upon it before issuing drivers licenses. It is quite important, if they are going to study the highway laws, the rules and regulations of the road, that they should be able to read. They may be quite as efficient in the actual driving of an auto before learning the English language as afterward, but they are not able to keep in touch with and respond to highway conditions as marked.

The highway as it exists today is not the place for illiterate drivers. There are too many responsibilities resting upon the man at the wheel. Unless he can read and write he cannot legitimately claim that he has read the motor vehicle laws and he might have more or less difficulty in taking the eyesight test in Connecticut. While it doesn't appear that many of the states have given recognition to the importance of barring illiterate auto drivers, the lead taken by those which have ought to be promptly followed by the rest, though states where illiteracy is high may be disposed to show the proper degree of interest.

DAYLIGHT SAVING ENDS

Enough of the year has passed so that tonight is the time fixed for putting the clocks back on standard time. Daylight saving has been generally practiced and, it is believed, generally enjoyed. There will be opportunity for a while, for those who want to, to continue to get up an hour earlier than usual to get the benefit of more daylight but, throughout the state, adjoining states and in various sections of the country and Canada, the timepieces will be changed and business will get back onto the regular time schedule in fact as well as in appearance.

Daylight saving has been in use for many years and yet there is a certain confusion because public clocks in this state must be on standard time though the state and community are doing business by daylight time. In the state of Maryland there is a movement on at the present time to secure similar legislation. It is the advice of the Providence Journal that it refrain from any such action, which has been observing the operation of such a law in Connecticut, which it declares "works to the disadvantage of the public." It regards daylight saving as "a great boon and the movement should be not away from it but toward the inclusion of the month of October in its wholesome provisions."

The elimination of October has been resorted to as a compromise to pacify certain of the opposition. Shortening the period of daylight time resulted in the removal of some of the objection and brought about a more general conformity among the smaller communities to the practice in the cities.

But summer time will be over tonight for 1930. That hour which was cut off in the spring will be restored and if there is the proper attention given to the timepieces tonight everybody should be happy.

REGISTER YOUR BEES

Have you registered your bees? This is a fair question to put before those who own bees and to remind them that there is a state law which obligates them to register their bees with the town clerk, pay a 25 cent fee and get a certificate, with a visit later from the state inspectors to pass upon the condition of the apiaries.

This process doesn't involve taking the bees to the town clerk's office or to affix tags to the thousands of honey collectors. It has nothing to do with the registering which the bees insist upon doing for themselves under certain provocation. It is a requirement of the statutes, and Dr. Britton, entomologist of the Connecticut Experiment station, points out that the registration is required before the first of October.

Those who own bees must appreciate the fact that there is adequate reason for endeavoring to keep the bees in as healthy condition as possible. They are subject to disease that can be spread from one apiary to another. With the location of apiaries through the registration by the owners, inspectors visit and determine the conditions at the various apiaries and are thus able to determine the state of health of those bees. When owners neglect or refuse to register, they are making themselves liable to a fine, and they are also encouraging the possibility of diseased bees in their hives carrying their troubles to healthy apiaries.

Registration thus not only operates to get and keep the bees in a healthy state but if thoroughly done establishes a protection that is of much value to every bee owner. This method of fighting disease in bees is much like making war on pests, its success depends to a large extent upon the cooperation that is furnished, but having in this instance the backing of the law.

It seems about time for the democrats to blame the depression throughout the world on the administration at Washington.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

On a certain occasion not very long ago, a small group of people was speaking of a certain man who might be called something of a sensation. He certainly had the knack of drawing large crowds. One after another gave his opinion of the secret of this man's popularity. It was perfectly natural that their opinions were more or less diversified, but all apparently agreed that he was entertaining, "and that they could have listened at least, an hour longer." It was quite evident that naturally he was full of humor and thoroughly understood the psychology of crowds, and that his main object was to please his audience. One expressed it in this way: "He never leaves a bad taste in your mouth. You can go to bed that night, and dream about what a paradise the good Lord has made for his children. He presents to you a world composed mostly of flowers, singing birds, and beautiful landscapes."

Now all this is very well as far as it goes, but it is not the world that the rank and file live in. These beautiful things are very desirable and it is perfectly desirable to yearn for most of them. But we ought to remember that these lovely and desirable things come to us partly from our own endeavors. To get the highest effect out of flowers you must work the ground according to the science of botany. There would not be so many birds to sing to us were it not for the protection given to them by the kindness and intelligence of man. It must also be conceded that the hand of man is very conspicuous in the beauty of the landscape. What our eyes behold is vastly finer than what the early pioneers of Connecticut saw. Now a speaker does not tell the whole truth unless he shows the energy and struggle with which man has cooperated with his Maker!

It will probably be conceded by all that no speaker is justified in presenting only one side of any subject. He ought to have some higher purpose in mind than merely pleasing his hearers. They are to be mentally and spiritually fed. They ought to be so thoroughly aroused to what they hear as to be inspired to put forth greater effort in doing their part in making the world a better place to live in. Let us devoutly thank God that there are public men who feel that their first duty in making public addresses is to persuade men and women to act for the mental and moral uplift of mankind. If a speaker can do nothing more than to merely tickle the skin of his hearers he is a flat failure. He may lose popularity with the crowd by calling "a spade a spade," but the common sense of the people will applaud. William R. Inge, the great dean of Westminster was called "gloomy" by the crowd because he made them think along unpleasant lines, but the thoughtful men and women applauded him for his courage and fidelity.

The most illustrious speaker of all time in this matter was the Man of Galilee. There is no record that any of his audiences roared with laughter, not because He was a pessimist, but because of the seriousness of his mission. If He had been humorous at times it would not have militated against His holiness. Simply because He did not do it is evidence enough that it was not wise for Him to do it. But if He had attempted as a general thing to arouse only their merriment, He could not have fitted them for service in that great and lasting kingdom that He came on earth to establish. The title "The Man of Sorrows" that was given Him indicated the seriousness of His mission. How could it have been otherwise when upon Him depended the salvation of man from sin? He might have been called "gloomy" when sickness, pain and sorrow around Him often filled his eyes with tears.

A writer of current Sunday school lessons makes such a pertinent remark in speaking of the prophet Jeremiah that it seems to be worthy of repeating here. It is in regard to the matter of reluctance: "But reluctance can be carried so far as to become a vice. A man can be so afraid of making a mistake that he will never make any record of achievement. He may be so fearful of evoking criticism as finally to reduce himself to a dish of skim milk. Once he got unlimbered for action, neither the usefulness nor the lack of eloquence which had dismayed Jeremiah really stood in his way. Time, of course, corrected the youthfulness, but a burning desire to save his people corrected the slowness of speech. He handled his reluctance just right; he allowed it to keep him humble and dependent on God, but it did not allow it to make a cipher of him."

This reminds us of another writer who gives some sage advice about repeating scriptual phrases and certain verses of poetry when one finds it hard to get to sleep. We may not be able to explain the psychology of this relationship between sleep and the reciting of scriptural passages and the soothing of our tired nerves, but it exists just the same. Dr. Charles R. Brown in his book, Religion and Health, speaks of helps toward (1) Banishing Fear, (2) Bestowing Confidence, (3) Increasing Faith, (4) Gaining Peace, and (5) Inducing Rest. These helps will be most effective if read in the following way; slowly, without any straining of the mind to grasp their full significance. It should be done repeatedly until they have worn a path for themselves in the mind." For instance, such splendid Psalms as, "The Lord is My Shepherd." Also, "Be still and know that I am God." Repeat such a hymn as "I Know Not Where His Islands Lift."

A person with any perceptive faculties whatever cannot fail to realize the vast amount of anxiety on the faces of men—and many women, too—whom he meets in many public places. Some of them appear listless, taking very little interest in what is going on about them. They gaze idly into the shop windows doubtlessly feeling that there are things displayed that as human beings they are entitled to have! Every human being who comes into the world has a right to live, and if he and those who are dependent upon him cannot by honest toil get enough to supply their legitimate needs, there is something fundamentally wrong with the whole economic order. If men are too lazy to support themselves and their families that is entirely another proposition, but where there is ability joined with a grim purpose to work and cannot get it the situation then is exceedingly grave.

From August 6-11, the eighth world's convention of Christian Endeavor was held in Berlin, where 15,000 "eager and vibrant young voices—of course mostly German—led by a great band of 150 musicians, sang Luther's great hymn, "Ein Feste Burg ist unser Gott." (A Mighty Fortress is Our God). One distinguished delegate from a foreign country was heard to remark: "One can hardly expect to hear more majestic and reverent music this side of the New Jerusalem." If possible it was even more impressive when these 15,000 delegates, representing every civilized country on earth, united in a communion service in the celebrated Dom. We ought of course to bid God-speed to the diplomats when they sit in conference for the exalted purpose of ridding the world of the cruelty of war. But nothing will settle this whole war business more readily and permanently than the youth of all nations get together in the interest of the Prince of Peace!

MEMORIAL FOR NEW LONDONER WHO NAVIGATED FIRST TRANSATLANTIC STEAMER IS ASKED

New London city authorities are soon to receive the suggestion, referred to them by the New London County Historical society, that a memorial tablet be placed on the house of Captain Stevens Rogers, at Main and Shapley streets, in the whaling city, to honor the mariner who was first sailing master of the Savannah, the first steamship to cross the Atlantic ocean.

The following account of the historic event which it is proposed so to commemorate is given in the History of New London by Frances Manwaring Caulkins, a work published in 1860 and long since out of print. The account was obtained from Capt. Rogers himself.

Was Commanded by New Londoners.

In one respect New London stands in honorable connection with the history of steam navigation. Capt. Moses Rogers, the commander of the steamship Savannah, the first steam vessel that ever crossed the Atlantic, and Capt. Stevens Rogers, sailing master of the same, and brother-in-law of the captain, were both natives of New London.

The Savannah was built in New York, under the direction of Capt. Rogers, for a company in Savannah, and was a full-rigged ship of about 350 tons burden, and furnished with an engine of 80 or 90 horse-power, by which she made about eight knots to the hour. She sailed from Savannah, May 26th, 1819, for the sole purpose of making the grand experiment of ocean steam navigation.

Mr. Scarborough, of Savannah, one of the company that owned the steamer, asserted that they had no other object in view; that anticipating the use of steam enginery in that line, and having a surplusage of profit on hand from some successful operation of the company, instead of dividing it, they built and fitted out the Savannah, in order to give to America the honor of making the first attempt to navigate the Atlantic by steam.

Crossed in 22 Days.

The passage to Liverpool was made in 22 days; 14 by steam and eight by sails, the latter being used solely through the prudence of the captain to save the consumption of fuel, lest some emergency might occur, and the supply be exhausted. From Liverpool the steamer proceeded to Copenhagen, and thence to Stockholm and to St. Petersburg.

At these ports she excited universal admiration and interest. Lying at anchor like a public vessel, with no business to accomplish, no port charges to defray, no cargo to take on board, her stay was a continued reception of visitors, and her whole passage through the Baltic might be likened to a triumphant procession.

Bernadotte, king of Sweden, and the emperor of Russia, with their nobles and public officers, not only came on board to examine the wonderful American steamer, but tested her performance by short excursions in the neighboring waters. On the return home, the last place left in Europe was Arendel, in Norway, from whence the passage to Savannah was made in 25 days: 19 by steam and six by sails.

Capt. Moses Rogers gained his experience as a steam engineer on the Hudson river, where he had been engaged in some of the earliest experiments in propelling vessels of steam. After his return from the voyage in the Savannah, he took command of a steamboat running on the Great Pedee river, and died suddenly at Cheraw, S. C., Sept. 15, 1822, at the age of 42 years.

Received a Gold Snuff-Box.

Capt. Stevens Rogers is now an officer of the customs in New London, and from him the foregoing account of the first voyage by steam across the Atlantic, is derived. He has in his possession a massive gold snuff-box, presented to him by Lord Lyndock, an English nobleman, who took passage in the steamer from Stockholm to St. Petersburg, through an arrangement made for him by Mr. Hughes, the American minister at the Swedish court. On the inside of the lid is the following inscription:

"Presented by Sir Thomas Graham, Lord Lyndock, to Stevens Rogers, sailing-master of the steam-ship Savannah, at St. Petersburg, October 10th, 1819."

"An American Institution."

That Capt. Stevens Rogers might have claimed to play a major part in the foundation of an American institution is indicated by the following passage, reprinted from "Steamboat Days," by Fred Erving Dayton and John Wolcott Adams, a work published at New York by the Frederick A. Stokes company in 1925:

The ocean steamship is an American institution. Just as there were English builders contemporary with Rumsey, Fitch, Morey, Stevens and Fulton in the steamboat field, there were early English workers in ocean steamship development; but Savannah, 1819, was the first steamship. Crockett & Fickett built Savannah at Corlear's Hook, New York, a full-rigged ship with steam power driving side paddles. Savannah measured 380 tons and the engine was but 90 horse-power.

Savannah's first trip was to Savannah, then to Liverpool in 25 days, and during seven days moved by sails alone, Savannah visited Cronstadt and returned to America. Subsequently the power was removed and Savannah became a sailing packet and was lost off Long Island sound.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Spiritual Sight

But if our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost. In whom the God of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine on them. II Cor. 4:34, "If our gospel be hid it is hid to them that are lost." Not that the glorious gospel is not in it self plain but their eyes have been blinded by the "God of this world" and the gospel which is so full of life and of light, is as darkness to them as in the days of Moses, the cloud that led the Israelites was "light" to them, but "darkness" to the Egyptians, so the gospel which illuminates the path of the Christian is darkness to the unbeliever. But the desire and purpose of the Saviour is to open the eyes of the blind. How many men physically blind had their sight restored by Him when He walked among us, typical of what he is willing and able to do for the millions who are spiritually blind.

A bind person cannot appreciate the beauty of the world. It is there, but to him, it is as if it did not exist. No words can make plain to him the description of a sunset, the coloring of a flower or the grandeur of a mountain. A little boy who had been blind from his birth, had his eyes opened by a skilled oculist. After the bandages had been removed and his eyes for the first time gazed upon his mother, and the flowers and pictures in the room, with a look of wonder upon his face, and in a voice full of agitation he cried out, "Oh mamma, why didn't you tell me that everything was so beautiful?" Many times had she tried to tell him, but the little fellow could not comprehend it. It is not until men's eyes are opened that they can begin to appreciate the gospel and the matchless beauty of Christ. Our descriptions are unintelligible, our language sounds strange to them. But after their eyes have been opened they begin to understand how impossible it is to make plain the glories and beauties of Christian faith and character.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.— "What, if anything, did the battle over Judge Parker's defeat for the supreme bench have to do with these primary results?" the Bystander was asked as he dropped in to see a very politically minded friend to catch him studying returns from many states.

"I'll bite; what?" he answered. "I did not know it had any particular place in the primary picture."

"Well, maybe it didn't; but look here," said this political star gazer who is a cog in his party's Washington political machinery although not himself an elective office holder. "Let's see how the senators who have run so far in the primaries for re-election voted on Parker.

"Here's Blease of South Carolina. He's out, and he was one of the ten pro-Parker democrats. Here's Simmons of North Carolina, also pro-Parker and also licked after 30 years in the senate. Here's Ransdell of Louisiana, pro-Parker and licked.

"Now take the anti-Parkerites who have run thus far. Here's Jim Couzens of Michigan. He came through a-whooping in the primaries. Ditto for George Norris of Nebraska. Ditto for Robinson of Indiana. The only anti-Parker voter I see here who has been licked in the primaries so far as I know is Deneen of Illinois. Probably that has no significance, as that was Deneen's private fight more or less with the 'lady from Illinois,' Mrs. McCormick."

Significance

"That sounds interesting all right, but are you trying to tell me that these senators were kicked out because they voted for Parker?" the Bystander asked.

"Oh, no. I'm just pointing out how they voted and what happened to them afterward. And there's more than that to it.

"How many senators who voted for Parker's confirmation are not going to be with us anyhow next session? I mean, how many aside from those that have been licked or may be licked either in the primaries or at the November showdown."

"I don't know."

Retiring

"Well, there are a lot of 'em. They are fellows who are retiring 'voluntarily,' as the saying goes. Let's check 'em up. Here's Baird of New Jersey. He voted for Parker, but was not a candidate for election to the senate. Next comes Gillett of Massachusetts in the same boat. Gould of Maine was the same. So was Sullivan of Wyoming.

"Among those paired for Parker were Goff of West Virginia and Phipps of Colorado, both getting out. And, by the way, there's Old Joe Grundy licked in Pennsylvania and who was paired for Parker.

"Then there are notable primary victories for Harris of Georgia and Sheppard of Texas, both strong anti-Parker men. Queer, isn't it?"

"Sure; but does it actually mean anything?"

"I don't know."

YOUR HEALTH

We Still Have Measles

By Edward Sherrard Rimer, M .D.,
New York City.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

With the beginning of another school year, mothers are thinking naturally about the various childrens diseases that little Johnny will probably bring home from school. If he hasn't had measles—probably that will be the first disease to go on his list. Measles is a children's disease, so common that few persons reach adult life without having had it. In rural communities children may escape, but in the more crowded areas this will hardly be the case. One attack usually protects the individual against the disease for the remainder of his life.

Measles is very infectious, so much so that practically all persons exposed will develop it if they are not immune, that is, protected by a previous attack. The infection is carried by the discharges from the nose and mouth, and is spread throuh the air by coughing and sneezing. These droplets of sputum carrying disease germs may be spread as far as twenty feet from the patient.

Like other eruptive diseases, Measles is most infectious in the early stages, or during invasion. At this time discharging nose and eyes and cough are very prominent symptoms. The disease is infectious as long as these catarrhal discharges persist—five to ten days. This period covers the time when the rash is present. It usually begins to fade on the fifth or sixth day. After this eruption disappears, the patient begins with the peeling of the skin, which is never so marked as that of scarlet fever. Neither in measles nor in scarlet fever is there any evidence that this peeling skin carries infection.

From the time the individual is exposed until the first symptoms appear is a period of eleven to fourteen days. This is the stage incubation. The symptoms are well known—like a beginnig cold; sneezing, running nose and eyes, cough, a slight fever which gradually rises in two or three days to 103 and 104. At this stage the rash appears on the face and soon over the whole body—a red blotchy eruption. The eyes become red and bleary, the breath heavy, the cough dry brassy. The fever subsides after four or five days. If it continues we suspect complications, especially broncho pneumonia or inflammation of ears. It is easy to understand why these complications arise when we remember that the mucous membrance of the nose, mouth, throat and bronchi are inflammed much as is the skin.

Deaths from measles are due to the complications. The proportion of deaths to the number of cases depends on: the age, the younger the patient the more danger; the time of the year—epidemics in winter and spring are more serious; and on the environment—over-crowding, bad hygienic conditions increase the death rate.

Measles has certain bad after effects. Sometimes hearing is impaired, due to ear disease, or vision is defective, following inflammation of the eyes. Tuberculosis of the lungs not infrequently gets a start after a measles attack. A more common sequel is malnutrition. These children require a long time to regain their weight and normal muscular tone after an attack. Measles, and its team-mate, whooping-cough, are the two diseases most often responsible for malnutrition.

COUSIN CHATTERER'S GREAT MISTAKE

By Thornton W. Burgess

Thrice armed is he who knows he's right;
And, knowing it, doth boldly fight.
—Impy the Chipmunk.

Chatterer the Red Squirrel had chuckled many times over the memory of how Impy the black Chipmunk and Mrs. Impy had taken to their heels when he had warned them away from the nut-trees. He felt quite puffed up to think he had put them to flight so easily. He had kept watch of those trees and he felt certain that not once had Impy or Mrs. Impy been back there.

"I gave them a good scare," thought Chatterer. "I don't believe they'll come back at all. If they do, I'll give them another scare. If I can keep them away for a while, they may forget all about these nuts by the time they are ripe. The fewer there are to take them, the better."

It was only a day or two later that Chatterer, going over for a look at the nut-trees, spied Impy and Mrs. Impy heading in the same direction. Chatterer grinned. Then he hastily hid where he could jump out right in front of Impy and Mrs. Impy.

"I wonder if Chatterer will be over here this morning," he heard little Mrs. Impy say.

"I hope he's there right this minute," declared Impy. "I'll show him who owns those nuts. Yes, sir, I'll show him!"

Chatterer almost chuckled aloud. However, he didn't quite. He waited a moment more and then, snarling and threatening all sorts of dreadful things, he dashed out right in front of Impy and Mrs. Impy. He fully expected to see them take to their little les as fast as they could go. He wasn't at all prepared for what did happen. There was a rush and a little black bundle of fury struck Chatterer broadside and actually knocked him right over. In a second he was on his feet again, but he wasn't chuckling. No, sir, he wasn't chuckling! There wasn't a chuckle left in him. He was simply angry through and through. He started after Impy, for it was Impy who had struck him. But he hadn't reached Impy, who was waiting for him and not running away at all, when once more he was knocked over.

Of course, it was little Mrs. Impy who had hit him this time. Once more Chatterer scrambled to his feet and now he was in a great rage. Yes, sir, he was in a great rage. He whirled and started for Mrs. Impy. The instant he turned he was knocked over again. This time it was Impy.

"Who owns the nuts?" snarled Impy.

Chatterer is no coward. He fought and he fought hard. Had he had only one to fight, he probably would have won the battle; but two proved to be one too many. It wasn't long before Chatterer actually was in flight. Yes, sir, he was in flight. He was running away. All he could think of was getting away from those Chipmunks. They were two little fighting furies. Chatterer forgot all his boasting. Just then he didn't care who had those nuts.

Impy and Mrs. Impy followed Chatterer only a short distance. Then they returned to the nut-trees and boldly climbed up to the lowest branch of one of them. "I wonder what that fellow thinks about those nuts now," said Impy.

"I don't care what he thinks about the nuts. I wonder what he thinks about us," said Mrs. Impy.

If they could have known it, Chatterer thought plenty.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

RUM OR SOBRIETY

Dear Editor: We read much in the papers about issues of various kinds in our political affairs and their bearing on our state and national life. In our opinion there is only one real one, which is rum or sobriety, because it is closely interwoven into the entire fabric of our state and national life. Rum brings poverty and sorrow, sobriety brings prosperity and happiness. Mr. Hoover has just given us a most splendid plan for the uplift of the people by home building and home ownership which will be far reaching in its effect for good in all branches of industry, and do much to solve the problem of unemployment. It seems to us the best way to do this is to have a sober people by electing a dry governor, dry congressmen and dry representatives to the legislature this winter. Men and women of thought and action, clear the way for the wave of prosperity which is knocking at our door.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Standard Steel & Bearings, Inc., Plainville.

The Roller Bearing Equipment company of Keene, N. H., and the Ball Bearing company of Boston, as well as the Ball Bearing company of Maine, were acquired by Philadelphia interests, to form the nucleus of the Standard Roller Bearing company of that city, which shortly afterwards adopted the present well-known "SRB" trade mark.

At first, the Standard Roller Bearing company produced practically every known type of anti-friction bearing, including the annular ball bearing and the taper roller bearing for the embryonic automotive industry. They later acquired the Staple ball bearing patents covering the basic principles of ball bearing construction in general usage today, both in this country and abroad.

It was early realized that exceptionally high grade steel must be the basic element of a quality product where the service requirements were so severe. Henry Souther, who was then one of the best-known metallurgists in the United States, was induced to install a laboratory at the SRB" plant in Philadelphia. After a great amount of research work and tests, he succeeded in developing a high carbon, high chrome alloy steel to meet these exacting requirements, which is now ingeneral usage throughout the ball bearing industry. The next step was the education of manufacturers in this country to produce steel of such exacting specifications. This was finally accomplished and after great expenditure of time, money and energy, uniformity of product was assured.

The "SRB" company also initiated the development of automatic equipment and special processes which have been important factors in developing of automatic equipment and special processes which have been important factors in developing American made bearings to their present position of superiority over their former competitors in European countries.

As the automobile grew in importance, it became more and more apparent that to effectively meet the demands for bearing equipment, it would be necessary to concentrate production on the types used in this field. Therefore, in 1917, when the Standard Roller Bearing company was acquired by the Marlin-Rockwell corporation, F. M. Germane, who was then general manager and director of sales, long an important factor in the company's progress, recommended that all products be eliminated except the annular ball bearing and taper roller bearing. Later, the taper roller bearing was put aside to meet the great demand for this company's annular ball bearing product, for automotive and industrial requirements.

Both A. F. Rockwell and Edgar Park, chairman of the board and president respectively, of the Marlin-Rockwell corporation, were heartily in accord with Mr. Germane's policies, and it was the close harmony of these men and the other executives which enabled the "SRB" organization to maintain its leading position in the independent ball bearing field.

It should be mentioned here that in the early part of 1917, this company organized an elaborate service organization with direct factory branches, which was an innovation at that time. This organization, now known as The M-R-C Bearings Service company, has been an important factor in the automotive industry by making bearing service possible throughout the United States.

Due to the great and growing demand for their bearing products, in September, 1919, the Marlin-Rockwell bearing manufacturing properties were consolidated into one corporation, known as the Standard Steel and Bearings Incorporated, with headquarters still maintained in Philadelphia. Annual production was now in excess of two million ball bearings, as contrasted with mere thousands of the same product some eight or ten years previous, for the side-door machine ship of 1893 was now one of the most important factors in the bearing industry.

In August 1928, under the direction of its president, Walter Robbins, plans were culminated for the removal of the company to the present location in Plainville, Conn. This move provided a new one-floor plant, with larger and more spacious facilities for production of quality bearings, permitting an unhampered arrangement of machine tools and equipment, not possible in the former multi-storied plant in a congested city district. In this move it is significant that a concern should, after a lapse of more than 20 years, return again to the New England of its inception. In 1925 this corporation became affiliated with the Gurney Ball Bearing company of Jamestown, N. Y., and later with the Strom Bearing company of Chicago.

The present officers of the company are: Henry K Smith, president; A. C. Davis, vice president and general manager; W. B. Vincent, assistant treasurer; J. H. Walters, secretary; J. E. Melson, superintendent.

NO CRIMINAL BLAME IN DEATH OF TRASKO

Coroner Edward G. McKay has exonerated Joseph Duggan of Hartford from criminal liability in causing the death of Stanley Trasko, 49, late of Taftville. The coroner's decision in the case was announced Friday. Mr. Trasko was struck and fatally injured September 4th at Taftville by a machine owned and driven by Duggan. He died four days later from a fractured skull. The coroner in his finding says in part:

At about 10:15 p. m. the said Joseph Duggan was driving his Chevrolet coupe south on Norwich avenue. He had come from Jewett City and was parked on the west side of Norwich avenue in front of the stores opposite Tafts station. As Mr. Duggan approached a point opposite one of the stores an automobile going north passed him. There were no automobiles immediately preceding him. He was then driving his car at a moderate rate of speed at a normal distance from the parked cars and on his own part of the traveled portion.

As the north bound car passed Duggan's car the said Stanley Trasko was passing from the west sidewalk onto the highway behind one of the parked cars which had arrived while Stanley Trasko was on the sidewalk. Mr. Trasko stepped onto the highway just as Mr. Duggan reached the parked car. Mr. Duggan saw Trasko walking into the path of the car and swerved to the left to avoid him. At that time the distance between the man and the automobile was very short, probably not more than six feet.

At that time a collision was inevitable and the said Trasko was struck by the automobile at the door on the right side. The window was broken and there were marks on the right side near the door jam. Mr. Trasko was thrown to the ground, seriously injured, in the rear of the parked car. The Duggan car continued along to the intersection of Hunters avenue where it stopped. The car was backed up to the scene. People in the vicinity rendered assistance to Mr. Trasko and he was taken to the hospital in the ambulance. His injury was of a fatal nature and he died four days later.

An immediate investigation was made and testimony taken later at the inquest. An inspection of the Duggan car disclosed that the brakes were in poor condition. However, this fact was not the controlling cause of the collision. All of the evidence tended to show that at the time Mr. Trasko appeared on the highway behind the parked car the distance was so short and the appearance so unexpected that there is considerable doubt that perfect brakes would have avoided the collision. The driver of the Duggan car acted according to his best judgment at the time and turned out.

The distance that the car went after striking Mr. Trasko was uncertain. Mr. Duggan testified it went about 50 feet; other witnesses claim the distance was much less. However, the testimony of witnesses describing the manner in which the car was being operated immediately before the collision does not warrant a conclusion that at the time of collision the Duggan car was being operated in a grossly negligent manner.

I am satisfied and find that the death of Stanley Trasko was not caused by the criminal act, omission or carelessness of any other person or persons.

WIPING OUT OLD WEST SIDE LANDMARK

One of the old landmarks of the West Side section of the city, the barn on the southeasterly corner of West Main and High streets, probably the oldest barn in the city, is being leveled to the ground and is to be replaced by a store property by the owners, David N. and Charles M. Gordon.

The old barn runs back to beyond Civil war times, according to what has been learned of the property. Around that time it was run as a livery stable by Russell Rathbone, father of the late D. Jewett Rathbone, who also conducted it for a number of years as a livery stable. Before the Rathbone's had the place, it was known as the Bentley stable and was run by a man named Dow Bentley, who subsequently became a preacher, it is understood.

The property was bought from the Rathbone's by William Bendett and by him sold to the Gordon's about eight years ago. Of late years it has been occupied for stable uses.

It will be replaced by a two-story brick building, having two stores on the ground floor and storage space above, according to plans which the present owners have in mind.

MOTOR TRUCKS BURNED IN NEW LONDON GARAGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 27—The garage of P. Adel, fruit produce merchants on Bank street, with a garage on Woodbridge street, housing two automobile trucks and as many more pleasure automobiles, was gutted early this morning and the cars practically destroyed by fire of unknown origin.

The fire was discovered about 12:40 and at that time, the entire interior of the garage was a mass of flames. An alarm was sent in from Box 45, corner of Bank and Truman streets, which was responded to by Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and four pieces of apparatus. Because of the severity of the fire, Deputy Chief Edmunds, upon his arrival at the scene, caused a second alarm to be pulled in, which was responded to by four more pieces of apparatus.

After several streams of water had been played upon the interior of the building, the fire was extinguished but not until all of the automobiles quartered in the garage, had been extensively damaged. The origin of the fire has not been determined nor has the loss sustained by the P. Adel Co. become known, nor will be until insurance adjustors conduct an investigation.

By ALAN GOULD

Associated Press Sports Editor

MERION CRICKET CLUB, Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 26—(AP)—Twenty-two year old Eugene Vanderpool Homans, the fighting son of a father who fought many an old gridiron war for Princeton, staged one of the most sensational come-backs of golf tournament history today to win and earn the distinction of playing the great Bobby Jones tomorrow for the amateur championship of the United States.

Five down after the first 18 holes, three down at the 27th and still two down with four to go, Homans, with a display of sheer grit belied by his frail, studious appearance, won three of the last four holes to beat 19-year-old Charley Seaver of Los Angeles, one up, on the 36th and last green.

Homans' dramatic victory in the semi-finals followed the triumphant onward sweep of Jones, who crushed an old rival, Jess W. Sweetser of New York by the lopsided margin of 9 up and 8 to go in the Georgian's most convincing victory of the tournament.

As a result of two matches that sparkled with great golf and thrilled galleries of upwards of 5,000 spectators, Homans is the only barrier between Jones and a fourth national championship triumph for the year—a clean sweep that would leave King Bobby with no more worlds to conquer and a record that modern generations may never see equalled.

Jones Overwhelms Sweetser

If there was anyone tonight who did not anticipate that Jones would complete his marvelous march of conquest, perhaps including Homans himself, he could not be located, for the Georgian uncorked a brand of golf today that was as nearly unbeatable as anything can be in this sport.

Jones, despite a bad streak of golf midway in his morning round, had old man par at his mercy as well as the blond, good-natured but also outclassed Sweetser, nowhere near the golfer who overwhelmed Jones eight years ago by 8 and 7 at Brookline. The great Georgian was 4 up on Sweetser at the end of the morning round and he shot dazzling golf in the afternoon to end the match on the 28th green.

There, as a climax, he almost holed out his pitch from 90 yards, the ball stopping 10 inches from the cup for the third Jones birdie in four straight holes.

Brilliant as was the golf Homans displayed in fighting uphill to overcome Seaver and the Jersey youth went the last 18 holes in even par, nevertheless he would have been six down to Jones at the 28th on the basis of their performances today.

The finalists have met once before in the second round at Minikahda in 1927, when Jones was the victor over Homans by the count of 3 and 2.

Despite his 22 years, Homans has had plenty of golf tournament experience and he gets the fighting courage he manifested today from Shepard Homans, famous as a fullback with the Princeton football teams from 1889 to 1892. The younger Homans has outstripped his father at golf, however.

This is his fifth amateur championship and the fourth in which he has qualified, but never before had he advanced beyond the second round. He lost to Jess E. Guilford in 1926, to Fay Coleman last year at Pebble Beach in the first round after tying Jones for the medal with a score of 143. He has held the metropolitan junior as well as senior amateur titles and won the New Jersey crown five straight years.

Homans Was Favorite

Homans was the favorite over Seaver today, on the strength of his more seasoned tournament record, but his chances of winning did not seem worth a plugged nickel when he skidded through the morning round to become five down to his stocky, sandy-haired rival from California.

The first break of the match in Homans' favor came at the 23rd hole in the afternoon round. The second and really deciding break came at the 35th, where Homans squared the match.

Going to the 23rd, young Gene was five down and apparently going nowhere. On this tricky, 435 yard hole, he drove to the rough and put his second in a trap while Seaver was straight all the way and well on in two. Homans studied his shot carefully, then took a newly devised niblick with a concave face and came out perfectly, the ball catching a side-hill roll and stopping two feet from the cup. It was dead for a four and Homans won the hole when Seaver took three putts.

Instead of being six down, Homans was only four down and although he lost the 24th, he paved the way for a come-back that would otherwise have been next to impossible. He won the 27th to become three down and did not lose another hole as he played every remaining hole perfectly in par.

Gene won the 29th, saved the 32nd with a performance duplicating his earlier recovery from a trap, then won the 33rd and was only one down as he hit a spoon shot pin high about 8 feet from the pin on the vital 35th. Seaver was high on the hillside, to the left and approached to within five feet of the cup. Homans just missed the birdie but Seaver also missed and laid his rival a dead stymie. Homans stretched on the ground to study the turf. There was only one way to get down—through the "side door." He did it by cutting the ball around Seaver's to win the hole with a par three and square the match.

Thus fortified, Homans slashed two fine wood shots, the second a spoon to within 15 feet of the pin on the home hole. Seaver pulled his second shot to the side of a trap. When 25 feet past the pin he putted four feet past. Homans took two putts but that was all he needed to win the match as a crowd of 5,000 massed six deep, cheered.

No Doubt as to Jones

The only suspense attached to the Jones-Sweetser match was midway in the morning round. Big Jess, after losing four of the first five holes, put on a come-back that reduced the Georgian's margin to a single hole. It looked like a rout at the very first hole when Jones sank an 18 foot putt for a birdie three while Jess was in two traps and then way over the green.

The machine-like Jones golf, however, bogged down for some unaccountable reason, starting with a drive out of bounds on the seventh. Through six successive holes Bobby was six strokes over par. "Calamity Jane," the usually efficient Jones putter, took a holiday. Bobby three-putted three greens. Sweetser's par golf was good enough to win four holes.

Jones settled down and again rolled his lead up to four holes by the end of the morning round, winning three of the last four, which he shot in one under par.

The "kill" was not long delayed in the afternoon. Sweetser won only one hole, the 21st, where Jones was in a trap. Bobby applied the pressure with birdies at the 23rd, 25th, 27th and 28th. He sank putts of 25, 8 and 12 feet before pitching his last shot so close to the pin 10 inches away, that he didn't need to touch the ball after Jess missed his long putt for an attempt to prolong the match.

Thus the great Georgian advanced with all the power of a conqueror to his seventh national amateur championship final. Twice he has been beaten, in 1919 by S. Davidson Herron at Oakmont and in 1926 by George Von Elm at Baltusrol. Four times he has been the victor, in 1924-25-27-28. If he wins tomorrow Jones will add three more records to his unparalleled collection—five national amateur crowns, thirteen national championships altogether and all four British and American titles in one year.

CAMPOLO-SHARKEY FIASCO IS WRITTEN OFF THE BOOKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—(AP)—The worst fiasco in all the fight history of Madison Square Garden sloughed into a ludicrous finale today with the abandonment of the ill-fated heavyweight match between Jack Sharkey and Victorio Campolo.

Doomed to financial failure through the complete indifference of the faithful from the moment articles were signed, saddled with a guarantee of $100,000 given Sharkey when the Boston sailor threatened to bolt the Garden auspices and battle with Primo Carnera in Chicago, the match, scheduled for last night at the Yankee stadium, ran into a rain storm and postponement. With less than $50,000 in the box office and expenses surrounding the mill estimated at $154,000, Garden faced a flat loss of $100,000 until the fighters' added complicated demands to the situation today brought about a grateful abandonment of the entire proceedings.

The Garden stood up to take its loss last night and announced that the bout would be staged indoors Oct. 3. Although commission rules here call for a postponement of only one day, weather reports indicated that more rain would fall tonight and force a second postponement. Unfortunately Campolo was not consulted before the Garden decision was announced.

Today the gawky gaucho flatly refused to fight Oct. 3 unless a new deal were made all around and he was given $20,000 for his services. He argued that he had accepted a guarantee of $7,500 for the bout and 16 per cent of the receipts above $200,000 in the belief that the match would draw gate receipts approaching $350,000. Now that it wasn't going to do any of these things he wanted more money. He offered, however, to fight Sharkey, who had trained poorly for the fight, for no pay at all if the Boston sailor would meet him tonight.

Sharkey, apparently not averse to the abandonment, headed for home this morning while his manager, Johnny Buckley, stayed behind to wind up affairs and collect $5,000 for training expenses. Campolo made no request for expenses and seemed so piqued at the situation that he announced he would sail back to Argentine Oct. 3 and leave the American box fighting industry flat.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL GETS UNDER WAY THIS AFTERNOON

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—(AP)—The college football season of 1930 will be launched tomorrow throughout the nation with untold thousands turning out from coast to coast and from border to gulf to watch their favorite teams begin the big campaign.

All told there will be more than 150 college games worth mentioning. The east alone boasts 48, the south and mid-west list 34 and 33 respectively, the far west 26 and the Rocky Mountain, southwest and Missouri valley sections a couple of dozen more.

Real contests will be rare, as most of the big fellows among the colleges are using this first Saturday as an opportunity of trying out their stuff against practice opponents. Here and there upsets may crop out but in general the colleges that rang among the football leaders of the country on past performances figure to win in a romp.

BALTIC SOCCER TEAM PLAYS VELVETMEN ON SUNDAY

The Baltic soccer team will open its season at Sayles field, Baltic, on Sunday afternoon with the J. B. Martin team of the Eastern Connecticut Soccer league. This is the first soccer game at Baltic in a number of seasons. The Baltic team is desirous of reviving the sport in Baltic and would consider becoming a member of the soccer league.

BERG AND HUMPHREY AT BENEFIT SHOW

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 26—Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers of New London, republican nominee for governor, and many other notable persons, sat at the ringside in the state armory here tonight and watched a flock of battlers go after each other in a benefit boxing show for the nurses' home fund of the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam. Probably 700 people watched the bouts.

Many more than were in attendance purchased tickets for the affair.

Joe Humphrey, famous announcer at Madison Square Garden in New York, was in the ring prior to each event, telling who was who and what was what. Jackie Kid Berg, of England, junior welterweight titleholder, refereed the first bout. Urgent circumstances that required their presence in New York prevented the scheduled appearance of Benny Leonard and Al Singer, the latter the present holder of the world's lightweight championship.

Major E. L. Darbie made the opening announcement, praising the show on the basis for which it was arranged, in the interest of an institution in which everyone is interested.

In a four-round affair, opening the show, Kid Forcier of North Grosvenordale won a decision over Willie Welch, Worcester, at the end of four rounds. Forcier weighed 112 pounds, Welch 115. This is the bout that Berg refereed.

The following bout saw Tony Santello, 137, of Worcester, lose a decision to Johnnie Pompey of New York, 131, at the end of the eighth round. This was a fast give-and-take bout with a lot of action.

Tony Leto, 126 1-2, of Tampa, Fla., beat up Sailor Morse, 129, of Union City, N. J., so badly in the course of two rounds that Referee Jack Conway of Hartford decided, during the minute's rest between the second and third rounds that the bout should go no farther. Morse was so badly cut over the left eye in the first round that he just couldn't keep going any farther.

Dynamite Lou Brouillard, Danielson, 146 3-4, maintained his reputation as the killer by beating up Billie Eskowize in just no time at all. Brouillard, slashing away with that deadly left hand of his, had Eskowize down for two counts of nine in the first round and again on the floor for another count as the bell ended that session. The end of that bout was forecast at that time. Eskowize only lasted about one minute of the second round, being plastered all over the place. He was just no match at all for the local boy, who is expected to be fighting in the big-time within the coming year.

K. O. Smith of Hartford won the final bout from Kid Record of Boston; Smith weighed 166, Record 161. Both have fine records. Smith has been fighting around Hartford, Record in the Boston Garden and Arena and other places in central Massachusetts.

Smith, with his marvelous knack of knocking them over in the first round, almost had Record out in that stanza. The Boston boy took a count of nine. Record made a marvelous comeback and battered Smith up plenty before he lost to the Hartford boy on a knockout by a blow to the solar plexus in the midst of the fifth round.

MARTIN TEAM FEATURES OPENING OF BOWLING LEAGUES

One of the fastest industrial bowling leagues to run in this city opened last night at the Aetna alleys. This league, run under the American Industrial league, consits of the following teams: Thermos Bottle Co., Atlantic Carton Corp, The Saxony Corp, Oakland and Pontiac, J. B. Martin and U. S. Finishing Co. The J. B. Martin team took most of the honors for the evening, taking four points from last year's champions, the Thermos Bottle Co. Keller was high bowler for the evening with a total of 374. Keller came through in the last two boxes of the second string with a double strike to make 46 points in two boxes and win the game by 8 pins. Lawless of the Atlantic Carton team had high single for the night with a 156 string.

Looking at the scores for the first night's bowling it looks as though some of the best bowling of the coming season will be seen in this league.

The Atlantic Carton took three out of four points from the U. S. Finishing Co. and The Saxony Corp. took three out of four points from the Oakland-Pontiac five.

This league will run every Friday night for the next 15 weeks at the Aetna alleys. The scores:

A city series that promises plenty of high-class baseball will get underway Sunday afternoon at J. B. Martin park when the Polish Citizens, recent conquerors of the New London Kaceys in their New London county series, tackle the Martin outfit. The series is of three games.

The lineups of the two clubs are filled with the best ball players in the city and vicinity and should give the fans just as much excitement as the Norwich-New London affair just concluded. There is dynamite in both batting orders, as announced Friday evening by Managers Erlbeck of the Martins and Bizinski of the Cits.

Boots Greene, young right hander, will carry the mound duties for the Citizens and will be opposed by either Lefty Lucier, a rival in the recent City league chase, or Anatol, an importation from Providence. If Greene and Lucier should hook up in a duel it would give the fans an opportunity to compare the merits of the two pitchers chosen on the board of governors' all-star team.

Artie Couillard, one of the leading hitters of the City league, has been signed by the J. B.'s to strengthen this department, something which Artie should do to a T. The J. B infield, composed of Dugas, Normandin, Krauss and Liberty, is one sweet combination, but is not a bit ahead of that of the Cits, if the latter's work in the recent Kacey series is any criterion.

A crowd that will jam all available space is expected when Umpires Frank Morin and Tommy Simcox start things at 2:30 (Standard Time).

OPENS GRID SEASON WITH CHAPMAN TODAY

The Academy will open its own season and with Chapman Tech will pry the lid off the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island league grid season this afternoon at Mercer field, New London, with the prospect of a closely contested game. The kick-off is set for 3 p. m.

The Wildcats this year has but five veterans from the 1929 array. They are Capt. Ernie Stevens, a guard; Les Crowell, tackle; Mike Abugle, center; Bob Geer and Golembeskie, backs. Geer is not expected to start because of a death in his family.

The probable N. F. A. starting lineup will be: Jerry Fitzgerald and Joe Sheridan at ends, Crowell and Cote at tackles, Stevens and Goldberg at guards, Abugle at center, Zictorac at quarter, Golembeskie at fullback and Cotter and Stockwell at halves.

Chapman Tech has been practicing about a week longer than the Academy and is rated in New London as a slight favorite to win. Tech has not defeated the locals since 1925 and is especially anxious to set them back this afternoon.

RAYMONDS ALL STARS MEET MONTVILLE INDIES TODAY

Raymonds All Stars will meet the fast Montville Independents at the Providence street grounds this afternoon. Raymonds All Stars consist mostly of the Shyma ball club. Montville hopes to beat the All Stars as the Shymas have hooked up two defeats on them this season.

Reports coming from Montville are that Jab Burns of Norwich is expected to catch with either Lamphere who has made quite a record this season, Ski, who was chosen most valuable player of the Montville Industrial league, or Gero, of New London, on the mound.

H. N. S. vs. Ashland

Sunday at Ashland Park, Jewett City, the strong H. N. S. team will clash with the fast Acco's. Manager Sekula of the Acco's says his team will make it two straight, but Coach Joe Gilbert thinks otherwise. There is keen rivalry displayed by both teams and by the fans of Jewett City. Bernal, Vachon or Wolkowski will pitch for the H. N. S. For the Acco's Juber or Derda will pitch.

Following are the lineups for both teams:

H. N. S.—Slonsky, leftfield; Gilbert, centerfield; Perry, first base; Pizzo, catch; Beaulieu, rightfield; Solonski, third base; Bush, second base; Kuszk, shortstop; Bernal, pitch.

ATHLETICS RALLY IN NINTH TO BEAT YANKS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26—(AP)—Rallying in the ninth inning of a close game, the Athletics scored their second triumph of the season's final series over the New York Yankees today, by a 7 to 6 score.

With the score tied, one out and a man on second through a walk and an error, George Pipgras relieved young Frank Barnes, who had sailed through the first eight and a half innings despite bad streaks of wildness. Pipgras pitched only to Al Simmons and the Philadelphia slugger clouted a double that brought Schang home with the winning run. Barnes allowed the champions only eight hits before this final blow but he walked eight men and allowed the A's to tie the score on two occasions after New York had taken the lead. Eddie Rommel did a good job of relief pitching for the A's in the last five innings after relieving Charley Perkins.

Simmons made two hits in four times at bat to take the American league batting lead away from Buster Lou Gehrig, who made three fruitless trips to the plate.

LYONS WINS SINGLE-HANDED AGAINST DETROIT CLUB

DETROIT, Sept. 26—(AP)—Ted Lyons pitched and batted the Chicago White Sox to a 3 to 1 victory over the Tigers in the series opener here this afternoon.

Not only did the Sox hurler let the Tigers down with five hits, but he hit a homer in the fifth scoring what proved to be the winning run. The only Tiger run came on Gehringer's homer in the ninth inning. Waite Hoyt yielded eight hits in the eight innings he worked. Sullivan gave up two more in the ninth.

RED SOX PREVENT HADLEY FROM GETTING $500 BONUS

BOSTON, Sept. 26—(AP)—The lowly Red Sox cost Mr. Bump Hadley of Washington, D. C., $500 bonus money here today by tagging a 7 to 1 defeat on the Senators. Hadley has an agreement with his management that he gets $500 for every victory over 15 and as he won his 15th a few days ago, he was out for his bonus today.

It was the second straight win out of three games played for the Sox and Milton Gaston, a former Washington hurler, gave his old teammates but seven scattered hits. He also drove in two runs and his battery mate, Johnny Heving, drove in three. Rabbit Wartsler of the Sox, handled 11 chances flawlessly in the field.

Hadley drove in the only Washington run with a double but was out trying to stretch it into a triple.

CUBS CLINCH SECOND PLACE BEATING REDS

CHICAGO, Sept. 26—(AP)—The Cubs clinched second place in the National league but lost out in their futile chase after the St. Louis Cardinals today as they defeated the Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 5, in the second game of the concluding series of the season. Although victorious, the Cubs remained three games behind as the Cards clinched the title by defeating Pittsburgh, 10 to 5. The clubs have only two games apiece to play.

Hack Wilson's 54th home run with Cuyler on base provided the margin of victory as it capped a seventh inning attack that brought the Cubs from behind. "Foots" Blair, shared the day's hitting honors with Wilson by smashing out a triple, a double and a single that accounted for three runs. The playing on both sides was hampered by a strong cold wind that made fielding difficult.

The Cubs again got off ahead as timely hits in the first and third innings, combined with a pair of Cincinnati errors, gave them three runs off Larry Benton. Fred Blake held the Reds to four hits until the seventh when they laced him for four blows, one a homer by Leo Durocher, to take the lead. They had scored twice in the sixth on singles by Meusel and Heilmann, a wild pitch and Ford's sacrifice fly. Durocher's homer tied the score and three more hits, one a double by Meusel, put the Reds ahead for a few moments in the seventh.

"Old Hoss" Stephenson, pinch hitting for Blake, opened the seventh inning attack that drove Benton from the mound and won the game. He led off with a single and Teachout who ran for him, scored on Blair's triple. Blair scored on an error and Cuyler singled to ride home when Wilson drove his 54th homer into the right field bleachers.

Si Johnson and Ken Ash finished the game on the mound for Cincinnati while Guy Bush completed the Cub hurling job.

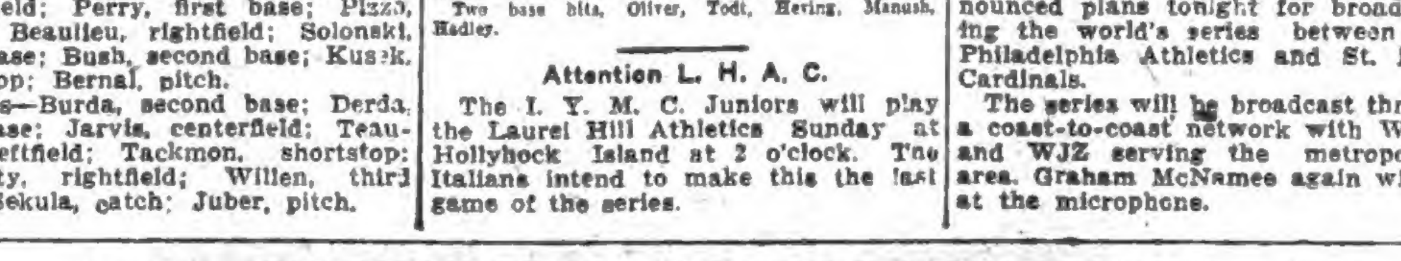
WORLD'S SERIES WILL BE BROADCAST OVER NETWORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 26—(AP)—The National Broadcasting company announced plans tonight for broadcasting the world's series between the Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Cardinals.

The series will be broadcast through a coast-to-coast network with WEAF and WJZ serving the metropolitan area. Graham McNamee again will be at the microphone.



No. 4—Booting Away A Prize

The 1912 world series was stretched to eight games as a result of a 6 to 6 eleven inning tie in the second game.

This has been regarded as the most striking instance in world series history of a championship being booted away.

Errors played a big part in the play throughout. The Giant's miscues kept them from winning the tie game handily in regulation innings and the winning run for the Red Sox in the fifth game, decided by a score of 2 to 1, was made on an error.

But the eighth game, finally won by the Sox, 3 to 2, in ten innings, after great pitching by Mathewson for the Giants and Bedient and Wood for the Sox, was the climax.

The Giants seemed to have the game and series won when the bottom fell out of their plans. With the score 1 to 0 in favor of New York, Stahl's pop fly fell safe and led to a tied score in the seventh. Stahl scored on a double by Henricksen, batting for Bedient.

The Giants went ahead in the tenth when they scored a run. Wood's hand was hurt in this inning and Engle batted for him in the Boston half of the tenth. Snodgrass dropped Engle's fly and the pinch hitter went to second.

Snodgrass then made a sensational catch of Hooper's fly. Yerkes walked. Speaker hit a foul which fell between Mathewson, Merkle and Meyers and Tris then singled after this "life." Engle scored with the tying run, and Yerkes ran to third. Gardner flied to Devore and Yerkes scored with the winning run after the catch.

Hooper had previously saved the game for the Red Sox by leaning across a short fence in right field to catch a drive from Doyle's bat. It would have been a home run and there would have been no tenth inning, if it had fallen.

In 1914 the baseball world was shocked when the lowly Braves, despised in their own league until they captured the pennant by a terrific late season drive, won from the great Athletics in four straight games, the first time this feat had been achieved in a world series.

Great pitching by Rudolph and James and the batting of Hank Gowdy, then as now a Boston catcher, decided the series in a minimum time.

Gowdy hit a single, double and triple in the first game, won by the Braves, 7 to 1, with Rudolph opposing Bender. James scored a 1 to 0 decision over Plank in the second game, Deal, substitute infielder, scoring the only run of the game. Deal had been caught off base, but escaped.

The third game went 12 innings before the Braves won, 5 to 4. Gowdy hit a home run and drove in another run to tie the score in the tenth, then opened the twelfth with a double. Mann ran for him and scored when Bush made a wild throw of a bunt by Moran.

Gowdy gave future generations a mark to shoot at in world series batting averages by clubbing for a percentage of .545. Of his six hits only one was a single. He hit three doubles, a triple and a home run in four days.

ST. LOUIS CLINCHES NATIONAL PENNANT

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 26—(AP)—It's the Cardinals versus the Athletics in the world series.

"Gabby" Street's Red Birds today qualified to uphold the honor of the National league against the Philadelphia Athletics, American league champions, in this year's baseball classic by slugging out a 10 to 5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates and clinching the 1930 league pennant, the St. Louis club's third in the last five seasons.

Although Chicago defeated Cincinnati today the Cubs are three full games behind St. Louis and, with only two more games to play, the Cardinals could lose both and still win the flag.

Despite chilly weather that smacked of football days, some 10,000 howling fans went wild as the Red Birds climaxed their sensational drive that lifted them from a poor fourth to first place in the closing weeks of the season.

To Jesse Haines, dean of the Cardinals hurling staff, and a veteran of the Red Birds' two other world's series campaigns, fell the honor of clinching this year's pennant. Haines outpitched Ervin Brame of the Pirates to chalk up the Cardinals' twenty-first victory in the last 24 games. Since August 1 the Cardinals have won 43 of 55 games and have boosted their percentage mark more than 100 points.

While Haines was none too steady today, his mates backed him up with the same heavy slugging that has been a big factor in their victorous drive down the stretch. One big inning, the fourth, was all the Cardinals needed, seven runs rattling across the plate before the side could be retired. A home run by Watkins was mixed in with hits by Hafey, Mancuso, Gelbert, Douthit, Frisch and Bottomley to bring in the seven tallies.

The remainder of the Cardinal scoring was done in the sixth. A single by Haines, Adams' double, a triple by Frisch and Bottomley's double resulted in three runs.

The Pirates started off as though they might delay the Cardinals' pennant clinching program. Paul Waner hit a home run into the right center pavilion in the third, scoring Brame, who had singled. They picked up another run in the fifth on a walk to Dugas, Paul Waner's single and an infield out.

Gus Suhr scored Pittsburgh's fourth run in the sixth with a homer into the right field pavilion, and the Pirates' last run came in the seventh when Paul Waner walked, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Grantham's single.

Haines held the Pirates to eight hits; St. Louis gathered 16.

In contrast to the Cardinals' other two pennant victories, downtown St. Louis showed little concern when the flag was clinched today. There was some cheering where crowds had gathered around radios and some ticker tape floated down from buildings but whistles failed to blow, auto horns were quiet and there wasn't the same spontaneous celebration that marked the other successful conquests.

It was a different matter at Sportsman's park. There the fans danced, howled, cheered, blew horns and threw hats onto the field.

Tomorrow the high flying Red Birds will be feted with a parade and celebration that will be a fitting honor to a team that made one of the most sensational dashes to a pennant in National league history.

Kaceys vs. Westerly Independents

The Kaceys of New London and the Westerly Independents will play the third and deciding game of the series on the White Rock diamond on Sunday. The Independents if they win this game, can claim the championship of New London county and Southeastern Rhode Island, as they have a victory in the only game played with the Polish Citizens club of Norwich early in the season.

Next Sunday, October 5th, the Independents will play an all star aggregation of the Eastern league.

More than a million dollars of the estate of the late John Whalen, formerly corporation counsel of New York city, remains to be divided among several score of relatives who claim an interest, according to an accounting filed in surrogate's court, New York.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Concert at Slater Hall.

The varied and musicianly program to be given by Henry Brynan at his Slater hall concert next Tuesday evening September 30, includes the famous "Poeme" by Chausson. This composition is one of the most exacting in violin literature in its demands on the performer. Virtuosity of a high order coupled with a genuine artistic sense, is necessary for the interpretation of the intense beauty of its themes. In the programming of this number Mr. Brynan is justified as his playing with its individual character and depth is remarkable.

Admirers of the violin and music in general will sense in this young artist's ability a rare and sincere musicianship. Mr. Brynan is a native of Norwich, attending the Norwich Free Academy from which he went to New York city, where his unusual gifts and ambition won the admiration of his teachers, so much so, that for five consecutive years he has been presented a scholarship at the Institute of Musical Art under Dr. Frank Damrosch. Nothing helps in the making of an artist like appreciation. This we can give Mr. Brynan in attending the recital sponsored by the Norwich Rotary club for the benefit of the Dr. John Blackmar fund.

The Tired Woman's Epitaph

Here lies an old woman who always was tired;
She lived in a house where help was not hired.
Her last words on earth were: "Dear friends I am going
Where washing ain't done, nor sweeping, nor sewing;
But everything there is exact to my wishes;
For where they don't eat there's no washing of dishes.
I'll be where loud anthems will always be ringing,
But, having no voice, I'll be clear of the singing;
Don't mourn for me now; don't mourn for me never—
I'm going to do nothing for ever and ever."

"Us"

When we're feeling mean and ugly,
And we want to claw and fight,
When we blame the "other fellow,"
And it's "us" that's always right—
Then it's time for us to ponder,
Time to change our point of view,
"See ourselves as others see us,"
Stubborn—yes, and hateful, too!

If we want folks to be friendly,
We ourselves must friendly be;
Chances are that many others
Have more troubles than have we,
What's the use of sadly sighing,
Fretting, crying all the day?
Let us all be "up and doing,"
Driving all the glooms away!

This world may be full of trouble
Most of us have had our share,
None of us are free from trials,
All have burdens we must bear.
But there is no use of grumbling,
Better far a crooked grin—
When we open up the windows
Of our hearts the sun shines in.

The Death of the Flowers

The melancholy days are come, the saddest of the fear
Of wailing winds, and naked woods, and meadows brown and sere.
Heaped in the hollows of the grove, the autumn leaves lie dead;
They rustle to the eddying gust, and to the rabbit's tread.
The robin and wren are flown, and from the shrubs the jay
And from the wood-top calls the crow through all the gloomy day.

Where are the flowers, the fair young flowers that lately sprang and stood
In brighter light and softer airs, a beauteous sisterhood?
Alas! they all are in their graves, the gentle race of flowers
Are lying in their lowly beds, with the fair and good of ours.
The rain is falling where they lie but the cold November rain
Calls not from the gloomy earth the lovely ones again.

The wind-flower and the violet, they perished long ago,
And the brier-rose and the orchids died amid the summer glow;
But on the hill the golden-rod, and the aster in the wood,
And the yellow sunflower by the brook in autumn beauty stood,
Till fell the frost from the clear cold heaven as falls the plague on men,
And the brightness of their smile was gone from upland, glade and glen.

And now, when comes the calm mild day, as still such days will come
To call the squirrel and the bee from out their winter home;
When the sound of dropping nuts is heard, though all the trees are still,
And twinkle in the smoky light the waters of the rill,
The south wind searches for the flowers whose fragrance late he bore,
And sighs to find them in the wood and by the stream no more.

And then I think of one who in her youthful beauty died,
The fair meek blossom that grew up and faded by my side.
In the cold moist earth we laid her, when the forest cast the leaf,
And we wept that one so lovely should have a life so brief;
Yet not unmeet it was that one like that young friend of ours,
So gentle and so beautiful, should perish with the flowers.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

BLACKEYED SUSIE: Letter sent as requested.

MY VISIT TO BOSTON

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I am going to tell you of a trip I had last week.

A friend of mine was going to drive to Boston to see her son and asked me if I would care to go. Of course there was only one answer to that.

We, my friend, the young man who drove for her, and myself, left Westerly at 6:30 last Monday morning. It was raining, but as it was a closed car we did not mind.

I am somewhat familiar with the road as far as Providence but beyond that it is all strange to me, as it was to the driver. We reached Providence all right and on into Pawtucket. Asked a gentleman on the sidewalk if we were headed right for Boston. He said we were and to follow Route 1, and it would take us right there. I watched for the route marks and signs and the driver watched traffic signals, etc., and we got along fine. I do not know all the places we passed through but a few were Attleboro, Roslyndale, E. Walpole, Wrentham and Dedham.

A place of interest we passed was a duck farm. I never saw so many ducks in my life there were hundreds of them.

We found the street we wished, in the Back Bay section, with very little trouble. We entered the city through "The Fenway," which is the most exclusive residential section and very beautiful.

We reached our destination shortly before 11 and lunch was the next number on the program.

Our hostess was a complete stranger to me, but I never was made to feel more at home in my life. A tiny little lady with a real mother heart. I had always read of Boston people being cold and haughty, but she certainly was not. So jolly and friendly and so solicitous of our comfort and welfare. Two other ladies we met, a friend of our hostess and an aunt of the young man we went to see, were just as nice and friendly. If they are an example of Boston's courtesy to strangers the city has a right to be proud of its people. It's reputation for friendliness and courtesy is in safe hands with such as those.

After lunch my friend's son went out a few minutes and returned with a young lady whom he wished us to meet. I was led up to her and saw a sweet faced, slender young woman with fair bobbed hair and gray eyes. During the afternoon she entertained us by playing and singing several selections. Nothing remarkable in that, you say, not if it were an ordinary person, but she was not. Sisters—here is the remarkable part. That young lady is totally blind and has been so from childhood. Just think, every piece of music she plays, every song she sings, must be memorized. There is no hesitation, no shrinking in her manner at meeting strangers, only complete self-possession. I wish I had half her ease of manner in meeting people.

I wonder if you Cornerites would not be as interested as I was. So when I had an opportunity I explained to her about our Corner page and asked her if she would mind if I told you about her. She said she would be glad to give me a brief sketch of her life and here it is. I played the role of reporter and copied down what she said. This is her story, told in her own words:

"My name is Mary Lynn Rollins. I lost my sight at eight years of age. I entered school at ten years of age, in the south, won state prize for composition at the age of 16 and graduated at 18. I made my debut as pianist at age of 15 and singer and composer at age of 16, and as organist at age of 18. For concert, church and high class theatrical work, I came to New England Conservatory of Music and graduated in 1927 with high honors. Composed several pieces and had them played by Boston Symphony orchestra, the most popular of which is 'Spanish Dance.' My first position was in Maine, in 1924, teaching music. In 1925, I was given a scholarship which enabled me to study at Conservatory of Music. In 1926 I went south and took a position as head of girls' school. Took part in contest and won scholarship in Chicago Music college, obtaining B. A. degree. Came back south and resumed position and after the death of my father took position in New York as radio performer which position I still hold. I have been on several chain programs, including National Broadcasting company's.

"In the meantime I studied French, Italian and Spanish. Went to college in the summer of 1928 and passed government Spanish test with markings of A. I had been making plans to go to Mexico but on the death of my father I took a position in New York. I started radio work in 1922, my first broadcast being over WGI. Since then I have broadcast from the largest stations in Boston, New York, Chicago, Providence, Dallas and others. I am booked to sing for National Broadcasting company in the near future.

"I am making good in my position and have a large class. I have studied with some of the best teachers in America, including Charles A. White, who taught Helen Keller to speak, Mr. Chadwick and others. I am of a happy disposition, love people and love to give pleasure to others. I consider being without sight a mere inconvenience which can be overcome by constant effort, patience, perseverance and cheerfulness. My motto is 'Courage and cheerfulness are half the battle.' Obstacles are things to be overcome. My faith in God is strong and I know He will supply all the needs of those who trust Him."

Before tea, my friend's son (who is an ideal guide, seeming to know the most interesting points around the city) took us for a ride into the North station. We strolled through it (if anyone can be said to stroll in Boston) and it is certainly a wonderful place. There is a new hotel, "The Manger," very recently opened, which can be entered from the station. It has a sort of combination lunch room and candy kitchen on the street floor, which has the largest soda fountain in Boston.

In the evening we attended the new Keith's theatre. This is a very beautiful theatre, recently finished. The picture was a "talkie," of course, a musical comedy "Dixianna," the last part of which depicted scenes from the "Mardi Gras" in New Orleans, and was in colors.

After the theatre we called it a day and decided bed was the next event. We retired, but not to sleep. I never heard so much noise during the night in my life. Auto horns blared, brakes screeched and trolleys rumbled, until I held my head and prayed for just one hour of quiet. Several times, on the verge of sleep (and verge was as far as I got) I heard a noise which sounded as if everybody's pet pups were being slaughtered, but finally decided it was only the screaming of brakes. I inquired next morning if the trolleys ran all night, which seemed to amuse those wiser than I. As a country cousin I had thought they would cease at midnight. But it seems nothing ceases in Boston.

I looked in vain for a back yard, but there "ain't no such animal." All I could find was a small space, hemmed in by towering walls and cemented underfoot. Whereupon curiosity conquered me and I sought information as to where the wash was hung and was told it was on the roof.

After breakfast our guide told us he was going to take us to see what he called "The Palace," in the "Fenway," and "palace" is a fitting name. As I understood him the story is this: A Mrs. Gardner built this magnificent building and filled it with choice works of art etc., from all over the world. At her death, about five years ago, it was left to the city of Boston as a museum, to be open to the public.

There is an admission fee of 25 cents. On the door is a tablet with this inscription: "The Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum, Fenway Court."

It is a large stone building, three stories in height and oblong in shape, being slightly longer than it is wide. Inside it is in the form of a hollow square, built around an inside court or garden. Around the outer part of the square is a series of rooms and corridors, within, next to these are balconies (or as the guide book calls them "cloisters), their inner sides, except for arches, open to the garden in the center. Over this garden the roof is dome-shaped, somewhat higher than the rest of the roof and composed entirely of glass. This glass is opaque and the light is soft and subdued. The garden is lower than the building and on three sides there are stone steps leading down from the cloisters. These steps are roped off and visitors are not allowed to go into the garden, they may only view it from the cloisters. There are dozens and dozens of lilies in this garden. Some I judged to be Easter lilies and some are white lilies with red spots. I think they are called "Madonna" lilies. They are all in blossom and the air is heavy with their perfume. Dotted here and there through the garden are statues and at the farther end a fountain and marble basin.

Neither time nor space permit me to tell at length of the contents of the various rooms. There are famous paintings by the old masters, wonderful tapestries and many curios and rare articles from far countries, some dating back to the 12th and 14th centuries.

There is the Yellow room and the Blue room, containing mostly famous paintings. The room of early Italian paintings, the Raphael room, containing among other things, an Italian marriage chest. The little salon—one of the guards told us that everything in this room came from a French chateau. The tapestry room is larger than the hall where Club 6 holds its meetings. There is a stone mantel piece in this room, French, 14th century. On a long narrow table is an immense round platter. I think it must be a half inch in thickness and two feet or more in diameter. The Dutch room is another large room and the chapel, whose stained glass window is said to be French of the 13th century, the Gothic room, the Spanish cloister and the Chinese loggia. The last two we did not see as we were pressed for time.

You could spend an entire day in this wonderful building and come out feeling you had not really seen everything.

After lunch and a short rest we started on our return trip, reaching Westerly about 5:30, tired but happy. And with pleasant memories of our trip to Boston.

AMERICAN GIRL (Club 6)

ANNUALS BRIGHTEN GARDEN

Dear Social Corner: If Pernickety will come to my garden I will show her a white flower that I think is nice in bouquets. This is hardy ageratum. It grows nearly three feet high and has spreading branches which are covered with white flowers in September. A neighbor gave me a plant this spring and warned me that it would spread rapidly. My bouquet for last Sunday was a combination of pink cosmos, white scabiosca and hardy ageratum.

There are not many pretty things in my garden now for many of the plants are drying from lack of water. I shall not wait for the frost to kill the asters and zinnias before pulling them up. The calendulas also look as though they were past reviving.

What plants in your gardens stand the drought? My petunia bed has been gay with pink and blue flowers all summer. Verbenas, California poppies, tassel flowers, annual phlox and summer chrysanthemums keep on blooming while other plants shrivel and die. This year I had more annuals than ever before and find that they are a great help in keeping the garden bright during late summer.

Are your chrysanthemums going to bloom? My plants are full of fat buds and I am hoping they will have some perfect flowers. Every year the frost hurts them so that I have never had enough flowers to pay for keeping them. I like the white boltonia that Pernickety gave me. It is much more showy than the pink kind I already had. Now, I want some of the tall purple asters and an orchid kind that I have seen. Or are these called boltonia, too? Once I bought some named hardy asters that I had read about and to my chagrin they were just like the kind that grows so freely in swamp meadows.

My coleus slips are all rooted. I have a number of varieties and most of them are mixtures of reddish brown and green. But I have one with clear yellow leaves and another that is mostly pink, I have seen a green and white kind but have none of that. My favorite coleus is the trailing queen. This is the easiest one to raise. I put one of these plants in a window box with some green inch plants and the effect was very pleasing. Don't you dislike too many kinds of plants in a window box—especially if they are red geraniums, pink petunias and nasturtiums?

As I am not through going to fairs, I will leave that subject for another time. Pernickety will doubtless tell you all about our trip to Springfield and what we saw at the fair there.

SISTER RHODY.

QUERY ABOUT CANTERBURY BELLS.

Dear Social Corner Members: There is a proverb that teaches us that one is wise who learns from his own mistakes, or happy who learns from those of others, but a fool who learns from neither.

Surely the letters in the Social Corner lately have been so full of helpful hints that we all ought to have profited by them. I also enjoy the travel letters immensely.

Have any of the members had any experience in carrying over Canterbury bells to the third year if they did not bloom the second, as they should. I have a few very thrifty plants which did not bloom this year. Should I uproot them or are they worth carrying over. Does any one know?

I had a few plants of cynoglossum amabile this summer that survived the dry weather and if you want the most beautiful shade of blue in the world, try this in your garden next year. A few spikes of cynoglossum with orange calendulas are gorgeous. Also try this combination, a dark jog or crockery jar with sprays of climbing nasturtiums.

I wish to thank the Corner editor for my check. Haven't decided how to spend it yet; it's quite a momentous question.

I also wish to thank Pernickety and Sister Rhody for the package of seed they, or is it she, so thoughtfully sent me. I have already planted them and they are coming up nicely. I am anxiously watching to see if I can tell what they are as they appear. I have already discovered hollyhock and sweet william. They provide an interesting guessing game.

I wonder if Nonesopretty has heard of her other names. The most common are probably heartease and pansy violas. Down Easters call them Johnny-go-to-bed while the English call them Run-away-Margaret. Colloquial names of wild flowers are often quite unusual and interesting. I recently heard Joe pye weed called queen of the meadow which was new to me.

The cheerful crickets and noisy katy-dids are holding a revival meeting outside tonight, a reminder of winter and cold days to come. Just now they would be a relief after the past hot week we've lived through. No matter whether it's summer or winter, there are always new and interesting things to try out and do so let's get all the fun we can out of living, I say.

WINTER ROBIN.

WATER SHORTAGE PREVENTS PICNIC

Dear Sisters and Editor: I want to thank the ladies of Club No. 4 for the nice time we had at Dayville church in July, and I was in hopes to hear of another meeting soon.

I would be glad to have one at my home, if we were not out of water, and no one to get any for us. My daughter and I get all we use, and she is away all day. I wish I had time to write a letter about the trips we took this summer.

But, today, I want to tell the ladies and perhaps the gents too, about the war nurse I have been writing to for a year now. I have started her for a year now. I have started her—and I wonder if some more of the ladies would like to send her some, (as some did give me a number in the spring).

The nurse just asked if more of the ladies would write her and I will send her the Social Corner page.

So 1492, K. Doolittle, Twice-Twenty, Thirty-Two, Olga, Lonesome Pine, Primrose, get your pen and ink and write the poor girl one letter anyway, and those that have some quilt pieces—seven inches by four—and no two alike. She is quite miserable just now with no radio, and only a small library.

Oh! Aries, you will write her please. Her address is Ehster R. Benge, 321 W. Locust Ave., Kingfisher, Okla.

LAST ROSE OF SUMMER.

FLOWERS AT THE EXPOSITION

Dear Social Corner Friends: It didn't take Sister Rhody and me very long to look at all the flowers at the Eastern States exposition. We are not very much interested in dahlias and the gladioli claimed most of our attention. Do you like the ashy ones and those with the dark splotches? They are rather pretty, but somehow I think that I like the clear colored ones the best. Mrs. W. H. Phipps was one of the most striking of them all for it had such very large spikes with a number of blooms open. I thought the little, dark red Neoga very pretty, too! There were several nice whites which I had never seen before.

The potted plants were interesting—but not extraordinary beautiful. And we wonder why this famous fair doesn't have a larger flower show.

We watched for gardens along the way and discovered that they have one thing in common with ours and that is the dryness! There were some lovely red cannas in a park which we passed.

Have you seen the flower beds on the lawns of the Massachusetts state building at the fair? They were not as pretty this year as they were last year at this time, for most of the sedums have gone to seed and but few of the roses were in bloom. The rock garden invites one to explore all the crannies and discover all the plants that are tucked away there. Few of the plants were in bloom and the thriftiest plant in the place was a giant common mullein. I was disappointed to find that the frog with whom I made friends last year, was gone. Only his image was there, spouting water into the pool.

There was a yellow flower growing beside one of the buildings in the old-fashioned town which Sister Rhody didn't recognize. Probably she has looked through all her books and knows its names by this time. It was the size and color of golden glow and hardy zinnias but the leaves and growth was different than is common to either of those plants.

When I came home one of the first things I saw was a bunch of hollyhock seeds blowing around the yard where the boys had been playing with them. We cut the stalk of my ruffled pink Allegheny a few days ago and it measured nine feet and three inches high. Still, PERNICKETY.

ANIMALS ON THE FARM

Dear Editor and Sisters: Isn't this just scrumptious weather? Nearly October and no frost as yet, and how very badly we need rain. We have plenty of water and so has Milky Way, for which we are duly thankful. We have more water than last summer I think. One day this week I was down in the swamp looking for a calf and the ground in there was very moist in places. That cow hid her calf so well that we were unable to find it for two days, then she brought it out with the rest of the cows. The first night she came up with the rest and after milking was turned out with the rest. Sometime during the night she jumped two walls and crossed the road to get back to the calf. The boys tried to follow her next morning and she deliberately led them on a wild goose chase then turned and ran so fast they couldn't keep up with her. I went down where they thought she went and found her but not the calf. It was her first calf and how she knew how to hide it so carefully is a mystery. It was the brightest little thing and as cute as could be when I looked out and saw it with the cows. One of the boys came and got it and he had quite a tussle before he got it loaded across his shoulders. He certainly needed no auto horn as he went up the lane. The calf's lungs were plenty good.

Jimmie, the skunk, comes each night and drives away the cats and eats up their supper. The poor kittens do have hard luck between the hens and skunks and a neighbor's dog. Sometimes Jimmie brings another with him but not often since the first few times. I went down cellar for jelly glasses one night and when I started up the steps Jimmie was at the top looking down. I waited a minute and he ambled off down toward the wall. Another night I started down but only reached the corner when I met him and he never gave an inch. I waited but he started towards me so I decided to put off the trip 'til later. One of the cats will eat with him but the rest are rather timid yet. His fur will not be very valuable as there is too much white on him. He has a white top knot and two white stripes down his sides and white on his tail. Please don't ask why I call it "he" as I don't know its sex, but have to call him something. He's a cute rascal, anyway.

The youngsters go to school all day this year and after the hectic hour and a half of getting them started Kitty Lou and I have things pretty much our own way. They have been going to bed at dark all summer and as it gets dark earlier I've been trying to get them to bed at dark just the same. But, alas, they go, yes, but sleep? Well, after a while. They need the extra sleep when going to school but its hard to arrange so they get it. And after next week it will be dark an hour earlier and I just know I won't be able to put that over.

The twins are having the teacher I had the first day I went to school. She says she can tell them apart but their teacher last year said one read better than the other, but she couldn't tell which it was. We are very fortunate in having both teachers and principal who take such good care of the children. The bus drivers, too, are just as good as they can be, and always warn the youngsters to be careful and often get out and see that they get safely across the road.

Susanna: Zelleks is Mrs. Harriet Griffin, 55 Granite street, Westerly, R. I. She was always willing to help out on our programs, giving readings, some of which she composed herself. We shall miss her very much if she is unable to come when the meetings open.

Ravena: Did you have a whirlwind motor in the car?

SUMAC (No. 4).

CHANGING OF THE SEASONS

Dear Readers of the Social Corner: Does it seem possible there is to be just one more fair in the state for this year? I mean that time slips by so fast that we scarcely notice the passing of the seasons and when the fairs begin we know that autumn is with us again. Then the dread of winter steals over us but before we realize it the bluebirds and bursting buds and other harbingers of spring are with us, and so softly and quietly does springtime clasp the hand of summer, she passes gently by. Summer stays with us just a short while it seems, then back dances breezy autumn with Jack Frost, the mischief maker, ushering in winter again.

To me that is just as the seasons come and go. Just as one is enjoying one season, it quickly changes to another and each brings its work as well as pleasures.

So autumn has come to tell us of the harvest time which means hard work for farmers, yet many of us take the time to attend the fairs and exposition. It gives us something different to talk about when we gather around the table after chores.

I have attended two fairs this year; although one is not spoken of as a fair but an exposition.

Already you have guessed my letter.

Reading between the lines, aren't you?

I always go to the North Stonington Grange fair. One reason is, it's so near my home; another is, I enjoy looking at the beautiful exhibits of art, and fruits and vegetables that our own townspeople carry to make the fair the huge success it is each year. Those unable to attend or who did not know of the entertainment Thursday afternoon, surely lost a lot of amusement. I have neither time nor space to go into details regarding the program; those who were there know of it and those who were not were unfortunate.

Each day I attended this fair and then Friday I indulged again in a full day of pleasure.

Doesn't it take tact to get some hubbies to do as you want them to do sometimes? The old saying is: "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the nation." Well, anyway, quite late Thursday evening it was decided we would go to the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield, so husband, son and myself accepted an invitation of a friend and off we started, bright and early, leaving the farm problems for those at home to solve for the rest of the day. (At least I did—I can not vouch for the others.) At 9:15 we were on the fairgrounds. I knew just where to guide the young son as I was there last year. He surely was amazed at the size of the cattle and swine. The exhibits were nearly the same as last year with a few more added.

An antique work shop was interesting. Another attraction was a 60-ton whale. It sounds fishy doesn't it? And it took eight barrels of embalming fluid to preserve it. It has been out of the ocean depths for over five years.

There were carriages and stage coaches, both old and new. One stage coach was used before the Civil war, another was used in England.

Outside, between two of the state buildings, was a three-masted schooner. Sailors were rigging her. It had a breeches buoy attached. It was named "Plymouth," but I very much doubt if it were the Plymouth our forefathers came over in.

We sat on the grandstand after dinner and enjoyed (?) the auto racing. I enjoyed every bit of it except when the drivers took the curves, but fortunately no one needed the ambulance that stood waiting for a call.

A champion motorcycle rider whose name is Seymore surely did some very difficult stunts with the motorcycle. I was thankful when he was through as the different positions in which he performed were so dangerous; also the bicyclist who looped the loop. Last year one young man was instantly killed at Kingstown fair performing this same stunt.

The performance I enjoyed mostly was by the trained animals. In the animal kingdom my favorite is a beautiful horse. It is wonderful how dumb animals can be so educated to do such dancing and courtseying. The dogs, too, were well trained.

Two bears rode bicycles. Well I could write for hours, but will soon close and give Ravena a chance to tell us about the exposition.

Wherever we go, from one city to another the business depression seems to be the same; doesn't it? I heard about an ambitious young woman in a near western state last winter, who went to city authorities for work. She was told "All the work at present is to shovel snow," and she was so anxious she asked "Will the job last all summer?"

Ravena: Please give us another letter. The last one was intensely interesting. The description of the places you visited was so plain I could imagine how they appeared, as if I were there.

That the sick may soon be well and the shut-ins be comforted is the wish of PRAIRIE CHICKEN.

DOING UP CURTAINS.

Dear Corner Friends: No doubt many sisters are, or soon will be, engaged in dressing the house for winter. Which means, among other other things, clean curtains. Perhaps suggestions that made the job easier for me will do as much for some of you. So here they are:

If, while ironing curtains, you experience difficulty in keeping the edges straight, take a pencil and a rule. Draw a straight line along the board and at one end a line crossing it at right angles. Fit the corners of the curtain right into this drawing and the edges will go along the long line, thus insuring a straight ende. Another helpful thing is never to starch the hem through which curtain rod is to be slipped. The rod will then go through without tearing the curtain. Putting a thimble or an old glove finger over the rod end will also make it slip through the hem smoothly.

Quid Nunc: Thank you for the information about a Rhode Island Johnny-cake recipe. I most certainly shall get a package of that meal and try the recipe you so kindly suggested.

Stebelia: What a lot of uses you have found for grain bags. Heretofore I've used them only as bags—clothes pin bags, jelly bags, etc. Some time I shall put some of your suggestions into effect.

Amly: Unfortunately no potatoes were left in the experimental barrel to grow larger. Will have another try at it next year. I'm thoroughly convinced the idea can be worked successfully.

IRVA LYNN.

To encourage tourists wishing to visit Mexico, the government has ruled persons do not have to present photos of themselves to obtain passports.

FLOWER POTS AND MAGAZINE RACKS

Social Corner Friends: I have been taking up my plants. I have eight kinds of geraniums, four of bogonias, daisy, patience plant, two kinds of house ferns, ageratium, three kinds of foliage, Jerusalem cherry, white cactus and several others. I ran out of flower pots so I made some out of coffee cans and other smaller cans, punched holes in the bottom for drainage and covered with crepe paper, fastened with a small wire, or covered with wall paper and pasted on picture of flowers cut from seed catalogues. Then I use covers of coffee cans for saucers and use shelf oilcloth for window sills where the flower pots stand.

I made a magazine rack from a box 18 inches high and about 13 inches wide, covered it with wall paper and used scenery pictures from magazines; also used the small colored pictures to passe partout, or put into small frames.

Did you ever make the flower vases from glasses and use decalcamania pictures of fruit and flowers? They are very pretty.

Tiny: Why haven't I heard from you? Come and see me.

Susanna: I, too, like things that show a lot of time spent, and do not make quilts as I have a good many nice ones. Would like to have you see my rugs.

Come to 44 Case street, Norwich Town, and I will be glad to show them to you. I attended the grange fair and thought the exhibits very nice.

LOVE

OLD-FASHION THINGS.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: I enjoyed Susanna's letter about her curios. Should like to see her collection of platters. When calling recently I saw an old-fashion Chippendale sideboard. This was shaped similar to an ox-bow. It had eight very slender legs and was inlaid with many very small pieces. The present owner said it had been in the same house for 100 years and she didn't know how much older it was. It was solid mahogany and had been in constant use. I cannot do it justice; it was a beautiful piece of furniture.

I have a very few old-fashioned things, my latest additions being some hand-wrought nails and hand-carved clothes pins. A friend of mine, now 87 years old, uses these clothes pins all the time. She said her aunt had them when she started housekeeping. I expressed a desire for one and she gave it to me. I don't use mine. They are about seven inches long, about three times as heavy as our common clothes pins and have no heads, just a round end. You can see where they were whittled with a knife.

I have written about clothes pins; who can tell us about old-fashioned hair pins?

I also own an old-fashioned leather-bound Bible in which the letter s is made f. It is over 100 years old. Have one sample dated 1599, also some pieces of furniture. Hope some time to have a room furnished with all old things.

Legion: Shall think of you often and hope all may be well with you soon.

Rasena: Enjoyed your letter. It was intensely interesting to me. Have often wondered how your daughter was as I was ringing ears at the same time but my little boy had to be operated upon. He is fine now.

I should enjoy spending a night or two in your guest room. Irva Lynn.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lecture on Christian Science

Again the opportunity is given to the people of Norwich to hear a free lecture on Christian Science. It will be delivered by Miss M. Ethel Whitcomb, C. S. B., member of the Board of Lectureship. The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., in the Universalist church, 148 Broadway, Sunday, September 28, at three in the afternoon.

Broadway Theatre

Outstanding in every respect, a massive production with a story which for tenseness and human interest has seldom been told on the dialogue screen, and every character played by a thorough stage artist, the Pathe picture "Holiday," which opens at Warner's Broadway today, doubtless will be acclaimed as being perhaps the finest comedy drama of high society and wealth ever filmed.

POPULAR PATHE STAR

Sophistication and smartness—these are the terms that truly describe the charm and scintillation that marks every scene of "Holiday." Set in the background of a Fifth avenue mansion of unlimited wealth, a most gripping story is developed with intelligence and savior faire. The brilliant dialogue of Philip Barry's stage success, has been retained in the screen version almost in its entirety.

Palace Theatre

"Moby Dick" the screen version of the famous novel of the same name will be shown at the Palace theatre on Sunday and through Wednesday of this week.

Against a background of ocean storms and high adventure John Barrymore has made his third talking picture. There is no doubt but that it will go down in history as the greatest work of the famous actor's career and in Ahab, the sailor who pursues "Moby Dick" the most famous and infamous whale that ever lived, he builds up a character that will not be forgotten.

With the setting in the old fishing village of New Bedford in the year 1838, 'Moby Dick" tells story of the many expeditions which put out to destroy the great white whale which was the terror of the seas. Young Ahab signs up on a three years' voyage and goes after the whale. After a great battle Ahab loses a leg. Determined to get the whale he sails the seas for many years and is at last victorious.

There is a love story interwoven and it also plays a prominent part in the plot. Joan Bennett plays the role of the minister's daughter with whom Ahab and his brother are in love. She does this with perfect understanding an her interpretation is remarkable.

"On Your Back" with Irene Rich and H. B. Warner and "Oh Sailor Behave" will be shown at the Palace for the last time today.

MARKET FLUCTUATED THEN WENT INTO A FRESH DECLINE IN THE FINAL HOUR

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP)—After fluttering nervously until early afternoon, the stock market went into a fresh decline in the final hour today under the impetus of large selling orders. It was the most active session since late June, for sales aggregated 3,704,600 shares, considerably above the Wednesday turnover.

Except the late weakness of wheat, there was nothing to account for the slump, which brought net losses of 1 to 3 points in a representative list of prominent stocks. Those interested in following the averages noted that the composite on 90 issues, compiled by Standard Statistics Co., dropped 2.4 points to 164.3, just three-tenths of a point above the June bottom. This is a drop of more than 16 points in two weeks.

Motor shares were acutely weak; in fact, the market slid into its worst decline soon after the break in this group occurred. There was also marked heaviness in the coppers, oils and rails. Amusements, relatively firm, the New York city tractions, a few specialties and a number of preferred stocks afforded the only relief from the well defined downturn.

The market opened lower and soon ran into an active decline that centered around Radio, which dropped a couple of points to a new low on large sales. Strength of U. S. Steel reversed the trend after the first half hour and rallying tendencies prevailed through the noon hour, although little attempt was made to follow up the advances. Acute weakness of Chrysler early in the afternoon was followed by heavy offerings of the other motor shares, and by the start of the final hour the market had broken sharply. There was enough late covering to keep a majority of closing prices off the bottom, but in the meantime the favorites had broken through their previous lows for this strenuous week of bearish activity.

Mild optimism was the tenor of the weekly trade reviews. Dun's said reports from different sections of the country "reveal a moderately better trend," although individual lines continued to disclose irregularity. The composite sentiment, said the summary, was "more cheerful." Bradstreet's noted numerous cross sections in general business, but asserted that the advance of the season had in general "made for a further moderate advance in fall trade."

The bond market was strong. Prices there, it was pointed out, are fast reaching the point where yields will be so small that investment funds, based on past experience, will be forced into high grade common stocks in order to find employment, since such a movement inevitably accompanies swings in the security price cycle, and Wall street sees no reason why the old rule should not apply this time.

The glutted condition of the money markets is doubtless a bearish influence, for the enormous supply of cash seeking an outlet forcefully reflects the absence of a demand for credit. This, however, is rather the short term viewpoint, for a maintenance of cheap money—and the federal reserve apparently intends to keep it cheap—will eventually be a first aid to business when the recovery does definitely quicken.

The market is looking more and more to such old bulwarks as U. S. Steel, American Can and General Electric for leadership, and the quotations of these and other barometers are closely watched. Considerable support was evident in them for a time today, but the insistence of the selling eventually overcame the resistance. U. S. Steel, however, closed only 1-4 net lower after dipping through yesterday's bottom. General Electric's net loss was 1 3-8, while Can was heavier, off 3 1-2.

The break in Radio carried it down to 28 against the year's high of 69 3-8. Chrysler, another of the many stocks to record a new 1930 low, touched 20 1-8. Baltimore & Ohio, Rock Island, Missouri-Pacific and St. Louis Southwestern, among the rails, in addition to a long string of coppers, oils and specialties, reached new minimums for the year.

Chrysler's net loss of 3 points was accompanied in the motor group by 1 to 2 point drops in Studebaker, Nash, General Motors, Mack Trucks and Hudson. Brockway lost 5 and Auburn Auto 8.

Net declines of 1 to 3 appeared in American Telephone, Bethlehem Steel, General Electric, Westinghouse, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Union Carbide, Canadian Pacific, Anaconda, International Harvester, North American, Radio, Gillette, Union Pacific, United Aircraft and National Cash Register. Missouri-Pacific lost 4, and Allied Chemical, 9 3-4.

Wheat's declines on the day ranged from 1 1-2 to 2 cents, while corn sagged 1 1-4 to 2 5-8. Cotton, under the pressure of continued selling, touched the lowest prices in years and closed at new lows for the season with net losses of 55 to 95 cents a bale.

Foreign exchanges were irregularly lower. Sterling sagged.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Flattened out like pancakes, grain values today lay nearly motionless after touching new low record figures unequalled before in the experience of most traders here. Virtually the sole demand for future deliveries of wheat and other cereals during much of the day was from previous sellers who were in a position to collect a profit. The extraordinary standstill was reached pending action by board of trade directors, which came after business had ended for the day and which took the form of an official assurance to Secretary of Agriculture Hyde that measures would be instituted to end selling of grain future contracts here by any foreign government.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsteady, 2a2 1-4c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1 1-8a2 5-8c down, oats 1 1-4a1 1-2c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of $1.00.

Despite higher quotations on hogs, provisions declined with cereals.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Futures closed barely steady, 11 to 19 points lower. Spot quiet; middling 10.35.

Treasury Balance.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Sept. 24 were $5,295,279.73; expenditures $7,151,452.88; balance $337,346,363.01.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Intermittent feeble rallies again failed to halt the decline in the curb market today, and losses that ranged up to 12 points were registered, as activity expanded to the best figure since June.

The dominant sentiment remained on the downside in an irregular session. Pressure on oil shares gradually extended to the rest of the list after the languorous movement in a forenoon rally gave short sellers further encouragement. Short covering in the final hour held the losses of many active issues within fractional limits but many new lows for the year were added to those recorded in previous sessions this week.

The resumption of the selling movement after an irregular opening was at the fastest pace since spring and despite the dullness on the spasmodic attempts to force a technical recovery, the total turnover for the day reached 742,300 shares.

The petroleum group moved downward from the start of the session and staged only feeble recoveries from the lows. Standard Oil of Indiana lost 2 points to about the price reached in the November break and closed 1 3-4 lower. Cosden sagged 7 points. Standard, Cosden, Vacuum, Lion and Creole established new lows for the year. Gulf dropped 1 3-4 and Humble more than 1 point.

American Super Power, Niagara Hudson, Public Utility Holding, were important utilities to reach new lows for the year. As a group, utilities suffered less than oils and industrials. Largest losses were American & Foreign Power, off 3, Duke down 12, and Electric Bond & Share, International Super Power, North American Light & Power, Standard Public Service A, United Light & Power B, which lost 1 to 3 points.

The sharpest recessions as a whole developed among industrials and specialties. Technicolor, which has been under heavy pressure throughout the week, sold off 4, to another new year's low. A. O. Smith dropped 6. Aluminum of America, Franklin Manufacturing, Seeman Brothers, United Shoe, Western Air Express, Goldman Sachs, Dresser Manufacturing A, Driver Harris, dipped 1 to 3 points.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP)—A moderate improvement in the commercial failure records was reported by R. G. Dun & Co. this week. The total for the week was 482, which, although well above the average for the season, is nine less than the 491 insolvencies reported last week. The total was 60 more than reported in the corresponding week last year, compared with a rise of 137 reported last week. The Pacific coast showed fewer failures this week than during the corresponding period of 1929.

A large volume of public work proposals featured activity in the nation's heavy construction and engineering field during the week, Construction Daily reports. The total for the period was $20,907,000 for public works, a major portion of the jobs being for projected waterworks and sewers. The total for all classes, except highways, was $46,510,000, compared with $33,930,000 in the preceding week, and $168,204,000 for the corresponding week last year.

QUARTERLY DIVIDEND

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(P)—Ordinarily the first to reflect any change in money market, U. S. governments today responded to the buoyant effect of easier time money rates and registered good gains in a large turnover.

The strength of governments, which have lagged for some time, was the feature of the day's trading in the bond market. Liberty 1st 4 1-4s and 4th 4 1-4s reached new highs, at 102 11-32nds and 103 11-32nds, respectively, and Treasury 3 3-8s of 1943-47 duplicated its recent high mark. Further switching from Liberty 3 1-2s to other government issues, the result of the contemplated calling of the 3 1-2s, was evident in the large turnover of that issue, and Liberty 4th 4 1-4s, and Treasury 3 3-8s of 1940 and 1943. Treasury issues scored the largest gains, the 4 1-4s and 3 3-4s gaining 10-32nds.

Trading was at a fast pace, the volume of business showing marked improvement over the previous session as best grade railroad and utility bonds continued strong. In the foreign list some of the German bonds were slightly reactionary but reappearance of inquiry for other obligations kept the group fairly steady.

Inquiry from institutions and individuals pushed an extensive list of domestic bonds to the best prices for the year. Among rails giving the best performance were Canadian Pacific 4 1-2s of 1960, Illinois Central 4s, Chicago Union Station 4 1-2s, Delaware & Hudson 4s, Hocking Valley 4 1-2s, Lehigh Valley Terminal 5s, Missouri Illinois 5s, New Haven 4s of 1955 and 1956, Southern Pacific Oregon 4 1-2s, Union Pacific 4 1-2s and 4s. Bonds of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads were among the legal issues that climbed to new highs on large turnovers.

Among utilities there was a wide demand for Columbia Gas & Electric 5s of May, 1952, Interborough Rapid Transit 6s, Manhattan Railway 5s, Montana Power 5s D, and Brooklyn Manhattan Transit 6s.

Irregular price movements took place in stock privilege issues. International Telephone 4 1-2s sagged to a new low but closed with a small gain. Warner Brothers 6s reached a new year's low on a 1-4 point drop.

Some sharp recessions developed in the industrial section, where many of the bonds are affected by business conditions. Bowman Biltmore 7s, East Cuba 7 1-2s, Shubert 6s, American Ice 5s, were sharply reactionary.

LOTTIE HAD NO COMPUNCTIONS ABOUT SHATTERING HER STEPDAUGHTER'S ROMANCE UNTIL SUCH ACTION AFFECTED NANCY'S EARNING CAPACITY

NANCY WARE never spoke of Lottie Ware at Surrey. Being neither of Lottie's breed nor of Lottie's sort, she did not consider it necessary to take the disagreeable facts of her childhood out of the past. She was 22. She had taken care of herself for ten years. Her flaming red hair and her vivid amber eyes were better assets than family.

At Surrey she met John Durret, 3d. They were in the Cosmos show together. Nancy didn't like the way John tried to act.

"Be yourself!" she said. "Then you'll get over big."

John Durret said sarcastically, "Thanks!"

"Ever think of going into vaudeville?" Nancy asked.

"Don't be funny!"

"I'm not being funny. But you are. You've got a vaudeville presence—when you don't try to act like Barrymore."

She got the echo of that the next time she went out with one of John's fraternity brothers.

"Say, what have you been telling John Durret about having a vaudeville presence? You've got him headed for the stage already."

"Well, might make a go of it."

"Yes, but what do you think Mrs. Alonzo Durret would have to say about it?"

"I hadn't thought of that."

"Neither had John. But Virginia is giving him an earful of it!"

"Virginia?"

"Virginia Harris, that blond high hat he runs around with."

"Oh, yes, I know her."

"The future Mrs. John Durret, 3d, I suppose. Mrs. Alonzo's choice."

"Mrs. Alonzo rather runs John's life, doesn't she?"

"Runs it—or ruins it! Well, she's got the money."

"And so, I take it, has Virginia."

"Naturally."

MRS. ALONZO DURRET and Virginia Harris notwithstanding, John came back to Nancy to find more about the vaudeville presence. Instead, he found more about Nancy Ware. He fell in love with her. Nancy let herself fall in love with him.

They planned splendid things. After college they would go into an act together. They would take the country by storm. They would make Broadway. They saw life as a series of light-flooded stages with enthusiastic audiences worshiping them.

In the moments when reality crept through the glamour of Nancy's dream, she would bury her face with a frightened gesture on John's shoulder and whisper:

"You do love me, don't you, John?"

"Forever and ever."

All this was before that night in February when they went to the local vaudeville show and sat in the second row.

The butt of the jokes that night was a fat toe-dancer in the third act. She was old she was bleached, she was worn. She might have danced once, but her dancing days were over. The audience told her so.

John was in guffaws of laughter but Nancy did not smile. John looked at her quickly.

"Matter? Think we'll come to that?"

She shook her head, her lips drawn in between her teeth. "I want to get out of here," she said.

Without waiting for his answer, she drew her coat around her shoulders and started up the aisle. She heard him trailing behind her.

She had not been quick enough. In the lobby she was hailed by a bizarre figure in dancing tights, half covered by a worn cloak. It was the toe-dancer. Her face was old and painted, her hair bleached, her lips drawn down at the corners.

"Nancy—little Nancy!" she said. Her voice was coarse. She had been drinking a little. "I knew you. The minute I looked down, I says to myself, 'That's Nancy's red hair or you're a pickled goose!'"

"Yes," said Nancy dryly. "I knew you, too."

"Your boy friend?" said the woman, looking at John.

Nancy turned to John. There was a grim curve to her lips. "Mr. John Durret—Lottie Ware, my stepmother."

John gulped and said, "Oh!" He took the fat hand eagerly thrust at him.

"I've always thought of little Nancy as my own child," gushed Lottie Ware.

Nancy took John aside. "Please leave me alone with her," she said. "Now you know the truth about me. You would have had to know it some time. Do you think you can stand it?"

He said glibly, "Of course. What shall I do?"

"Come to my house—in an hour—if you still want to after you've had time to think about it."

"Don't be silly. Of course I'll come."

Lottie came to her as he went out of the lobby. At the exit Nancy saw him turn back and give one swift appraising glance at her and at Lottie Ware's fat arm around her waist.

She thought: "This is the test. Heaven make him stand it."

"You don't seem glad to see me," Lottie was complaining.

"Let's get out of this lobby," Nancy said.

Lottie took her to her dressing room. "You don't seem glad to see me," she said again.

"Why should I be?" Nancy demanded.

"I brought you up, dearie child!"

"Yes, because you had to. You were glad enough when I ran away from you. I know that. I've spent ten years getting myself out of the muck you raised me in."

"But, dearie child," Lottie protested, "I was foolish in those days. I never knew how much I cared for you until you were gone."

"Boloney! You never knew how much you cared for me until you saw me with some signs of money, and you with a down-and-out act. But you can't drag me back to you, understand! I owe you nothing—nothing in the world!"

Lottie began to sob softly. "Nancy—little Nancy—you wouldn't go back on me like that."

"You can't get me with that sob stuff, either. I've seen you work it too often. I know your tricks. Now listen, if you need money I'll give you some. I won't let you starve. But I don't want you around me, understand! My life is mine—and you're not going to ruin it."

"Well," said Lottie, suddenly stopping the sobs and pretending to wipe eyes that were dry, "if you can spare me a little now and then—"

It had occurred to Nancy that John might be waiting for her when she got back to her house. It had also occurred to her that he might never come at all. She put that thought off as too terrible to consider.

He was not there. She waited half an hour, an hour. He did not come.

She called his fraternity house. He was not there. A girl, they said, had called him up, and he had gone out.

When Nancy heard that, she succumbed to the fear that had shadowed her. John Durret had gone out—out of her life. One sight of Lottie Ware had finished him.

If that were true, then all the ten years meant in the end nothing. Nancy had to know the truth. She thought she knew where to find it. She called Virginia Harris. Virginia's perfectly modulated voice gave her all she needed to know. Yes, John Durret was there, but he was busy just at the moment. Miss Ware had been expecting him? Virginia thought Miss Ware shouldn't wait too long for him.

When Nancy turned away from the phone her eyes seemed dead. Something vital had gone out of her life.

She packed a suitcase. She called a taxi. On the way downtown, sitting rigid in the corner of the taxi, she clenched her fingers into tight fists and pounded them together.

At the theatre she found Lottie, just finished from the last show.

"I've changed my mind," she said. "I've come back for you."

Lottie Ware opened her pudgy arms and embraced her rapturously.

"Cut the sentiment!" Nancy said sharply. "It's false—and you know it. If you go with me, you go on the level. Get your things packed. We're getting out of town tonight. We're burying the past tonight. It's the second time I've tried to bury the past. This time I expect to be successful."

She said the last so grimly that Lottie Ware, who was taking off her make-up, did not even suspect she was crying.

They left Surrey on the 11 o'clock train.

IT WAS Nancy Ware's flaming hair and amber eyes that got Ware and Ware booked on a vaudeville circuit. Lottie Ware continued to dance as she had been dancing for the last five years. Nancy tried to sing funny songs. They sounded like funeral marches. That act closed down in Detroit.

Nancy knew what the act needed. Humor. She was in no mood to give it, but it was that or starvation.

In their second act Lottie did not dance. She was herself—loud-mouthed and coarse. Nancy, demure and lovely, tried to keep her down, and couldn't. That was good comedy. It made them headliners on a cheap circuit, but that was as far as it got.

A circuit manager whom they interviewed told Nancy, "Lottie's all right, but you—you're so much dead weight in the act, except for that hair of yours. Why don't you do something?"

Lottie chimed in, "You tell her! She needs it! A bozo left her flat two years ago and she's still goo-goo-eyed about it!"

Nancy said, "I know I've been dead. But I'm alive from now on. You watch me. I've got material for an act—and I'm going to use it."

Two years later the act of Ware and Ware in any theatre in the middle west was sending people home with a story to tell:

"Boy, you want to go to the show this week. There's a red-headed woman there that will make you sit up in your seat. She's got an act with a drunken old woman that's the funniest thing you ever saw. Not all funny, either. You see, in the act the old warhorse nearly ruins the red-head's life. And then the red-head sings a song she calls 'The World's Got Me Down.' A blue jazz song. And boy, how she sings it! And when it's all over she laughs. Ironic laugh. Gets under your skin. Don't miss seeing her."

Obviously the act was too good for vaudeville. A San Francisco producer put Nancy Ware into musical comedy. From there she went to New York.

New York claimed her for its own. Her popularity soared. Actresses all over the country tried to sing as Nancy Ware sang in "The World's Got Me Down." They tried to catch that subtle movement of her hands that was despair itself—and couldn't. They tried to imitate her laugh—and couldn't. Nancy Ware started a new style of hair dress.

Not only in the theatrical world was Nancy Ware popular. A certain class of society took her up—people like the Bassets and the Vanderhills. Her red hair flaming over her insolent amber eyes gave a dance or a party distinction. Men fell in love with her, but she did not marry.

One night at a dance she met Virginia Harris. Virginia remembered her.

Virginia said, "What ever happened to John Durret? Do you know?"

Nancy said, with real surprise, "No. Don't you?"

Virginia raised her exquisitely penciled eyebrows. "My dear, no. You knew, of course, that he ran away from college?"

"No. Did he?"

"Oh, yes," said Virginia with a light laugh. "Just about the time you left. Really, it was on your account, I think. He had a terrible battle with his mother at my house one night—over you. In the end he walked out on her and went for you—and you had left town—or something like that. Anyway, he went off to sea and Mrs. Alonzo cut him off. Nobody's heard from him since."

Nancy Ware's eyes were terrible to look at. Virginia Harris' glance flinched from them.

"Do you remember," said Nancy, in a quiet but fierce voice, "just why Mrs. Durret happened to come to Surrey—to your house? Was it because you sent for her?"

"Perhaps it was," said Virginia. She laughed. The laugh was an evasion.

"You're quite sure it was, aren't you!" said Nancy dryly. "You wanted John for yourself, but you didn't get him."

"Neither did you."

"That," said Nancy, "was my mistake."

She told Lottie about it that night. Lottie said: "You aren't hoping that gazook will come back to you, are you?"

Nancy shrugged her shoulders. "Suppose I am! There's no crime in it."

"You're a fool!" said Lottie sharply. "Any one that's made the success you have!"

"Success," said Nancy Ware slowly, "is happiness—which I haven't."

Lottie came over and sat beside her. "You wouldn't give it all up—you wouldn't leave me—" she said. "If he should come back and want you to?"

"I probably would," Nancy admitted.

A YEAR, two years, dragged by. John Durret did not appear. A little weariness crept into Nancy Ware's eyes as the glamour of her dream began to fade.

It was at this time that Billy Basset began to ask her to marry him. He was a bounder but he was good to look at, and he had fallen heir to a couple of millions.

Nancy put him off with, "I don't know, Billy. I'm not sure—yet—"

At last Lottie said to her in disgust, "You're a fool not to marry him! Your day won't last forever, dearie child. You don't want to end up in the poorhouse."

Nancy said, "But suppose—suppose I married him—and then John Durret came!"

At that the lines of old Lottie's face went cruel and her yellow eyes glittered.

"John Durret won't come," she said. "You might as well know the truth. He came last summer, but I put him in his place."

Nancy sprang up. "What!"

"Yes," said Lottie, defiantly. "I told him you couldn't be wasting your time on anybody like him. He wasn't anything but a cheap bum."

Nancy seized Lottie's fleshy shoulders. "Why didn't you tell me?" she said fiercely.

"You couldn't be stooping to anybody like that," Lottie said evasively. "I had to save you from yourself."

Nancy shook the heavy shoulders savagely. "Why didn't you tell me?" she repeated.

Lottie began to cry. "I was afraid—I thought you'd go with him—he didn't have nothing—you'd leave me—then I'd be alone again—I was afraid—"

"Where did he go?"

"I don't know said Lottie sullenly.

Nancy turned away from her. "Oh, why didn't he come to me? Why didn't he come to me?" she cried.

"He'd never come after I got through with him," said Lottie. "He's too proud—and I put him in his place—I told him—"

And then she stopped, terrified at the look on Nancy Ware's face. "What are you going to do?" she asked. "Nancy, don't look at me that way. You didn't want him, anyway. Marry Billy Basset. Don't leave me! Nancy, please don't leave me! Don't leave—"

"Turn off the sob stuff!" said Nancy fiercely. "Who's leaving you? For once in your life can't you be quiet?"

TWO months after that Nancy Ware's show closed down. Every one admitted that the fire had burned out of her acting.

"You're tired," Lottie said. "You need a rest. Now Billy Basset—"

"If you ever mention Billy Basset to me again I'll leave you flat."

A day or so later she told Lottie, "I'm going back into vaudeville again."

"Oh, not on the road, Nancy!" protested Lottie.

"I may find John. I'm going back into vaudeville. You can do as you please."

Lottie went with her. Lottie always would go with her. She was Lottie's meal ticket.

So it was that Nancy Ware went on the circuits again, from one end of the country to the other, Nancy Ware singing her jazz-weary songs from New York to San Francisco, from New Orleans to Duluth.

But not the same Nancy Ware. When she laughed now it was definitely not laughter. As the hope of finding John Durret went from her the last of her vitality went, too. She took the trail of the "has-beens" and her descent was quick.

Cheaper circuits—poorer money-bored audiences—and then nothing at all. She played her last show in St. Louis.

"What are we going to do now?" Lottie said.

"I don't know," Nancy answered.

Well, Lottie knew what to do. She went to four circuit managers until she found that John de la Vergne was playing in Cincinnati. Then she took Nancy to Cincinnati. To while away an afternoon, Lottie suggested taking in a show. When John de la Vergne came on the stage, Nancy clutched Lottie's arm and cried:

"Why—that's John Durret!"

Lottie said, "What! Now isn't that funny?"

As a matter of fact, Lottie had known it for two years, but she had kept the information to herself as long as she saw the slightest chance of cashing in on Billy Basset's millions.

When John Durret came off the stage Nancy was waiting for him in the wings.

"John Durret, how many years ago did I tell you not to try to Barrymore?" she said.

He said, furiously, "I suppose I'm the worst act on the bill!"

"You are—but you don't have to be."

He jammed his hands in his pockets and glared at her. "What's it to you, anyway?"

Her eyes met his and for the first time in months they smiled.

"Everything," she said.

He met her look. He seized her hands and started to kiss them, but it was her lips that he found.

Lottie Ware, powdering her face in the lobby of the theatre, was saying to herself, "Well, he's no gold mine, but's he's better than nothing. Maybe they'll get somewhere, now they're together. Anyway, I don't see what else I could have done."

FORGER OF CHECKS ON NORWICH BANK FACES TWO CHARGES AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 26. — D. J. Davis alias Doyle, who represents himself to be a publisher, was arrested today by state police of Groton barracks, charged with uttering a fraudulent check, also with adultery. He was locked up at New London police headquarters and after being a prisoner there several hours, was released in the custody of Prosecuting Attorney Harry Brogan, of Groton town court.

Davis, it is claimed, went to a Groton pharmacy this week and negotiated a worthless check in the sum of $41.80 which was drawn on the Thames National bank of Norwich. The check was returned as worthless and suspicion pointed to Davis as being the crook. He was found occupying a cottage at Bluff Point, Poquonoc Bridge, and in the house was a woman who, Davis said, was his secretary. Davis and the woman were taken to the state police barracks where they were questioned at length and at the conclusion of the interview it was alleged that the man and woman had had illicit relations while at the Bluff Point cottage. It was at first believed that Davis was the crook who passed two worthless checks in this city last Saturday, one check negotiated at the store of the Dunlop Tire & Rubber company, Bank street, and the other at the First National store, also on Bank street. Both checks were tendered in payment of merchandise and the balance of the face of the check was given the crook in cash. Both checks were represented to having been drawn by the cashier of the local branch of Armour & company.

MEETING OF SOCIALISTS PROVES ENTIRELY ORDERLY

DAVID BANKS' RED HOUSE FARM WAS LOOTED BY THIEVES

Thieves recently gave their attention to the Red House farm, Waterford, located in the Great Neck section and owned by David Banks, New York law book publisher, for many years a summer resident at Great Neck. The plunder obtained by the thieves was valued at several hundreds of dollars, but it could not be readily disposed of except as junk. A search of junk shops in this city, as well as other cities of the state, is being made in an endeavor to determine whether any of the loot has been sold. Mr. Banks has not occupied the building for several seasons although he made frequent visits to the farm. He was there a few days ago and discovered that entrance had been made during the preceding three weeks. Valuable pictures and silverware that had once been stored there had long since been transferred to a place of safety, but the thieves assembled electric light fixtures, plumbing supplies, etc., and had them taken away. Because of the bulkiness and weight of the loot there is no doubt that the crooks used an automobile truck. Mr. Banks reported his loss at the state police barracks this week.

William J. Morgan, State street, has been chosen treasurer of the state socialist party, according to a certificate filed at the office of the secretary of state, Hartford.

Mrs. F. S. Newcomb and daughter, Miss Ruth Newcomb, of Vauxhall street, are spending a few days at East Northfield, Mass.

Miss Mary Rafferty, 32 Tilley street, a patient at the private hospital, where she recently underwent an operation for throat trouble, was discharged today.

Miss Amelia Stephens has returned to her home on Glenwood avenue, having spent a few days in New York.

John Shimboski, of Brooklyn, N. Y., has quit claimed to Gladys Turkowski all his interest in property at 133-137 Winthrop street. The deed was filed for record at the office of the city clerk today.

William L. McLaughlin has quit claimed an undivided one-half interest in property on Stuart avenue, Ocean Beach to Catherine C. McMcLaughlin, according to a deed filed with the city clerk.

Post-Season For Straw Hats

The temperature here yesterday and today was of the most oppressive and as a result straw hats were brought into use again for many were seen as the headgear of pedestrians throughout today, much more so than yesterday. The mercury rose to about 82 yesterday, but it was accompanied by humidity. Today, the thermometer reached 84 in the shade and in the sun to 107. The slight showers of last night, however, assisted materially in clearing the air of humidity and as a result the extreme heat was not as unbearable as that of Thursday.

BODY OF AN UNKNOWN MAN FOUND NEAR RACE ROCK LIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 26.—The sea gave up its dead today. For the first time in many weeks, hereabouts, the body of an unknown man was found floating in the vicinity of Race Rock light by the crew of a United States coast guard patrol boat. The body is that of a man, about 50, partially bald. He was about five feet, nine inches in height and of stocky build. Because of decomposition, especially as to the head and face, identification by this means was impossible. Identification also by evidence discovered in his clothing was out of the question, for not even a scrap of paper was in his trouser's pockets and he wore no coat. The body had undoubtedly been in the water five or six weeks and is now at an undertaking establishment awaiting identification. There were no marks of violence on the body and there is every reason to believe that the man died by accident.

Last night the coast guard received a message from the Radio-marine Corporation of America that the body of a man had been sighted in the vicinity of Bartlett's Reef lightship. A patrol boat was sent from this port but because of the darkness no trace of the body was found. This morning, shortly after 7 o'clock, the trawler Loon of the Portland Trawling company's fleet, reported sighting the body in the Race; why the crew of that boat did not recover the body is not known. Patrol Boat 284, Chief Boatswain's Mate Tessin, was dispatched to the Race and after a diligent search finally sighted the body between Fort Wright and Race Rock. The crew placed the body in a row boat and it was brought to the municipal pier. After it had been viewed by Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman it was taken to an undertaker's establishment. The man's clothing comprised brown trousers, white shirt with attached collar, size 15 1-2, gray striped tie, gray silk stockings, with white soles, high black shoes with rubber heels. The man wore gray and black suspenders and a black belt, considerably worn. The laundry mark on the apparel was D2065. It is believed that he was accidentally drowned and probably at a distance far from this port.

Miss Ganey's Condition

The condition of Miss Catherine Ganey, about 70, employed as housekeeper by Edmund D. Barker, 45 Channing street, who was struck and injured Wednesday night at the corner of Williams and Granite streets by a motorcycle operated by LeRoy Buffington, 69 Connecticut avenue, was reported this afternoon at Lawrence Memorial hospital as being as favorable as could be expected. Miss Ganey's injuries consist of a fractured jaw, arm and leg. Buffington, who was arrested on a charge of reckless driving, will be given a hearing in the police court next week.

PRISONERS ARE TAKEN TO SERVE THEIR SENTENCES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 26—Several prisoners, who were convicted of various offenses against the law at the present term of the superior court in this city, started serving their respective sentences today. Some of the men were taken to the state prison at Wethersfield and others were taken to the reformatory at Cheshire.

Stanley Bogue of Groton, charged with double murder in the slaying of Ole Ostberg and Mrs. Eva Roberts, the latter the wife of Medrick Roberts, sentenced to life imprisonment, was taken to Wethersfield.

LeRoy Buddington, Poquonoc, charged with indecent assault, who was convicted on four of five counts, receiving an aggregate sentence of 17 years, with a possibility of serving 19 years, was taken to Wethersfield.

George Francis, Groton, charged with statutory rape and sentenced to not less than two nor more than four years, was taken to Wethersfield.

John F. Ryan, New York, charged with attempt to rob from Person, was taken to Wethersfield. He was sentenced to not less than one nor more than four years. Ryan and his partner, Joseph Martin, also of New York, were arrested at the union station several weeks ago when the men attempted to pick the pocket of a passenger as the latter boarded a New Haven railroad train. Martin and Ryan were arrested by Special Agent Edward Lawrence of the New Haven railroad. Martin obtained a surety on his bond of $3,000 and he failed to present himself in court with the result that his bond was declared forfeited. Ryan was not as fortunate, for none of his friends came to his rescue and after pleading not guilty, he changed his plea to guilty Tuesday and was sentenced. Mrs. Ryan, who was in court daily, said that Martin deserted Ryan and that if the opportunity presented itself she would kill the former.

Konrad Bunsak, Griswold, charged with arson, was taken to Wethersfield, having been sentenced to not less than one nor more than two years.

Charles Whalen, Montville, charged with burglary and statutory burglary on three counts and who received a sentence of not less than one nor more than two years on the former count, and not less than two years on each of the other counts, was taken to Wethersfield.

Howard Robbins, Stonington, charged with theft of an automobile, was taken to the reformatory at Cheshire. Frank Andrews, also of Stonington, charged with burglary, was taken to Cheshire.

The prisoners were taken to state prison and the reformatory by Sheriff George E. Bradford and deputy sheriffs.

Mrs. George Algers of Adelaide street and Mrs. George Haigh and infant daughter, Niantic, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

A horse owned by John Cohen, 665 Bank street, that had been sick in the yard, rear 74 Truman street, died early today. Cohen informed the health authorities that he was without funds to bury the animal, so the city will undoubtedly bear the expenses.

A Chevrolet coach, owned by Douglas Wilbur, 222 Montauk avenue, was damaged last night and a fence and stone pillars to the residence, 164 Shaw street, were damaged, as a result of the auto being equipped with defective brakes. The car was stopped on the grade of Denison avenue and when the brakes failed to hold, Wilbur was compelled to sit behind the wheel and guide the car against the fence and pillars.

NEW HAVEN DRIVER PAYS HIS FINE OF $100 AND COSTS

Frank Doherty, 368 West Hazel street, New Haven, was in the police court today charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. He was fined $100 and costs and paid. Doherty was driving on State street yesterday afternoon and when the Packard touring car was near Union street, it crashed against the side of a Ford roadster, driven by Thomas Sheffield, 1,000 Ocean avenue, which was being guided from the curb to the line of traffic. The door, fender and running board of the Ford were damaged. Sheffield made complaint to Traffic Officer Arthur Feeley and as Doherty was drunk he was arrested and locked up. When Doherty was taken to police headquarters he requested that he be permitted to obtain a bondsman, but the request was denied because of the driver's condition. A short time afterwards he fell asleep and remained in that condition practically the entire night. After paying his fine and leaving police headquarters, Doherty went to the municipal building where he made complaint to City Manager William A. Holt that he had been denied the privilege of obtaining a surety on his bond of $200.

Grier Lydden, a stranger, charged with train riding, was given suspension of judgment. Lydden was arrested last night by Sergeant John McGrath and Officer Harold Swanson, New Haven railroad special agents.

Friendship Circle, Inc., has sold a building lot, corner of Rogers street and Jefferson avenue to Morgan W. Rogers.

POETRY

A Queer Boat

Beside my Grandma's bedroom door
  There always stands a boat,—
Just stands and stands there on the floor,
  Where it can never float.

It has six bulging sails, all white,
  And masts and keel, and O
What fun, if it had been made light
  The way boats are, you know!

But it is heavy as can be,—
  A door-stop—that's its name—
And it can never go to sea!
  Now wasn't it a shame?

To make the very prettiest boat,
  To anchor by a door,
Where it will never, never float—
  Just slide along the floor!

But Grandma says it serves a use,
  Is beautiful besides,
And I can play the anchor's loose,
  The carpet is the tide.

And I'm the captain, and her chair
  Is where the harbor lies,
And if I sail in safety there,
  I'll find a big surprise.

So sometimes, on a rainy day,
  I sail across the sea,
And when I'm anchored in the bay,
  Then Grandma signals me,

And sends a little bundle down,
  Over the side—a top,
A picture-book, a toy, perhaps,
  Or just a lollipop!

—Anne Cleveland Cheney, in Christian Science Monitor.

The Road To The Pool

I know a road that leads from town,
A pale road in a Watteau gown
Of wild-rose sprays, that runs away
All fragrant sandaled, slim and gray.

It slips along the laurel grove
And down the hill, intent to rove,
And crooks an arm of shadow cool
Around a willow-silvered pool.

I never travel very far
Beyond the pool where willows are;
There is a shy and native grace
That hovers all about the place.

And resting there I hardly know
Just where it was I meant to go,
Contented like the road that dozes
In panniered gown of briar roses.

—Grace Howard Conklin.

YANTIC

EMANUEL E. KAPLAN MAY AGAIN RUN WOOLEN MILL

Emanuel E. Kaplan of New York spent several days last week in the village. Inasmuch as Mr. Kaplan was owner of the Yantic mill during the World war there is speculation as to whether he will be the next one to manufacture here. For over a year the plant owned by the American Woolen company has been idle and its effects are felt not only in the village but in Norwich as well. It is hoped that another winter will not pass without the hum of the shuttles. A meeting of the Business Men's association is to be held in Norwich Thursday at 11 o'clock and it is hoped Mr. Kaplan will get Norwich support for his venture.

CIVIC LEADERSHIP CLASS PROGRESSING FAVORABLY

The class in civic leadership and public speaking which was started last week in the Greeneville public schoolhouse will hold its second session in the Congregational church Monday night at 7:30. So interested were those present at the first meeting that several additional men have joined, making the total about 30. The subject for Monday night will be "Overcoming Fear and Timidity". The art of introducing will be practiced and several members will give their first four-minute speeches on "The Needs of Greeneville—More Public Spirit, New Sidewalks, a New Schoolhouse, New Industries."

Last Sunday Mrs. H. Prodell of Preston provided flowers for the altar at St. Andrew's church.

Lionel Norris, son of Rev. E. J. and Mrs. Norris, returned on Friday to resume his studies at the University of Pittsburgh.

Last Saturday the Rev. E. J. and Mrs. Norris, entertained the choir of St. Andrew's church at Point o' Woods beach, 24 being present.

ONE-MAN CARS BEGIN SUNDAY ON NORWICH THROUGH TROLLEY LINE

The predicted use of one-man trolley cars on the Willimantic-Norwich-New London run of the Connecticut company is to begin on Sunday, Sept. 28, which is the same time at which the trolleys and busses of the Connecticut company will operate their present schedule on eastern standard time instead of on daylight saving time as has been done during the summer months.

There will be no change of schedule and no change of fare on the trolley line, but the cars which have previously had a motorman and a conductor will hereafter be operated by one man. Because of that there will be something of a change in the method of collecting fare.

Passengers will board and leave the car at the front end and will pay fare when leaving the car. Passengers who board the car within the first zone of the starting point of the car will receive no identification checks, but will pay fare from starting point to destination when leaving the car. Passengers boarding the car beyond the first zone of the starting point of the car will receive identification check showing zone in which the passenger boarded the car, and when leaving car will surrender this identification check to operator of the car and pay fare from the point indicated by check to the point where the passenger is getting off the car.

COURT ORDERS $20,000 IN BACK TAXES PAID

The city of New London will collect $20,000 in back taxes and interest on the Woodbury property in Ocean avenue in the near future as a result of an order given by Judge Christopher L. Avery at the short calendar session of the superior court there Friday morning.

In the case of C. E. Woodbury and others against Thornton Woodbury a motion was made that the taxes be ordered paid by committee of sale which sold the property at public auction several weeks ago for $39,000 to John J. McAndrew of New York. The committee submitted its report in court Friday morning and the sale was confirmed and the deed approved. A motion for supplementary judgment was postponed.

The suit was brought by C. E. Woodbury and other heirs of the late Helen McGaw Smith against Thornton Woodbury for the purpose of having the property sold and the proceeds distributed among the heirs. The action was brought after Thornton Woodbury had permitted the taxes to go unpaid for several years and the practical renunciation of ownership.

In the case of the late R. Wheeler Hewitt against Hewitt & Gannon, Inc., in which a dissolution of the corporation was sought, a motion that the final report of the receiver, H. N. Alexander, be accepted, was granted. Compensation was allowed the receiver, Attorney Henry L. McGuire, counsel for the receiver, and Attorney Jacob Sherb and Graham Hislop, appraisers.

Disposition Of Other Motions

A motion for default for failure to plead was entered in the case of G. L. Bilderbeck, Inc., against C. E. Schall, Inc.

A continuance of one month was granted in the cases of Davis against Russo and others, Cooper against People's Ice company and others and Jones and others against People's Ice company and others.

A motion that the case of Ethel May Sullivan of Norwich against Maynard J. Sullivan of Norwich go on the uncontested divorce list was granted.

Permission to amend the complaint was given in the case of Burdick, Jr., and others against Silva, and others.

A demurrer to plea in abatement was overruled by the court in the case of Ryshpan and others against Polkowski and others.

Several other motions scheduled were postponed or went off the list.

GRANTED DIVORCES IN FIVE UNCONTESTED CASES

Judge C. L. Avery, in the superior court at New London Friday morning, heard five divorce petitions, which were on the uncontested list, and granted all five. Another which was on the list was postponed.

Mrs. Sarah A. Dunham of Pawcatuck was given her freedom from Henry J. Dunham of Westerly, on grounds of desertion. They were married Aug. 31, 1899.

WARNINGS ARE ISSUED AGAINST FAKE SOLICITORS

Among the latest solicitation "rackets" on which there are warnings is one in which Roy Jacques, alias Mishkin, about 36, has been soliciting funds in Connecticut for the Disabled American Veterans. The Connecticut chamber of commerce warns that Jacques has no official connection with the organization and is making fraudulent solicitations.

Another warning has been given regarding solicitors for The Church of God and Saints of Christ in which the solicitors are claiming that the money is for an orphanage in Virginia. The state authorities have investigated this claim and find that there is no such orphanage.

A report has been received relative to the activities of solicitors who collect money for campaign work in endeavoring to secure a bill favoring light wine and beer. The report states that there is no record of anything having been done by this organization toward the repeal of the prohibition act. These solicitors collected considerable money here about a year ago and are understood to be working this part of the state again.

TWO ARE CAUGHT IN MOTOR VEHICLE INSPECTION

Michael Curran of Moosup, who was driving a motor truck, and William L. Raill of Jewett City, driver of an automobile, were summoned into court on charges of violation of the motor vehicle laws when their machines were inspected on North Main street Friday afternoon by Officer Howlett of the state motor vehicle department and Traffic Officer Clifford Crary of this city. Curran was charged with having an overload on his truck and Raill was charged with having improper brakes.

STONINGTON WILL DEDICATE AMERICAN LEGION MEMORIAL

An American Legion war memorial is to be dedicated at Stonington Armistice day, November 11th. The Stonington post of the Legion is making elaborate plans for the dedication. The post has five committees now working together to make arrangements for the day, and Captain Clarence E. Peckham heads, as chairman, the parade committee. He will also be marshal of the parade. Samuel E. Stewart heads the committee on speakers, and entertainment for them; John Lopes is in charge of music, parade and dance; Leon Chesebro is to make arrangements for the chowder, and Harold M. Hubbard is head of the dance committee.

At ten o'clock sharp, on the morning of November 11th, the parade will form around Wadawanuck square, composed of color guard and color bearers; marshal and aides; Stonington band; Legion posts of the fifth district, which includes twelve posts in New London county; Block Island post; Harold W. Merrill post of Westerly; and other ex-service men.

The second division, headed by another band, includes fire companies from Stonington, four in number.

The third division, with, it is hoped another band, will be made up of civic and patriotic organizations to the number of about ten.

The line will proceed down Water street to Cannon square. From there it will march up Main to Elm streets, and up Elm to the town hall. State police from the Groton barracks will act as convoy. At eleven o'clock the two-minute period of silence will be observed, and immediately afterward the speakers will be introduced, possibly by Dr. James H. Weeks.

At present the committee is trying to get Governor John H. Trumbull, or Lieutenant Governor Frank Rogers for first speaker. Following will be Judge Cornelius Costello or Robert P. Anderson, and the dedication speaker, who will be William Murray, state adjutant, department of Connecticut, American Legion.

Immediately after the dedication, chowder will be served to all those from out of town participating in the ceremonies, and will be served for the remainder of the day.

At two o'clock the annual Stonington-Westerly football game will start at Owen's field, and in the evening, from 8 to 12, a ball (informal) will be in progress at the town hall.

PROBATED WILL OF NORWICH SCHOOL TEACHER

Following a hearing Friday, Judge Nelson J. Ayling admitted to probate the will of Hazel Anderson, for years a well known school teacher in Norwich. George R. Fellows, trust officer of the Thames Bank and Trust Co., qualified as administrator. Charles B. Lucas and Walter M. Buckingham are the appraisers.

The will was made June 28, 1928 being witnessed by Miss Ruth N. Kinney, Miss Helen Drescher and Judge Ayling. Miss Anderson bequeathed a high back fancy chair to Anna and Hennet Neilson of Buffalo. In the event of their deaths before Miss Anderson, or in the event that they do not care for the chair, it is left to Mrs. Jane Cassidy. Other bequests were made as follows: Luella Wilson, a silver candelabra; Mrs. Mae Hoffman, wife of Fred Hoffman of Williamsport, Pa., an old black walnut dining room table; Hazel Swan Jewett is left $500; a cousin, Mary Rogers, of this city, $500.

Luella Wilson, of Norwich, $500; Bessie Nichols of Walden, N. Y., $500.

The residue of the estate is left to Hazel Swan Jewett, but in the event of her death it goes to the United Workers "for the benefit of that branch known as the Sheltering Arms and to the W. W. Backus hospital, share and share alike."

The attendants were Edward Ashworth of Baltic, as best man, and Miss Ruby Houston, a sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor. Following supper at New London, Mr. and Mrs. Houston left for Point o' Woods beach for their honeymoon.

Mr. Houston, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Houston of 28 South Second avenue, is a plumber in the employ of John Morton, while his bride has been employed at the J. B. Martin plant in Norwich. Their many friends extend them best wishes for a prosperous and happily married life.

The services at the Taftville Congregational church will be on daylight saving time on Sunday.

Sister Marie Penner, of the Mennonite Deaconness hospital of Beatric, Nebraska, is the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Rev. and Mrs. William Penner, of South Second avenue.

CALIFORNA VISITORS ARE GUESTS IN LISBON

Mr. and Mrs. Teodore S. Goodrum and two children, Mary Elizabeth and Myrtle of Vallejo, Cal., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Meyer of Blissville, Lisbon. Mrs. Goodrum and her children came by train as far as St. Louis, Mo., where they were met by Mrs. Goodrum's father, William C. Kendall of the Y. M. C. A., Norwich, with whom they made the remainder of the trip by automobile to Connecticut. Mrs. Goodrum was Miss Jennie Kendall.

Enroute to St. Louis Mr. Kendall, who covered approximately 5,000 miles in the entire trip without any motor trouble, stopped off at Gettysburg, Pa., for a brief visit with Ira Plank, brother to the late Eddie Plank, renowned southpaw of the Athletics, who played on the team with Dannie Murphy, formerly of Norwich. Both Ira, who wanted to be remembered his friends in Norwich and vicinity, and Eddie, were former Norwich residents.

The day before Mr. Kendall arrived in St. Louis he also had the pleasure of meeting another former Norwich man, Joseph Connelli, who is at present chief mechanic in the employ of the Von Hoffman Airport Co., of Robertson, Mo. Mr. Connelli has been located in that city for about a year. He played a prominent part in the record endurance flight of Dale Jackson and Forrest Obrine, by repairing their refueling plane, which had gone out of commission and had to be fixed or the fight would have been calld off. That plane was repaired by Mr. Connelli in the nick of time, for the gas supply of "The Greater City of St. Louis" was becoming low. In its tanks just before a contact was made only enough gas for another hour and a half run.

While circling over the landing field the following day Mr. Jackson took time off to write Mr. Connelli a splendid letter of appreciation, which was rdopped and later delivered to him. In the letter Mr. Jackson remarked that by re-conditioning the refueling plane Mr. Connelli "saved the bacon." The Greater City of St. Louis remained aloft two weeks after the narrow escape from its attempt to break the old record and create a new record for endurance planes.

On the return trip Mr. Kendall and party paid a ten days' visit to Mrs. Goodrum's father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Goodrum of Drake, Kentucky, while there taking several interesting trips to points of interest. They returned by way of Louisville, Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland, Buffalo and Albany.

BOY SCOUTS COUNCIL AND TROOP NEWS

Local Boy Scouts will serve as ushers and assistants at the showing for young people of Mobby Dick this (Saturday) morning at 10:00 o'clock at the Palace theatre. The scouts have been asked to be present at 9:45. The crowd of children is generally so large that it is hoped that every scout in uniform will be present to keep the children from pushing and hurting the smaller tots. The picture, "Mobby Dick" shows the capture of a whale and should interest the scouts.

Considerable interest by scoutmasters and members of the executive board has been manifested in getting the scouts a piece of land of their own for week-end hiking where they can build lean-tos and shacks. It is expected that this hope of the scout men will be realized in the near future.

Scout Executive Sellman and Eagle Scout Nick Tarrant spoke before the opening scout dinner of the season at Westerly to the scout field. Scout Executive Harold Williams of Providence was also present and agreed to appear before the Scoutmasters' advanced training course here on November 5. Mr. Williams is one of the most talented scout men in the country.

Scouts of Troops Five, Six and Eight are planning a joint overnight hike one week from today. The scouts will probably either go to Fort Shantok, Camp Wakenah or Camp Happiness. Camp Happiness has recently been offered for the use of the scouts during the winter on occasional hikes.

Troop One again held its meeting at Fort Shantok Friday night. The troop last week presented Assistant Scoutmaster Cecil Weatherbee a raincoat as a token of their appreciation for the fine service he has rendered the troop. Cecil is now is Boston, starting a four year business course.

A committee on standard achievement has been chosen to draw up plans for achievement in troops this year. The committee is composed of William Wyman, Robert Burke and Art Collins and has been asked by Chairman Wyman to meet Monday at 5:00 p. m.

Troop Seven has started the "patrol method" of conducting the troop and according to reports rather likes the system. As an ideal the patrol method of conducting a troop removes the adult leaders from the foreground and gives opportunity for the boy leaders to conduct the troop and learn through their mistakes. In the long run the patrol method of conducting a troop has been found by "old timers" to be the best.

Through the courtesy of the Veterans of Foreign Wars the local scout headquarters is distributing for each troop headquarters a copy of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. These three important patriotic documents have been splendidly gotten up by the veterans and should prove very attractive and instructive for troop headquarters.

The troop organization committee headed by C. V. James is sending out this week questionnaires to all churches and schools in this territory about the possibility of starting scout troops.

Regional Executive Ralph Nodine in a letter received today praises the programme recently adopted by the Scoutmasters' round table and the executive board for the coming year.

The Elizabeth Street school troop expects to apply for a charter this week. This troop is backed by the West End Community club and promises to become one of the best in the city.

BACK TO STANDARD TIME SUNDAY MORNING

Daylight saving time ends Sunday morning at 2 o'clock and church services in the city Sunday morning will be on standard time, all denominations following this practice this year. In former years it has been the practice of St. Patrick's parish not to make the change in time until one Sunday later, but this year the parish activities will all be on standard time Sunday.

Clocks and watches which have been kept on daylight time through the summer will need to be turned back an hour in order to be on the right time Sunday. This necessary act can best be performed at the time of going to bed on Saturday night to bring the timepiece into conformity with the ruling time when the owners awaken for the day Sunday morning.

Sept. 25.—Josephine C. and Julia F. Murtagh to Homer J. Monty, land, Colt street.

DECLINED TO PAY FOR DAMAGES TO CELL

Michael Ladyga refused to pay a $5 fine with costs and a bill of $15 for damage he caused to a cell at police headquarters, so he was taken to jail to work out his bill, after his case had been disposed of in the city court Friday morning. He was arrested for intoxication and in a drunken frenzy tore apart everything he could in his cell, even pulling some of the bricks from the wall.

Hi-Y Begins '31-'32 Season

A group of 25 Hi-Y members met at the Y. M. C. A. Friday night for a supper meeting under the leadership of Emery C. Davis. Projects for the year were announced, in part, as follows: Father and son night; faculty night and football night. Committees were chosen for the following activities: Speakers and entertainment; group discussion leaders; attendance teams; father and son night; faculty night, and football night.

Mr. Davis spoke briefly on the past year and the one just beginning. His topic was the "Success of the Group". He stated that success of the group depended more on unity and group cooperation than on individual effort. He also reported on a sum of money donated to foreign work for boys by the Hi-Y.

The meeting adjourned at 7 until Friday next.

Arrested at Post Office

Charged with becoming abusive towards Postmaster Casper K. Bailey in the postmaster's office Friday afternoon and making a disturbance in the lobby, Lawrence Stanley, a post office clerk, was arrested on a breach of the peace charge when the postmaster called for the police. Officers John Donovan and Patrick Murphy responded and Stanley was released on bail after he had been presented at police headquarters.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOM

MOOSEHEART LEGION

Women of Mooseheart Legion held their regular meeting Thursday evening with Senior Regent Margaret Comire presiding. Past Regent Teresa Watters reported a very good sum realized on the recent food sale, and thanked all Legionnaires who donated so generously, also those who served on the committee. Under new business, the senior regent appointed a new committee, the ways and means committee, with a past regent, Teresa Watters, as chairman, and Treasurer Mary Edwards and Past Regents Emma Beaver and Minnie Smith. This committee is formed for the purpose of raising money in different ways for the chapter. Legionnaire Helen Ericson was appointed pianist by the senior regent and she was installed in office by Past Regent Emma Beaver. Past Regent Teresa Watters announced plans for past regents' night going along splendidly. There is to be an entertainment and a refreshment committee has been appointed.

"Dear Senior Regent—

"We arrived in Moosehaven Tuesday morning and we are so thankful to be in this beautiful place, and so grateful to Norwich chapter for helping to make it possible for us to be here. I just had to write at once to you. We have a lovely large room with two windows on the front. In the dining room we have eight tables with eight seated at each table. We have the most wonderful meals. Here is what we had for dinner today—roast beef, brown gravy, mashed potatoes and turnips, white and brown bread, two kinds of pie and tea and coffee. We have moving pictures, dances and shows, all free, and in Jacksonville, they have moving pictures free for any from Moosehaven. The church is right in the next building. It is so beautiful here you would have to see it to really know how it is. No pen could paint a picture of it. I will try to get some pictures and send them to you. In closing I want once more to thank Norwich chapter and to tell you how thankful we are that we joined the Moose and made this happiness possible.

Sincerely and fraternally,
IDA ECCLESTON."

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel. Cutting and external remedies can't do this—an internal medicine must be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, a specialist, succeeds, because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere, and has such a wonderful record of success right in this city that Lee & Osgood Co. says to every Pile sufferer, try HEM-ROID at my risk. It must end all Pile agony or you get your money back.

HITLER'S AIM IS CONQUEST OF RUSSIA BY GERMAN ARMS

Leader of Fascist Party Would First Destroy the German Republic—Has Greedy Eyes on the Untold Wealth of Russia—Asserts That Russia, Utterly Demoralized by Bolshevism, is Awaiting Someone to Come in and Really Organize and Govern—Declares Conquest is Possible "Only by the Might of Our Victorious Sword"

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Inasmuch as the victory of Adolph Hitler's fascist party in the recent elections has not been followed by a specific description of the "third reich" which he hopes to create on the ruins of the present republic, many Germans are consulting Hitler's book—"My Fight"—for further light on the party's aims.

The book, known as "The German Fascist Bible," has done little to clear up Hitler's general statement of internal political aims before the supreme court at Leipsic Thursday, on the subject of the fascist foreign policy. However, it is specific enough to make the reader's hair stand on end.

Fascist Germany's foreign policy, Hitler boldly proclaims in the book, will aim at nothing less than the conquest of Russia, which he describes as a vast territory of untold wealth, utterly demoralized by bolshevism, awaiting someone to come in and really organize and govern.

Hitler does not try to justify this policy of conquest on the ground of making Russia safe for religion or capitalism or anything else recently believed endangered there. It is reason enough, he curtly states, that Germany must widen her frontiers or perish. He says that Germany, cramped within her present boundaries, and without colonial outlets, simply must have more room.

"Just as forefathers did not get the land we live on as a gift from heaven, but had to fight for it, just so will the land which means life for our people not come through an act of grace, but only by the might of our victorious sword," he writes.

Hitler seems amused at those Germans who hope by peaceful negotiation to regain Germany's 1914 boundaries.

"Only childishly naive minds can entertain the thought that they can accomplish the correction of the Versailles treaty by sneaking, begging methods," he writes. "However, the boundaries of 1914 mean absolutely nothing to the future of Germany. In those boundaries lay neither safeguard for the past nor strength for the future."

The fascist leader likewise scoffs at the cry for a new German fleet and the return of lost colonies. Decidedly disagreeing with the former kaiser's old slogan, "Germany's future is in her fleet," he says the trouble with the old regime was that it ran after a dream of colonies and sea power.

Hitler believes fascist Germany must move only in directions which do not clash with those of powers whose post-war interests naturally are moving them in the direction of a German alliance—namely, Italy and England. He says France, "the natural enemy," will have to be dealt with sooner or later, but that fascism must put an end to the German urge southward and westward, and turn the nation's gaze "toward the land in the east."

4,000 TEXTILE WORKERS AT DANVILLE, VA., TO STRIKE

DANVILLE, Va., Sept. 28—(AP)—The management committee of the local union of the United Textile Workers of America today declared a strike in the Riverside and Dan River mills, employing approximately 4,000 workers, effective tomorrow.

A strike was voted by the workers in balloting September 17 and 18, union officials announcing that 95 per cent favored a walkout, and has since been delayed pending negotiations with conciliators of the United States department of labor and the Virginia department of labor.

The committee's decision was enthusiastically received by a mass meeting of workers attended by about 2,000 shortly afterward. There were no disorders.

The mass meeting was addressed by Hannibal Martin, Danville chief of police, who commended the workers for their orderly conduct during the last week and expressed a hope for continued cooperation with authorities.

FRANCE GUARDIAN OF THE VERSAILLES PEACE TREATY

ALENCON, France, Sept. 28—(AP)—Premier Tardieu today told several thousand farmers at an agricultural gathering here that France desires peace, but remains the faithful guardian of the Versailles peace treaty.

"France seeks peace in a threefold formula," said Tardieu, "security is first, arbitration second, and disarmament third, and the order in which we regard those three terms cannot be altered.

"No country in the past ten years has so scrupulously reduced its land, naval, and aerial armaments as has France. The nation has affirmed by every act its desire for conciliation. If at times it has had an impression that its desire was not reciprocated, it has noted occurrences and profited therefrom. Without regret and without fear the nation has maintained its reserve and coolness."

NOT ALARMED AT CLOSING OF THE BANK OF CUBA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(AP)—Observers here today expressed no concern over the closing of the Bank of Commerce in Cuba and its possible effect on American banking institutions in the island.

It was stated by well informed authorities that even should the Havana institution fail to reopen tomorrow, American banks there would not be affected because of financial facilities available through their membership in the federal reserve system.

The National City bank, the Chase National and the First National bank of Boston all are members of the reserve system, and observers pointed out these institutions could always draw on the reserve banks at Boston and New York.

LEADERS OF STRIKE PLACED UNDER ARREST

SANTIAGO DE COMPOST ELLA, Spain, Sept. 28—(AP)—About 25 leaders of a general strike called here last week were arrested today, and the civil authorities prophesized speedy end of the labor agitation.

The civil governor of the province of Coruna, Lius Maraver Y Serrano, in an interview with the Associated Press denied reports that martial law had been declared.

Expressing the belief that the strike movement had lost ground, the governor explained that most of the "other political agitators" had left the town to avoid arrest.

$3,000 HOLD UP OF CARD GAME IN NEW HAVEN BY FIVE MEN

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 28—(AP)—Five men armed with pistols broke into a house where a card game was in progress early today, and robbed 12 men of $2,000 in cash and jewelry valued at about $1,000. They then escaped in an automobile bearing New York registration plates.

CAPTAIN AND HIS BRIDE LOST WITH FRUIT VESSEL

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Sept. 28—(AP)—Captain Erwin J. Anderson, of Washington Island, Wis., his bride of two weeks and the four members of his crew are believed to have lost their lives in the sinking of the fruit packet North Shore which cleared St. Joseph for Milwaukee Friday morning, shortly before a storm lashed Lake Michigan.

The North Shore had a cargo of 10,000 baskets of grapes. Grape baskets were washed ashore near here last night, indicating, coast guardsmen said, that the fruit packet had gone down. After searching for the ship until late last night the coast guard boats returned to their stations, believing that all on board had perished.

Loss of the six persons on board the North Shore brought the death toll from Friday's storm to eleven. Five persons lost their lives in the sinking of the barge Salvor off Muskegon Friday afternoon. Nine persons were saved from that wreck.

The North Shore was 60 feet long. It was owned by W. J. Laurie of Milwaukee, and chartered by George Mielke, Benton Harbor, Mich., fruit broker.

RUSSELL WAS FIRST IN NATIONAL AIR TOUR

DETROIT, Sept. 28—(AP)—Having completed a 4,500-mile flight over the western United States and Canada without a serious mishap, the 1930 national air tour was hailed today as the most successful of the six held since 1925.

The 18 contesting planes, with the 20 accompanying ships, completed the last hop from Cincinnati yesterday afternoon with Harry L. Russell, Detroit, both first over the line and first in number of points scored on the 17 day tour. His 58,575 points, based on both speed and reliability far exceeded any other pilot's score and last night he was awarded the $7,500 cash prize and the Edsel Ford reliability trophy which goes each year to the winner. He flew a Ford tri-motored ship.

John Livingston, of Aurora, Ill., flying a Waco, won the $2,000 cash prize for second place. Art Davis of Lansing, Mich., flying a Waco, took third place and $1,750 in cash, and Myron E. Zeller, Detroit, flying a Ford tri-motor won fourth place and $1,500. Nancy Hopkins, the only woman pilot on the tour, was last.

TWO POUCHES OF MAIL STOLEN FROM AIRPORT

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 28—(AP)—Two pouches of mail of undetermined value were stolen early today from a Chicago-Kansas City National Air Transport plane, at the municipal airport, here. One of the pouches was registered.

The bags, consigned to Kansas City, were stolen about 1:45 a. m., while the plane, brought in by E. Matucha, Chicago pilot, was left unguarded momentarily in the transfer of other pouches by the three night employes of the airport.

Postoffice workers who habitually met the incoming plane had been called to Fairfax airport, Kansas City, Kas., to obtain a consignment from a mail ship there.

Airport employes said they were confident the thieves had not used a motor car, leading postoffice inspectors to the belief they escaped by boat on the Missouri river, which flows past the landing field.

BRAKEMAN AND FIREMAN KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

DETROIT, Sept. 28—(AP)—The brakeman and fireman of a Michigan Central freight train were killed instantly, and the engineer escaped injury by jumping as the engine and four cars left the track and turned over after striking an open switch at the outskirts of Detroit late today.

The dead were: William Fellman, brakeman, and Frank McLaughlin, fireman. They were riding in the cab and were crushed between the engine and tender. Frank O'Donahue, the engineer, jumped as the locomotive turned over.

The train was bound for Detroit.

Daniel Guggenheim Dies Of Heart Disease

Wealthy Promoter of Aeronautics Had Been In Poor Health But a Short Time

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y., Sept. 28—(AP)—Daniel Guggenheim, copper magnate and philanthropist, who spent millions in the promotion of aeronautics, died of heart disease today at his home. He was in his 75th year and had been ill only two days.

Mrs. Guggenheim and two children, Harry F. Guggenheim, ambassador to Cuba and Mrs. Robert W. Straus, were at the bedside. Another son, Colonel Robert M. Guggenheim, U. S. A., left immediately for New York from Washington. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m., at Temple Emanu-el.

Long known for philanthropy and his prominence in the industrial world, Mr. Guggenheim gained his greatest public notice by virtue of gifts to aviation totaling $5,000,000. In 1926, he founded the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics, with initial gifts of $2,500,000. He gave other thousands to universities and to aeronautical societies.

His aviation enterprises, included sponsorship of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's 22,350 mile tour of the United States after his New York-Paris flight, and the country-wide tour of Admiral Richard E. Byrd's north pole plane.

When the Daniel Guggenheim fund was permitted to pass out of existence this year because the objects for which it was created were considered attained, Mr. Guggenheim said he was thrilled by the thought of having helped make aviation safe. One of its most notable achievements was a safety contest in which many planes took part.

He gave $500,000 to New York university for an air school in 1925. He fostered the first aeronautical engineering school in the south and helped establish the Airship institute at Akron in 1929. He gave $908,000 to American schools for the promotion of aviation.

His interest in all things pertaining to man's conquest of the air never ceased. Last summer it became known he was aiding the work of Professor Robert H. Goddard of Clark university in his experiments with rockets designed to pierce the upper atmosphere to gather scientific data.

Before retirement he was the presiding genius in some of the largest business enterprises, notably the American Smelting and Refining company, one of the world's largest producers of metals. Born in Philadelphia he was one of seven brothers who remained together until they were considered to control about half the copper mines and smelters of the world.

Mr. Guggenheim returned from Europe Sept. 15. Previously he had turned over the direction of the Guggenheim interests to Harry F. Guggenheim.

PLANE CARRIES $20,000,000 CASH TO MEET RUN ON CUBAN BANKS

HAVANA, Sept. 28.—(AP)—An airplane carrying $20,000,000 in cash arrived here today in preparation for a possible continuation of yesterday's run on Cuban banks. The run was started by the closing of two large financial institutions here.

The plane carried the money from Miami, Fla. A picked detail of 20 soldiers, armed with machine guns, surrounded the plane when it landed at Camp Columbia, near the military barracks. Under their protection the money was loaded into an armored truck owned by the Royal Bank of Canada, and moved to the financial district under heavy guard. The cargo was taken to the Federal Reserve bank.

The run yesterday was precipitated by the closing of the Bank of Commerce and the Cordova Banking company.

A directors' meeting was held last night at the Bank of Commerce, but there was no announcement as to whether the bank would re-open tomorrow. American banks, although little affected called for extra funds lest the situation become worse.

HUGE STILL RAIDED BY HARTFORD CO. OFFICERS

HARTFORD, Sept. 28—(AP)—Hartford county officers, led by County Detective Edward J. Hickey, raided the former Wapping creamery building this morning, where a 1500 gallon still and other auxiliary equipment was turning out a steady half inch stream of 190 proof alcohol. Materials used in the production of the alcohol, it was said, included anti-freeze solution, caustic soda, chloroform, castor oil, salt, white oil, and charcoal. About 400 gallons of the finished product were seized by the officers who had surrounded the place and lain in wait for four hours.

DEMOCRATS GATHERING FOR THE N. Y. STATE CONVENTION

SLRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 8. — (AP)—Democraitc chieftains, assembled here on the eve of the party's state convention which opens tomorrow, had no serious problem facing them. This was in marked contrast to the republican gathering at Albany last week, where the question of advocating repeal of the eighteenth amendment threatened a defection of the ultra-dry element.

The democrats are virtually unanimous in a declaration for repeal of the prohibition amendment, as urged by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt in a recent letter to United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, who is to deliver the keynote speech as temporary chairman.

The delegates were also agreed upon the renomination of Governor Roosevelt and Lieutenant Governor Herbert H. Lehman, and it was anticipated that another nomination would be tendered to Comptroller Morris S. Tremaine of Buffalo.

This left the attorney generalship the only place on the ticket to be filled. This is the only state office not at present occupied by a democrat.

The field in the attorney general race was open, with three prominent aspirants backed by the delegates from their respective sections. These were John J. Bennett of Brooklyn, M. William Bray of Utica, the state chairman, and Frank J. Cregg, of Syracuse. Other minor booms were in the making.

Prominent among the party chieftains here tonight were former Governor Alfred E Smith, United States Senators Wagner and Royal S. Copeland, John F. Curry, leader of Tammany hall; John H. McCooey, Kings county leader; State Chairman Bray and James A. Farley, secretary of the state committee.

DEATH IN MIDDLETOWN OF S. HARRIS WARNER

MIDDLETOWN, Sept. 28.—(AP)— S Harris Warner, judge of the Middletown city court for 20 years, before his retirement a year ago and former postmaster, died at his home here today, at the age of 71 years. Some time ago he suffered a shock and his health had been poor since then.

Judge Warner, for many years, was associated in the practice of law with his father, the late Samuel L. Warner, a prominent member of the Connecticut Bar association for many years. He was born in Portland, October 26, 1858, and after attending Chase school, Middletown high school, and Hopkins grammar school, he matriculated at Wesleyan university where he spent two years.

Following his graduation from Columbia law school in 1881, Judge Warner practiced law with his father until 1890 when he was appointed postmaster, a position he held until 1894, when he again resumed the practice of law. He was appointed associate judge of the city court in 1909, and later judge, retiring last year.

Judge Warner was a veteran of the Second regiment, Mansfield guard, served as a captain in the Sixth Connecticut regiment until it was mustered out and during the World war was a rifle instructor. He was a member of the Sons of American Revolution and a Mayflower descendant. His widow and a brother survive.

A private funeral will be held Tuesday.

YOUTHFUL MURDER SUSPECT IN HIDING IN MOUNTAIN

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Sept. 28.—(AP)—George Skidmore, 20-year-old murder suspect who shot his way through a big posse of state police and national guardsmen in the mountains near here yesterday, was still at large tonight.

Trapped in a cabin back in the hills with a companion, William Dutton, Skidmore opened fire from a window. He wounded two men, William Foxtender, keeper of the air mail beacon at Rattlesnake, and J. G. Gimes, state highway patrolman. The possemen rushed the cabin after a round of shots, but Skidmore broke through the lines and escaped in the heavy timber and underbrush. Dutton was captured.

The searching party, made up of about 75 national guardsmen from Lewistown, Bellefonte and Lock Haven and a score of state troopers, highway patrolmen and local authorities, combed the mountains for the fugitive all night. They did not see him, so far as has been reported, but at 2 a. m. some of them heard three shots. The shots, it is supposed, were fired by Skidmore or members of the searching party.

N. Y. CITY OFFICIALS MUST CEASE PLEAS OF IMMUNITY

Gov. Roosevelt Has Been Aroused by Refusal of 17 Tammany Hall Leaders to Waive Immunity at Grand Jury Investigation of Corruption in Manhattan—Sent Letter of Protest to Mayor Walker, Who Has Ordered That the Governor's Suggestion Be Promptly Carried Out

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The refusal of 17 Tammany hall leaders, many of whom hold city positions, to waive immunity before an extraordinary grand jury investigating charges of judicial corruption in Manhattan today led Governor Roosevelt to send a letter to Mayor Walker asking that "pleading of immunity by public officers in regard to public acts shall cease."

He asked the mayor to "suggest" to all city employes who have refused to waive immunity that they return voluntarily to the grand jury room, waive immunity, and "freely answer all questions relating to their official acts."

Mayor Walker later issued a statement saying: "The text of the governor's message has just been furnished me by a newspaper, and I am in agreement with the purpose of it. His suggestion shall be promptly carried out."

The Tammany men who refused to waive immunity and therefore did not testify have followed the example of their leader John F. Curry, head of the hall, who declared himself "insulted" by a request to waive immunity before the grand jury, which has indicted former Magistrate George F. Ewald, Martin J. Healy, Tammany district leader, and two others on charges growing out of allegations that Ewald paid Healy $10,000 for his judicial post. The grand jury is also empowered to investigate any evidence of a system of barter controlling appointments to the bench.

The refusal to waive immunity was stressed last week by Charles H. Tuttle in his address accepting the republican nomination for governor. He said corruption in New York city would be the issue of the campaign.

Governor Roosevelt also sent a telegram today to Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook in which he criticized Special Assistant Attorney-General Hiram C. Todd, in charge of the grand jury investigation. He declared newspaper stories to the effect that the governor was to summon additional grand juries to probe judicial corruption in Brooklyn and the Bronx originated with Mr. Todd. This, the governor said, was "an abuse of authority, a violation of legal ethics and a deliberate breach of confidence." He also called it "a deliberate discourtesy to me as the governor of the state and an obvious scheme to embarrass me."

Justice McCook, to whom the telegram was sent, is in charge of the present grand jury.

The telegram and the letter to Mayor Walker were made public just before the governor departed today for the democratic state convention at Syracuse.

The telegram to Justice McCook was addressed to the jurist at Niantic, Conn.

The letter to Mayor Walker said:

"The press yesterday and today prints the information that a number of employes of the New York city government have declined to waive immunity when called before the special grand jury sitting under Justice McCook.

"Whether they are within their legal rights in so doing is not the question. Their action as government servants is contrary to sound public policy.

"I am asking, therefore, that you advise these gentlemen of this letter and further, that you will suggest to them that they return before the special grand jury and voluntarily offer to waive immunity. They should freely answer all questions relating to their official acts

"The scope of the questions is governed by the provisions of law applicable thereto. What I ask is that pleading of immunity by public officers in regard to public acts shall cease."

In his telegram to Justice McCook, the governor said:

"On Friday I received a personal letter from you enclosing a copy of anonymous communication received by you at your home in New York. This unsigned letter contained rumors relating to the alleged sale of a judicial position in Bronx county. On Saturday I was asked by the press to comment on a story which originated from the lips of Mr. Hiram C. Todd, the special assistant attorney-general in the Ewald case. This story from Mr. Todd was to the effect that I had received charges involving judicial officers in the Bronx and Brooklyn, and that I was expected to summon special grand juries in those counties

"This action on the part of Mr Todd was an abuse of his authority, a violation of legal ethics, and a deliberate breach of the confidence imposed in him by you, in whose hands alone the matter was vested. It was also a deliberate discourtesy to me as governor of the state, and an obvious scheme to embarrass me. It was in addition an untruth, for the reason that the only communication received by me has been the aforesaid personal letter from you with its unsigned enclosure.

"I will announce action on these letters on Monday.

"I am sorry to have to send you this telegram, but it necessary in view of the unwarranted and extraordinary action of Mr. Todd."

Mr. Todd tonight made public the following telegram to Governor Roosevelt:

"A representative of a New York newspaper has just read to me your telegram to Judge McCook which you sent for publication and in which you charge me with assuming to say that you had received charges involving judicial officers and that you intend to convene special grand juries in Kings and Bronx counties.

"You are mistaken. I never made such a statement, nor anything like it, and I resent your unfair and unwarranted criticism. The fact that you have furnished the press with a copy of your telegram to Judge McCook without first giving me an opportunity to deny your statement prompts me to request you in the future to do me the courtesy of communicating with me directly or through the attorney-general when you wish to obtain correct information as to what I am doing in the public service. I am giving a copy of this telegram to the press so if not too late it may be published with yours to Judge McCook."

WOMAN HURT, THREE AUTOS DAMAGED IN COLLISION

NORWALK, Sept. 28— (AP) —Mrs. Ida Meeker, 53, of West Haven, was seriously injured today in an accident on the Boston Post road involving three automobiles, and an electric street car.

She suffered a fractured wrist and injuries to her head and body when a car in which she was a passenger, driven by Mrs. Florence Derig, also of West Haven, was struck by a machine operated by Nitsunow Mishi, of New York city, as the latter car entered the Post road from a side street.

The impact sent Mrs. Derig's automobile against a car driven by George W. Galloda, of Waterbury, while Mishi's car crashed into the trolley car. The three automobiles were badly damaged, but only Mrs. Meeker was injured. She was taken to Norwalk hospital.

Mishi was held in $1,000 bonds on a reckless driving charge.

BODY OF AIR PILOT FOUND ON BEACH NEAR CONNEAUT, O.

CONNEAUT, Ohio, Sept. 28—(AP)—The body of Willard Parker, Cleveland pilot, was found early today on the Lake Erie beach near Conneaut. The spot was about four and a half miles from the place where wreckage of the plane in which he and William McNulty, Columbus salt manufacturer, had disappeared four days ago from Cleveland airport, was found yesterday. No trace has been found of McNulty's body.

Indications were that Parker, a war time pilot, had attempted to swim to safety after the plane struck the water, and was drowned The body was coatless. Officials surmised he removed the garment to facilitate his progress.

Parker's wrist watch had stopped at 2:18, indicating that less than an hour elapsed from their take-off at 1:30 a. m., Wednesday, before the disaster overtook them.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Sept. 28—(AP)—John Lewandowski, 50, committed suicide today by hanging himself by a strang from a pipe in the pantry of his home. Police said the man had been mentally unbalanced since he suffered a head injury four years ago and that he had attempted to commit suicide on another occasion.

FORECASTS REVIVAL OF AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28—(AP)—The saturation point in the automobile industry has not been reached, and as a matter of fact the industry is in condition now for a vigorous revival, the Midland Bank of Cleveland has found in a survey.

The facts that there has been a long and drastic period of curtailment and that sales of cars relative to production have been far above normal this year, foreshadow a recovery on a large scale, the report, written by D. C. Elliott, economist of the bank, said He even looks to the industy to go ahead of previous records.

The chief revivifying agencies will be export and replacement demands, the report said, adding that roughly 24,000,000 cars and trucks will be scrapped in the seven years from 1930 through 1936, making the average annual output for replacement 3,400,000 cars and trucks.

BURGLAR TOOK COP'S REVOLVER FROM HIM

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 28.— (AP)—Policeman William Smith, surprising a burglar in the act of breaking into a gasoline filling station here tonight, chased the man up a dark alley, meanwhile firing two shots, and at the end of the alley engaged in a tussle with him during which the burglar succeeded in taking the policeman's service revolver from him.

Smith had gone to the rear of the filling station and found the stranger standing there. After questioning him he noticed a screw driver on the ground, and a glance at the building showed that the frame around one of the windows was partially taken off. As Smith turned to the stranger, the latter fled up the alley.

After taking the policeman's gun in the tussle the burglar lined him against the wall and fled up a nearby street.

DEATH THREAT TO CHICAGO POLICEMAN BY GANGSTERS

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—(AP)—A threat of death came to light today as gangland's answer to a policeman who has been too active in Chicago's newest war on crime. The officer, Jack Kratzmeyer, revealed the threat to Captain Michael Delaney of the near North Side district and, at the same time, denied reports that he had been offered a $10,000 bribe.

The Herald and Examiner insisted, however, that it had learned of such an offer to Policeman Kratzmeyer and of the officer's refusal. The paper added that it had found the offer was part of a $100,000 slush fund, exacted by underworld commanders from their members, to combat the current intensive campaign against lawlessness

BROMINE FUMES PROVE FATAL TO DR. L. I. MASON

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 28. — Dr. Louis Irving Mason, 64, died at his residence "The Oaks," 121 Fairview street, at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon after a week's illness. He contracted a form of pneumonia last week when he accidentally inhaled the fumes of bromine which escaped from a container while he was at work in his laboratory.

The death of Dr. Mason, which follows closely on that of the late Dr. Robert C. White, was sorrowing news to the entire community in which he had attained a high degree of prominence and esteem as a leading physician and surgeon. He has served ably as medical examiner of the town of Windham for 22 years.

Dr. Mason was born in Hartford, November 3, 1865, a son of Irving and Mary Alexander Mason. His only survivor is his wife, Mary Louise Mason. He graduated from the Hartford high school, Columbia university and Columbia medical school. He practiced in New York city for 10 years holding the positions of surgeon and chief of the out-practice at St. Luke's hospital. He came from New York to South Coventry where he practiced for about two years, then removing to this city in 1908. He was appointed medical examiner that year, having jurisdiction in the towns of Windham, Scotland, Chaplin and Hampton.

Upon coming here he purchased the beautiful Barrows residence, located in a splendid oak grove on Fairview street. An addition was built to the residence and the building was opened by Dr. Mason as a private hospital which he continued to conduct until his early enlistment in the World war in 1917. He entered the war service with the title of captain and for a time was member of the exemption board, later being transferred to Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indiana. With the rank of major he was assigned to Camp Sheridan, Ohio, where he served as surgeon, later being promoted to lieutenant colonel in command of the base hospital at Camp Sheridan. He left for overseas with his own hospital unit and there built a hospital in which he continued to serve for several months after the Armistice.

Lieutenant-Colonel Mason returned to this city in 1919 after his discharge from the army and re-opened his private hospital, maintaining it until it was badly gutted by fire in September, 1924. Since that time the structure has been retained for a private residence with a suite of rooms for offices and laboratories. He was a member of the staff of St. Joseph's hospital.

Dr. Mason was a member of the Military Order of Foreign Wars of Hartford and James J. Shea post, No. 19, American Legion of this city. He was a 32nd degree Mason and held membership in the chamber of commerce. He served as senior warden and member of the executive board of St. Paul's Episcopal church for many years, was a past president of the Tri-City Medical association and member of the American Medical association.

"BOSSY" GILLIS SAYS MAYORS AFRAID OF LIQUOR ELEMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 28.— Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis, the "bad boy" mayor of Newburyport, Mass., told a local audience this afternoon that the mayors and even the governors, do not dare check the flow of liquor because of fear for their political necks and included himself in the list of such officials. His talk, entitled The Eighteenth Amendment, was given at the Gem theatre under the auspices of the Lions' club for the benefit of the club's work here among the blind. Mayor Gillis, in taking note of the relatively light attendance, informed the committee that he would "knock-off" $50 from the amount he was to receive and donate the sum to the worthy cause.

The program was opened by George H. Millerd, Jr. There were selections by the Willimantic Glee club, comprising 26 male voices and directed by Dr Edward J. Morgan. The numbers, especially Lassy O'Mine, sung like a ballad, and Swing Along were well received. It was the premiere appearance of the club before the public. Music was by the State Trade school orchestra. Chairman Millerd then called on Mayor Walter R. King who presented Mayor Gillis after a brief review of the work of Lionism in the community.

The tempestuous Massachusetts mayor opened his talk with a sketch of his political career, of his long and bitter fight, interrupted by jail sentences and heavy fines, to gain the right to operate a gasoline station in Newburyport and clear the grounds of trees. He told of his losing fights to gain a position on the aldermanic board and finally of his elections as mayor. He has another year to serve but does not know whether he will run again or not.

"I advise any youth to steer clear of politics," said "Bossy," "it is a case of dog eat dog and you've got to be a good dog at that." He said that he loved to fight the opposing element in his home town and has found that he can lick them nine times out of 10.

Supplementing a statement that there was no power to stop the flow of liquor, with an admission that he and other mayors throughout the country must watch out for the next election, Mayor Gillis said that the Canadian plan of handling liquor, with a tax sufficient to relieve the burden from the small wage earner who does not buy the beverage, appealed to him as the way out. He said that in the Draper-Butler-Gillis fight for senator he found every evidence of booze in the various Butler quarters, although Butler stood for a dry platform. Mayor Gillis concluded by saying that newspaper reports to the contrary, he was "nobody's fool" and that his principle was to stand honestly and squarely for what was right. He was roundly applauded for his unique talk. The Lion's committee in charge comprised Harry Kaufman, chairman; John R. McCarthy and Rev. H. C. Belec and President Dr. E. E. Gorton.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept 28.— Andrew T. J. Clarke of Canterbury was chosen as republican candidate for senator from the twenty-ninth district by vote of the party district convention held at the Nathan Hale hotel here Saturday. On an informal ballot taken Mr. Clarke received 16 votes and A. Linn Weatherhead of this city, nine. There were 26 delegates, the full number, present but the chairman, George A. Reed of Chaplin, withheld his vote to be cast only in case of a tie. Gerard E. Loiselle of the Windham delegation at once moved that the nomination of Mr. Clarke be made formally unanimous and the motion was adopted.

The committee on resolutions, Florence Baker of Plainfield, Clifford H. Starkweather of Brooklyn and Allen Averill of Pomfret, presented resolutions endorsing the principles of the republican party and commending to the electorate the candidate nominated for state senator, the Hon. Gates and all other nominations made by the republican state convention.

The present district committee, comprising A. Linn Weatherhead of Windham, Frank M. Bedard of Plainfield and Albert L. Mills of Hampton, was named to continue for the ensuing two years.

On invitation of Mr. Clarke the delegates and a number of guests to the number of 70 were entertained with an excellent luncheon and speaking program in the hotel dining room. Hospital Drive Treasurer

It was announced Saturday that H. Clinton Lathrop, president of the Windham National bank, had consented to act as treasurer of the $500,000 drive for a new community hospital for the city and vicinity. The territory to be covered in the campaign has been planned to conform with that depending logically on this city for hospitilization needs and comprises 20 towns and villages, in addition to Willimantic. These towns are in an area extending as far as Willington, to the north; Plainfield, to the east; Franklin, to the south, and Colchester, to the west. According to the 1930 census, the district has a population of over 42,000. It is indicated by Treasurer Lathrop that the equivalent of slightly less than $12 per capita will have to be raised from this population to achieve the drive quota of $500,000. Figures from other cities where similar drives have been staged show that this per capita subscription is not unreasonable to expect, according to the treasurer. The payment of pledges will be spread over a term of three years. With a plan to have 115 beds the average cost per bed will be about $5,000, while many other modern hospitals have a cost of from $7,000 to $9,000 per patient bed.

205 New Voters

There will be 205 new voters, some of them classified as "restored" eligible to vote in the town elections October 6, and all subsequent elections. At the second session held Saturday to administer the elector's oath to applicants, 35 persons qualified. At the first session there were 170 made or restored as voters. The total of 205 is out of a possible 398, this number showing the usual duplications and discrepancies. Another session will be held later to qualify voters in time for the state elections in November.

DANIELSON, Sept. 28—When a squad of state officers, headed by Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart of the Danielson barracks, stepped in at Russell Neal's place, a short distance out of Ballouville, around 11 o'clock Saturday night, 58 persons frequenting the resort, were more or less perturbed.

In addition to Lieut. Urquhart, State Officers Royal V. Scranton, James Carmody, Elton Nolan and H. Theodore Strand were in the raiding party. They found black and white people intermingling and dancing together. They also found beer and liquor at the place, some in the house and some cached about the property.

The appearance of the state officers threw those who were enjoying themselves there into some sort of a mild panic. A listing of the frequenters disclosed the fact that the party was made up of people who had come from Danielson, Putnam, Southbridge, East Brimfield, Mass. Leon Albro, of Elliott, in the town of Pomfret, was placed under arrest by a state officer and later locked up at the police station here. Today Albro was released, under bonds, to appear Monday in the Killingly town court to answer to a charge of having been intoxicated.

Russell Neal, alleged proprietor of the resort and a colored man, also was arrested and detained at the barracks over night. Neal was released this afternoon under bonds of $500, furnished by John Brisson of Putnam. Neal will be presented in the Killingly town court to answer to allegations charging violations of the liquor law.

A three-piece orchestra was jazzing things up for the party when the group of state officers appeared at the Neal place, which is about a half mile out of Bollouville, on a dirt road, the house itself setting far back from the highway.

It is understood that the officers have had complaints about this resort for some time past.

Impetigo Epidemic

Dr. W. H. Judson, health officer of the town, made known today that 85 children in the schools at Goodyear are not in attendance because of what amounts to an epidemic of impetigo, a disease of the skin and of highly contagious nature. Dr. Judson gives warning that once it enters a community "it spreads like wildfire" among school children. The physician advises that every case developing be referred to the town health officer for advice, or free treatment if so desired, within 24 hours. Dr. Judson also suggests that each child should use an individual face cloth and towel. As to ridding the heads of children of vermin, a difficulty also being encountered now, Dr. Judson recommends the use of kerosene as a cleanser and hair tonic—just ordinary kerosene such as is used in lamps.

Sayles Candidate for Re-Election

Selectman Alcott D. Sayles of East Killingly, democratic member of the present board, has formally announced that he is a candidate for re-election. Mr. Sayles made this known at the week end, and also the fact that he is to make a vigorous campaign to retain his place on the board.

This becomes of special interest because Mr. Sayles failed of nomination in the democratic party caucus that named candidates for town officers something over a fortnight ago. Patrick Riley of Dayville and Louis O. Stone of Attawaugan were named by the caucus as the candidates for selectmen.

Since that time Mr. Sayles has been subjected to much pressure with a view to having him enter the race independently, and this he now has decided to do. Any student of town politics will tell you, that this means a real battle at the polls the first Monday in October, and such a splitting of votes as this town has not known in a decade. Only three of the five candidates in the field can win. Every votes Mr. Sayles gets must come from voters willing to take the time to write his name into the blank column. The assurance is that plenty of them are willing to do just this thing.

Republican leaders here, as well as those who are interested in the destiny of the democratic candidates, were keenly alive to this today. It means that an intensive drive to keep the rank and file of the republican party in line will start Monday morning, and continue without interruption right up to election day. The republicans have a fight on their hands, and know it.

Durocher Place Raided

Along about midnight Saturday night a group of state officers from the Danielson barracks raided the place of Patrick Durocher in the town of Brooklyn, just across the Quinebaug river in West Wauregan. Durocher was absent at the time the officers made their appearance, but it was understood this afternoon will make appearance to answer to any charges that may be filed against him.

The officers found a slot machine, a set of poker dice and some other things that were of interest to them, and took them away. Making up the raiding party were State Officers Royal V. Scranton, James Carmody, Elton Nolan, John Murphy and Lionel Poirier.

Several scores of Danielson's women who have not been to school for ever so long a time are going to start in again Monday. They are not going to ask papa for a dime with which to buy candy or anything like that, nor are they going to be seeking for money for pencils and paper as they set out to study, for they are just starting to take special courses having to do with the preparation of foods, home decoration and the like, at the expense of the state of Connecticut. There are to be afternoon and evening classes and those who have enrolled for them will be busy with the affairs they want to know more about for the coming nine weeks.

This community eased itself back onto a standard time basis today as gracefully as though there had been no change at all in the method of measuring the hours of each day, and an extra hour of rest was one of the rewards that so many appreciated.

RALLY DAY EXERCISES IN BAPTIST CHURCH SCHOOL

The Rally day exercises at the Baptist Sunday school, at which 201 were present, included a program of much interest. Earl M. Palmer was in charge, prayer being offered by Deacon John E. Phillips. A selection read by Mrs. Robert A. Wilbur was followed by a violin solo by Tyler Gilbert and a song by Mrs. E. E. Scates. The superintendent called special attention to the Cradle Roll of the school, in his Bible quotation: "Suffer little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." In honoring the little ones, the audience arose and faced the mothers who held their babies, while Mrs. E. E. Gilbert, superintendent of the Cradle Roll, offered prayer. There were 14 babies present. The primary department displayed remarkable proficiency in their recitations from memory. Thirty-five members of this class repeated the books of the Old and New Testaments in order, without hesitation or error. Dorothy Wilbur recited the 121st Psalm, Miriam Scates and Lois Hewlett sang a duet, with other parts taken by Ruth Morgan and Lillian Webster. In closing, the whole department repeated the 23rd Psalm. Miss Beatrice Cathcart is superintendent of this department, assisted by Mrs. John MacLean and Miss May Blake. The accompanists were Mrs. John A. Davis and Mrs. Earl E. Gilbert. Mrs. George H. Prior addressed the assemblage, taking for her topic the four wheels of a coach, which she applied, in a pleasing and convincing manner, to the very necessary means of maintaining a Sunday school in running order. The speaker wondered if each one gave due and sufficient heed to the personal aid each might give, classifying the four wheels, as Responsibility, Co-operation, Enthusiasm and Endurance. "Have you," she asked, "left any of these wheels at home?" Included among the classes were several babies only a few months old, while the teacher of the Bible class is 80, with one of his pupils, Rev. Albert Clement, well on the road to 87. Ten from the primary department were graduated and presented diplomas by Mr. Palmer. Each attendant was given a Rally day badge.

TRI-MOTORED PLANE MAKES FORCED LANDING HERE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 28—The city received its first visit from one of the great liners of the air Saturday morning, when one of the tri-motored planes of the Colonial Air Transport company of Boston made a successful forced landing on the landing field of the recently organized Putnam Airport Company, Inc., on the state road between Putnam and Pomfret. The passenger plane is one of a fleet of airplanes making regular trips between Boston and New York. The sky was somewhat hazy Saturday forenoon and when the big plane arrived over the city from Boston it circled several times at a low altitude and finally settled behind Hospital hill. Certain that it had made a landing, crowds rushed to the old Larned field where they viewed the plane.

Whitman Danielson an official of the Putnam Airport Inc., arrived at the field and talked with the pilots. They stated that the field is an excellent one and unusually well adapted for landings by planes of the Colonial passenger type. Two passengers aboard the ship were left at Putnam to continue their trip to New York by rail. The landing was necessitated because of prevailing fog conditions, making continued flight hazardous. Communicating with the Boston headquarters of the company, the pilot was instructed to return to the Boston airport as soon as the "ceiling" lifted.

At noon the giant ship with its three motors purring smoothly, started up the field and lifted gently into the breeze and soon disappeared. This was the first time that a ship of this type has ever been forced to abandon a flight in this section. The incident however was one that met the approval of local air-minded citizens and proved that the city will some day become an important center of the new highways of the air.

Five persons escaped serious injury Saturday evening when two cars came together in a collision occurring at 10:45 p. m., at the blind and dangerous intersection of School and Grove streets, near the S. N. E. Telephone company building. Charles Lammon of 26 Farrows street was the driver of the sport roadster that smashed into the left side of a sedan being driven by Gustave Haveles of 31 Elm street, Danielson. The noise of the collision was heard for a considerable distance and attracted a large number of people to the scene. Two passengers in the roadster were severely shaken up, but were uninjured and Gustave Haveles Jr., passenger in the car being operated by his father also escaped unhurt. Neither driver was injured, but both cars were badly damaged. Sergt. A. J. Sponcey of the local police investigated, but made no arrests. Lammon stated that he was travelling in a westerly direction on Grove street at a moderate rate of speed and was suddenly confronted with the Haveles car issuing from School street onto Grove, when he approached the intersection. He said the appearance of the Danielson car was so sudden that he did not have time or sufficient roadway to avoid striking the car. Haveles furnished the police with a similar version of the accident

Wolfran L. Levy of Brookline, Mass., was summoned to appear in police court Monday morning to answer to a charge of failure to grant right of way, following the investigation Saturday morning of an accident by Officer J. G. Page of the local police. The car operated by Levy figured in a collision with another owned and operated by Leo S. Mills of Webster, Mass., which occurred on cemetery curve at the intersection of Grove street and Woodstock avenue at 8:45 a. m. Although both cars were badly damaged, the drivers escaped without injury.

Tadau Chausse of Attawaugan is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital suffering from a fracture of the wrist and a fracture of the pelvis bone. He was injured Friday evening when he fell from the lofty branches of an elm tree to the ground, a distance of 50 feet, according to hospital officials. His condition is not regarded as critical, although the man's injuries are of a painful nature and will require many days to heal. Chausse told officials at the hospital that the accident happened while he was trying to release a small parachute which had become tangled in the top limbs of the tree.

POETRY

Psalm 84

How lovely are Thy dwellings, Lord!
  How beautiful and grand are they;
My soul delights in Thee, O God,
  Would I were in Thy courts today.

The sparrow findeth peace and rest
  Within these holy courts of thine;
The swallow maketh here her nest,
  Thy altars, ancient and divine.

Blest are all those that dwell with Thee,
  And they will ever give Thee praise;
Blest is the man, on land or sea,
  Whose heart is perfect in Thy ways

Lord God of hosts, O hear my prayer!
  Behold the people of our race;
Defend us with Thy loving care,
  And look upon Thy servant's face.

One day within Thy courts is more
  Than elsewhere are a thousand days;
And I had rather keep Thy door
  Than dwell in sinners' tents and ways.

For God is a defence, a light,
  And grace and worship giveth He;
O Lord of hosts O God of might,
  Blest is the man that trusts in thee!

Perfect For College

We bought her a suitcase,
  We bought her a trunk;
And she had a small handbag
  For trinkets and junk.

She'd a slicker, a sport coat
  A fur coat, a wrap;
She had headgear in plenty:
  Beret, hat and cap.

She had stockings, sheer silk
  Except just at the heel,
And pajamas endowed with
  A "certain appeal."

Her undies—expensive!—
  Took no room at all.
Her concern in the purchase
  Exceedingly small.

But of dresses she proved to be
  High aware;
And of gloves, long and short,
  She chose seventeen pair.

We bought her a shoe store,
  With heels high and low;
And a sewing kit, should she
  Determine to sew.

She had pencils and pens
  Of the very best brand,
And a large handsome ring
  Adorned her fair hand.

We got powders and creams
  To preserve her good looks,
But completely neglected
  To buy any books.

The story of the dog that crossed America on foot in returning home has a counterpart in a tale from Gatesville, N. C., about T. Cross's pig. Cross sold a big black pig to a steamboat captain. The pig was carried to Murfreesboro. A week later it returned, muddy and dirty, from the town forty miles away. Cross gave the captain his money back for the homing pig.

A "burning bluff," located in Gregory county, South Dakota, continues to mustify tourists. Those who have examined the peculiar bluff lay the origin of its "burning" to the slacking of pyrites During the wet season the bluff smokes most. Coyotes and other wild animals go there to warm themselves. The bluff smokes continuously and an odor of burning sulphur is in the air. Digging into the hill a short distance, one finds the heat too great for comfort to the hard.

Sluggish Systems Frequent Cause of General Bad Health

Noted Authorities Advise Cleansing System with New Laxative

Many so-called "little things" may easily lead to more serious consequencies. Headache, coated tongue, billiousness, bad breath and a general tired feeling, any one of them may be signs of a seriously clogged-up system. And today people are discovering that one of the best possible measures they can take to insure good health is to avoid constipation by using Feen-a-mint the modern chewing gum laxative.

Feen-a-mint is especially famous and popular because it works on an entirely new principle—that of uniform internal distribution.

Because you chew Feen-a-mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectiveness of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the quantity swallowed as upon the thoroughness of its distribution throughout the alimentary tract.

While you chew this delicious bit of gum the tasteless laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly evenly, without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.

The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough, gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage, it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint you take nor to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the health laxative. Ask for a package at any drug store.—Adv.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Industrial development is something which Norwich has placed high on its programme of activities from year to year. It is highly important for the growth of any community that it should have a diversity of industries, factories that will give employment to heads of families as well as those other members who seek work, industries that may start on a small scale with opportunities for expansion as well as the large plants upon which much dependence is placed.

Toledo is one of the cities which puts much stress upon industrial growth and it has a pleasing record of accomplishment. The chamber of commerce of that city, which has a population of over 260,000, sets forth its aim and accomplishments by declaring "Toledo has her hands on the plow and can't look backwards." It shows that for the first seven months of this year its new industries record totals 29. That is one more than for the same period last year and nine more than for 1928. For the entire year 1928, 38 new industries were obtained. There was a gain of two over that number in 1929 and with the first seven months of this year showing better results than 1929 the chamber is confident of a record total for 1930.

How does it get them? That may be a secret, but it declares, "Our industrial department was never busier—we have 402 live contacts; our industrial commissioner has met 478 executives in 43 cities since the first of the year." The secret would seem to be that, inasmuch as it desires industrial growth, it sets about it in a manner to get results. It doesn't wait for its advantages to be stumbled upon by those who need them. It doesn't sit around in a period of inactivity when it has unoccupied plants. It doesn't whistle for development but goes out and gets it, making a careful study of concerns which are interested and setting forth the particular advantages of that city.

Every locality has its talking points. Every city has its own particular appeal for certain lines of industry, but every community must appreciate and strive for sound and stable industrial development, with the fact kept prominently in mind that large industries have come from small beginnings.

LEAVES

For weeks, due to the long period of dryness and in some instances disease, there has been a steady sprinkling of leaves, quite in contrast to normal years. Instead of being kept busy with the lawn mower, the property owner has been wielding the rake, and from now on it can be expected that his activities in that direction will increase, since it will not be long before the frost will get in its activity in separating the foliage from the trees.

With the falling of the leaves there is not only work for those who keep the streets and yards tidy, but there is a danger from fire and a menace to the motoring public.

Dry leaves furnish just the type of kindling for brisk and rapidly spreading fires which menace buildings as well as timber.

Wet leaves are especially tricky for the trolley car as well as the automobile. Slippery tracks make it difficult to check the electrics, while autos go out of control quickly when they strike a bed of leaves unexpectedly which may have been rainsoaked or in which frost lingers.

This year the danger from wet leaves has not as yet presented itself. It remains in the offing. The harvest of dry leaves promises to be distributed over a much longer period than usual, meaning more work for those who gather them and a longer season for the fires which are started to dispose of them or those which spring from the many needless causes.

But whether the season is long or short, whether there are many leaves or few, whether it is wet or dry, there are conditions created by the fact that leaves fall and man is careless which need careful advance consideration. In many instances it is common practice to go ahead taking chances until something serious happens, when there is actually no need of it and when the undesirable can in most instances be prevented.

But along with the time of the year when frost comes and the leaves fall, there comes that period when the autumn foliage is a thing of beauty and a joy to that great army of admirers who are able to get out into the byways and highways to view and exclaim.

WEAK BLEACHERS

Last week while 2,500 persons were occupying a section of the bleachers at a high school field in Columbus, O., the stand collapsed. There were fractured skulls, broken bones, severe body injuries, as well as many minor bruises, more than 100 being hurt.

Bleachers and grandstands are subject to the ravages of the weather. They are open to the elements and naturally develop weak spots. After years of service they can hardly be expected to sustain the weight that they did when new. On the other hand, if they are not properly constructed and built substantially enough to withstand the treatment to which they are liable to be subjected during athletic contests, when crowds grow enthusiastic and demonstrative, they constitute a menace.

No matter how well constructed they may be, they should get a thorough inspection in advance of seasonal use. This, if properly done, will take care of the deterioration that is bound to occur. Weak timbers and planking should be replaced and every possible effort made to insure safety. The bleachers and grandstand that is a little stronger than actually necessary is none too protective.

Too often it is the case with such outdoor seating arrangements, that too little thought is given to stability. Because the bleachers stand up they are expected to resist the ravages of time, and the crowd never curtails its boisterous use of the stands for fear of a collapse. There is, in fact, no good reason why it should, since the stands should be built and maintained in a manner to meet with full adequacy all such strains.

But it is with bleachers much the same as it is dams; too little attention is given to them until something serious happens. If one dam gives away there is immediate worry about others, hurried inspections follow and temporary repairs are undertaken. What is needed is a regular and systematic inspection of the stability of dams and bleachers before their weaknesses develop and cause a long list of casualties, before accidents which can be prevented add to the fatalities in the daily news.

LIPTON RECONSIDERS

Somehow the impression had been gained as the result of statements made by him at the finish of the races that Sir Thomas Lipton was through with international yacht racing. It was learned with regret because he was such an ardent sportsman and such a cheerful loser, but no one could blame him if he felt, after his series of losses, that it was time for others to take a hand. Certainly he has made a determined try to lift the cup. He has spent his millions, got good publicity, provided interesting races and done much to establish relations between nations.

To have Sir Thomas drop out of the picture was cause for regret. He had a perfect right to make such a decision, even though it indicated, temporarily, a bit of discouragement. That he has experienced a change of heart is now evidenced by a revocation of that previous decision and the declaration that he will challenge again and "challenge shortly."

That announcement is bound to be accepted as good news. It eliminates any thought of dicouragement and proves that he has been impressed by the study of American yacht building and seamanship and has experienced a restoration of confidence that he can surpass it. Just as long as that prevails, there is assurance that there will be international yacht races.

Sir Thomas will probably admit that he has had a delightful visit to the United States, marred only by the fact that he did not lift the cup, but it is the spirit which he displays in such a quest that stands the chance of eventual success. If the capture of America's cup had depended upon sympathy in this country, Sir Thomas would have come much nearer to victory in the races than did his Shamrock V

PRESERVING THE REDWOODS

California has many attractions and numbered among them are its great redwood trees. They are among the natural wonders of the country and it is quite natural that there should be an organized effort to insure their preservation. Many an appeal has been made to protect trees, because of their beauty or for sentimental reasons, against the application of the woodman's ax, but no more deserved were they than those which are being advanced for aid in saving these great monarchs of the forest, trees which are stately and tall and through the base of which a tunnel might be cut for highway use if necessary.

That California is alive to the importance of saving these great and aged trees is indicated by the fact that the state has approved a bond issue to the extent of $6,000,000 for the purpose of buying and preserving these redwoods and the land where they grow. They have been acquired by lumber companies which are guided by commercial opportunities rather than natural attractions. They are as willing to sell the trees as they stand as they are to cut and convert them into lumber. But they want their price. California has endeavored to meet the situation by providing a sum which must be equalled by private subscriptions. It has directed attention to the fact that such trees, more than a thousand years old, cannot be grown overnight, and in issuing the appeal to any and all interested throughout the country the Redwoods league at Berkeley in that state is confident that it will receive a generous response. California may well provide liberally for this object, since it will reap the benefit, but others cannot fail to be interested in such preservation work.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It may seem a little strange for darkness to approach so early, but time will eliminate that.

The man on the corner says: Did you enjoy that restored hour as much as you expected?

Some have the idea that any week will do for fire prevention, but it shouldn't be one week but every week.

THE MILK THIEF

Gladys glanced apprehensively at Tom as he hurried into the breakfast nook. Tom was a wonderful husband, but he never was exactly jovial early in the morning and little things were bound to upset him. He pulled up his chair, unfolded his napkin and started on his grapefruit. Then the huge pile of toast on the plate before him caught his eye. He looked up suspiciously.

"No cereal this morning?" he inquired. "Did you run out of cereal?"

"No, Tom dear," replied Gladys hastily. "We have plenty of cereal, but there's no milk. The milkman missed us again."

Tom mumbled something ominous under his breath. "That means canned cream in the coffee," he said sourly. "If there's anything I hate it's canned cream in my coffee."

"I'm awfully sorry, Tom," said Gladys humbly. "I can't imagine what's wrong with that milkman."

"Why don't you change companies?" grumbled Tom. "He has been missing us a couple of times every week." He paused long enough to push aside his grapefruit, then added suspiciously: "Are you sure you left tickets out for him?"

"Of course I'm sure!" replied Gladys indignantly. "You think I always forget things like that, don't you? You always blame these mistakes on me, instead of on the milkman. You think I'm incompetent."

Tom did not reply and the meal was completed in strained silence. But with food inside him, a cigarette glowing and six minutes to catch his train Tom's ill humor vanished.

"That's all right, honey," he said at the door. "Don't worry about the milk. But why don't you have the milkman stop around some time during the day, so that you can have a talk with him?"

"I will, Tom" said Gladys happily.

When he returned from one office that evening Tom never thought to inquire about her interview with the milkman, thus sparing Gladys the embarrassing necessity of explaining that no interview had taken place. For several mornings they had milk on their cereal and cream in their coffee, and everything was rosy. Then one day there again was no milk to be found when Gladys opened the kitchen door.

Tom was really a bit nasty about it that morning. "I don't see how that milkman can miss us when he comes to all the other apartments in the building," he growled. He had observed that the Jordans, across the court had received their milk.

"I think somebody must be stealing our milk," replied Gladys sulkily. "That's the only way I can explain it."

Tom gave her a skeptical glance. "I don't imagine there are many sneak thieves in this neighborhood," he said. "A man would have to be pretty hard up to prowl around stealing milk between 4 and 6:30 in the morning."

"You think it's my fault!" stormed Gladys "Well, before you accuse me, why don't you find out if the milk is being stolen? Wouldn't that be fairer?"

Tom did not reply, but that night he went to bed at 8 o'clock, setting the alarm for 4 "I'm going to settle this milk business," he announced grimly "If there is a milk thief operating around here I'll catch him.

When the alarm sounded in the cold darkness of the next morning Tom groaned and grumbled, but he got up. He had dressed by the time the rattle of bottles announced the arrival of the milk. Snuggling deep beneath the covers, Gladys tried to salve her protesting conscience with the thought that it was good for a man to get up early. Nevertheless she had a feeling of guilt that would not be downed and she could not go back to sleep. She heard Tom prowling around the kitchen in the darkness and almost yielded to an impulse to confess.

But a sudden interruption saved her. She heard Tom utter an exclamation. The kitchen door was jerked open, and she heard him clattering down the back stairs. She leaped from her bed and was waiting for him when he returned.

"What was it, Tom?" she inquired breathlessly.

"Saw a man sneaking around back there," said Tom, puffing hard. "Must have been the milk thief. He got away, but I guess I gave him a bad scare. He won't bother us any more." He walked into the apartment, dropped into a chair, and then grinned sheepishly at his wife.

"Well, you are vindicated, dear," he said. "I know now that it wasn't your fault."

"I knew you suspected me all the time," she said triumphantly. "And I'm just real glad that you found out I wasn't forgetting to put out the tickets."

Breakfast that morning was a serene and friendly meal. Tom was sure that their milk would be there each morning now. And Gladys was just as sure, for on the preceding day she had talked to the milkman and arranged for milk to be left every day, even on those frequent occasions when she forgot to put out the tickets.

But she couldn't help wondering who it was that Tom had chased.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 — And where, oh, where was Joe Robinson when his presidential boom was launched in such stormy seas by his Arkansas friends and colleagues?

You would think, naturally, that a boomee, particularly the beneficiary of the first formal boom for presidential nomination honors to have his hat shied into the 1932 ring, would like to be standing by. He might like to be somewhere so the reporters could reach him. Where was Senator Joe?

Why, he was sailing the calm Pacific. He was going out with Hiram Bingham et al. to see about fixing those kindly Samoan folk up at last with some sort of legal relationship to Uncle Sam

True, they have waited half a century or so without seeming to mind their lack of citizenship very much. They have managed to get along very pleasantly with their naval guardians, but suddenly their situation has become a question no longer tolerating delay for the two senators.

Regardless of the sacrifice of a bright, sunny spot in the bye-elections campaign at home each must make, they rushed to the rescue.

Startler

And no sooner was Senator Joe's broad back turned on his native shore than somebody in Arkansas up and touched a light to his boom for the democratic nomination in 1932. It sailed up grandly and burst into all the front pages. Too grandly, perhaps—kindness of former Governor Brough.

For, while every political body in Washington fully expected the Robinson boom and viewed the senator's overseas expeditions both to London and to Samoa as having some part in his hopeful plans, the Brough notion about kind of derailing incipient Ritchie and Roosevelt booms in advance was a startler. And, certainly, two immediate denials make a very poor tail to a presidential boom kite.

Safe

Probably Senator Joe knew nothing about what Brough was going to say. And, aside from that, it all worked out nicely so far as he is concerned. He's off on official business where no news hungry interviewers can bombard him with troublesome questions. He's to get home just in time to vote in November.

There will be a lot more political "dope" available then on which to base what he might desire to say.

But it is a fact that Robinson's is the first, definite 1932 boom. The Ritchie and Roosevelt moves are still in the incipient wait-and-see stage.

And, of course, the Hoover renomination on the republican side is a thing taken for granted, publicly at least, by all good republicans, whatever dreams folks like Charlie Curtis and Bill Borah may be having privately.

But please note that Herbert Hoover has had thus far absolutely nothing new to say of 1932.

YOUR HEALTH

More About Measles

By Edward Sherrard Rimer, M. D.,
New York City.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Today we continue our discussion of measles—one of the first diseases of childhood to visit the home. We talked about the after effects of measles and now we shall concern ourselves with the problems of exposure, precautions, etc.

There is no excuse for carelessly exposing children to an infection which is so dangerous in so many ways. Parents should keep their children who show symptoms of beginning measles at home and in bed. Teachers and nurses in charge of school children should likewise be on their guard to isolate those with coughs or other suggestive signs until the diagnosis can be established. A valuable aid in the early detection of measles is a therometer, which should be used as a routine. The doctor frequently is able to make the diagnosis two or three days before the eruption appears and avoid further contacts.

Every case of measles must be isolated early and kept in strict quarantine if we would prevent the epidemics. Isolation, to be successful, means that no one enters the patient's room except the nurse or attendant. Every article removed from the room is considered contaminated and is disinfected either by soaking in antiseptic solution or by boiling.

The hands of the nurse or attendant must be carefully and thoroughly washed after caring for the patient, before leaving the room. There is little danger of carrying measles infection by a third person from one house to another if the hands are washed and the clothing changed. Fortunately the organism does not withstand long exposure to sunlight and air. Incidentally sunlight is one of our best disinfectants

Special care should be taken to disinfect discharges from the nose and mouth. Old linen or paper napkins for handkerchiefs, that can be placed in a paper bag and burned, are safest. The child should not be kept to warm—certainly not wrapped up until he perspires at every pore. This only makes him more susceptible to colds and other infections of the air passages. A room temperature of 68-70 degrees is the best. Circulation of air may be provided for through another room if necessary. The eyes should be protected from exposure to very bright light but there is no point in keeping the room dark—that usually means lack of proper ventilation. Give warm baths but do not use soap or alcohol—both irritate the skin in the early stages. During the high fever the doctor will advise warm baths to bring down the temperature and keep the skin in good condition. He will advise giving the child plenty of water to drink—not ice water. His suggested diet will be light—one easily digested Fruit juices, plain broths, junket, jello and gruel are easy to digest—easier than milk—probably the first food given.

In measles the mouth and throat are inflamed, so great care should be taken to protect against local infection of the gums and mucous membranes.

At the first appearance of the symptoms described, call the family physician and follow out the suggestions he makes as to isolation, treatment and diet. Do not attempt to doctor your own child simply because you have heard that measles is a mild disease—it may result in serious complications for the child and he is deserving of good scientific care.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Impy Sees Another Black Coat

A coat's a thing of small amount;
'Tis what's inside that most will count.
—Old Mother Nature.

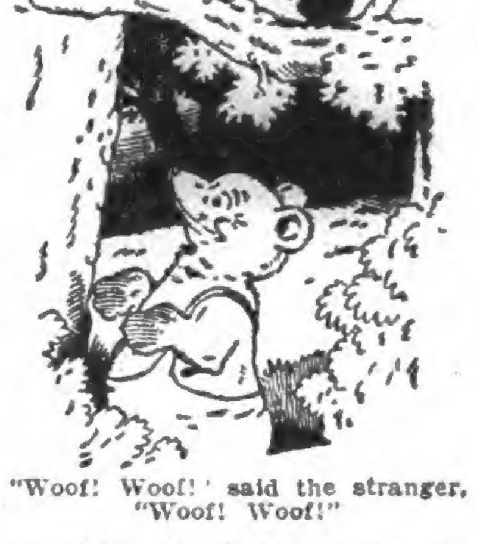
Impy, the black Chipmunk, was very proud of his black coat. He knew of no one, excepting Black Pussy, the cat at Farmer Brown's, who possessed a black coat. And his coat was black; nothing could have been blacker. It drew a great deal of attention, because it was so unusual. Yes, sir; it did so. So Impy came to have a feeling that no one else had a right to a black coat.

Very early one morning, just at the break of day, Impy ran into the Green Forest a little way to see how the nuts were coming along, for he had a feeling that it was almost harvest time. It had been pretty cool the night before. Impy wondered if Jack Frost had been around. He was eager for Jack Frost to come and pinch open some of the burs in which the nuts were. He had started early, so as to be the first on the ground in case any of those nuts had dropped. He didn't even tell little Mrs. Impy that he was going.

"Perhaps I can find a few nuts and surprise her," thought Impy, as he scurried along as only a Chipmunk can scurry. When he got over where the nut trees were he found two or three nuts on the ground. Most of them, however, were wormy. Impy was disappointed. He decided he would climb one of the trees and examine the nuts on the tree. So he climbed up in one of the trees and was just starting out along a branch when he was startled by a noise. It was a loud noise. Some one was coming that way and didn't care how much noise he made. He was not trying to walk softly.

Impy hung onto the branch tightly and his little heart went pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat, for his nose brought to him a strange scent, and this scent gave him a feeling of fear. He didn't know why. It just did, that was all. Nearer and nearer came the stranger, as Impy could tell by the noise. Presently there was a loud sniff. Every little black hair in Impy's coat stood on end at the sound of that sniff. Yes, sir; every little black hair did just that thing. It was the loudest sniff that he had ever heard.

Impy held his breath and waited. His eyes were fairly popping out of his head, as he looked in the direction from which all these sounds were coming. Presently he almost forgot where he was. He almost forgot to hold on. Yes, sir, Impy almost forgot to hold on. There was something black over there and it was moving. It looked like black fur. All that Impy could see was just a patch of it. That was enough, however, for him to know there was something in the Green Forest besides himself wearing black.



"Woof! Woof!" said the stranger, "Woof! Woof!"

Then the branches of the young trees that were hiding the visitor parted and there stepped into full view a stranger in black. And such a stranger! Impy had never seen him before and hadn't supposed that there was any one in the Green Forest as big as this stranger. Moreover, his coat was black. It was just as black as Impy's own. Despite his fright, Impy saw this at once and rather resented it. Yes sir; he rather resented it.

"Woof! Woof!" said the stranger. "Woof! Woof."

Impy dug his little claws into the bark and hung on for dear life. He was too frightened to do anything else. You see, he was looking down at great, big Buster Bear, and something inside told him that Buster would enjoy a tender young Chipmunk, regardless of whether his coat was black or striped.

CHILD TRAINING

Emphasizing The Positive In Child Training

Janette Stevenson Murray

"I want all the children who drank a glass of milk for breakfast to stand up," said the kindergarten teacher.

Six out of class of twenty-five stood up. The teacher shook hands with these six and made quite an ado over them. Receiving so much attention and hearty commendation made these children feel they they occupied the center of the stage. Nothing could have delighted them more.

The children who did not drink milk for breakfast, sat unnoticed. "The waters closed over them," so to speak. If, instead, the teacher had said, "Why, Teddy Smith, think of your not having a glass of milk! I'm certainly surprised," Teddy would have enjoyed the attention he gained through the reproof.

The next morning when all the children who had drunk milk for breakfast were asked to stand, almost every child got up. This kindergarten teacher thoroughly understood the teaching of child psychology, that it is good procedure to praise the desirable act and ignore the undesirable.

The best schoolmen, today, do not ask the child to correct misspelled words, badly punctuated or ungrammatical sentences—the old grammars were full of these exercises—instead, they place the emphasis on the correct word and sentence, so that the child gets a mental picture of these and forgets the incorrect. They give the child positive suggestions instead of negative. They know that if we call Jack a gentleman, he will instinctively straighten up and brush his clothes, but if we call him a "tough," he will slouch down and scowl at us.

The mother who is an up to date disciplinarian talks about how well Bob remembers to remove his cap and to fold his napkin. She calls attention to his shoes upon the rare occasions when they are polished, commends the orderly arrangement of Jane's bureau drawers, always says "Thank you" to her high school son when he gallantly seats her at the table.

And the father who is quite up to date in this important science says within Bob's hearing that it is fine to have the walks shoveled so promptly. This provides a stronger incentive towards future effort than nagging. Father also expresses enthusiasm over the lad's progress in school—the gain may be slight but Bob feels encouraged and the chances are good for a higher grade on the next report card.

Clara's mother belongs to an old school that still has too many followers. She pursues the opposite course. She is always finding fault because her conscientious little daughter does not stand among the highest in the class. Clara is becoming nervous, sheds bitter tears, and refuses to eat. The child is physically unfit for good school work. Last semester her grades were lower than usual. Clara needs commendation rather than upbraiding.

Never take away a harmful amusement without substituting something equally interesting in its place. Jean's mother like Clara's was not up to date. Four-year-old Jean was digging in the dirt—a very healthful and natural activity. Her mother stopped her because she was soiling her dress. Jean fretted and got into so much mischief, her mother was almost "beside herself" before the afternoon was over. There would have been no trouble if Jean had been dressed in overalls and provided with a sand box. Wisely selected toys and play equipment prevent naughtiness.

Bossy, obstreperous, and difficult children are often changed entirely when the parents stop nagging—stop saying, "Don't do that!" at every turn—and provide for them big building blocks, a jar of clay for modeling, or a work bench and tools. These things help children to use any over abundant energy and initiative in constructive work.

Stories That Recall Others

At It Again.

Billy asked his mother what caused the fog and she told him it was made by the mist fairies. One day he entered a room in which his father had been smoking and ran in great haste to his mother.

"Hey, mother!" he shouted. "Those doggone mist fairies have been at it again!"

Mistaken Identity

Little James came running in one morning and exclaimed: "Oh, mother, there's a big lion in our yard! Come see it."

Mother went to the door to find a large shepherd dog lying in the grass. Thinking James also knew it was a dog, she thought it was time to start breaking him of telling untruths, so she said: "No, James, you told mother a lie; you knew that was not a lion, but only a dog. You must go in and kneel by your little bed and ask the Lord to forgive you for telling mother a lie."

James went obediently, but returned in a few minutes with a pleased smile on his face, saying, "Mother the Lord said that was all right, 'cause He thought that dog was a lion Himself when He first saw it."

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut.

The Waterbury Metal Wares Company, Inc., Waterbury.

The Waterbury Metal Wares company was organized in October 1915, by L. W. Andersen and B. S. Fenton, both formerly connected with The Plume & Atwood Manufacturing company of Waterbury.

The company was incorporated October 23, 1915 and operations begun in the three-story brick factory building on Jackson street, at which location it still continues in the manufacture of lighting specialties.

First officers elected were: President, L. W. Andersen; treasurer, B. S. Fenton; secretary, E. A. Godfrey. Mr. Fenton was also appointed general manager, but owing to ill health, he was unable to devote his attention to the management, and E W. Andersen, son of the president and also a former employe of The Plume & Atwood Manufacturing company, was made assistant manager.

Upon the death of Mr. Fenton, L. Russell Carter was then elected treasurer and upon the resignation of E. A. Godfrey, E. W. Andersen was elected secretary and general manager. Mr. Carter held the office of treasurer for many years, resigning in 1926, and E. W. Andersen, the secretary, was elected treasurer as well. In March 1917, Charles E. Wirth joined the company in the capacity of general superintendent, taking charge of production engineering, mechanical operations and tool designing, previously part of the duties of the late Mr. Fenton.

The company manufactures several well known and nationally distributed lines: Duplex desk lamps, bed lamps, table and candle lamps in colonial designs; the most complete line of holders for glass, silk and parchment shades; candle clips and candle shade holders; adjustable clusters and ball joints; vase mountings; oil lamp and candlestick adapters and parts; screwless holders, ceiling lights and chain hangers for commercial lighting units and specialties in brass and other metals to order. Many of the devices are patented and distributed under registered trade names and the output is sold direct to the retail trade.

NOSE PICKING?

MAYBE IT'S WORMS

DON'T be misled into thinking this is "just a habit". Often it is not a habit at all, but is due to worms. They are much more common than most mothers think.

Among other symptoms are: grinding the teeth, crossness, crying in sleep, offensive breath, loss of appetite or weight, nausea or general restlessness. Any one of these signs may be your warning that worms are present. Wise mothers take no chances with these dangerous and disgusting childhood pests. PROPOSE ROCKY NECK PARK TO BE ACQUIRED BY THE STATE

Since the recent announcement of a meeting of the State Forest and Park association to be held next Saturday at Rocky Neck park, west of Niantic in the town of East Lyme, much public interest has been aroused in this tract and may have visited in this tract and many have visited. The tract has also acquired additional public interest through the announcement that it was being held by a group of public spirited citizens who are desirous that it should be included in the state's park system and have secured control of it with this special purpose in view.

The tract, which is about 600 acres, includes woodland, large camp site, a 3-4 mile white sand beach and a large concrete building used for bath houses and a pavilion. There are also three frame buildings located on the hill in the rear of the concrete building. During the past summer the beach has been operated privately and has enjoyed a large patronage.

A new road was built to the property from the Giant's Neck road giving easy access to the camping site and the beach. The camping site is very large and level, dry and has excellent drainage. Bordering the camping grounds to the west is the woodland in which are a number of very pretty camping places. During the past summer a good part of the underbrush has been cleared and the trees thinned out, making a sightly grove.

The beach is reached by an underpass under the railroad. This beach is one of the best in eastern Connecticut, being fully three-quarters of a mile long and of sparkling white sand. At high tide the beach is fully 100 feet wide and at low water is nearly double that as the beach slopes very gently to deep water. At the pavilion, which originally was the main plant of the Mennaden Fertilizer Co., there is a stone pier running out into the water for 500 or 600 feet. The building that is now being used for bath houses and pavilion, is of concrete. The bath houses and the refreshment stand are on the ground floor. The second story of the building is very large with a floor space of between 40,000 and 50,000 square feet which could very easily be converted into a dance pavilion.

Rising from the north end of the pavilion is a bluff on which are located two cottages and a large house that was once used as a boarding house when the plant was in operation several years ago. From this bluff a magnificent view of the sound can be had. Across the railroad tracks in the rear of the bluff is densely wooded country which, when cleared of underbrush and thinned out, would make ideal camping spots and picnic places.

The beach and woodland make this place one of the prettiest places of its kind on the Connecticut shore.

CASSIDY IS REPUBLICAN NOMINEE IN THE 19TH

The 19th senatorial district convention of the republican party held Saturday in the county commissioners' room unanimously nominated City Attorney Charles W. Cassidy as candidate for election to the state legislature as senator. Attorney Cassidy represented Norwich in the legislature 1925 to 1927. The 19th district represents Norwich, Preston and Ledyard. The convention was held at noon and was called to order by Attorney Andrew B. Davies. John P. Hollowell was chosen chairman and Judge Arthur F. Libby was the clerk.

Attorney Cassidy was nominated by Attorney Davies, who said that the nominee has many claims on the office. He represented Norwich in the house in 1925 and 1927. In the 1925 legislature, Mr. Cassidy served on the constitutional amendment committee and in 1927 he served on the judiciary committee, and also on other committees.

Mr. Cassidy is a lawyer of ability and character and is the logical and an ideal candidate, said Mr. Davies in conclusion. Deputy Judge Henry H. Pettis seconded the nomination, which was made by acclamation. Attorney Davies and Judge Pettis were named a committee to wait upon Mr. Cassidy and inform him of his nomination. They ushered the candidate into the room amidst a burst of applause. Mr. Cassidy thanked the delegates for the honor conferred on him and pledged himself to the republican cause The candidate said he heartily endorsed two planks in the platform of the party. They are additional state provision for tuberculosis patients and the dirt roads project. He said he is heartily in favor of any bill introduced in the legislature to aid the farmers and improve the dirt roads.

Attorney Davies and Herbert Knox of this city were named delegates-at-large. After the convention the delegates were guests of Attorney Cassidy at a luncheon at the Wauregan hotel.

MEMBERSHIP MEETING FOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Six new directors are to be voted in when the Norwich chamber of commerce holds its annual meeting this (Monday) evening, beginning with a supper at 6:15 at the Wauregan hotel and the prime attraction in the speaking line is the coming of P. L. Gerety of Derby to make the address of the evening. Mr. Gerety is the secretary of the Connecticut division of the New England council and the local officers feel that they are lucky in securing him for this meeting. They expect that every chamber of commerce member will make it a point to be present in cooperation with the officers' efforts in providing such a fine speaker.

William G. Park is to be toastmaster and the invocation is to be given by Rev. W. J. Sly, pastor of the Third Baptist church, who will also speak briefly.

THREE ARRESTED FROM COVE STREET RACKET

John Williams was arrested about 8:30 Saturday night at his home, 20 Cove street, on a breach of the peace charge, and two brothers, John and Peter Wolinski, of Preston, were arrested for intoxication, both showing marks on their heads which, it is alleged, were the results of a beating given by Williams. Dr. W. T. Driscoll was called to police headquarters to treat one of the men.

The three were arrested by Officers Pounch, Vuono and Shana, who also brought from the Williams house a sawed-off billiard cue, which was made up for a club, having one end filled in with lead and the other fitted with a strap. It is not known whether this was the weapon used by Williams.

EXPECT BIG GATHERING OF RURAL ROAD SUPPORTERS

A mass meeting of all the members of the Connecticut Rural Road Improvement association, one which will eclipse the memorable meeting of last April when the rural road improvement meeting was launched, will be held in the hall of the house of representatives in the capitol building at Hartford, Tuesday, Sept. 30.

The meeting will be called to order at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, standard time, by L. G. Tolles, president.

The meeting will be for the purpose of hearing reports of the work up to the present time and to discuss plans for the future.

Although a liberal appropriation for the improvement of rural roads is one of the planks in the republican platform, and it is hoped by many members that the democrats will include this as one of their major objects, the association feels that the campaign of educating the people of Connecticut to the need for improved rural roads is just begun.

One of the speakers will be Dr. W. L. Higgins, secretary of state, and chairman of the committee on publicity. It is expected several hundred members will attend.

ENLARGING LOCAL INDUSTRY LEASES NEW QUARTERS

Because of its increasing business the Leonard Manufacturing company has leased from Ring Bros., the Chestnut street property formerly occupied by the Norwich Evening Record and is to move there in about ten days from the Disco building where the business has been located for about three years. There is about 7,000 square feet of floor space in the new location and this will afford fine opportunity for the expansion which the owner of the business, John H. Leonard of this city and Providence now finds necessary. At the present time he has a working force of 20, with 14 automatic sewing machines in operation, but he is to add 20 more machines at once in the new location and he intends to have 100 machines in operation within the next six months, which will mean an enlargement of his working force to about 100 girls and women.

The concern manufactures novelty aprons and dresses, which are sold directly to large retail stores and chain stores throughout the country. Included among his customers are Macy, Metropolitan stores, J. C. Penny Co., Kresge and W. T. Grant.

Mr. Leonard has been connected with the Dodge Textile Co., of Providence, R. I., and is under contract to that company until Dec. 31. When his contract expires he expects to give all his time to his business in this city.

The concern is expected to do a gross business of about $100,000 a year. The weekly payroll will be about $700.

BLUE PRINT PROGRAMS TO 30 SCOUT TROOPS

A blue print program giving the proposed activities of the Eastern Connecticut council with headquarters at the Thayer building is being sent out this week to the 30 troops under this council's jurisdiction. This program gives the activities of the council month by month and contains about 300 separate activities or meetings of committees and groups.

In his letter from President H. D. Larrabee which accompanies the program, Mr. Larrabee says, "We have a big year of scouting ahead of us. In this work for boys we are like a baseball team. We each have a position to play. The success of our team of scouting will be directly proportional ot the way each member of the team 'play ball.' We are to win."

BOY SCOUTS TO AID IN FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

According to the local scout headquarters the president of the United States has just proclaimed the week beginning October 5, as National Fire Prevention week. The October number of the Scouting magazine carries an article concerning fire hazards. Every scout in the United States is asked to make a survey of the fire conditions in his own home and give such assistance and suggestions by way of calling the attention of his parents and others interested, to the hazards which he believes he has discovered, in order that thety may be corrected.

If every scout will make such a survey, it will mean nearly one million inspections and should be fruitful of a very much worth-while program of fire prevention.

Entertained at Silver Tea

Mrs. Carrie Rogers, of 35 Jefferson avenue, New London, entertained the members of her Sunday school class of the Huntington Street Baptist church at a silver tea at her tea room Wednesday afternoon. The proceeds of the afternoon, amounting to $18, were given to the class. The $18 included a gift of $10 from one of the members. BOY SCOUTS QUESTIONNAIRE TO CHURCHES AND SCHOOLS

According to C. V. James, chairman of the troop organization committee of the scouts, and especially interested in the establishment of new scout troops, a questionnaire will be sent this week to churches and schools throughout eastern Connecticut. The purpose of the questionnaire is to ascertain what these institutions are doing for boys' work.

Some of the questions asked include: "What is your institution doing to provide interesting activities for boys? Service? Recreation? What percentage of your male membership is below 18? Are special boy services ever held? What nationalities and percentage of each do your boys represent. Would you be interested in the organization of a Cub Pack (boys 9-12) a Boy Scout troop, (boys 12-15) or a Rover of Sea Scout group (boys 15-18), as an integral part of your institutional work. What kind of backing and leadership can your institution give such a group? There are a number of other questions and the questionnaire closes with the statement of Dr. Geo. J. Fisher, M. D., about scouting: "Boy Scouting is a program related to boy nature; it is a program that the boy likes; it is a health giving program; it is a program that challenges a boy to vigorous endeavor; it is a character building program; it is a program that trains citizenship; it serves to develop religious and spiritual ideals; it is a program that gears up the boy with his home; it is a program adaptable to all boys.

The local council hopes to use the information gained from the questionnaire as a basis for starting several new troops in this territory.

J. B. MARTIN TAKES LOOSE GAME FROM POLISH CITS IN CITY SERIES OPENER

J. B. Martin grabbed the opening game of its three game city series with the Polish Citizens, City league and New London county champs, Sunday afternoon at Martin park by an 11 to 4 count with about 2,000 looking on. Two four-run sprees in the seventh and eighth innings settled it.

Both teams played sloppy ball with the Cits doing the worst work. This, with the wildness of their pitcher, Boots Greene, lost them the game. The Citizens committed six errors behind Boots and most of them were made at critical times. Boots walked six and hit one while fanning seven. The winners chipped in with three errors so that all told there were nine errors.

Lefty Anatol, Providence pitcher, did well enough for the Martinmen although it might have been a different story if Boots had his usual control and had received some decent support. Anatol walked four and struck out one man.

Four Hits For Murphy

The feature hitters were Jimmy Murphy, Martin catcher, with four in five and Bill Gley, J. B.'s leftfielder and Johnny Greene, each with three in four. Tony West provided the feature clout with a three-base drive over the autos in right center on which he was thrown out trying for a homer.

The Cits took a one-run lead right in the first inning on a pass to Leo Jarvis, Cimikoski's hit, Lloyd Jarvis' sacrifice and Murphy's error. This lasted just one inning when, in the second, Gley walked and with two away Carlie Krauss slammed a double over the burlap in left.

J. B. was presented the first two of the gifts runs in the third on errors by Lloyd Jarvis and Finn mingled with hits by Liberty and Murphy and a stolen base. The Cits got one of these back in the fourth on Johnny Greene's hit, his steal and Liberty's bad throw to first on Finn's grounder.

Seventh Settles Contest

It went along at 3-3 until the seventh when the tilt was practically settled with the first of the two big innings. Hits by Dugas, Murphy, Gley, a couple of passes, a sacrifice and an error produced four tallies and then in the eighth came four more on singles by Dugas, Couillard and Gley, Murphy's double over the burlap and three errors.

The Cits counted one each in the eighth and ninth, in the former on a pass to Lloyd Jarvis and West's three-bagger and in the latter on singles by the two Greenes and Leo Jarvis. Smith closed the game with a nice running catch of Cimikoski's drove to deep right.

NOTES OF THE GAME

Carlie Krauss played a nice game at short, handling eight chances without error.

The winner of this series may challenge the Westerly Independents.

The Cits looked like an entirely different club than that which battled the Kaceys so well. It must have been an off-day.

Enos Eccleston, one of the best catchers in the section and who has been incapacitated most of the year with a broken leg, was on the Martin bench. Eccleston was cut down in the midst of one of his best seasons.

Boots started off as if he were out for big things. He fanned Krauss and Normandin, the former on three pitches.

The next baseball is the Dugas day, Saturday at the Providence street grounds.

PUTNAM GRIDSTERS PLAY 6-6 TIE WITH NORTHBRIDGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 28—The 1930 edition of the Putnam high school Noyes-coached gridders received their baptism of fire yesterday afternoon on the new athletic campus when they played the heavy but slow moving gridiron machine of Northbridge, Mass., high school to a 6-6 tie. Although the best the Noyesmen could do was even the count, they outplayed the visiting team in every phase of football all during the game. It was a great day for the locals.

A large crowd of enthusiastic fans who braved the burning hot sun, and remained in the bleachers cheering the Blue and White gridders at every play were delighted with the season opening showing.

The team this year is by no means a blood thirsty band of bone crushers, nor is it a team to be compared to the colorful squad captained by the incomparable Bill Shann, which brought home the eastern Conecticut championship two years ago. But it is a team that is certain to make a name for itself before the sun sets on football on Thanksgiving day. Unusually light and fleet of foot the new Blue and White squad promises many enjoyable contests for the fans.

The climax of yesterday's game came in the remaining minutes of the fourth quarter with the Noyesmen steadily pressing the Northbridge eleven to a few feet of its own goal line. At this critical moment "Ang" Perry, Coach Noyes' new half back find threw a misguided pass which found its way beautifully into the hands of Cutler, aggressive Northbridge back who made his way through the Putnam frontier and led the pack down the field for sixty yards, only to have victory snatched from him by the timely blowing of the referee's whistle. It was real football but it was a sorry moment for the Putnam rooters, as the act virtually cost Putnam the game, for had they continued their line plunging manipulations they undoubtedly would have pushed the submitting Northbridgeites behind the goal posts to ring up their second touchdown of the afternoon.

WINDHAM PLAYS TIE GAME WITH ALUMNI

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 28.—A strong alumni team with "Dud" Burr and Tommy Meikle in the backfield battled with the Windham high school varsity to a scoreless tie in the curtain-raising game of the local football season at Recreation park Saturday afternoon. The grads plunged toward victory in the final period but failed to go through the younger opposition.

Norwich Caddies Lose

Saturday morning the caddy team of the Norwich Golf club played a match with the Willimantic caddy team at Willimantic and were defeated 11 to 7. Jack Skelly carried off the medal honors of the match with a 79, while Stanley Golumb was second with an 83.

ACADEMY WINS OPENER FROM C. TECH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 28.—Norwich Free Academy opened its football season with a 13 to 7 victory over Chapman Tech at Mercer field Saturday afternoon and, by virtue of this being the opening league clash, the Wildcats went to the head of the class. About 800 were present.

The Academy scored touchdowns in the first and last periods, rushing the extra point on the first score, while Chapman Tech counted in the second quarter.

Cotter and Zictorac played a nice game in the Wildcat backfield and Les Crowell, the two ends, Fitzgerald and Sheridan, and Captain Stevens looked good on the line. Freddy Hewitt, halfback, was the only one who could gain for Tech.

Academy Scores Early

The Academy's first score was not waiting long after the opening whistle but the events surrounding it interested the crowd more than did the skillful manner in which Crowell blocked a punt and ran 30 yards for a touchdown.

The funny part of the affair was that the Academy came near being robbed of the score, through a queer ruling by Referee Guyer. Immediately after Crowell had crossed the line, the official called for the ball and instead of placing the pigskin in position for the try for extra point, he brought the ball back to the point where it was blocked and motioned first down for Norwich.

The rule, of course, states that the team not previously in possession of the ball, may recover and advance a blocked kick while the kicking team may not. Norwich was the team not in possession and therefore the score was valid.

The play went on and three scrimmages later Coach Whitney of N. F. A. brought the attention of Mr. Guyer to the rule and he promptly awarded the touchdown and brought the ball up for the extra point try.

Tech then received the kickoff and the game went on as if nothing out of the ordinary had happened, the quarter ending, 7-0.

Hewitt reeled off a beautiful 40-yard run just as this first quarter ended, which placed the ball well in Norwich territory. Tech was penalized 15 yards as the period ended.

Hewitt Scores Touchdown

On the first play of the second stanza, however, a long pass to Hewitt, who ran the remaining few yards, was good for a score. Hewitt's kick for the extra point was wide but the point was awarded on Norwich offside. The play was between the 35-yard lines for the remainder of the half.

The Academy received to start the last half but could not get a scoring march started and it was still 7-all at the end of the session. The Academy recovered a fumble in midfield and brought it up to the 20-yard line or beyond once, but lost ground through a 15-yard penalty. As the teams changed goals, N. F. A. had the ball on Chapman's 18-yard line.

The last quarter had hardly begun before Cotter charged through from the three-yard line for the score, after another first down had been registered. Zictorac tried for the extra point by rushing but was stopped about a yard short.

Game Well-Played

For an opening game, it was well played, and especially by the Academy. Tech's few real gains were on end runs and one or two passes while the Academy had success at the center of the line and some short passes.

RUTH PITCHES YANKEES TO WIN OVER RED SOX

BOSTON, Sept. 28—(AP)—Out at Fenway park today 12,000 fans heard the announcer shout the battery for the New York Yankees, "Ruth and Bengough." The crowd thought they were being kidded. Nine innings later they cheered their heads off for George Herman "Babe" Ruth, the master home run hitter who had returned to the pitcher's box and twirled his mates to a 9 to 3 victory over the Red Sox.

It was the first full game Babe had pitched in nine years, but he had never done better back in the 1916's and 1917's for the old Red Sox before the Yankees took him and he became the greatest long distance hitter the game has ever known.

Dusty Cooke was the hitting star, with a double, a triple, and two singles in five times up. With Ruth pitching the only home run hitting was done by Ben Chapman, who smashed one into the centerfield bleachers in the fourth. The Score:

WHITE SOX DOWN TIGERS IN CLOSING ENCOUNTER

DETROIT, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox defeated Detroit by 10 to 7, in the final game of the season, taking three out of four for the series.

Earl Whitehill left the game after pitching five innings and apparently had earned his 18th victory of the season, with the Tigers leading, 7 to 3. But the Sox found Hogsett and Cantrell easy and came from behind to win.

SENATORS POUND THREE ATHLETIC PITCHERS FOR WIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Washington scored off three of Philadelphia's star pitchers to win its final game of the season today, 9 to 4, thereby gaining the decision over the league leaders for the season, 12 victories to 10.

Six runs off Earnshaw in the fifth inning settled the contest. Walter Johnson's "surprise team," which captured second place in the league, also scored off Walberg and Grove. Foxx connected for a home run in the ninth with one on base. The score:

ATHLETICS HAVE EDGE ON CARDINALS IN MATTER OF PITCHING ABILITY

By BRIAN BELL

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28—(AP)—If the baseball cards can be read aright in advance of a world series, one departure from Connie Mack's strategy of last year is indicated. In 1929 Robert Moses Grove, the Athletics' great left-hander, did not start a game and was not credited with a victory. This year it seems certain that the famous "Lefty" will start one, or more.

In the series with the Cubs, Grove was tossed into the breach twice as a relief pitcher and each time his work could not have been improved upon. He pitched 6 1-3 innings, allowed only three hits and no runs, issued but one base on balls, and forced ten to miss third strikes.

This season Grove, regarded by many Philadelphia fans as the greatest pitcher the game has known, has won 28 games against five defeats. Earnshaw, the A's No. 2 pitcher, has been credited with 22 victories, so between them the two aces have turned in 50 winning games.

The Cardinals have no two pitchers who have won 50 games, but Burleigh Grimes, the wanderer on the face of the baseball earth, and Wild Bill Hallahan with 15 each, have accounted for 30.

In support of the ranking stars the Athletics have Big Bill Shores and Rube Walberg, with 13 victories each, Young Mahaffey with nine and Eddie Rommell and Jack Quinn, each credited with eight.

Only slightly behind the leaders on the Cardinals staff are Sylvester Johnson, who has won 13 games, Jess Haines with 12 and Flint Rhem 11, eight of them in succession. Jim Lindsey, Herman Bell and Al Grabowski, capable relief pitchers, have won 17 games between them.

Connie Mack takes no one into his confidence, but the clockers on the fence around the track have decided that Grove will pitch the first game for the Athletics and Earnshaw the second. A day of traveling will make it possible for this lineup to be repeated in St. Louis but if wise old Connie does not care to put the full pitching burden on his two stars, Shores, Rommel and Mahaffey are regarded as possible nominees, with Rube Walberg and old Jack Quinn as the reserve forces.

Followers of the St. Louis play are divided in their opinion as to Manager Gabby Street's pitching selection. Some think he will call on Grimes, the veteran with the superlative pitching heart, to assume the first responsibility. Others incline to the thought that the "sergeant" may elect to match speed with speed and toss Hallahan, with his left-handed fire ball, in against Grove's almost matchless fast ones at the outset. They're both strikeout wizards. Grove has 192 and Hallahan 174.

Rhem's style of pitching is similar to that which has caused the A's some trouble during the American league season, and either Haines or Johnson, or both, may be called on to start a game. Lindsey, Bell and Grabowski will do a great deal of warming up.

In the catching position, the Athletics have a great advantage. Gordon (Mickey) Cochrane stands out as the greatest catcher in either league. With a batting average of .361 and a record of .400 hitting in the last series, he has everything a ball player needs.

Jimmy Wilson, the St. Louis first string catcher, suffered a sprained ankle in the Cardinals' last series with the Giants at the Polo grounds, but he will be able to play. Gus Mancuso, his younger understudy, did well during the enforced absence of the star and probably will appear in some of the games. Mancuso has outhit Wilson during the season .379 to .318, but Wilson's experience will be used if he is physically fit.

The rival pitching records:

FITCH SPRINGS SURPRISE BY TROUNCING KILLINGLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

GROTON, Sept. 28.—Robert Fitch high school sprang a surprise here Saturday afternoon when they handed the Killingly high team a 12 to 0 defeat. Killingly came to Groton expecting to meet a green team, but instead encountered a team that fought them to a standstill in almost every period.

Dunn Suffers Injured Shoulder

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 28—(AP)—Kemp Dunn, Yale right halfback, athletic officials announced tonight, will be lost to the football team for at least a week because of a shoulder injury suffered in yesterday's game with Maine and will probably not be able to play in Saturday's game against Maryland.

He received the injury while plunging over the line for Yale's fourth touchdown in the last quarter.

THURSTON HURLS BRILLIANTLY IN LAST GAME OF SEASON

BROOKLYN, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Hollis Thurston had a great day here this afternoon as Brooklyn and Boston wound up the National league season here. His pitching held the Braves safe with eight hits and his hitting was the big gun of the Brooklyn attack, which netted a 6 to 3 victory.

CUBS TAKE SLUGGING MATCH FROM THE LOWLY REDS

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The Cubs closed their unhappy National league season today by outlasting Cincinnati to win by 13 to 11, and complete a sweep of the four-game series.

While the revenge came too late, the Cubs finally cracked the Red jinx that had much to do with beating them out of the pennant. Today's victory was not accomplished without a great struggle. The Reds jumped onto Guy Bush for nine runs in the second inning, but the Cubs pecked away at Si Johnson until they chased him in the sixth and finally wound up on Bennie Frey for five runs and victory in the eighth.

WEISGRABER GETS FRESHMAN RECORD FOR MILE AT W-M

Word has come back from William and Mary college, Williamsburg, Va., that Harold Butsy Weisgraber, former Academy baseball and track star, has broken the freshman record for the mile run there. He negotiated the distance in 4:40. Shortly after this, however, he injured his leg and this may keep him inactive for some time.

Butsy was one of the leading players the past two seasons on the Red and White nine and previous to that had been on the track squad.

From another college there is the information that Chester Chet Berghinzo, last year's football captain at N. F. A. and also a member of the baseball and basketball teams while at school, has been placed at end on Team B at Providence college. This is the varsity as there is no freshman rule at this school.

DUGAS ENDS BIG LEAGUE SEASON WITH .290 AVERAGE

Lefty Dugas, local boy for whom a "welcome home" party is planned for next Saturday, wound up the big league season with the Pittsburgh Pirates with a batting average of .290. Lefty was with the Pirates during the last two weeks of the playing season and performed in nine games. He came to bat 31 times and made nine hits, an average of one hit per game. Two of his nine hits were doubles while the remainder were singles.

The plans for the "welcome home" celebration are going ahead rapidly with the prospect that it will be a banner day for the village. The merchants, various societies and townspeople are cooperating to make this day one of the big events in the history of Taftville. In the afternoon there is to be a ball game between the Shyma club and Jim Troland's All-Stars in which will appear Lefty and several of his team mates as well as a number of other big league players whose homes are in the east. Following the game there will be a banquet in Lefty's honor. To start the festivities there will be a parade in which practically every organization in the village will take part.

ASHLAND WINS TOWN SERIES FROM H. N. S.

For the second time, on Sunday the Ashland baseball team took the H. N. S. into camp at Ashland park by the score of 10-5. The result was never in doubt after the first inning, when Ashland, on five hits and a pass, scored four runs. They added one in the third, two in the seventh and climaxed their scoring with a three-run splurge in the eighth.

The H. N. S. confined their scoring to every three innings, scoring one in the third, one in the sixth and three in the ninth.

The fielding feature of the game was furnished by F. Lefty when he speared a ball near the garages in deep left while on a dead run. The ball, hit by Bernal of the H. N. S., was labeled for at least a triple had it got by Lefty. F. Lefty deserves special mention as he is but a kid and with proper handling should go far in baseball.

MONTVILLE BREAKS EVEN WITH RAYMOND'S ALL-STARS

Raymond's Taftville All-Stars defeated the Montville Independents Saturday afternoon at the Providence street grounds by a score of 5 to 2, which was a slowly played game, both teams lacking their usual pep. The pitchers did wonderful work on the mound. Raymond for the All-Stars struck out ten men and allowed seven hits, while Shahan of the Indies fanned five men and the winners touched him for eight hits, two of them being three-baggers, which were contributed by Wilk and Burelle.

The Independents defeated the Raymond Taftville All-Stars Sunday afternoon at the Gair diamond at Uncasville by a score of 9 to 5, and splitting the week-end bill, both teams winning one each. Mickey Breen of the Indies led both teams in hitting and fielding by collecting three hits out of three times at bat and making two putouts and three assists without an error. Ulewicz led the All-Stars by collecting two hits out of four trips to the plate. The scores:

PLAINFIELD WINS THIRD GAME OF SERIES WITH MOOSUP

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Sept. 28.—Plainfield defeated Moosup this afternoon by the score of 3 to 2, rallying with two runs in the ninth inning. Eno, pitching for Moosup, and Marriott hooked up in one of the best pitching duels seen here in some time. Moosup opened the scoring in the second inning on two errors and a base hit by Couture. Plainfield came right back in their half and counted once and it remained that way until the ninth inning when Eno weakened walking Cotnoir. Ouillet beating out a bunt, both advancing on a wild pitch and scoring on Beausoleil's single over second.

Much credit is due to Eno, who fanned six. The five-game series now stands two and two. The deciding game will be played in Moosup next Sunday.

BIG THRILLS OF WORLD SERIES

BY BRIAN BELL

Associated Press Sports Writer

No. 5—A "Roman Holiday"

Few world's series have developed more excitement than that of 1920, when Cleveland won from Brooklyn, five games to two.

The series brought an unassisted triple play, a home run with the bases full, some terrific hitting and little scoring and some "hard luck" pitching.

The series came after exciting pennant races. Brooklyn was in and out of first place, but never very far from the lead. but in the American league Cleveland had to fight to the last minute.

The Indians' crack shortstop, Ray Chapman, died August 17 as a result of being hit on the head by a pitched ball the day before. At the time, Tris Speaker's team was half a game ahead of Chicago and a game and a half ahead of New York.

Cleveland went into a slump and a week after the death of Chapman Chicago led by two full games and the Indians were only a game ahead of New York in third place.

Joe Sewell, young college shortstop playing his first year in professional ball with the New Orleans club, was hurriedly recruited to play shortstop and by the first of September, Cleveland had fought its way back to first place.

Still the Redskins were not conceded much chance to beat the strong Brooklyn team with a corps of great pitchers. Cleveland lost two of the first three games played in Brooklyn and as they were about to be counted out, the fortunes of baseball war changed. They went home to win four straight games and the world championship.

Bill Wambsganss, second baseman for Cleveland, made his famous triple play in the fifth inning of the fifth game. Kilduff opened with a single and Miller followed suit. Mitchell batted a liner to right and "Wamby," catching the ball with one hand, touched second base and then tagged Miller, retiring the side on a single play.

In the first inning Elmer Smith had sent the Indians away to a four-run lead by driving one of the balls pitched by Burleigh Grimes over the right field screen with the bases filled. In the fourth inning Jim Bagby, Cleveland pitcher, hit a home run with two of his mates on the bases.

The score in this game was 8 to 1 and it showed again that the payoff is on runs and not hits. Brooklyn made 13 hits from Bagby's delivery, but scored only one run; Cleveland made 12 hits and eight runs.

Wambsganss not only retired Brooklyn single-handedly on one play, but he went through the series without an error.

Sherry Smith, Brooklyn's crack left-hander with one of the most deceptive moves to first base the game has ever known, pitched two great games in the series, but won only one. He won one 2 to 1 and lost the other 1 to 0, allowing two runs in two games and getting only an even break.

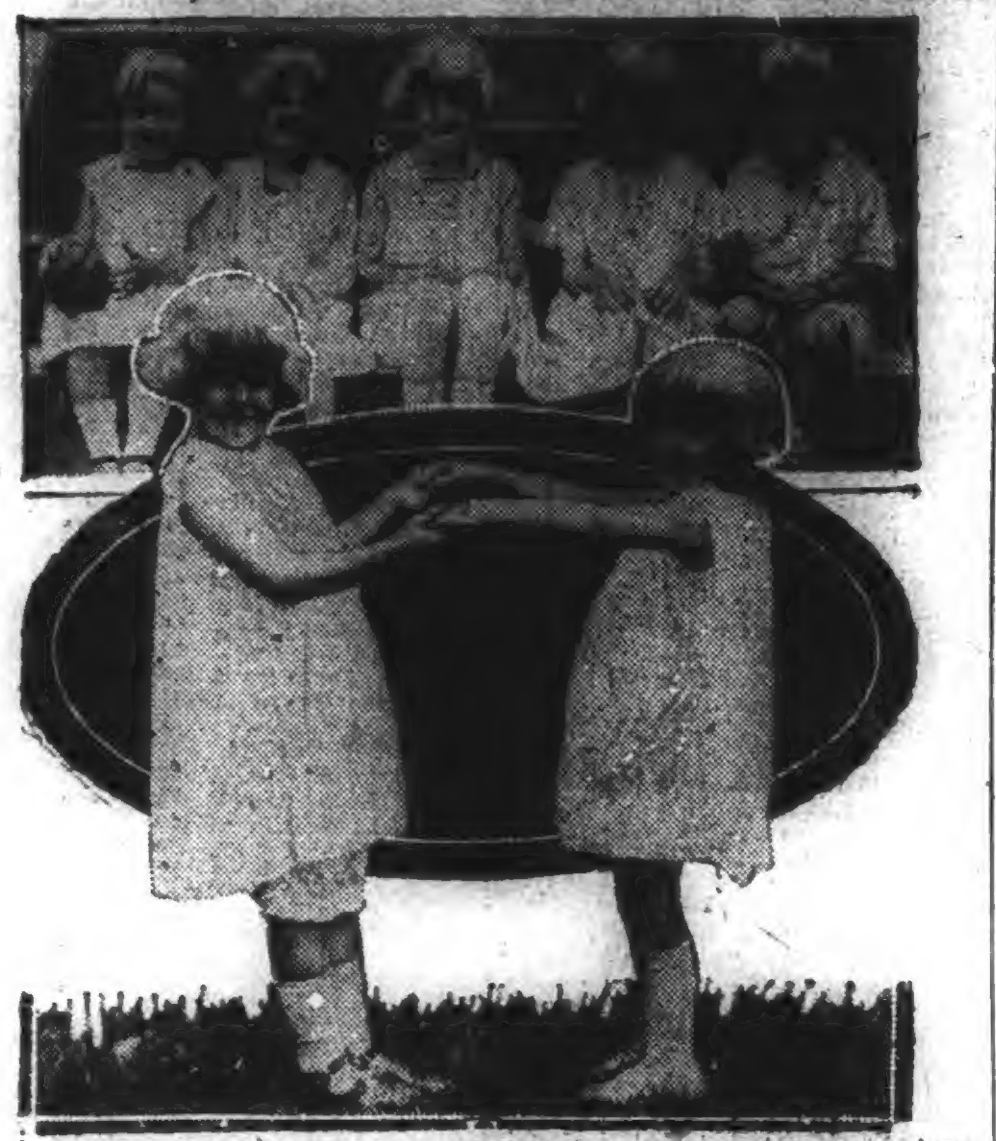
HOOVER TO AID CHILD WELFARE; 2,000 WORKERS MEET IN NOV.



How best to care for orphaned children, such as the tots pictured above, will be considered at the White House conference on child health November 19 to 22.

WASHINGTON Sept. 28—(AP)—Child welfare problems are getting personal attention from the nation's chief executive these days.

For President Hoover is inspecting preliminary reports coming in for his white house conference on child health and protection.

There will be 144 of them to be read, in condensed form, before the conference of 2,000 child welfare workers who will assemble here November 19 to 22.

As fast as the important-looking documents arrive—some are 300 pages long—they are sent to the white house.

These reports represent the work of a year of various committees. They cover every conceivable subject dealing with child betterment.

Into them the most eminent doctors, social workers and educators have put their recommendations.

The lone little orphan who knows but the cold comfort of institutional halls will be one of the outstanding figures at the conference. How to get him into the warmth and glow of a real home will be among the problems confronting the conference.

Real homes where the adopters need the children as much as the children need them is said to be the president's air. Memories of his own boyhood, the humble but happy little Quaker home which was swept from him when his parents died, have made the president keenly alive to the orphan problem.

Curled under a patchwork quilt he listened contentedly to rain on the roof, its rhythmic drip from the corn stalks and elderberry bushes close by.

Then home, with all its familiar ways, disappeared. He was an orphan at ten, living first with one relative, then another.

While institutions still are needed as temporary shelter, social workers feel that the real home is the solution to the orphan problem. President Roosevelt's child health conference in 1909 pointed to this as the ideal solution.

Baked Stuffed Potatoes

Three large baked potatoes, 1 egg yolk, 2 tablespoons hot milk, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 1 egg white, beaten, 1 tablespoon butter.

Cut potatoes in halves lengthwise. Remove and mash pulp. Mix egg yolk, milk, salt and paprika with potato pulp. Beat 2 minutes. Fold in egg white. Lightly fill tomato cases. Dot tops with butter. Place on shallow pan and bake 15 minutes in moderate oven.

Pecan Cookies

Two-third cup butter, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 3 eggs, 4 tablespoons cream, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 1-4 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 cup broken pecans, 1 egg white, beaten, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon.

Cream butter until soft. Add 1 1-2 cups of sugar and beat well. Add eggs, cream, vanilla and salt. Beat 1 minute. Add flour, baking powder and pecans. Drop portions of this soft dough from end of spoon on to greased baking sheets. Flatten well. Mix egg white, 3 tablespoons of sugar and cinnamon. Spread on cookies. Bake 12 minutes in moderate oven.

OFF COLOR SHADES CERTAIN TO BE SMART

PARIS, Sept. 28—(AP)—Stylemakers here have made it impossible to say any longer that black is black and white is white.

Black is newest and smartest when it is just off black by a shade or two on the brown, purple or green tinge. Ink black, with some bronze in it, is very new.

White, dominant in the evening, is just a manner of speaking these days, for white is nearly always off-white, cream, peach, oyster or an opalescent shade nearer mauve than anything else.

So pale are the shadings that Paris lumps them all as white, though none actually is.

Even ermine, the standard of whiteness dating from royal heydays no longer is white in its modern guise.

Paris infinitely prefers its ermine dyed a faint pearl gray for afternoon. Whole coats are made of this gorgeous fur for formal daytime wear.

There are no rules for the combination of black and white for autumn.

Black wraps go with black dresses and white with white, but many of the black wraps have white collars and not a little dark sable appears on white evening coats

PERFUMES SIMPLIFIED BY FUSSIER CLOTHES

PARIS, Sept. 28—(AP)—French perfumes have diminished in horsepower since fashions went frou-frou meaning fussy.

One little drop of lily of the valley or a soupcon of jasmin can do today what a mixture of mighty scents accomplished in the late lamented era of simplicity and sports loving boyishness.

Scents are simpler now, but clothes are complicated since dressmakers discovered that all the scents of Araby could not supply appeal to women who wore the wrong clothes.

Debs May Copy Grandma's Graces

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(AP)—Following grandmother's graces, the debutante may wear a bonnet when she goes dancing informally this winter. The 1930 bonnets are close-fitting little affairs of velvet, sometimes designed of three harmonious colors, worn well back from the face and finished at the back with a chou (double frill of velvet)

Dust Ruffles Return

PARIS, Sept. 28—(AP)—The equivalent of dust ruffles is incorporated in tomorrow's styles showing today in the form of horsehair braid or folds of stiff tulle on the bottom of some dance skirts.

The modern dust ruffle is usually decorative, contrasting with the dress itself and forming an integral part of the trimming scheme.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A marshmallow dropped into a cup of hot cocoa just before serving makes a delicious hot drink.

Apply liquid court plaster to a scratch on kid pumps and it will mend the scratch so that it is hardly visible.

If a small bit of wood has been chipped off a piece of furniture, it can be replaced by using the white of an egg.

A worn whisk-broom, trimmed down to its stiffest part, makes a very good scrubbing brush for the sink.

An omelet in which six eggs are used will be much lighter if three-fourths of a teaspoon of cream of tartar is used in preparing it.

The backs of otherwise worn shirts can be made into neat little aprons if the straps over the shoulders are made of contrasting materials.

To prevent filling from soaking into pie crust, dust the bottom crust with a mixture of flour and sugar before adding fruit or the filling.

Try pouring maple sirup on grapefruit to sweeten it. Or use it to sweeten apple pies for a change instead of sugar. It gives a delicious flavor.

At the point where a leak in the gas pipe is suspected, apply a paste of soap and water. If there is a leak, bubbles will appear. Never use matches or a flame in looking for a gas leak.

When making cake, if you choose to use cream of tartar instead of baking powder, use half as much cream of tartar as baking powder and half as much soda as cream of tartar.

New shoes are sometimes difficult to polish. To make them shine easily, brush off all dirt and rub them with lemon juice. Let this dry in, then blacken and polish them in the usual way, and they will shine beautifully.

When tablecloths begin to wear along the creases where they are always folded, cut about an inch from one side and end. This will cause the creases to appear in different places and the tablecloths will last much longer.

Melba toast is made by cutting white bread as thin as possible, then placing slices in a shallow pan so that they will not touch and baking them in a slow oven until well browned.

COLORED GLASS.

Even the humble percolator top may now match the rest of the table ware, for it is possible to purchase tops in different colored glass.

CHILDREN'S SANDWICHES.

When making sandwiches for a children's party, try making faces on the top of them. You can use sliced olives, pimento, cherries, cream cheese or many other edible things to outline nose, eyes and big, smiling mouth.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A few drops of glycerine in a glass of cold water will stop hiccoughs.

Don't confine your deep breathing to the morning and evening exercises. While you walk take a long steady breath until the chest is quite full.

When a child sleeps with his mouth open there is some obstruction in the air passages, perhaps adenoids. Have him examined by your doctor. Breathing through the mouth makes the mouth dry and parched and affects the general health.

Massage from the base of the neck upward toward the chin and outward toward the ears with a good skin food for a couple of minutes. Wipe off the cream and go over the throat with ice, which is an excellent astringent and will prevent wattles from forming under the chin.

POLKA DOTS.

DAINTY TRAY TEMPTS APPETITES.

When you treat your guests to the luxury of breakfast in bed make the tray as attractive and dainty as if you were trying to tempt the appetite of an invalid. Spread a fresh napkin over the bottom of the tray and see to it that the china, glass and silverware are sparkling with cleanliness.

Coffee, cereal and other hot dishes should be tightly covered so that the food will remain hot for as long a time as possible. The breakfast will be more enjoyable to your guest and less trouble to you if you check each item carefully to make sure that everything is complete before sending in the tray.

TO MAKE PRINTS LOOK ANTIQUE

Since old prints of flowers, birds and personages are now so popular for framing, it is also worth while to take suitable modern pictures or prints, perhaps from magazines, and antique them with a light coating of liquid wax. This treatment will give them a mellow, old tone and will preserve them. The pictures should be pinned firmly to a flat surface before the wax is applied. Simply framed, they will look charming on the walls of a room.

FOR CHILDREN'S ROOMS

One of the most appealing color schemes for the furnishings of a child's room is red, white and blue. Not only will it have a patriotic appeal which children will enjoy, but the room will be unusually fresh looking and attractive. The use of two primary colors is very suitable for a child's bedroom or playroom. Curtains might be red and white checked gingham or a crisp blue linen, the bedspread and rugs in either color and the furniture prettily painted.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Nightgowns with even hemlines are growing in importance.

Dark browns, especially those with a mauvish cast, are scheduled for fall.

Double sleeves and bracelet cuffs are among the outstanding coat features.

Fur trimmings are expected to be very important next season, many dresses having fur at neckline and on the sleeve, well above the wrist.

Designers appear to be concentrating on coat backs this season, employing yokes, capes, boleros and intricate seamings for their embellishment.

Lace trimmed slippers are being shown to conform to the demand for lace trimmed negligees, among which may be mentioned lace trimmed pajamas.

TWO-PIECE FROCKS FOR OLDER WOMEN

A strong effort is being made to revive the two-piece dress in sportswear and give it a new individuality that will appear just as much in the capacity of a high style feature as one that the more mature woman claims such a "practical, becoming little frock."

FABRIC FLOWERS IN COLOR SCHEME

FOR THE STREET

A costume that is suitable for the hot days, and yet retains its smartness, is indeed a find. A charming one seen recently was made of imported necktie silk with a small and rather vague pattern. It consisted of frock and short coat and was ideal for city wear.

ARMHOLE ELIMINATION

Raglan sleeves are featured in many of the sports coats for autumn. Invisible checks and plaids make some of the deep pile coats very rich and pretty.

BLACK GLOVES SMART

Black gloves will be smart, and suede a little smarter than kid. As part of an ensemble of black accessories—suede shoes, antelope bag, felt hat—black suede gloves are effective.

LAUNDRY HINTS

If ink is spilled on a linen tablecloth hold the spot in boiling milk at once, and the stain will disappear.

If you are so unfortunate as to have your clothing come into contact with sticky fly paper, use benzine to remove the stains.

White furs may be cleaned by rubbing in with a piece of coarse flannel a dry mixture of two cups each of flour and bran and a quarter cup of fuller's earth

Delicate colors in wash materials will not fade if they are soaked in lukewarm water to which a few drops of turpentine have been added before they are put into the sudsy water for laundering.

WASHING WALLS AND WOODWORK

For painted walls which are not badly soiled, use a fine white soap dissolved in water. For very soiled walls, like those in the kitchen, use a solution of dissolved washing soda—about a cup to a gallon of water—and then use a rinse solution of clear warm water. Rubber gloves will save the hands, and a sponge will make the first process easy; then soft cloths (worn bath towels are good), or soft spongy cloths will rinse and wipe. Try not to spill or drop any water; paper will save the floor. When woodwork and wall paper are side by side, hold a heavy piece of paper over the wall paper as the woodwork is wiped. If doorknobs or light sockets need polishing, you should protect adjacent paper or paint with heavy cardboad. Don't use newspapers, because the ink will smear.

WAX YOUR CURTAIN RODS AND POLES

A Chicago architect uses a light coating of wax on all the curtain rods and poles in the homes which he builds, as the wax causes the drapery rings to slide with extraordinary ease. Any housewife may profit by this suggestion and wax her drapery rods both metal and wood, with a little floor wax. Her window and door hangings will then draw more smoothly and quickly than if the rods were left unwaxed.

CLEANING RUGS

Badly soiled rugs can be cleaned and improved by using cornmeal and gasoline. The gasoline is added to cornmeal until a wet mixture is obtained. A flat-top brush is dipped in this mixture and applied to the entire surface of the rug, says Successful Farming.

EVERGREENS

There is no better time to buy evergreens for the home grounds than right now, for they have about finished their season's growth and will suffer little by being moved. Some of the common kinds are just as beautiful as foreign sorts that cost much more, and it is not wise to have many varieties planted together. The great value of evergreens lies in the fact that they are handsome all the year round.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Earning Money

All children love to have money to spend, and, although some of it should come to them in the form of an allowance, they should be given opportunities of earning extra money.

Billy, aged six, inspired by the enterprise of his older brother, who, during the summer had a newspaper route, devised all sorts of ways of earning money at home. He brought the milk bottles in off the porch, watered the lawn and delivered the evening newspaper. He raked up the leaves in the garden and carried trash to the incinerator. He did a dozen little chores that were not usually required of him and he did them faithfully and well.

There are many benefits that come to a child who is permitted to earn money.

Billy, for instance, experienced a real feeling of success and importance in the fact that he, like his father and his big brother, could earn money. He, who had thoughtlessly spent an allowance, learned quickly to think twice about spending money which his own efforts had acquired. It taught him, as nothing else could have, something of the effort required to produce the things which he enjoyed so freely. It taught him properly to value them.

Children should be given ample opportunities to earn money at home. They should be paid for any task which is not ordinarily required of them as a part of their usual routine. They should even be allowed to take on a paid outside job as long as it does not interfere with their health or proper work and play. They should be encouraged to capitalize any interest or hobby which they can organize for profit.

WIVES OF PRESIDENTS SELDOM RETURN TO WASHINGTON LIFE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—Reading that Mrs. Roosevelt, widow of the late president, is in Porto Rico, visiting her son, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, governor of the islands, reminds me how seldom it is that the wife, or the widow of a president of the United States comes back to the scenes of her triumph as first lady of the land.

Mrs. Roosevelt is an ardent traveler, but I do not recall she has been here in recent years.

Mrs. Cleveland, now Mrs. Preston, can scarcely be remembered here, except by those who personally knew her when she presided over the white house years and years ago. She was an ideal "president's wife." Her girlish cordiality and personal charm more than made up for the lack of social experience and training.

Mrs. Taft lived here as the wife of the chief justice, so her affiliations with Washington social life were never broken. Mrs. Wilson likewise continued to live here, but she was a resident of the city long before she and President Wilson met. Yet she does not mingle in the official set. She is never seen at white house affairs, as Mrs. Taft was often seen, and I doubt if she is known "by sight" to more than a handful of Washingtonians, except may be her actual neighbors, up in the residential sections where she has a fine home. Then there is Mrs. Coolidge. She has never returned to the city which she left two years or so ago, the best loved and most admired "wife of a president" the capital has ever known. Yet she doesn't come back. And so it runs. Whether it is a well established custom, or merely personal preference, every one must decide for themselves. W know it a fact, but nobody ever tells their reason for not coming.

White House Entertaining

And speaking of Washington life in high official circle, it is interesting to note that a feature of recent years is to whittle down the lavish expenditures; to cut out dinners of many courses; to employ caterers for such affairs. And also to lessen the burden of official calls and at home days open to the public.

Nowadays, and in fact it started during the Coolidge administration, the white house chef attends to the most formal of dinners, while not many years ago caterers were called in to help out. At garden parties the most simple of refreshments are served under the shelter of great gay colored tents. Formerly at white house receptions, I think up to well on in the Wilson administration, or just as it begun, the evening affairs were most like glorified free lunch counters, or self service places. I recall seeing ladies in glittering gowns and sparkling jewels, and men belted and swathed in gorgeous foreign diplomatic uniforms, gold lace and tassels of our own army and navy officers, elbow their way, none too gently, to reach the long table in the state dining room, behind which stood a corps of colored waiters, serving what might be called a "royal hand-out." And many a pretty gown of beautiful lace, or satin, went home bespatted with salads, oysters, ice cream and splashed with drops of the sparkling drinks served from the great cut glass bowls. But now one doesn't find even a decanter of ice water and not a speck of food is in sight. Apparently the new day has gained favor.

And at afternoon affairs only tiny sandwiches, not bigger than the tip of your thumb, and little frosted cakes so small you can pop one whole into your mouth, almost without knowing it, are the only things that are served with tea and coffee.

Senator and Mrs. Bingham have a great advantage in their knowledge of foreign languages. It is notable when they converse with members of the diplomatic set and occasionally the senator is utilized as interpreter, or to welcome visitors from France, Spain or other countries with whose language he is familiar.

It serves Washington official people in good stead to be able to meet visitors from other countries on their own linguistic footing.

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers of the Fifth Massachusetts district is another New Englander whose speaking knowledge of French is excellent. Mrs. Rogers having spent much time in France studying when a girl. Mrs. Edge, wife of former Senator Edge, and now ambassador to France, has also a fine knowledge of French, which she is using to advantage as the wife of the ambassador.

ONE'S OWN ROOM SHOULD BE INDIVIDUAL

By ELSIE DREW KENNEDY

Every girl longs for the time when she will have a room of her own. And when she does have that room, she should make the most of it.

Virginia Woolf has written a popular essay entitled "A Room of One's Own," in which she expatiates on the peace, security and inspiration found in some little corner—any little corner you can call your own.

So it is with your own room. It should be yours in every sense—furnished with whatever makes you most comfortable, warm with those colors you most enjoy. In other words, your room should express your personality.

And by planning your room's decorations with this thought in mind, you achieve the happiest possible effect. If you put in a room the colors you like best, the furniture that makes you most comfortable, the books and pictures you love more than any—what is the result? You have a room in which you feel perfectly at home—in which you are most completely yourself. You will be happier in that room than anywhere else.

The room should be built around the window—an idea that's practical from the standpoint of light and air, and charming on an artistic basis. Placing the bed between the window and the wall assures fresh air without a draft. And the reading lamp on the table beside the bed allows you to finish that book before going to sleep.

On the other side of the window the dressing table is strategically placed to have full benefit of daylight—and that's important for the proper rouging. It's most convenient, also, to have the chest of drawers (which will be bulging with your underthings and stockings) set next to the dressing table.

Of course you'll want an easy chair, forming a nice group with tilt-top table and a reading lamp—and another comfortable chair will complete your list of furniture. As to your color scheme—it's always wise to keep your floor dark then it's inconspicuous and plays up the rest of the room. Then you might try cream walls, maple furniture, green marquisette curtains, cream bedspread, green easy chair, and a two-toned green rug to hold your color scheme together.

STENOG BORROWS TO BUY PART OF INSURANCE FIRM

EL DORADO, Ark., Sept. 28—(AP)—Miss Alice Ruth Wilson is part owner of an insurance business which she began as a stenographer because she borrowed money at the right moment.

When an opportunity came to purchase a half interest in the business she borrowed several thousand dollars. She kept steadily at work pounding keys for the next two years and paid the sum back.

Now she is senior member of the firm, which carries an approximate volume of $125,000 in premiums annually.

WOMEN'S CLUBS IN U. S. SURPRISE GERMANS ON TOUR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(AP)—Women's clubs of this country are of special interest to seven German women who are making their first tour of America.

These fraus and frauleins are red-cheeked, eagerly curious and smartly gowned. Most of them speak some English. They will go as far west as Chicago.

In Germany there are only 18 women's clubs and they are purely social. The imposing programs, conventions and various projects sponsored by American women strike the German visitors as most unusual.

"Yet women turn out at the polls in Germany better than they do here," said Frau Goni Cahan, of Cologne. "We have had as high as 90 women representing us in the reichstag, which is equivalent to your congress. There are at present about 60."

A MODERATE IMPROVEMENT NOTED IN THE BUSINESS WORLD LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.— (AP) — Changes in the business map from week to week are small, but on the whole these seem to have been a fair extension of seasonal improvement in the past six or seven days. The horizon has doubtless been clouded by the weakness of the stock market, which continues to express in minus signs its impatience at the failure of a real trade boom to develop.

As the season swings into fall, however, moderate advances are being reported in the business of wholesalers and retailers. Warm weather has halted the demand in some localities, but the inevitable approach of cool autumn keeps optimism stirring, especially in the dry goods trade.

The sagging tendencies displayed by the farm commodities and copper lead to the belief that the index for the month may show a decline, which would be disappointing, since it had been earnestly hoped that stabilization was being realized. On the other hand, there is continued evidence of increasingly firm prices of numerous steel items, notably structural shapes, bars and black sheets.

Steel production managed to show an increase in the last week for which figures were available, but the fact that the automobile makers and the railroads were still largely out of the market tended to discount the importance of the gain in ingot production.

Seasonal gains are being made in the textile field and prices are steadying here and there. Residential construction maintains a fair improvement, especially in New England and Greater New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.— (AP) — Awards of new municipal bond issues scheduled for this week total $12,417,503, as compared with offerings totaling $16,347,307 last week. Four issues of $1,000,000 or more are scheduled for award, including $2,040,000 in Syracuse, N. Y., improvement bonds; $1,531,000 Cuyahoga county, Ohio, water supply and sewage bonds; $1,460,000 Elizabeth, N. J., 4 1-4 per cent bonds, and $1,000,000 Seattle bonds.

Seasonal upturns in some branches of business activity have been noted during the last few weeks, the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York says in its current issue of The Guaranty Survey. In most cases, the review states, these represent somewhat a belated start, since the beginning of the autumn review is usually witnessed in August. The upward trend is scarcely visible in reports for August, most of which show further declines.

New bond offerings scheduled for tomorrow include $1,900,000 City of Bergen, Norway, 19-year 5 per cent bonds; $3,600,000 City of Winnipeg 4 1-2 per cent sinking fund non-callable bonds maturing from 1937 to 1960; $1,441,000 Town of Montclair, N. J., 4 per cent and 4 1-4 per cent bonds due serially Oct. 15, 1931, to Oct. 15, 1968; and $1,440,000 City of Camden, N. J., 4 1-4 per cent gold bonds, due July 1, 1942, to 1969.

WESTERLY

CARBON MONOXIDE FOUND IN BLOOD OF MRS. STEDMAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Sept. 28—Eighty per cent carbon monoxide was found in the blood of Mrs. Alice E. Stedman, whose body was found on the floor of her bathroom in the second floor apartment at 87 Main street last Monday night as revealed in a partial report received by Westerly Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon from labortary tests made at Providence following the Westerly autopsy.

Medical Examiner Scanlon said that tests were also made at the chemical laboratory of Brown university and they showed that the blood was two-thirds saturated with the same poisonous gas. Dr. Scanlon said that the tests show that there is no question but the death of Mrs. Stedman was due to inhalation of illuminating gas, but this does not solve the mysterious part of the woman's death. The authorities are trying to solve who turned on the gas and who turned it off. Thus far, the police say, no one has admitted turning off the gas.

Dr. Scanlon maintained from the beginning that Mrs. Stedman's death was due to inhaling gas, and the laboratory tests confirm his finding.

The various organs, which were removed from the body of Mrs. Stedman when an autopsy was performed at The Westerly hospital, will undergo a chemical analysis to ascertain if there is any poison. Dr. Scanlon stated it will probably be three weeks before a report is made on this analysis.

Medical Examiner Scanlon stated that he will make the return of the death certificate to the undertaker some time today and it will read: "Inhalation of illuminating gas, Not self-administered."

Joseph Stedman, husband of the deceased, and Mrs. Evelyn Main, held since Monday night following the mysterious death of Mrs. Stedman, were removed from the Westerly police headquarters to the Washington county jail at Kingston on Saturday afternoon when Mr. Stedman's attorney said he would be unable to raise the required $5,000 bail each as material witnesses. The pair are being held under the authority of a law rarely invoked. Both are held as coroner's witnesses and the papers call for their appearance in the third district court in Westerly, on October 17. Stedman was committed to the county jail by Officer Robert Kessel and Mrs. Main was accompanied by Constable Marlette Brown, matron, and Lt. George Champlin.

Up to the present time but two persons have been examined by Coroner John Ferguson, who commenced the inquest the day after the body of Mrs. Stedman was found lying in the bathroom of her home. It is expected it will be another week at least before Coroner Ferguson has completed his inquest.

The funeral of Mrs. Stedman was delayed an hour last Friday afternoon following the receipt of a telegram, in which Mrs. Stedman's brother wired that he would arrive in Westerly on the 3:00 p. m. train to attend the funeral.

In keeping with the vote passed at the annual meeting of the Westerly fire district, held in the Westerly town hall, Wednesday evening, Aug. 27th last, the membership of a committee of seven members and voters of the Westerly fire district has now been named by Fire District Moderator Lewis Stanton. The committee is made up of the heads and representatives of the three fire companies of the Westerly fire department, the chief engineer, a tax assessor, the collector and treasurer, all of the Westerly fire district and a qualified elector who, as chairman of "a committee on lower insurance rates," was most urgent at the district meeting in seeking to re-organize the Westerly fire department.

When changes in the business organization of the Westerly fire district were brought before the meeting by George B. Utter, he declared that the recommendations of the board of fire insurance underwriters were on file in the office of the Westerly town clerk. This method of bringing the matter before the district aroused the opposition of George A. Dolan, John J. Dunn and others who asked what the authority of the committee was and the reason for the Westerly fire district being ignored in the matter. At the time Mr. Utter said that authority was voted his committee by the Westerly town council and the board of selectmen of Stonington.

The committee as named consists of:

Maurice L. Laing, foreman, Rhode Island Steam Fire Engine Co., No. 1, Earl F. Wills, foreman, Cyclone Steam Fire Engine Co., No 2. Daniel S. Harrington, first assistant foreman, Alert Hook and Ladder Co. Robert J. Bonner, chief engineer of the Westerly fire district. Walter C. Hiscox, tax assessor, Westerly fire district. Col. Everett E. Whipple, treasurer and collector, Westerly fire district, George B. Utter.

The committee, when it meets and organizes, will act on the following fire district vote, as offered by Attorney John J. Dunn, and passed by the meeting:

That a committee of seven members be appointed by the moderator to make investigation into the advisability of establishing in this district a paid regularly employed quota of firemen for each of the three volunteer companies; to investigate into the advisability of changing the method of election of the chief and board of engineers; to investigate as to the probable reduction on insurance rates for protection against damage by fire within the district both with respect to residence and business structures, in consequence of such change; to investigate as to probable change of tax rate in consequence of having a paid department; to investigate as to the probable effect on the moral of the volunteer department of a part paid department and to investigate as to the need of additional apparatus for the department. Three of the members of said committee shall be members of the present volunteer department, one of said members shall be appointed from the board of fire engineers, and the balance of said membership shall be appointed from the membership at large of this fire district, and the sum of $300 or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby appropriated for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the members of said committee in carrying on the investigations herein provided for. Said committee shall report not later than the fourth Wednesday of January, A. D., 1931, and shall deposit its report with the clerk of this district who shall forthwith upon receipt of said report issue his call for a special meeting of this district to take action on such report. All members of said committee to be taxpayers of said district.

Harry R. Milner, chairman of the municipal improvement committee of the Westerly chamber of commerce, late Saturday night, received a reply from the federal government at Washington to the matter of the posted condition of the Pawcatuck river bridge at Broad street, which had been referred to the U. S. authorities, inasmuch as the bridge was a connecting link on federal aid road U. S. No. 1 route, and used by traffic originating in many states of the Union outside the adjoining states of Rhode Island and Connecticut. Mr. Milner had stated that the Connecticut authorities seemed very willing to do all possible in their power to remedy the situation but the Rhode Island authorities seemed more dilatory in their actions.

"The Pawcatuck river bridge on U. S. Route 1, connecting Connecticut with Rhode Island, in the villages of Pawcatuck, Conn., and Westerly, R. I., posted today as unsafe for loads exceeding ten tons. The bridge passes an unusual volume of interstate traffic daily. Cars from all sections of the nation use this bridge. Tide water flows underneath. Has your department authority to request state board of public roads of Connecticut and Rhode Island to act to remove by use of federal aid funds this stigma of road posting in the very heart of civic center of our town? Sincerely appreciate any possible constructive action by your department, in behalf of Pawcatuck, Conn., and Westerly, R. I."

Gets Reply

The following telegram in reply to the above communication has been received by Mr. Milner:

"Washington, D. C., September 27, 1930. Harry R. Milner, chairman of municipal improvement committee, Westerly chamber of commerce. Your wire of 23d has been referred by secretary to bureau of public roads. The matter of the Pawcatuck river bridge will be investigated."

The telegram was signed by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief bureau of public roads.

GOING HOME TO SEE HIS MOTHER, GEO. A. MINER KILLED AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 28.—George A. Miner, 26, of 5 Slossen terrace, St. George, N. Y., son of Mrs. A. C. Miner, R. F. D. No. 1, Groton, was fatally injured Saturday afternoon when he sustained a compound fracture of the skull by being thrown from the motorcycle he was riding. The young man died five hours after he was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Miner, who is employed by the Procter & Gamble Co., was on his way to spend the week-end with his mother. He arrived in New London about 2:10 o'clock and, continuing through Main street, turned into Crystal avenue to head for the Thames river highway bridge. Just after the cycle rounded the curve at the Winthrop street under-pass of the New Haven railroad, it left the concrete highway and in another instant Miner was hurled against a ledge on the south side of the bridge approach, his head striking the rock with terrific force. Miner dropped to the highway unconscious and bleeding from ears and nostrils. He was placed in the automobile of Francis Alexander, 26 West Coit street, and rushed to the hospital, but as his skull had been crushed his case was hopeless from the first.

CHAS. H. KIMBALL'S SHOP ENTERED BY SIMON ESCUREDO

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 28.—Simon Escuredo, Cuban, a former member of the U. S. coast guard, was in the police court Saturday charged with breaking and entering, robbery and attempting to break and enter. He pleaded not guilty and his case was continued to Tuesday next. He was unable to procure a surety on his bond of $1,000 and was committed to jail. Several hours after the adjournment of court, Escuredo made a complete confession and will plead guilty when he is again presented in court next week.

Patrolman Dennis Cavanaugh was making his rounds about 1 o'clock and in trying doors of stores he discovered two windows broken in the store of the Kimball Textile Co., 20 Meridian street. On the window casing there were spatterings of fresh blood, indicating that the thief had cut himself in smashing the windows. The proprietor of the store, Charles H. Kimball, was notified and upon going to the store found that $6 in silver had been taken from the cash register.

Officer Cavanaugh also found a window smashed in the Peterson restaurant, corner of State and Meridian streets. Stravos Peterson was summoned to the store, but found that nothing was missing. Patrolman Dennis Murphy was assigned to conduct an investigation and in making a tour of local restaurants the officer found Escuredo at the Firemen's lunch room, 231 Bank street. He was bandaging a fresh cut on his wrist and had, only a few minutes before, exchanged a quantity of silver for bills. Escuredo was arrested, but he stoutly denied his guilt. About five hours after court adjourned, Escuredo broke down and confessed having robbed the textile store, also to having attempted to rob the restaurant, being unsuccessful because of being frightened away.

Escuredo was arrested several months ago, charged with the unlawful wearing of a uniform of the United States. He was penalized for the offense and recently he was arrested in Waterford, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, he having obtained the money from a Waterford resident. Upon Escuredo's promise to return the money the charge was nolled, when he was presented in the Waterford town court. He failed to keep his promise and return the $26 he obtained from the Waterford man.

FIRE LOSS OF $30,000 AT ADEL'S FROM ONE OF TWO CAUSES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 28.—The cause of the fire at the garage of P. Adel & Co., Woodbridge street, early Saturday morning, when damage of the estimated amount of $30,000 was caused, has not been determined, but as a result of an investigation being made by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Fire Marshal Calvin Edmunds, it is believed that the blaze originated either through the act of an incendiary or of a gasoline thief. When the fire was discovered, the entire interior of the structure was a mass of flames, Two alarms were sent in and it was not until an hour and a half later that the fire had been extinguished. Investigation proved that the fire started beneath a five-ton truck and it was also discovered that a pet cock on the truck had been melted off the tank, but was open when it should have been closed. The truck had not been used in two days and it is the opinion of Edmunds that the pet cock was opened to permit the gasoline to flow to the floor and the torch was then applied. However, there is a possibility that gasoline thieves were stealing fuel and that a match or a cigarette carelessly dropped started the blaze. Seven auto trucks were stored in the garage and four of them were completely destroyed. The others were badly damaged.

WATCH, CHAIN AND PAPERS STOLEN FROM FRANK MIX HOME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 28.—The residence of Frank Mix, 391 Ocean avenue, was entered by a thief Saturday night, but the loot obtained was not great. A gold watch and chain were the only articles of value taken, although insurance papers were included in the loot. The crook went to the house sometime after 6.30 and at a time when Mr. and Mrs. Mix and the former's father were absent. Smashing a window leading from the porch to the parlor, the window was unlocked and the crook entered. He went to the second story where the drawers of dressers were ransacked and from which the watch and papers were taken. Upon leaving the house the crook passed through a bedroom window to the roof of the rear porch and dropped to the yard. When Mr. and Mrs. Mix returned about 9 o'clock the break was discovered and reported to the police. Motorcycle Officer George Cockell investigated. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

All Hollywood is warm in its praise of the courage displayed by Mary Astor charming young screen star and widow of Kenneth Hawks, film director who was killed in an airplane crash several months ago. Looking so frail that one can scarcely credit her bravery of spirit, Miss Astor has appeared in her third picture since her bitter loss.

Two weeks after the death of her husband the young actress began work on "Ladies Love Brutes" for which she had signed a contract prior to the tragedy. Immediately thereafter she moved to RKO to begin work in the leading feminine role of "The Goose Hangs High." Then followed her featured part in "Holiday."

"I had to do it," Miss Astor told her close friends, "if I was to go on. In hard and constant work lay my only salvation."

In "Holiday," which is now playing at Warner's Broadway, Miss Astor is seen as the sister of Ann Harding, who is featured in the screen version of the former stage success. Robert Ames has the leading man's role, while Edward Everett Horton, Monroe Owsley, William Holden and Elizabeth Forrester play other important parts, Edward H. Griffith directed.

Palace Theatre

"Moby Dick," starring John Barrymore and Joan Bennett and now playing at the Palace theatre, where it will be shown through Wednesday of this week, is one of the most thrilling and hair-raising sensations ever played on the talking screen. Taken from the novel of the same name written by Herman Melville, it is the story of Captain Ahab, the mad sailor who searched the seas for years trying to capture the great white whale which nearly took his life.

The setting for the picture is the old fishing village of New Bedford and the time is nearly a century ago. Many whaling parties had been destroyed by this huge beast which was the terror of the seas and when Ahab pursues it he loses a leg. Determined to get the whale he signs up for voyage after voyage and at last is successful.

A love story is carefully interwoven throughout the story. Ahab and his brother Derek are in love with the minister's daughter, but Derek is not the man that Ahab is and he uses dishonest and treacherous methods to win the lady.

Don't fail to see "Moby Dick" yourself and bring your family. It is a never-to-be-forgotten epic of the screen.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 — (AP) — Sports clothes in these late summer days are much favored by the capital's smart set. They are worn for street and shopping as well as at country clubs.

Mrs. Russell Hitchcock, wife of Lieut. Commander Hitchcock, is wearing a white pleated jersey dress combined with a short blue sports jacket.

Green And Turquoise

PARIS, Sept. 28—(AP)—Myrtle green and light blue bordering on the turquoise shade have struck a style compact for winter.

Their sponsor, a well established dressmaker, combines the two for afternoon ensembles or morning costumes.

Turquoise jewelry is added to green ensembles, providing the green is dark and on the blue tinge.

Feeding cultivated trout dried salmon eggs gives the fish brilliant coloration.

RESERVES DECISION IN AUTOMOBILE DAMAGE SUIT

Judge C. B. Waller reserved decision in the common pleas court here Saturday after hearing trial of the case of Daniel J. McCarthy against Frank J. Prodell, Jr., both of this city.

McCarthy obtained a judgment for $72.62 when the case was tried before Justice of the Peace Thomas J. Kelly and Prodell makes a counter claim for $75, alleging damage to his car to that extent. He alleges that McCarthy did not give the proper signal to stop.

The suit was brought as the result of an automobile accident on Jan. 18 on North Main street, near the intersection of Central avenue. McCarthy brought his car to a stop to avoid hitting a person. He claimed he gave the proper signal but the Prodell car ran into him.

Before Judge Waller there was also partial trial of the suit of Grace Rys of Jewett City against Steve Kiecolt of this city. This case was continued to Oct. 3 for further testimony.

GIFT OF CLOCK MADE TO EARLE E. BRIGHAM

Playground children to the number of 1,500 bade farewell to Earle E. Brigham, superintendent of recreation here for seven years, at a free moving picture show at the Palace theatre Saturday morning. The children, through William J. Fitzgerald, chairman of the city's recreation commission, presented Mr. Brigham a clock as a token of their esteem. Mr. Brigham left Sunday evening to assume his new duties as director of athletics at the high schools in Worcester, Mass.

Hundreds of children were on hand at 9:30 o'clock when the doors were opened. By 10 o'clock the theatre was jammed and Manager R. B. Hamilton was forced to turn away a large number of children as there was no room for them inside the building.

During the early part of the performance Manager Hamilton presented Mr. Fitzgerald who briefly addressed the large gathering. Mr. Fitzgerald thanked Mr. Hamilton and the theatre employees for their many courtesies, and thanked the Boy Scouts for their services as ushers. After speaking of the splendid record Mr. Brigham made for himself in Norwich as superintendent of the playgrounds, Mr. Fitzgerald presented him a beautiful clock as a gift from the children of Norwich.

Mr. Brigham graciously responded in accepting the gift. He spoke of Mr. Fitzgerald as one of the most able recreation chairmen in the country. At the suggestion of Manager Hamilton, there were three cheers for Mr. Fitzgerald.

LARGE CONGREGATION FOR CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE

An interested congregation of good numbers was present Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock for a lecture on Christian Science which was given at the Universalist church on Broadway by Miss M. Ethel Whitcomb, C. S. B., of Boston, who spoke upon "Christian Science, the Angelic Message."

Miss Whitcomb is a member of the board of lectureship of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. In part she spoke as follows:

In Luke's gospel it is written "And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." What are the good tidings that the angels are singing today? Christian Science answers that these tidings of great joy, these angelic messages, are nothing less than a revelation of the demonstrable fact that the same spiritual truth which healed through Jesus of Nazareth is here today, bidding the dumb to speak, the lame to walk, the blind to see. Christian Science has already healed its unnumbered thousands and sent them on their way singing with the angels, "Glory to God in the highest."

What is an angel? To a Christian Scientist an angel is not a celestial personality with feathered wings, but an exalted idea from divine mind, an inspirational thought-visitant. Every moment of inspiration, intuition, goodness, gratitude, purity, or selflessness is a moment with the angels. Let us listen that we may hear them as they pass to us.

Actually to expect to hear the angels—impartations from divine good—and to be guided, inspired, and guarded by them as were the prophets of old, we must know God as He is. Christian Science satisfies the heart with its glorious views of God as mind, incorporeal mind, the all-knowing, the all-present, divine, infinite intelligence, and this mind, love, tender, living, available love in whom man lives and breathes as individual consciousness, for this mind is the very life of all, the sole governor of the universe and man.

We can never obey Scripture and put off "the old man with his deeds," the old human concept of man with his stubborn disposition, nervous temperament, and weak character and constitution—all unloveliness— until we catch glorious glimpses of our identity in the likeness of divine love, and maintain it, thereby refusing to express a thought, motive, or desire that springs not from the heart of God.

Many people come to Christian Science, seeking, as did I, to understand how to pray aright to the infinite, unseen Father. "Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss," are the Scriptural words that arouse the awakening thought to ask, How can I pray aright?

We believe that it is a vain request to ask the God who is love itself for more love, or to implore the divine mind which is never absent from man to come closer. Christian Science teaches us as children to recognize the mother-love of God, ever present, every hour, everywhere, and to accept through the prayer of perception, utilization, and thanksgiving God's perpetual outpouring of health and goodness.

How does Christian Science heal? I once passed a veiled statue that was waiting to be uncovered. I knew the statue to be very beautiful, but how ugly it looked, covered with its grimy veil! Then my thoughts, or inward eyes, turned to the real man, the beautiful, pure, and fair image of God. That which to the outward eye appears to be sick and impure man, I now realized is merely the veil which covers the real. The Christian Science treatment or prayer tears away, through its divine impulsion, the veil, and reveals man in all his God-given wholeness. The veil, then, not man, is the patient, which veil, Paul says, "is done away in Christ."

The life and works of Christ Jesus mean everything to Christian Scientists, for they recognize Him as their Way-shower, the one who has shewn them the divine and definite way to work out every problem of human life. They strive to follow in the very thought-steps of this God-inspired teacher. They endeavor to serve as He served, to bless as He blessed, and to conquer materially with spirituality at every point, as did He.

Christian Science was discovered and founded by a woman, made spiritually ready for such a holy trust by lessons learned from every event of her life, by human struggles, desperate privations, heroic overcomings, and deepest longings to know and to take the things of God and give them to mankind. In an hour when she was in the valley of the shadow of death, she lifted her heart to God and turned as she had done since childhood to her Bible for help. With such spiritual readiness and purity of vision did she read its pages that lo, she touched, as did the woman of old, the garment's hem and through the power of the same Christ, she rose confidently and walked! Now she beheld through the lens of Spirit the universe of God in all its perfection and glory. Now she felt the operation of the law she had not known before — the healing, purifying, saving law of God. As soon as she could find her way in this new universe of light her heart, so aglow with divine love, was flooded with compassion for all those bewildered and bound by sin and pain. For their sakes she must know the divine principle on which her marvelous healing was based, so that they too could drop their fetters at the feet of Christ. With this one star leading her on she withdrew from society with the Bible for her textbook. Of herself she has said that she was a "scribe under orders" (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 311). The spiritual, undeviating, indestructible facts of truth that appeared to her God-prepared heart at that time, she elucidated in words known as the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures"—a book that is waking men of every nation from the midnight of despair to behold the morning light of hope and holier living. Her reason for writing this book she makes plain in these words which appear in court records: "I turned to God in prayer and said, Just guide me to the mind which was also in Christ, and I took the Bible and opened to the words, 'Now go write it in a book.' I then commenced writing my consciousness of what I had seen and I found that human will was the cause of disease instead of its cure; that the divine mind was the healer." Thus was made and given to mankind the discovery which has shaken the very foundation of material systems and awakened thought to realize that spirit and the things of spirit are real, vital, operative, present, and available to men.

In Jewish life this holy day is also known as the "Sabbath of Sabbaths" and the "Great White Fast." MOTORISTS TO RECEIVE THEIR REGISTRATION BLANKS

Approximately 350,000 application blanks for 1931 motor vehicle registrations will be mailed Wednesday to owners by the state department of motor vehicles.

Applications may be made beginning October 1, and the department announces that, as in the past, it will reserve for early applicants the registration numbers assigned in the previous year. Numbers will be reserved under this plan only until November 15. After that date, because of the amount of clerical work involved, numbers must be given out in the order most convenient to the department.

Nearly 40,000 applications are expected to be made this year before November 15. The number of persons applying early has increased each year for several years. Last year there were 34,600 such applications. In 1928 there were 30,000, and in 1927, 27,160.

All 1930 registrations will expire December 31. Under the state law, number plates issued for 1931 may not be displayed until the last week day of December, 1930.

Only one change is made in the form of application from last year, according to the department's announcement. This requires that the home address of the applicant be given and not the post office or business address. No formal sworn statement before a notary is required with the application. In every case, except when power of attorney has been given to the signer, the application must be signed by the owner of the vehicle. Addressed envelopes are enclosed with each blank. The applicant has only to fill in the requested information, enclose the proper fee and mail to the department. Registration certificate and plates will be forwarded promptly.

Information concerning fees and questions on the application blanks has been sent with every blank to prospective registrants. Each application must be complete. Written requests must be submitted for special number reservations. These may be made to the Hartford office or to any branch office. No mail orders will be accepted at the branch offices, except for reservations, and after November 15 all mail orders must be sent to the Hartford office.

All questions must be answered in ink or typewritten. Remittances by check, money order or express order should be made payable to the commissioner of motor vehicles. Number plates are delivered without charge. Special care is requested by the department in the copying of engine numbers on the blanks. Casting numbers are frequently confused with those of the engine. Casting numbers are raised and engine numbers are stamped on a plate or on a smooth surface somewhere on the motor.

BISHOP JAMES CANNON, JR., HAS ARRIVED AT NEW YORK

Declined to Discuss Church Charges Pending Against Him—Did Say That He Thought Prohibition Had Made the U. S. More Temperate Except in the Large Cities—Asserted That Where You Find the Roman Catholic Element You Find Opposition to the Prohibition Amendment

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church south, arrived today from Brazil on the liner American Legion, to answer charges brought against him by four southern clergymen of his denomination.

Bishop Cannon declined to discuss the charges.

"I will say nothing until I have had an opportunity to read the official document in the case," he said. "I have already outlined my position in a message to the Associated Press and have nothing further to say."

The bishop at first declined to see newspapermen but later gave an extended interview on prohibition. He left the liner by himself, his bride of about three months remaining aboard, apparently in an effort to avoid photographers.

Bishop Cannon had declined to pose for a photograph and was constantly bombarded by flashlights as he moved about the ship on duties necessary to his debarkation.

While the confusion near the Cannon stateroom was at its height the first officer of the liner came rushing down from the bridge and announced:

"Mrs. Cannon is hysterical, and the captain has requested me to ask you gentlemen to leave, so she can regain her calm. Then you can approach her again on the dock or after she has left the ship."

The bishop said he thought prohibition had made the United States more temperate than it was before the eighteenth amendment was enacted, except in the large cities or where there was a large foreign population.

"Where you find the Roman Catholic element, you find opposition to the prohibition amendment," the bishop said, "because the cardinal, the archbishop and the pope are against prohibition. Romanism as a body, hates prohibition."

Among other comments on prohibition the bishop made were these: That he admired Dwight W. Morrow, who urged repeal of the 18th amendment, for his sincere stand, which he believed consistent in that Mr. Morrow declared for the enforcement of the prohibition laws so long as they were in force; that he believed the United States except for the great cities containing a large foreign population, was more temperate than it was before the eighteenth amendment; that there was no doubt there was a great deal of bootlegging and that he believed the breweries of the country probably were disposing of much illegal beer; and that he opposed Alfred E Smith for the presidency not because of his religion, but because of his views on prohibition.

LITTLE GIRL MADE BRAVE BUT VAIN FIGHT FOR LIFE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 29—(AP)—For 14 hours today 9-year old Marie Overby fought off death, while surgeons took motion pictures of her heart and lung action through a "window" burned into her left breast by accidental contact with a 13-200 volt power transmission line.

The child's fight against death attracted the attention of leading physicians and surgeons of this district and made what many believe to be medical history.

She was brought here to a hospital last night after an automobile accident in which her mother was electrocuted and herself fatally burned when they became entangled in a power wire said to have been lying across the highway.

The child insisted she felt no pain and chatted with the surgeons. She died at noon.

SAYS WOMEN ARE THE MOST IMPORTANT TOPIC TODAY

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 29—(AP)—Delegates to the convention of the National Council of Catholic Women, were told today by Miss Mary G. Hawks, of Summit, N. J., president, that the new edict in journalism is "more about women on the front page; women are the most important topic today."

"We must capitalize this new importance," Miss Hawks said. "We must use it to spread a sound philosophy of life; to increase society's faith in the 'all-wise who is the all-loving' too; to see in the law and order of his creation fatherly protection, not tyrannical restraint."

BALTIMORE WINS MOTOR VEHICLE SAFETY BANNER

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Fitchburg, Mass., went for an entire year without a single traffic fatality, but even that wasn't good enough to win the 1929-30 inter-city motor vehicle safety banner.

The honor was awarded to Baltimore today at the nineteenth annual safety conference and exposition in session here.

The award is based on the number of "man days" without a traffic death—computed by multiplying the number of deathless days by the city's population—, and so, although Baltimore had only 19 perfect days her score was 15,303,301. Fitchburg's population is only 40,672, which made her score 14,816,280.

Providence, R. I., ranked third. The presentation was made by the Albert Russel Erskine bureau for street traffic research, Harvard university

Providence had 49 consecutive days without a traffic fatality, giving that city a total of 12,366,914 "man days."

Rochester, N. Y., which won last year, came fourth. Worcester, Mass., was sixth.

CHOSE ANNIVERSARY OF HER HUSBAND'S DEATH FOR SUICIDE

ROCKPORT, Mass., Sept. 29—(AP)—Mrs. Thomas P. Barnett, 54, widow of a prominent St. Louis architect, and painter, and a summer visitor at the artist colony at Bearskin Neck for many years, chose the first anniversary of her husband's burial to commit suicide in the seashore cottage in which she lived alone.

Her body was found in bed today with a bullet wound in her right temple. On the floor lay a .32 calibre pistol.

The past season was the first in years that her husband had not come to Gloucester with her and Mrs. Barnett had planned to pass the winter here rather than return to St. Louis.

Police and Medical Examiner George G. Bailey, of Ipswich, believed that the prospect of a lonely winter induced despondency and resulted in suicide.

Banking Conditions In Havana Normal

E. R. Black Says That None of the $16,000,000 Brought There Sunday Would Be Needed

HAVANA, Sept. 29—(AP)—E. R. Black, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of Alanta, Ga., today announced that banking conditions were normal in Havana, and that the panic which followed the closing of two of Havana's banks Saturday had failed to last through the second day.

Mr. Black hurried here yesterday with $16,000,000 in cash to take care of any demands which might be made today on members of the Havana clearing house.

He made $9,000,000 more available within a few hours, and this with $20,000,000 on hand in the local branch of the federal reserve gave threatened banks extra cash resources of $45,000,000.

Late today Mr. Black said none of the $16,000,000 brought here yesterday would be needed.

"I find banking conditions in Havana normal today," he told the Associated Press. "Reports from the interior indicate that any excitement which may have prevailed there Saturday has subsided.

"Our agency has ample funds in Havana, I do not anticipate the need or use of these funds. The Havana banks have fully met the situation forced on them Saturday by the closing of the Bank of Commerce and a smaller institution.

"There is apparently every confidence on the part of depositors in the Havana banks and the management of these banks feels that banking business in Havana and in the interior will proceed as usual. In this view I am glad to concur."

MRS. M'CORMICK WARNED AGAINST REPEATING CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29—(AP)—The senate campaign funds investigating committee today issued a statement characterizing the wire-tapping charges of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, the republican senatorial nominee in Illinois, as "false and libelous" and served notice that a repetition of their publication would be regarded as "willful and malicious libel."

The committee's denial of the charges made by the woman senatorial nominee who has been under inquiry, bristled with pointed words and was signed by four of the five members, two republicans and two democrats.

The statement complained that "Mrs. McCormick has the effrontery to continue to make statements which are not only false in fact but which she herself must know to be false."

Senator Nye, republican, North Dakota, the committee chairman, issued the statement, which also was signed by Senators Dale, republican, Vermont; Dill, democrat, Washington, and Wagner, democrat, New York. Nye explained that Senator Patterson, republican, Missouri, the fifth member, had not signed it "because he wanted to adhere to his original position that he would make no commitments on any phase of the investigation with which he has not been closely affiliated as in this one."

A PLOT TO ASSASSINATE JUDGE LYLE OF CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Sept. 29—(AP)—Assistant State's Attorney C. E. Lounsbury today revealed a plot to assassinate Judge John H. Lyle of the felony court, who issued vagrancy warrants for the arrest of notorious gangsters.

He said a Negro, whose identity was withheld, today gave him details of the conspiracy which the Negro overheard in a restaurant.

The Negro told Lounsbury he heard two roughly dressed men discussing the plot. They were later joined by a third, he said.

"I overheard pieces of the conversation," Lounsbury said the Negro told him. "One said, 'Judge Lyle ought to have been killed long ago.' Another said, 'Well, it would be kind of hard to kill him. I think we ought to have more money. There'd be plenty of heat if he was bumped off—worse than the Lingle murder.'"

Lounsbury said his informant believed the trio had been shadowing Judge Lyle, since they seemed familiar with his habits and daily routine.

NEW PHASE IN NEW YORK JUDICIARY SCANDALS

NEW YORK, Sept. 29—(AP)—A new phase in official efforts to clean up New York's judiciary scandals was ushered in today with the opening of a new and sweeping investigation by the appellate division of magistrate's courts in Manhattan and the Bronx.

At the same time an extraordinary grand jury, investigating the judiciary in Manhattan, requested that Governor Roosevelt give it wider powers.

A third development came from Mayor Walker in the form of a promise he would comply with Governor Roosevelt's suggestion that city officials who have refused to waive immunity before the grand jury be asked to sign waivers and testify.

Representative Pietro Diana, president of the recently organized State Federation of Italian American Clubs, announced last night that delegates of the organization will meet for a conference tonight at the Hotel Stratfield in Bridgeport.

Police in Washington announced they had obtained evidence definitely establishing that Lieutenant Colonel Richard B. Creecy of the marine corps had attacked his wife with a hatchet in the Mayflower hotel Sunday and then killed himself.

Two unidentified men were struck and apparently seriously injured by an automobile, while changing an automobile tire on the side of the highway in Devon. Frank O. Moses, of Hartford, driver of the car, was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

For five minutes the skyscraper district of lower Manhattan was hidden behind a wall of smoke 1,500 feet high in an experiment to show how that section of the city could be protected in time of war. The demonstration was conducted by the army air corps.

With an application on file for his removal as executor because of his failure to submit an inventory, Attorney Edward L. Kelly reported to Probate Judge William W. Bent that the estate of Rev. Charles A. Leddy, late pastor of St. Peter's church, Bridgeport, totals $44,766.40.

Carroll To Head Third New York State Party

Has Been Selected As Gubernatorial Candidate By Representatives of Dry Organizations

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The conference of dry organizations of New York state held a three-hour secret meeting today at which plans were formulated for the support of Professor Robert P. Carroll of Syracuse university as independent candidate for governor.

The petition for Prof. Carroll has already been circulated and will probably be filed Monday, naming him as gubernatorial candidate of the "law preservation party."

After the meeting, which was presided over by Fred E. Victor, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, Mrs. L. Leigh Colvin, state president of the W. C. T. U., said that in backing an independent candidate the republican drys did not feel that they were splitting from the republican party.

"We feel," she said, "that we are the real republicans."

Representatives of dry organizations who attended the secret meeting said afterwards that there had been entire harmony and that a spirit of optimism prevailed. Some of them even predicted a Carroll vote of 500,000.

Mrs. Colvin said the drys would not put a full ticket in the field but in a few instances would probably run dry candidates against wet republicans.

Among those present at the meeting besides Victor and Mrs. Colvin were S. E. Nicholson, associate state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league; Canon William Sheafe Chase, O. R. Miller superintendent of the New York Civic league; Stanley High, editor of the Christian Herald; Dr. Herbert LaFlamme, of the Greater New York Federation of Churches, and Charles Simmons of the Prohibition Education league.

KELLEY SUSPENDED PENDING PROBE OF FAVORITISM CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Secretary Wilbur today declined to accept the resignation of Ralph S. Kelley, as chief of the general land office at Denver and suspended him instead, pending an investigation of his charges that big oil companies had been shown favoritism in administration of oil sale lands.

Kelley announced his resignation to the press last night and at the same time asserted large oil interests now were endeavoring to secure titles by fraud to oil lands in Colorado which he estimated had a potentional value of $40,000,000,000.

A lengthy statement issued late today by Secretary Wilbur said Kelley's resignation "had come as a surprise in view of the fact that Mr. Kelley on July 7 was offered by the secretary to come to Washington from Denver to take charge of this very work, and has not yet reported to the secretary."

GENEVA, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Its hardest forensic battles, over disarmament and economic relief schemes, concluded, the eleventh assembly of the League of Nations tonight entered upon its brief closing phase.

In the evening session the assembly began to ratify the work of its six constituent committees, by adopting reports dealing with the manifold activities of the league.

Among the reports was that of the disarmament committee which recommended that the preparatory commission complete in November the drafting of a plan for general disarmament so that the council might call a world conference for reduction and limitation of arms "as soon as possible."

Routine concluding the work of the assembly will require two or three days more with final adjournment expected Thursday evening or Friday morning.

URGES THE PROTECTION OF NEW ENGLAND RAILROADS

N. E. Governors' Railroad Committee Recommends Concerted Action Against the Rate Making Policy of the I. C. C. —Pennsylvania Railroad and the Pennroad Corporation, a Holding Company, Are Increasing Their Holdings of New Haven Road Common Stock—The Committee Is Considering the All New England Railroad Plan

BOSTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The New England governors' railroad committee issued a preliminary 350-page report tonight in which it took no definite stand on proposed consolidations of New England railroads but recommended concerted action to protect New England against the present rate making policy of the interstate commerce commission.

The committee revealed that it had attempted to obtain detailed information from New England railroads, from trunk lines with New England connections and from large New York and Boston banks regarding present ownership of New England roads.

This phase of the work has not been completed but it was stated that the Pennsylvania railroad had just informed the committee of increases in its holdings of New York, New Haven, and Hartford company stock since April last and that the Pennroad corporation, a holding company affiliated with the Pennsylvania, has done likewise.

The Pennsylvania now has 228,925 shares of New Haven common stock and the Pennroad corporation 150,000 shares. The figures made public last April by W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania, were 204,084 shares held by the Penn railroad and 100,000 by the Pennroad corporation. The committee expressed no opinion whether "this ownership, or its possible extension, will be of benefit to New England."

The committee is considering the interstate commerce commission plan of consolidation and has asked all the railroads concerned for their opinions of that plan, the all New England railroad plan, or any others. This work, too, is not completed and no final report with recommendations on the subject can be issued before the end of the year, the committee said. So far only the Bangor and Aroostook and the Rutland roads have submitted detailed reports to the committee.

TICKET TO BE PRESENTED N. Y. STATE DEM. CONVENTION

SYRACUSE N. Y., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Its state ticket completed by the party leaders, the New York democratic state convention tonight listened to an address by its permanent chairman, John W. Davis, presidential nominee of the party in 1924, and adopted the platform of party principles on which the coming campaign will be waged.

After unanimous adoption of the platform by a voice vote the convention adjourned until 11 a. m. tomorrow.

The slate to be presented to the convention for approval tomorrow provides for the renomination of Governor Roosevelt, Lieutenant Governor Herbert H. Lehman, Comptroller Morris S. Tremaine and Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals, Cuthbert W. Pound.

Selection by the party leaders of John J. Bennett of Brooklyn, as the nominee for attorney general completed the ticket. M. William Bray of Utica, state chairman, the leading rival of Bennett, for the position, was eliminated after a series of conferences lasting more than 24 hours. Mr. Bray, it was understood, will not accept another term as state chairman, and at tomorrow's meeting of the committee he is expected to place in nomination as his successor, James A. Farley of New York, the present secretary of the state committee and chairman of the state athletic commission.

CLARK MENTIONED AS SUCCESSOR TO MORROW

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29—(AP)—J. Reuben Clark, of Salt Lake City, came to the forefront tonight among those mentioned as the probable successor of Dwight W. Morrow as American ambassador to Mexico.

The retiring ambassador conferred for two hours this afternoon with Secretary Stimson and Under Secretary of State Cotton, laying before them a complete picture of Mexican-American relations gained from his three years as ambassador at Mexico City. He discussed with the two state department officials the question of his successor.

While there was no announcement regarding Ambassador Morrow's successor the general belief was that President Hoover is considering Clark, former under secretary of state and more recently assigned to special work for Ambassador Morrow in Mexico, for the Mexico City post.

Morrow also conferred today with President Hoover.

RISE IN PURCHASING POWER OF THE DOLLAR FORECAST

CHICAGO, Sept. 29—(AP)—Lower commodity prices and a rise in the purchasing power of the dollar were forecast by officers today as the National Chain Store association met for its annual convention.

R. W. Lyons, executive vice-president, said the end of financial depression could be brought about only through the co-operation of retail interests in restoring public confidence.

"It is generally conceded by industry as a whole that the present economic situation was brought about by the policy of many manufacturing and distributing organizations in attempting to maintain commodity prices at fictitiously high levels," he said,

Normalcy will be the result of the inevitable reaction to facts and values, he declared.

ATTACK ON OUR TARIFF AND IMMIGRATION LAWS

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 29.—(AP)—An attack on the tariff and immigration laws of the United States was delivered at the convention of the American Bankers association today by John W. Barton, vice president of the Metropolitan National bank of Minneapolis and president of the National bank division of the association.

He said creating a high tariff and at the same time raising the wall against the immigrant is an inconsistent policy

"If the tariff wall tends to reduce our foreign trade, as I think it will, then we need more people to consume our surplus," Barton said. "Yet we further restrict immigration and at the same time continue to reclaim arid lands at an enormous expenditure of capital annually."

If we are limited by the tariff in buying from foreign countries, he said, we can not expect to sell our large surplus of products.

The announced purpose of high tariff proponents to retain a high standard of living in this country by raising a high tariff wall is defeated by the efficient methods of transportation and communication now being applied throughout the world, he said.

Barton advised that government stay out of industry, adding that "subsidies of any kind are absolutely unsound."

MISFITTING CLOTHES BETRAYED ESCAPED CONVICT

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Arrested because misfitting clothes aroused a detective's suspicion, Leo Parquette, 30 of Detroit, told police here today he escaped two weeks ago from prison at Jackson, Mich., where he said he was serving a 30-year sentence for murder.

Detective Sergeant Morris Solomon became suspicious when he noticed Parquette's trousers were too short by several inches, and stopped him.

Under questioning at police headquarters, Parquette suddenly began the telling of a tale which included assertions he killed John Lafrance, 11 years ago at Anchorville, Mich., in an argument over the collection of a $1 debt.

Police quoted him as saying he escaped when the prison warden's car was wrecked. He said he was a trusty and authorized driver of the car, and when it was wrecked he decided not to return.

The drouth is getting to be more serious when the wells are going bone dry, with little prospect of rain; the new moon is a dry one, tilted up straight, so that the red man could not hang his powder horn on without its falling off. "Heap time to hunt when moon looks that way," said the Indian.

TOWN ASSESSORS THE CHOICE TO RE-ASSESS ALL PROPERTY

The annual town meeting of Griswold was held in the second voting district Monday afternoon. Dr. G. H. Jennings was chairman and John Welsh, clerk. The reports of the selectmen and other town officers were accepted, as were also the following: Highways, $[illegible]; cutting brush, $850; bridges, $400; town officers, $4,500; assessing and collecting taxes, $1,700; town farm, $600; outside poor, $5,500; medical attendance, $285; care of insane and imbeciles, $2,200; damage done by dogs, $100; town hall, $1,076; town hall, Pachaug, $75; vital statistics, $300; election expenses, $225; interest, $7,700; taxes, $6,910; indexing and expenses probate records, $2,400; miscellaneous, $[illegible]; schools, $62,000. Daniel F. Finn, Arba Browning, Thomas McBroome, selectmen.

Dr. Jennings was appointed a member of the Daniel S. Anthony fund. The selectmen were authorized to borrow money for temporary use, and to pay any part of the town debt that can be paid. The salaries of town officials, the pay of physicians employed by the town and the appropriation for the district nurse are to be the same as last year. A sum not to exceed $7,000 was appropriated for the purpose of re-assessing the taxable property of the town. It was the sense of the meeting, voted by 52 in the affirmative, that this matter should be completed by the town's assessors, Irving O. Burdick, Henry E. Olsen and Edward Blanchard.

Information was at hand from the town's attorney Arthur M. Brown, to the effect that the state law is mandatory. Town Clerk John Welsh believed it would cost the town over $12,000 to have this job done by state assessors from the outside. Several opinions were expressed that the local, regularly elected board, who knew the town's close to $8,000,000 in real estate are much better equipped to handle the matter with justice and fairness to all concerned.

The selectmen's reports show the running expenses of the town for the year ending Aug. 30th, 1930, were $39,937.99. The actual cost of schools, as submitted by the school committee, Earl E. Gilbert, James H. Shea and Richard J. Dudkowski, was $62,905.57.

Resigns After 32 Years

The resignation of Dr. G. H. Jennings as health officer of the town of Griswold, has been accepted by the board of selectmen, with sincere regret, and expressions of acknowledgement of, and appreciation for, his many years of faithful and efficient service. The doctor said:

"In retiring from the position of health officer which I have continuously held with the best of intention though too often failing to accomplish what should be done, for thirty-five years, I have had the cordial support of most of the people, for which I thank you and hope the same support may be given to my successor."

PAROCHIAL SCHOOL SAVES THE TOWN $5000 ON SALARIES

The report of the superintendent of schools to the town school committee shows the total number of pupils registered this year, 726. When compared with that of 937 for 1928-1929 this total may in part be explained by the opening of the new parochial school. The opening of this school relieved a congestion at the Riverside school which would have presented a problem in pupil accommodation had not this happened.

At the close of the school year 1928-1929 the town had in its employ 29 teachers. Due to the opening of the new parochial school, and consolidation of three rural schools we have employed 24 teachers. These facts alone have resulted in a net saving of $5000 on salaries.

The High School Situation

Enumeration—The enumeration of children of Sept. 1928 showed 1397. The enumeration Sept. 1929 showed 1375. The state of Connecticut, under the enumeration grant, will give the town for 1930, $3098.75.

Chester L. Howe concludes with these recommendations: The graduation should not assume such a proportion of the pupils' time. The class play could very well be dispensed with, and the time spent in its preparation devoted to real scholastic work. We must bear in mind that a child of today should and must believe that an eighth grade education is insufficient. Nearly all vocations demand specialization and to realize this a secondary school education is at least necessary.

The senior high school situation should be looked forward to with considerable attention. The net cost for educating pupils in neighboring secondary schools will be between $11,000 and $13,000. This money is being expended for something over which the town has no direct control, and as a matter of fact no business concern would expend such a sum for merchandise unless some specifications were adhered to and followed. The secondary schools which admit our pupils are granting this town a privilege which we do not belittle. Yet, the time will come when we can educate the youth in a secondary school of our own as economically and as efficiently as under the present arrangement.

In keeping with one of the cardinal principles of education, namely the safe-guarding of the pupils' health, I strongly recommend health inspection of every school child by a physician whose suggestions should be followed up by a school nurse. These precautions and remedial effects would tend to improve health conditions among the pupils, as well as the prevention of any communicable disease spreading into an epidemic.

Dental inspection should be provided and the recommendations followed up by a school dentist. Many school failures, uninterested and troublesome pupils may be traced to the improper care and condition of the teeth.

In closing this, my first annual report, I wish to express my appreciation of the support and cooperation which the teachers and members of the town school committees have rendered, all of which has helped in making this a successful and happy year.

DANIELSON

REPUBLICANS URGED TO BACK TILLINGHAST FOR SELECTMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 29—Republicans here began to do some real work today to insure the reelection of Charles A. Tillinghast, their candidate for first selectman. It was pointed out, too, that he is the only one of the five candidates for selectman who is a resident of the first voting district of the town, which includes Danielson and South Killingly.

Three of the other candidates are residents of the second district, which includes Dayville, Goodyear, Attawaugan and Ballouville, and the fourth is a resident of the third district, which includes East Killingly.

Republican workers are stressing in his behalf the remarkable showing he has made during the two years he has been in office. The board of which he has been the head and guiding influence in financial matters has reduced the indebtedness of the town by approximately $55,000. This is an all time record for Killingly, never having even been approached in the past.

Members of his party resident here, and also not a few democrats, expressed the belief today that the first district should have at least one member of the board of selectmen. There are many essential reasons for this. It so happens that the first district of the town is the most densely populated, and that property owners within it pay a heavy proportion of the taxes each year. They wish ta be represented on the board by at least one member, and Mr. Tillinghast's candidacy offers the only opportunity this year to fulfill that wish.

The set-up of candidates of the board is such this year as to forecast an unusual amount of splitting of tickets. This is one particular reason why republican leaders are preaching to all members of the party that they should be sure to vote in the election, and vote a straight ticket.

The democrats are admittedly strong in Killingly now and are also planning a great campaign to put their candidates in office.

Patrick Durocher of West Wauregan was presented before Justice Laura Pike at a session of court held in East Brooklyn today and fined $10 and costs. State officers raided Durocher's place at West Wauregan, which is in the town of Brooklyn, at the week end and among other things seized a slot machine. This machine has been confiscated, and the $1.27 it was found to contain will be divided between the state of Connecticut and the town of Brooklyn.

An overhead traffic control light was put in place in Academy street today, just opposite Mechanic street. This is one of the type of such signs bearing the word "Slow." The point where it is installed carries heavy traffic, and near at hand is a blind corner leading down the narrow way from the two streets mentioned to the railroad station. The sign is of practically the same type as the one over the intersection of Broad and Reynolds streets.

It appears that there is a considerable crop of walnuts in nearby territory this fall, and that numbers of people who roam the woods have become aware of the fact. It is pointed out that going onto lands to pick nuts without the permission of the owner of the land is a violation of the law. Some land owners gather walnuts as a source of revenue, and therefore are unwilling that anyone who comes along may help himself.

Arthur DeForest, as delegate from Leo J. L'Homme post of this town to the national convention of the American Legion in Boston, will leave here Sunday and be on hand for the first session. Mr. DeForest said today that a very considerable number of former service men will go from Danielson and vicinity to the convention, which will continue through next week. He especially requested today that publicity be given the desire that all former service men who are to be in Boston for the convention go to the Legion headquarters in the Hotel Statler and register. By registering and with one or more other small formalities Legion members will get special rates for many of the interesting sight seeing trips that have been arranged.

It is anticipated that more applications will be received by the registrars the coming week from those who wish to be made voters in time for the state election in November. However, the number of such applications is expected to be very much less than the total of 179 applications that were received in time for the applicants to be made and take part in the town election.

When the Killingly Woman's club meets on Wednesday of this week the event will mark the opening of the 1930-31 season. For the remainder of the fall and for the winter season an interesting program of events has been arranged. The series of meetings will include dramatic and musical affairs, lectures and addresses.

Following Wednesday's meeting, at which Miss Hester B. Crutcher will speak on Mental Hygiene, the programs will bring Harry C. Ostrander here on October 15 to discuss Strange Places, Strange Faces. He is a noted author and world traveler. Nov. 5, Miss Catherine Finnegan, New Haven, will talk on Adult Education. Nov. 19, William B. Bailey, Hartford, an economist, will speak on the subject of The American Hobo. Books for the day will be the subject at the Dec. 3, meeting, when John Clair Minot, literary editor of a Boston paper, will be heard. New Year's day brings a concert by the Flagg Ensemble. Jan. 21, two one-act plays will be presented.

Noted New England Women of 1630 will be the subject of Mrs. Annie Russell Marble's lecture on Feb. 4. Your Relation to Your Roadsides will be discussed or Feb. 18, by James H. Taylor, supervisor of highway landscaping in Massachusetts. Mar. 4, The Trend of the Times in Art, will be discussed by Katherine L. Sears, art instructor at Willimantic Normal school. Children of the community will be guests of the club April 1, when there will be a presentation of folk songs and dances by Miss Irma Watson. Miss Therese [illegible] reader will appear April [illegible] The annual business meeting will come early in May.

A county institute of the W. C. T. U. is to be held at the Baptist church here on Wednesday. Sessions are to be held morning and afternoon, the opening hours being respectively 10 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. Mrs. Mary B. Wilson, vice-president-at-large of the State W. C. T. U., and whose office is in Hartford, will be the principal speaker. The music will be in charge of Mrs. Albert Abbott of Broad street. Mrs. Kent A. Darbie, Broad street, will offer the noontime prayer.

A special meeting of the council of the Danielson Federation of Churches is to be held Wednesday evening in the Jacobs' Memorial library of the Westfield Congregational church.

Supt. W. E. Parker of Killingly's school said today that though a large number of children of the Goodyear schools are excluded from attendance for the time being there are only 12 to 15 cases of impetigo among the children of the village. Rigid measures have been taken to control these and prevent the development of others.

East Brooklyn members of Brooklyn grange are to have charge of the program for Tuesday evening's meeting which was postponed from last week Tuesday on account of that day having been entry day at the Brooklyn fair.

This morning the mercury was down to 43 degrees in some locations in Danielson, the coldest thus far this season

Because of the fine showing he made in his bout at the state armory here last Friday night while prominent figures in the New York boxing field were looking on, Lou Brouillard of Danielson likely will get a bout in New York.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM MAN ARRESTED FOR HARTFORD POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM Sept. 29.—Investigating a reported theft of an automobile in Worcester this morning, police of that city procured information that a Putnam man Leo Bousquet, of 18 Chassey street was responsible for the theft and after advising Captain of Police A. J. Dubreuil to arrest and detain Bousquet the Worcester authorities withdrew their complaint on grounds of insufficient evidence, but the young man was taken to Hartford tonight in charge of Hartford police, where he will be arraigned on charges of credit extension violation and theft.

Bousquet was immediately taken into custody by Capt. Dubreuil and Patrolman Page and questioned regarding the alleged theft of the Worcester motor vehicle. He emphatically denied being implicated in the theft. Shortly before police released him, Hartford authorities called and requested that he be arrested and detained. Upon their arrival here tonight the police of the capitol city explained that Bousquet had purchased a radio set from a leading Hartford retail house on a credit plan. He is alleged to have sold the instrument and appropriated the money derived from the sale for his personal gain

Patrolman Joseph G. Page of the local police is paging Wolfren L. Levy of Brookline, Mass., who ignored a court summons this morning when he failed to put in an appearance in city court to answer to a charge of failure to grant right of way. Levy was ordered into court Saturday morning following a collision in which his car was involved, which occurred at the intersection of Killingly avenue and Grove street. Informing Judge M. H. Geissler of the details of the case, Officer Page was instructed by the magistrate to communicate with the state department of motor vehicles at Hartford, calling the matter to their attention. Judge Geissler assured Patrolman Page that Levy would make a belated appearance in court at an early date, since this method of dealing with irresponsive motorists in the past has always worked out effectively.

Missing Girl Returns

Mrs. Josephine Adams, 17-year-old Putnam woman has returned to her home at 30 Bridge street, from which she ran away Saturday. Her husband and parents complained to the police of her sudden disappearance and a search to learn her whereabouts was started early Saturday afternoon. Southbridge police reported that the young matron had been picked up on the lawn of the public library, in that town, early Sunday morning and was in an unconscious condition at the time. She had neither coat nor hat and had no money in her purse. Collecting her senses, she told police that she and her husband had been in Norwich Saturday seeking employment. After securing a ride to Putnam, where she said her husband left her, she walked to Southbridge, a distance of 16 miles.

It was reported that a squadron of 16 airplanes passed over the northwestern outskirts of the town this forenoon, flying in the general direction of Boston. They were flying at a high altitude and insignia on the under parts of the wings was not discernible, although it is believed the ships were part of the United States army air service.

Welcome signs erected on trunk line highways a few miles outside the city are standing invitations for American Legion members and their guests to stop in Putnam before continuing their journey to Boston, where the convention of the organization is to be held next month. The signs are attractive and are placed in conspicuous spots on the roads. At the Putnam inn, the Anslem Mayotte post members have established a convention headquarters and are prepared to entertain the visiting Legionnaires during their brief stop over. The balcony of the hotel is attractively decorated with the post colors and a large American flag. In Bugbee square, headquarters guides have been attached to the traffic beacon there, directing visitors to the Legion information bureau. It is expected that there will be many of the ex-service men stopping here during the few days immediately in advance of the convention opening date, because of the proximity of Putnam to Boston.

There is but little outward pre-election interest in the town political situation being manifest, despite the fact that election day is but six days off. Sample ballots have been received here and are being distributed among party leaders, but even this has failed to stimulate any great amount of interest in what is likely to take place It is known, however

RURAL ROADS

Demands for the improvement of the rural roads of the state have been persistently put forth and they have been of such a convincing character that assurances have been given by the republicans in their platform that attention will be given to meeting this problem. The expectations are, therefore, that action will be taken at the coming session of the legislature whereby more money will be provided for bettering the country roads so that those who want to use them need have no hesitation in doing so.

We have seen our main thoroughfares carried along to the present excellent condition. We have seen some of them rebuilt and widened, bad curves eliminated and grades cut down. We have seen the so-called permanent pavement replace the waterbound macadam with its high crown, but no such progress has been made in bringing relief to deplorable conditions experienced by those who live in the country or those who are obliged to reach such homes on business.

The object of the Connecticut Rural Road Improvement association is to develop interest in such road work, to advocate a programme of action and to secure the necessary support in the legislature. This is a comparatively new organization, prompted by the condition of the rural roads, but it appears to be well organized and representative of the various sections of the state. It cannot fail to appreciate the platform support of rural road improvement but it has reached the sane conclusion that the time has not as yet been reached when it can afford to relax its efforts.

Thus when it meets today at Hartford to discuss transportation problems in the various communities and to plan for future activities in the light of what encouragement has already been received, it should be favored by a representative gathering of those who know what conditions in the rural highways are and what is needed to give such residents a fair deal and some return for their gasoline tax. This organization bids fair to wield a powerful influence in the coming months, even as it has during the short time since it was created. The rural residents are laboring in a just cause and are deserving of early compliance with their demands.

THE GOLDENROD BAN

There is a Be-Kind-to-Animals movement which is productive of much good and Thomas A Edison is just now sponsoring a similar movement in regard to flowers, or at least the goldenrod, which he claims has been seriously maligned and charged with grave offenses for which it is not responsible.

Mr. Edison has been engaged in lengthy experiments with goldenrod and for that reason there seems to be reason for accepting his statements. He has been seeking the rubber in such plants and in the course of his investigation he has studied other features which prompted him to come to the defense of the flower which grows so plentifully in the fields and by the roadsides during the late summer and early autumn.

Goldenrod has been freely charged with being responsible for hay fever. It hasn't been exactly outlawed but there has been quite a general call for its elimination as a relief to hay-fever sufferers. Every possible effort has been made to give it a black eye and a bad name. The claim has been that the pollen was wafted about in the atmosphere by the wind and aggravated the sensitive nostrils of those who breathed it. It sounded plausible and it has come to be accepted as a fact. Thus, many have shied at getting near or gathering the attractive flower.

It is the verdict of Mr. Edison, however, that such is not correct. He points out that the pollen of the goldenrod is heavy and is not carried many feet by the wind, being largely dependent upon bees for its distribution. Thus in one convincing announcement, he clears the slate of the long-standing charges against the goldenrod. It may take some time for those who have hay fever to become convinced that he is right. There isn't the least question in their minds but what they have hay fever and they are not disposed to be at all considerate of whatever it is that causes it. If it isn't the goldenrod it is something else, but if it isn't goldenrod it is only fair that the bad name which has been given it should be promptly and effectually removed. The ban which has been placed on the attractive yellow flower should be lifted and fixed where it belongs.

HITLER'S AMBITION

Not only Germany but the rest of the European nations and the league of nations have reason to be much interested in the programme of Adolph Hitler, leader of the fascist party in Germany.

From all indications, Hitler is bent upon plunging Germany into more trouble. In view of his record, the surprise is that he should be given so much encouragement by the voters in the last election. It wasn't generally known in advance what his proposition was, but it has been revealed since, and to a large degree it was to be expected that he would put it forth in all its splendor as the result of the success at the polls.

Hitler has much to say against the methods of the soviet government in Russia but he seems to be of the same attitude when it comes to tolerating political opponents. When he talks of operating the guillotine for the decapitation of those who oppose his policies, he is giving Germany something to think about. This doesn't hardly jibe with further declarations on his part to the effect that it is his purpose to work for a dictatorship in Germany through constitutional methods and not by the use of violence, but when he indicates that his object, after the setting up of the dictatorship, is to put an end to the peace treaty it is quite unbelievable that Germany is going to follow him.

While there may be justifiable appeals for a revision of the treaty terms from time to time, it is quite certain that any change will be based upon facts and that Hitler is not likely to incite Germany to a repudiation of its promises. However much the people of Germany might like to see the treaty eliminated, they understand that it cannot be accomplished by a flourish of the hand or a snap of the fingers. Germany has recently been rejoicing over the withdrawal of the last of the allied forces. It knows better than to so conduct itself as to bring about their return, and it fully realizes that it requires more than the declaration of such a leader as Hitler for Germany to escape its obligations. It is too soon for Germany to do anything that would invite a return of the conditions which it experienced back in the last decade. Hitler's ambition should be a sufficient warning to Germany to refuse to jump from the frying pan into the fire.

A POOR IMPRESSION

It is not a good impression that is made by Eben S Draper, recently defeated for the republican nomination for United States senator in Massachusetts, when he comes forth with a statement attacking the party platform in that state and withholding his support of the nominee, former Senator Butler.

It was a close and hard fight that was made but, during the campaign, Mr. Draper went on record as assuring his hearers that he would support whoever was nominated. That attitude of backing his opponent in case of victory was the only one to be expected. Mr Draper would have expected and been entitled to the support of Mr. Butler in case the voters declared in favor of Draper.

Between Draper and Butler the important issue from Mr Draper's standpoint was the question of prohibition. That being so, it is impossible for him to regard the outcome as other than a verdict of the people on the fight he was making. Mr. Butler was given a sufficiently large plurality to leave no doubt of the outcome and the convention acted in keeping therewith. All this may not have been expected by Mr. Draper or pleasing to him but there is no place in politics for other than a good loser. Mr. Draper is not showing himself as such. He is threatening to be a thorn in the side of his own party and there is nothing that delights the other political party more than to witness such a development. Giving aid to the enemy is frequently done in just such a manner. While Mr. Draper is doing it or threatening to do it as a wet, there are those in other states who are doing it as drys, but in either case the effect is bound to be the same, provided it is powerful enough. Mr. Draper is, however, repudiating his own promises, which helps to decrease his influence.

WHAT INSPECTIONS DISCLOSE

Because it is impossible to tell what has been prevented by the correction of faults found in automobiles when inspected, the impression may be gained that it doesn't amount to much. The finding of certain defects may not have its influence in reducing accidents during that particular week or month, but every time a faulty part of the mechanism is located and corrected one of the possible contributors to an accident must be regarded as eliminated.

Cincinnati has just completed a test of motor vehicles, the automobile club of that city providing the inspection without expense and paying particular attention to the brakes, lights and other parts of the mechanical equipment. In the cars examined it was found that 70 per cent of them were operated with defective brakes, 80 per cent had inadequate or glaring headlights, 27 per cent had stoplights which did not work and 9 per cent had dangerously bad wheel alignment.

With the correction of these defects, which is the purpose of the inspection, Cincinnati has reason to feel that a highly valuable service has been performed for the reduction of accidents. Better assurance of safer driving will be furnished by the cars which have proper brakes and lights. The reckless driver will figure in accidents regardless of the mechanical fitness of his car but, with all cars in good condition, invaluable protection against accidents is furnished and puts the responsibility for trouble upon the person at the wheel rather than upon a defective car.

The idea of periodical inspections is growing with the years and it is quite certain that it would not get the backing if it did not offer large possibilities and produce satisfactory results for safety.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29— Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, director of the national republican committee in its work in eastern states, believes there will be a reduction in the republican majority, but that it will not by any means reach the danger point. Col. Tilson, in statements and personal interviews, has said the tremendous majority on account of the Hoover landslide, will not be repeated in an off year, but that the party will fully hold its customary lead in congress. Col. Tilson has made a personal survey of the situation in the eastern states, from Maine to Florida, and predicts there will not be a loss of more than 12 to 20 districts and that some of those which he counts as "probably democratic" may remain in the republican fold.

Speaking of the six New England states, Col. Tilson believes the changes will not amount to more than one or two districts, in all. In fact, the colonel intimated he felt it quite probable no district normally republican, would fail to stand by the party and the president in the November election. In brief Col. Tilson sees no upset of republicans in congress, in either branch of that body, although he is not over optimistic that some losses may not be sustained, but that they will be of small account, in the total make up of congress. Col. Tilson travels much, and runs over from New York, where he established the Eastern headquarters, to Washington every week. The New York office is in charge of Col. Tilson's secretary, Captain Mcl[illegible], and the office has not only the responsibility aiding in electing members of the house, but also of selecting speakers for the eastern campaign.

Meeting with the American congressional delegation, now out in the Pacific trying to find what best to be done regarding the Samoan islands is High Chief Tufele, who is an authorized member of the commission by act of congress. Senator Bingham of Connecticut is chairman of the commission, and is intensely interested in the problems to be faced. Senator Robinson of Arkansas, former candidate for the vice presidency and now a prospective democratic candidate for the presidency, is a member of the commission, as is Representative Williams of Texas. High Chief Mauga and High Chief Tufele are the native members. Pictures as published of the two Samoan chiefs, in native costumes, indicate Samoan chiefs are clothed mostly in "shorts" and garlands of flowers.

The commissioners, including Senator Bingham will live on the U. S. cruiser Omaha during the entire trip of several months, and will report to congress in December and recommend what had best be done in the islands. One of the vexed questions concerns laws and adjustments of public lands.

The woman's national party is rolling up its sleeves for a battle royal with congress when their proposed constitutional amendment to give women "equal rights" comes up for discussion. They propose to fight along the line of the suffrage campaign and with a number of the militant suffrage leaders conducting the campaign. The first step, so Miss Alice Paul announces through the press, will be a working lobby committee. She adds "Suffrage was but a tool. What we now want is economic equality." Miss Paul and others make it clear however, that economic equality does not entirely relate to work and wages. One of the legal rights they are striving for is that they need not, on marriage, assume the name of their husband, nor must a child be given its father's name. The women want the right to give the child the name of the mother, as an advance move. But to those who have made a study of pagan and old time customs and laws, such a move is backward, not one of progress.

In pagan days and even now in darkest Africa, women are compelled to give their name to their children. The reason therefor does not make what might be termed "pretty reading" but in a nut-shell may be summed up by saying that such great moral laxity was granted all women, and especially to queens, that the line of inheritance and descent would be endangered, should other than the woman's name govern it. At least the people knew who was the mother of the child.

Just what will happen to the amendment when it comes before senate committees for hearings, is problematical, but we foresee a merry war when the liberal and the conservative women set forth their arguments for and against a revival of pagan laws, and a return to the present customs of darkest Africa.

The great seal of the United States is said by many to be the most beautiful national emblem in the world. And that is from an artistic, not a patriotic viewpoint. It is used by the secretary of state and affixed to the papers which demand its use. A recent account of the great seal of the United States gave some interesting information, showing that the one in use now is what is known as the third great seal. It is almost identical with the first, which was used in 1770 when the first seal, which was a combination of designs submitted by Jefferson, Adams and a French engraver named DuSimi[illegible] was made the seal. The first seal was used continuously up to 1885 when Secretary of State Frevlinghuysen called attention to the fading lines, after use for more than a century. Some error in the heraldic significance of the second seal was found and Secretary of State John Hay under Roosevelt, ordered a new great seal which embraced the best features of the first and second seals, and that is now in use.

In attesting certain state papers, the secretary of state applies the seal with considerable formality. When not in use it is kept in the vaults of the state department.

There is always some comment or story going the rounds out here about President and Mrs. Coolidge. It is always a pleasant comment and usually shows unabated interest in their "doings" and their future plans. The latest is about the old homestead up in the Vermont hills. Three generations of Coolidges have been born and raised there, and home ties run strong in the Coolidge blood.

"They say" President Coolidge hopes some day his son John will build a summer home up on the old homestead.

"They say" also, that Mr. Coolidge won't listen to any suggestion that he built the house for John, or that Mrs. Coolidge or Mrs. John's wealthy father, Gov. Trumbull of Connecticut, takes a hand in it. He wants John to make good first, then build his own house. We can take the story for what it is worth, but it certainly "sounds like the president," as we all used to say in the press gallery, when some new story of a Coolidge wise crack went the rounds. Probably half the clever stories so passed round had no foundation, but if they "sounded like Coolidge," they were generally accepted as genuine and got into the newspapers.

PRACTICAL MARY

Mary Phelps was the single exception in a family famous for their good looks. Perhaps in different surroundings she might have passed unnoticed, but her sister Lillian was a beauty and her four brothers were decidedly handsome; thus by contrast Mary appeared plain.

As plainness and practicality are supposed to go together, Mary's relatives had thrust this trait upon her from early childhood. Being somewhat sensitive, Mary accepted their dictum without murmur and endeavored to live up to her reputation until the trait grew into habit. She wore unobtrusive clothes, never donned ornaments, went about her affairs calmly and efficiently and was more solicitous of other folks' comfort than her own. Even the presents that were given her were always of the class termed "useful."

Although unable to attract strangers with the ease of her sister, Mary retained the few friends that she made, while Lillian, quickly tiring of the old, was ever in want of new.

When at 23 Mary became engaged to John Orde the family were a bit surprised; how happened she to be asked in marriage before Lillian? To be sure they were delighted with the match.

"John is as dependable and practical as Mary," declared Mrs. Phelps.

They had a small home wedding; did not indulge in a trip but went directly to the bungalow in the suburb of Hillside Park that was ready and waiting. Time proved Mrs. Phelps' estimate of her son-in-law true and Mary was happy as the proverbial lark.

John and Mary had been married about a year when a group of young folk in Hillside Park organized a drama league and invited them to join. At first the parts assigned Mary were insignificant; finally, however, the manager that rehearsed them and who was from a school of dramatic art in the city selected her for leading lady in a bright little comedy.

"Mary!" ejaculated Lillian, after reading the comedy. Mary had come home to consult mother and sister regarding costumes and had brought a book of the play with her. "I can't understand Mr. Wilkes choosing you for Lydia Manning. Lydia is a gay, light-hearted young creature, not at all your type. Why don't you ask him to change you to Mrs. Uppington?"

"Mr Wilkes seems to have confidence in my being able to portray the character," returned Mary, "and I shall do my best not to disappoint him."

When Mary was gone Lillian remarked, "I wish, mother, that you would try and dissuade her. She's sure to make a failure and spoil the play."

"Let the child try if she wants to," said Mrs. Phelps. "Suppose she isn't perfect. It's not a matter of great importance."

"I'm willing to help with the costumes," exclaimed Lillian, "though I shall not attend the play. I don't care to witness Mary making a goose of herself."

When the eventful night arrived, however, Lillian changed her mind and accompanied her mother out to the Hillside Park Country club, where the play was to be given.

Mary didn't make her appearance on the stage until the middle of the opening scene; in the beginning she was hampered a little by nervousness, but as the play progressed it wore off and by the time the first act was finished Lillian was compelled to acknowledge to her brother-in-law—John, not taking part in the comedy, was sitting beside her—that Mary was doing better than she had expected.

And Mary continued to do better and better until when the curtain fell upon the last scene the audience with tumultuous applause called her forth again and again to receive its acclamations in person.

During the entire performance John had remained lost in astonishment; could it be possible that this gay, dashing young person was his Mary? She was so natural, so charming, that as soon as the play was finished he was impelled to go immediately behind the scenes to assure himself that Lydia Manning was actually his practical, quiet little wife!

He found Mary in the wings, encircled by the entire company and being congratulated by Mr. Wilkes; her eyes were sparkling and there was a flush on her cheeks that showed even through the grease paint. Soon as he was able to speak to her alone he exclaimed: "I never knew, Mary, that you were such a clever actress!"

"Oh, my dear, you are mistaken!" cried she. "I wasn't acting! That was my real self! I've been making believe all my life!"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29—When an old-timer like Wallace Dempsey of New York gets jerked out of his house seat in the primaries after 16 years' service, it's time to begin looking for reasons.

Things like that don't happen very often politically. When a lad with that much seniority, with the chairmanship of the powerful and politically important rivers and harbors committee in his pocket these many years, with a seat in the inner councils of party leadership in the house goes out that way, something is doing.

You could almost as easily expect Nick Longworth to be given the air by his Ohio constituents, or John Tilson to be sunk without warning in Connecticut, or Bert Snell of New York to find the skids under him.

Complicated

Failure to heed prohibition signs of the times in his district, signs which Governor Roosevelt and former U. S. District Attorney Tuttle of New York City seem to have had little trouble in making out, is what New York political writers thought caused Dempsey's downfall.

It must have been something like that, plus a complicated three-way fight for republican congressional honors in the 40th New York.

For Wallace Dempsey at the very close of the last session of congress, managed to get over the thing he seemed to be particularly driving at all of his house career—government acquisition of the Erie-Oswego canal from the state.

There have been few wilder times on the house floor than when that bill passed. Folks from the north and middle west fought the plan because they thought it would hamper the St. Lawrence waterway project. And charges of all sorts whirled about Dempsey's devoted head.

Finally Passed

One of the items in the bill was a little unusual. It authorized promotion of Brigadier General Herbert Deakyne, head of army engineer river and harbor activities, to the rank of major general. Dempsey's colleague, LaGuardia, got excited about that. He shook a fist at Dempsey and shouted:

"That's not legislation; it's bribery."

Dempsey lost out on the Deakyne promotion, but not on the canal acquisition. That got through by a big vote. And when it went to the senate Dempsey was on the job over there. He sat it out on the senate floor, undisturbed by sundry verbal shots at him. And he saw his canal acquisition go through the senate also in the end.

It took Dempsey more than 15 years to reach that point. He had been suspected of having hopes of winning a nomination for governor out of it. But what did happen to him?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Life

Mr Editor: Ofttimes a chance remark will start us on a line of thought that brings to our minds a something, a thought of the battle of life. Many times life is a struggle against adverse conditions that confront us and we do not for the time being know how to meet them. We falter and cry we haven't got a chance, and if those who reached the goal of their ambition had stopped and stood still they would never have reached that pinnacle of success that came through constant effort and hard work. Consider the lack of opportunity and the environment of that great American, Lincoln, who, when struggling to get somewhere, didn't even have writing paper or anything with which he might jot down his thoughts. But by the flickering light of a log fire before an open fireplace in the leanto he called home he, with a piece of charcoal and a shingle, worked hard to acquire an education. In his case it could be truly said he did not have a chance, but he took advantage of the meagre opportunities that were at hand and rose superior to his surroundings and eventually reached that position in life that was the greatest gift of the people of this country—the president of the United States. Everyone of us is the architect of our own lives, and we know that although we may have a struggle to get there we will get there if we will. Some there are who will tell you that the world owes them a living. I admit that, for it is really so. The world owes everyone of us a living, but you can be sure we will have to go out and collect it for there are many others out on the same errand. We recall that success comes to those who are ever on the alert. Do you remember what Lord Nelson once said? "I owe all my success in life to having always being a quarter of an hour before hand."

Perhaps, plainly speaking, you have to keep on plugging all the time. It comes to mind at this time the memory of a certain boy who lived in and was born in the city of Norwich. His mother was a widow, for his father had been killed in one of the battles of the Civil war. Perhaps he didn't have a chance but he did have the determination to be a force in the world's work. During the summer he worked on the farm of Palmer Newton whose farmhouse even today stands opposite to St. Mary's cemetery. This boy instead of taking a vacation worked in the woods hauling out cord wood with a yoke of oxen. Hard work! Of course it was, and as he told me many years ago: "I am saving my wages for I am going to take up the study of law, for I want to move up in the world and better my condition in life." I followed his career and he got there and became in after years assistant district attorney for the state of Connecticut. His name I know and if at any time the editor wishes to know I will tell him but in this letter let it be unknown. He could have sat down and given up. He might have been just another recruit for that great army who will tell you, "What's the use, I haven't got a chance!"

Do you ever watch a football game? You will perhaps hear some one hand out this: "Why that team hasn't got a chance." And yet, those self same boys who haven't got a chance go in with a determination to win, buck the line, play the game square and get the touchdowns that puts them in the winning column. They get the breaks and take every advantage. Life is just like the game of football, for after all, life at its best is a game and we all go into it, or at least we ought to, with the thought that in the bright lexicon of youth there is no such word as fail. Yet you may not be willing to admit this one concrete fact, that many times, luck plays a prominent part in our lives and many of the great athletes are obsessed with the thought that luck holds a winning hand. This season of 1930, Connie Mack, the leader of the Athletics, who, by the way, has the American league pennant in that mysterious bag, was a catcher on the old Hartford team of the state league, years ago. He has as one of his lieutenants, Eddie Collins, who always has a wad of chewing gum posted on the button on the top of his cap. When the pitcher has got two on him he would step out of the batter's box, take the chewing gum and start chewing it and then he would hit. Who said we haven't got a chance? It is up to us to take advantage of it, to merit it and command success.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Two of a Kind

Be it wrong or be it right,
We all are slaves of appetite.
—Buster Bear.

Impy the black Chipmunk clung to the branch of a tree which he had climbed and wished with all his might that he had remained at home. You see right down below him was great big Buster Bear. Impy didn't know who it was, but he did know that he was very, very much afraid. It was the first time he had seen Buster Bear. Indeed he had not even heard of Buster. But something inside him told him that if he wanted to continue to frisk about happily it would be best to remain out of reach of this big, black fellow.

"Woof! Woof!" said Buster Bear, as he put his nose to the trunk of the tree. "Woof! Woof! I smell Chipmunk."

Buster licked his lips when he said that, and the way in which he did this gave Impy a most uncomfortable feeling. Buster's nose, his wonderful nose, had found the place where Impy had climbed the trunk of the tree. That is why Buster said that he smelled Chipmunk. He sat down on his haunches and looked up in the tree. His little eyes—for they are small for his size—had a hungry look in them. It was enough to make every hair on any one's coat stand on end, and that is just what every hair in Impy's black coat was doing. Now, Impy didn't move. It wasn't because he didn't want to move; it was because he couldn't move. He couldn't move because he was too frightened to move. That is one of the ways in which Old Mother Nature sometimes looks after her children. There are times when their safety depends on their remaining without motion. Old Mother Nature protects them by making them so frightened they cannot move.

Down on the ground was great, big Buster Bear. Up in the tree was little Impy, one of Striped Chipmunk's children. So far as the color of their coats was concerned they were two of a kind. Never have you seen anything blacker than those two coats. So far as appetites were concerned they were two of a kind. Impy had come over there to see if the nuts were ready to harvest, for you know, like all Squirrels, Chipmunks are very fond of nuts. Buster Bear had come over there for the same purpose. Buster also is very fond of nuts of certain kinds. He is especially fond of beechnuts, and these were the nuts that Impy was most interested in just then.

Buster sniffed around on the ground for a few minutes and then whined. It was a whine of disappointment. Yes, sir, that is just what it was—a whine of disappointment. There wasn't a nut on the ground. He came back to the tree and looked up in it. Impy was sure that Buster was looking for him. He wasn't for he didn't even know that Impy was there. For a few moments, which seemed ages to Impy, Buster sat there at the foot of the tree, looking up. Then he arose to his full height. He stood up on his hind feet. Yes, sir, he stood up just like a man! Impy very nearly let go and dropped when he saw this. Buster reached up, dug his claws into the bark and a second later he was climbing that tree. There wasn't then the shadow of doubt in Impy's mind that Buster was climbing for him. What should he do? It seemed to him that his heart would beat itself to pieces.

As a matter of fact, Buster Bear was climbing that tree to see if he could shake off any of the nuts. Already he had forgotten the smell of Chipmunk. But Impy didn't know this and so he was frightened almost to death.

SWEETEN ACID STOMACH THIS PLEASANT WAY

When people experience distress two hours after eating—suffer from heartburn, gas, indigestion—nine times out of ten it's excess acid that's causing their trouble.

The best way—the quickest way to correct this is with an alkali. And Phillips Milk of Magnesia is an alkali, in the harmless, most pleasant and palatable form. It's the form physicians prescribe; which hospitals use; which millions have come to depend upon in over 50 years of steadily increasing use.

A spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water neutralizes many times its volume in excess acid; and does it at once. In five minutes, the symptoms of excess acid disappear. To know this perfect way is to be through with crude methods forever.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. A less perfect product may not act the same. All drug stores have the generous 25c and 50c bottles. Full directions for its many uses are always in the package.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

The members of the Monday Bridge club held a preliminary meeting Monday evening with Mrs. Harold T. Robinson, of Carroll avenue, making plans for the season.

FLETCHER POST INVITES FOR ARMISTICE DAY PARADE

Announcement was made Monday evening by Charles B. Gilbert, secretary of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, and chairman of the committee of arrangements, that letters have been sent out by the Legion to 38 civic, fraternal and patriotic organizations, relative to having a parade here on Armistice day, Nov. 11. If any organizations have not received an invitation to participate in the parade, it was purely an oversight and the committee trusts that they will advise them, so that an invitation may be sent. As yet the committee has had no word from Norwich Free Academy or the public or parochial schools as to whether they intend to close on that day and take part as units in the parade, but it is hoped they will do so.

The letter sent out to the different organizations by the Legion is as follows:

My Dear: The merchants' bureau of Norwich have very fittingly agreed to close their stores this year to do honor to the observance of Armistice day.

The Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, is arranging for a parade of many of the organizations of Norwich to take place the forenoon of Armistice day, Tuesday, Nov. 11.

Will you kindly take up with your organization, as soon as possible, the question of whether they care to cooperate in this matter by parading and then send word of their decision to the chairman of the committee named below.

If there is any chance of your being accompanied by a band, kindly indicate the fact in your reply.

If you and the organizations reply favorably the parade will be arranged. If too few organizations wish to co-operate there will be no parade. It is up to you.

SELECTMEN RECOMMEND 4 5-8 MILL TAX TO COVER REGULAR EXPENSES OF TOWN

According to the annual report of the board of selectmen, which was issued Monday, a tax of 4 5-8 mills is recommended to cover the town expenses for the coming year. The amount to be raised by tax is $221,-331.75, which when figured on a town grand list of $48,641,787 produces the estimated rate as stated. The rate recommended is half a mill more than was asked last year, when the selectmen recommended 4 1-8 mills.

This will be voted upon at the annual town meeting and there is also to be a vote upon the appropriation for schools, for which there is $342,083.42 to be raised by tax, as recommended by the school board, which amounts to between 7 and 8 mills. The regular town expenses and the school expenses make up the amount to be raised by the town tax.

Selectmen's Report

The report by the selectmen, William S. Murray, Charles P. Bushnell and Philias Poirier, calls attention to the payment of $33,000 upon the town's indebtedness and states that the outside poor relief was the only account in which it was necessary to expend more during the year than the estimates made at the beginning of the 12 months. This was largely due to the general business depression and the board is asking a larger sum this year for the outside poor account than last year.

The selectmen make the following report:

To the citizens of the town of Norwich:

During the past year, the affairs of the town have been conducted by your board of selectmen without the occurance of any unusual incidents and in most cases without the necessity of any larger expenditures of money than was anticipated at the time of the last annual town meeting. An exception to this condition, however, occurred in the expenditures for outside poor relief where, owing to the business depression it was found necessary to expend considerable more than was estimated. For this reason and in view of the fact that business conditions have not as yet improved, your board finds it necessary to recommend a considerably larger appropriation for this item the coming year.

Many worthy heads of families are still without employment and while in some cases the efforts of your board have been successful in finding work for them, in many others this proved impossible making it necessary to furnish them and their families with temporary relief.

Probably due to the same condition the number of inmates at Riverside home have somewhat increased making a slight additional expense in this department. The home has continued to be well cared for under the supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis and such repairs as were necessary have been made during the year.

The town highways have been kept in repair and more road has been oiled and tarred during the past season than ever before in the history of the town.

Many applications for employment on the highways have been received from our local citizens and so far as possible such employment has been given. The care of the trees on town property have been continued.

Considerable repair work has been necessary upon the various town bridges but the expense has been kept within the limits of the appropriation and all bridges are now believed to be in good condition.

The financial condition of the town is good, $33,000 having been paid upon the town's indebtedness, which sum includes the payment of $8,000 to extinguish the town's note, for the improvement to the Gallow's Hill road.

An appropriation of $2,000 for further state aid road work is recommended for the coming year. If this appropriation is made, the state will appropriate $8,000 which will result in the permanent improvement and taking over by the state highway of a further section of town highways.

All current bills of the town have been paid and there is at present a small balance in the treasury. The following is a statement of the estimated expenses and receipts of the town for the coming fiscal year as prepared by your board and recommended for adoption at the coming annual town meeting:

Estimated expenses—Alms houses, $10,500; outside poor, $17,000; insane, $12,000; neglected and dependent children, $5,000; widow's pension, $7,-500; highways, (Town of Norwich), $85,000; highways, (City of Norwich), $23,000; macadam repairs, $3,000; oiling roads, $5,000; bridges, $5,000; contingent, $15,000; interest, $16,000; national guard $6,000; election expenses, $5,000; registry of vital statistics, $1,800; town clerk's office, $1,-000; state aid roads, $2,000; town property tax, $10,000; sinking fund, $25,000; tuberculosis, $2,000; probate court, re-appropriation, $6,000; street lighting, $9,200, state tax, $24,000; county tax, $5,500; assessors' office, $8,000; Chelsea parade, $900; town health office, $1,200; Taftville Fire Engine company, $800; Yantic Fire Engine company, $800. Total, $273,200.

Estimated receipts — Unexpended balance, $868.25; dog license's, $1,000; uncollected taxes, $25,000; bank and insurance stock, $6,000; personal tax, $19,000; to be raised by tax, $221,-331.75. Total, $273,200.00.

A tax of 4 5-8 mills on the dollar is recommended by the board and will be sufficient to defray the above expenses as recommended.

Selectmen of the Town of Norwich.

Town School Committee

The town school committee requests an appropriation by the town of the sum of $342,083.42 for the support of the schools during the coming year. The committee's report and recommendations will be presented for action at the annual town meeting.

SAILOR KUBISKY IS HELD CRIMINALLY LIABLE

According to a finding made by Coroner Edward G. McKay in the case of the fatal shooting of Miss Marie R. Woods, 16, late of 277 Laurel Hill avenue, by Stephen Kubisky, who is attached to the submarine base, the sailor is held criminally liable.

Kubisky is at present held in the brig at the submarine base, but will be brought before the city court here on a manslaughter charge, when it is expected he will be bound over to the next term of the superior court.

The coroner's finding follows:

This tragedy occurred in the rear of Miss Woods' home on Laurel Hill avenue, in the city of Norwich. The said Stephen Kubisky was visiting a family named Oats, who lived in a house next to Miss Woods. During the day he had been engaged in shooting a small 22 calibre rifle. He had purchased the rifle that day. A few of his friends were firing it at bottles and cans in the yard. They had used up considerable ammunition during the time that they were shooting.

Towards the end of the afternoon the said Stephen Kubisky was sitting on a pair of stairs in the rear of the Oats' home. He was facing towards the Woods' home and Miss Woods was sitting on the back veranda of her home. This veranda is about 30 feet above the ground level and about 50 feet distant from the steps on which Mr. Kubisky was sitting. With Mr. Kubisky at that time was Miss Woods' brother, Robert.

While Kubisky and Robert were sitting on the steps they were shooting at a target to their left. They alternated shots, Kubisky shooting one shot and Robert, the next. Kubisky knew that Miss Woods was sitting on the veranda reading a book. She was not paying any particular attention to Kubisky. Late in the afternoon when it came Kubisky's turn to shoot he aimed the gun towards Miss Woods and called out that he was going to shoot her then he turned the gun away from the line of Miss Woods and fired. The bullet went into the air to the left. He then turned the gun over to Robert. Robert took his turn and returned the gun to Kubisky. The second time Kubisky aimed the gun at Miss Woods and told her again that he was going to shoot her. The second time he turned the gun away to the left and the bullet went into the air. Robert then warned him not to aim the gun at his sister. Miss Woods at that time was paying little attention to what was going on in the yard. A third time Kubisky aimed the gun at Miss Woods and that time the gun went off before he had turned the muzzle away. That bullet struck Miss Woods in the face mortally wounding her. She fell to the floor of the veranda and was later taken into the house and rushed to the hospital.

Her injury however, proved fatal and she died a few hours later.

After Kubisky had fired the fatal shot he threw the gun aside and rushed to Miss Woods' assistance. When he saw how seriously she was injured he became panic-stricken and left the vicinity. He left town and was not heard from again for about 10 days.

This unfortunate death was caused by the reckless use of firearms. I do not believe that there was any intent on the part of Kubisky to shoot Miss Woods. However, it was exceedingly careless and reckless of him to point the gun in that direction on three different occasions and when the gun was discharged and the bullet struck Miss Woods he was then criminally liable for her death.

I am satisfied and find that the death of Marie Rosabelle Woods was caused by the criminal act of Stephen Kubisky in the negligent and reckless firing of a shot at the said Marie Rosabelle Woods, causing fatal injury and I have so reported to the prosecuting attorney for the city of Norwich.

SPOKE ON "FRIENDSHIP" TO CONTACT CLUB

Just Friendship was the topic of a talk given Monday noon by Rev. George Donahue, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church, at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Contact club. The meeting, as usual, was held at the Wauregan hotel and was conducted by President Ernest O. Rodier. Edward T. Connelly was the song leader. John Fitzgerald, chairman of the programme committee, introduced the speaker, Father Donahue, who said in part:

Friendship is often used without much thought and less reflection. The old pagans often turned to it for a theme and poets lean upon it as hard as they do upon Spring. And yet it is one of the most beautiful and mysterious emotions in our make-up. It does not depend upon an exchange of ideas because the deepest friendships of thriven on silence, and it is not a manifestation of sex because a David could say to Jonathan: "Thy love for me was wonderful, surpassing the love of women."

Sometimes I think real friendship has departed this life and then when I move into a circle like this I think I must be mistaken. However, a modern writer who also knows how to think, recently said: "Everyone now is a scholastic at two," by which phrase he meant we have become too wise to be worthy of friendship! Clubs like yours, however, breed hope for other virtues which Christ always loved and never failed to properly appraise.

At the conclusion of his fine talk, Rev. Fr. Donahue was given a rising vote of thanks.

NO CRIMINAL BLAME IN CLYDE SMITH DEATH

According to a finding made public Monday by Coroner Edward G. McKay, the death of Clyde R. Smith, Jr., 17, late of New London, fatally injured on the Norwich-Jewett City road, was not caused by the criminal act of any other person. The youth was driving a motorcycle Sept 4 when he figured in a collision with an automobile driven by Charles H. Sternberg of New London. In his finding, the coroner says:

At about 10 a. m., on Sept. 4th, 1930, the said Charles H. Sternberg was driving alone in his Buick coupe from Norwich to Jewett City. He was being followed on the road by a large transportation truck. Traffic was relatively light on the road. As Mr. Sternberg approached the curve to the northeast he noticed the said Clyde Smith riding toward him on the motorcycle. At this time the motorcycle was on the east side of the road and going south at a moderate rate of speed. The driver had his head turned down toward the river. As the two vehicles came closer together Mr. Sternberg sounded his horn and started to slow down. Mr. Smith did not seem to hear the horn nor did he realize his perilous position. He continued along the same course until he was almost upon the automobile.

The evidence in this case tended to prove that at the time of the collision Mr. Smith was driving on the wrong side of the road. The manner in which he was driving indicated that he was either looking at the river or had his head turned to relieve the pressure of the wind against his face. Mr. Sternberg did what he thought was reasonable to avoid the collision.

I am satisfied and find that the death of Clyde R. Smith was not caused by the criminal act, omission or carelessness of any other person or persons.

MOTOR TRUCK ABLAZE IN SUMMIT STREET YARD

One of three large and heavily loaded trucks owned by the Taylor Trucking Co., Inc., was badly damaged by fire early this (Tuesday) morning on Summit street. Engine No. 5, Engine No 6 and Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan responded to a telephone call sent in about 12:40 o'clock and a stream of water was used in extinguishing the fire.

The truck, a Reo speed wagon, had been parked in the yard at No. 247 Summit street, the residence of L. B. Taylor, about 7:30 o'clock Monday night. A short circuit probably caused the blaze which burned off the cab, scorched the sides of the truck and considerably damaged the load which comprised produce, boxed goods castings, etc., destined for New London.

When the fire was discovered the truck was pushed from the yard into the street, where the fire was extinguished. The flames were shooting a dozen feet in the air but were quickly squelched by the stream of water.

FOUR CALLS MONDAY FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

Four small fires were responsible for telephone calls to the local fire department Monday. At 6:57 o'clock Monday morning Engine No. 5 responded to a call for a fire in an automobile owned by Samuel Colt. The machine was in the rear of No. 190 West Main street when it caught fire.

At 11:13 o'clock there was a grass fire on property owned by Michael Gulom at Curran street and about 11:30 o'clock there was a call for a brush fire on property at Adair street, owned by Mrs. Ellen Mulholland.

At 12:29 o'clock the department responded to a telephone call for a burning plank at Preston bridge. The fire was caused by a carelessly thrown cigarette butt.

MONTVILLE COUPLE UNDER PROBATION FOR ASSAULT

(Special to The Bulletin)

MONTVILLE, Sept. 29.—The case of Mr. and Mrs. James Mattasa, of Mohegan hill, Montville, arrested by State Trooper Kathe of Groton barracks Friday evening on the charge of assaulting two minor boys, Arthur and James Cook, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cook, of the same address, came up before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church tonight in Montville justice court. The trouble began when the two Cook boys, who drive a produce truck for their father, were stopped by Mattasa, who jumped upon the running board and proceeded to beat up the boys. He claimed that they called him and the family vile names. Mrs. Mattasa picked up a stone and threw it at Arthur Cook and hit him above the left eye, making a gash which required three stitches to close.

Mattasa testified that the boys pointed an empty revolver at him during the fight. The judge found both the accused guilty and ordered them to pay the costs of the court. They were also put under 60 days' probation. If they keep the peace for that time the judge will enter a complete nolle.

Bellerose, a representative of the forget-me-not drive of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, came to the city Monday and received permission from the police to sell the forget-me-nots on the street from now to Sunday. There is no special price for the flowers, but the amount realized will be used for relief of families of non-compensated veterans, Christmas packages to veterans in hospitals and general needy cases.

Conn. Mother Knew Best

WISE mothers find the things that keep children contented, happy, well. Most of them have learned they can depend on one thing to restore a youngster's good nature when he's cross, fretful, upset.

The experience of Mrs. E. Roberts, 38 Prospect Ave., Hartford, is typical one. She says: "I have used California Fig Syrup with both my boys practically all their lives for colds and upsets. Whenever they're the least bit constipated or restless I give them a little. It has them comfortable, happy, well in a jiffy. Their splendid condition proves I knew best when I decided to use this wonderful preparation with them."

Physicians endorse the use of pure vegetable California Fig Syrup when bad breath, coated tongue, dullness, feverishness, listlessness, etc., show a child's bowels are in need of help. Weak stomach and bowels are toned by its gentle aid; appetite increased; digestion and assimilation are so assisted that weak, undernourished children quickly improve in weight, strength and energy.

The genuine always bears the word California. So look for that when buying. All druggists have it.

TROLAND TO HAVE STRONG TEAM TO OPPOSE SHYMAS ON LEFTY DUGAS DAY

James H. Troland, the gray-thatched veteran of Taftville's baseball diamonds, is rounding up a ball club to furnish one-half of the afternoon's entertainment next Saturday in the Dugas day welcome home celebration. Troland, who has been prominently identified with baseball in eastern Connecticut for the past forty years, and has always given the fans a real team to watch, intends to put on one of the strongest clubs that can be recruited locally.

In picking his club Troland has let sentiment enter into his selections more or less as he has chosen players who have played ball on various clubs with the illustrious Lefty for the past few years. These players are all known to the local fans who have followed their careers with keen interest. He has chosen players who at various times have played with Taftville baseball outfits in former years.

Old Man Jimmy said last night that he would give the fans some real baseball and that he was not fooling. He also said that his club was out to win even if the baseball game was in the nature of a welcome home party for Lefty Dugas and that Lefty would find just as much opposition on the Providence street grounds as he did at Philadelphia and St. Louis when he was playing with the Pirates.

Included in his lineup will be Mondi Normandin, with whom Dugas played at the Norwich State hospital when Doc Wilcox was manager of the best club in the state; Carlie Krauss, with whom Dugas played as a member of the Velvetmen; Cimikoski, Hal Cummings, Charlie Lamorey, Middy Dugas, the Jarvis brothers, and Rabbit Gauthier, all of whom were members of the Taftville A. A. when Dugas was a member. Added to this array of local talent will be Mack Hillis, property of the Pittsburgh Pirates who last season performed with the Sacramento team of the Pacific Coast league. Hillis will be remembered as one of Troland's ball tossers in the famed Taftville-J. B. Martin series of past years.

But there was one point on which the crafty James was silent. He positively refused to give out his battery for the game. The only thing that he would say was that it would be a big league team. There is much speculation as to whom he would get, some claiming that it might be Gabby Hartnett who lives up in the Bay State. However it looks as though there would be a real ball game up there at Taftville Saturday. The lineup of the Shyma club will not be known until word from Lefty is received telling who of the big league boys he is bringing to Taftville with him and who will play as members of the Shyma club.

EXPERTS CONSIDER TEAMS ARE ABOUT ON EVEN TERMS

(By Brian Bell Associated Press Sports Writer)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29—(AP)—A country judge once told attorneys for the defense after the plaintiff's lawyers had presented their case, "There's no use hearing your argument; the plaintiff wins."

But the other side insisted on a hearing and when the speakers had finished, the judge said, "Don't that beat all. The defense wins now."

A statistician delving into world's series figures finds that both sides win.

Gordon Cochrane, the Athletics' star catcher, stands out head and shoulders above Gus Mancuso, young St. Louis receiver, who will have to do practically all the catching as Jimmy Wilson's injured ankle will not permit him to start a game.

The Athletics are credited with the better quality of pitching but the Cardinals have the quantity. It is presumed that Manager Mack will start Robert Moses Grove and George Earnshaw with Bill Shores and Eddie Rommel as a possibility for other games.

Manager Street has Burleigh Grimes, Bill Hallahan, Jess Haines and Flint Rhem ready to start, and in reserve such sterling performers as Sylvester Johnson, Jim Lindsey, Al Grabowski and Herman Bell. The A's second line of defense is made up of George Walberg, Jack Quinn, Leroy Mahaffey and young Charley Perkins.

Frankie Frisch's brilliant performance under fire makes him a stand out in the infield and gives the Cardinals an admitted edge there, but Al Simmons, who is at the lead of American league batsmen, or in the immediate vicinity, can out step any Cardinal outfielder.

Both managers were former catchers, but Connie Mack had laid aside his big glove before Gabby Street picked his up. Neither Mack nor Street is the driving type of manager, preferring a pat on the back to vigorous tongue lashings. Players say, however, that both can be firm when occasion demands.

A short series of seven games, or less, does not lend itself to deep or extensive strategy but the Cardinals and Atheltics are in position to shift an outfielder when the pitching changes. By using Ray Blades against a lefthanded pitcher, instead of George Watkins, who hits from the left side of the plate, Street can offer a lineup with only one lefthanded batsman, "Sunny Jim" Bottomley, his first baseman. Frisch is a turn around hitter and equally at home on either side of the plate.

When the Cardinals send a lefthander to the mound, Mack may substitute Jim Moore, his hard hitting Texas league recruit, for Mule Haas, and have only two lefthanders at bat, Cochrane and Max Bishop.

AGGIES BEING DRILLED ON PASSING ATTACK

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Sept. 29.—Still feeling the effects of the game which they lost to Albright college last Saturday, 19-0, and not fully recovered from the tiring effects of the trip to and from Reading, the Connecticut Aggie football squad was called out for a practice session which lasted only an hour here this afternoon. While the running attack of the Aggies in the Albright game was fairly strong, the lack of a consistent forward pass attack was strongly felt and Coach Dole began this afternoon a week of practice in which he will have the backfield concentrate on developing an effective aerial offense.

With the loss of Ray Ryan and Pheno Tombari through graduation last June, Coach Dole is confronted with the problem of building up a set of passers from the material at hand, none of which is exceptionally promising at the present time. No passers came up from last year's freshman class and Pinky McCombe, who was unable to play last year, has been required to do most of the throwing so far this season.

Another phase of practice which will be given special attention this week is that of line charging and checking. It is the coach's desire to speed up the charging and make the checking more effective, and to accomplish that the line spent most of today's practice working on those two duties.

The team is now in good physical condition, with the exception of Rebman, a tackle, who is recovering from a broken rib which he received in a practice game with the Coast Guard Bears. Chubbuck still has a slight limp from a knee which he twisted last week but he will probably see service in the game at Middletown with Wesleyan next Saturday.

FRIEDMAN PUTS YALE BACKS THROUGH PASSING DRILL

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Benny Friedman, former Michigan star, returned to New Haven today after a week's absence to aid Head Coach Mal Stevens polish up Yale's forward passing game. He spent the entire afternoon with the backs and ends and is expected to come here for a day or two each week to continue his instructions during the season.

Kemp Dunn, who injured his shoulder in Saturday's game against Maine, is expected back tomorrow. At first it was believed his injury would keep him idle for at least a week.

Joe Crowley, the only sophomore back on the varsity squad, reported for practice after an absence of nearly two weeks because of a leg injury.

LOUISVILLE BEATS ROCHESTER IN LITTLE WORLD SERIES TILT

PARKWAY FIELD, Louisville, Ky., Sept. 29.—(AP)—Kentucky sunshine thawed out the Louisville Colonels, chilled by the wintry blasts at Rochester, and they staged a hitting rampage this afternoon that ended in a 14 to 7 rout of the Red Wings. The Colonels pounded four Rochester pitchers for 21 hits to avenge their shutout yesterday at Rochester. The Wings gathered 13 hits from three Louisville hurlers.

The American association club cut the lead of the International league champions to one game. The series now stands three victories for Rochester and two for Louisville.

No Players—No Game

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 29.—(AP)—A scheduled double header between Seattle and Los Angeles teams of the Pacific Coast baseball league was not played here today.

The sun shone brightly at game time. But no players warmed up on the field. The teams, it was learned, left last night for Los Angeles where 11 contests are expected to be held. No official comment on the situation was forthcoming.

Sports writers said poor attendance was to blame.

CARDS AND ATHLETICS TUNE UP FOR SERIES

By BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals, champions of the National league, came to Philadelphia today, not to open the world series Wednesday but "just to play a couple of ball games." On arrival they found that the Philadelphia Athletics, too, regarded the opening contest as "only a ball game" and not an epic struggle.

Gabby Street, with his fingers battered by the steaming slants of Walter Johnson and hundreds of other pitchers in his 20 years of catching, spoke for his Cardinals on their arrival at the battle field this afternoon.

"There's nothing to get excited about," he said.

"We are here just to play a couple of ball games. We won't tighten up and we will do our best. Of course, we think we will win, but if we don't they can't shoot us."

Connie Mack, had only one worry. He was afraid his Athletics would be taxed to the near breaking point by the demand of friends for tickets.

"This waiting for the games to start is worse than the play itself," he said. "No, I won't predict the outcome of the series. I know we have a good team and the Cards must have a great one, considering their wonderful uphill fight for the pennant. That was one of the finest finishes any team ever made and I know that a crowd that can accomplish that is capable of doing anything."

The Athletics today took an extended batting drill with Jack Quinn, their spitball pitcher, throwing the ball up to the batsmen. The A's expect Burleigh Grimes to be the Cardinal pitcher in the opening game and Manager Street has made no secret of his intent to start the former Robin, Giant, Pirate and Brave.

After the batting drill, the A's excused themselves from company and had a "secret practice" much on the order of a football team preparing for a big game.

The Cardinals will practice at Shibe park tomorrow afternoon for the first time.

All the American league champions were pronounced fit. The Cardinals reported two casualties. Jimmy Wilson, the first string catcher, suffered a sprained ankle some time ago and probably will not be able to take his turn behind the bat. Unless an emergency arises Gus Mancuso, the young catcher with a big batting average, will do all the receiving. Sylvester Johnson, a pitcher, too, has suffered recently from an old injury, a fractured rib, but he will be able to pitch if called to the mound.

K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, was one of the few "outsiders" who saw the A's do their under cover work. The commissioner pronounced the physical arrangements for the series satisfactory.

Tris Speaker, former member of the Athletics and one of the greatest outfielders of all time, was another privileged spectator.

Talk of opening game pitchers continued to name the two G's, Grimes and Grove.

Thousands of fortunate applicants for tickets today filed slowly past the ticket window at Shibe park and collected the bits of paste board entitling them to admission. Tomorrow the rest of the 30,000 whose applications were accepted will use the tickets.

Wednesday morning 3,000 bleacher tickets will be placed on sale in the order of first come, first served. One man was in line tonight but tomorrow he will be joined by many others.

I wonder if you folks have heard the same criticisms of our recent style show that I have?

Seems like those who sponsored this style show forgot that there were some women in this good little city of ours who were not perfect thirty-sixes.

Of course we admit that they all wish they were but the fates have decreed that they be bountifully upholstered. You know, it takes overstuffed furniture as well as Sheraton and Chippendale to make up a well balanced house, if you know what I mean.

Now it seems that these women with rippling curves and double chins found only streamline models at the style show. For them it was a flop.

What they wanted to see was something that they could wear without having to be melted and poured into it or be subjected to a spinach and cold water diet. They were looking for styles that would make Powerful Katrinka look like Venus deMilo.

But they were disappointed as all the models were of the willowy type and none of the sturdy oak variety.

Now I'm not trying to cast any reflections on the willowy model but only trying to sympathize with those whose poundage is in the welterweight class or over.

Now I think those merchants who sponsored that style show would have done well if they had considered the plump woman. They should have shown lawn tent models at least.

They might have shown some awning cloth dresses with the stripes running up and down to give an impression of slenderness. Or they might have shown some of these flowered materials in oversize models. The only trouble with that flowered material is that lots of people mistake it for crimson ramblers on a house.

But I rise in defense of the fat woman. She should be considered by the merchants, if only from a commercial standpoint. Just figure how much more material goes into making a tent than goes into an apron.

It looks like good business to me to cater to the fat woman, there's a lot more of her to clothe.

ATLANTIC CARTON LEAGUE GETS UNDERWAY FOR SEASON

The Atlantic Carton Corp. bowling league got underway last night at the Aetna alleys. The Printing Dept. got away to a good start by taking four points from the Shipping Dept. The Cutting and Creasing Dept. took 3 out of 4 points from the Office and the Stripping Dept. and the Die Dept. split even with 2 points apiece. Tringe was high man for three strings with a total of 344 with Rokowski a close second with 341. Morgan had high single with a string of 138. In the first strings bowled in this league one of the queer freaks of bowling happened. One team won by 1 pin, another team won by 2 pins and the third team won by 3 pins. This league bowls every Monday night at the Aetna alleys for the next 20 weeks.

NATIONAL AMATEURS DREW TOTAL GATE OF $55,670

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29—(AP)—Announcement was made today that the gate receipts for the national amateur golf championship tournament, played last week at the Merion Cricket club and won by Bobby Jones, were $55,670.

This sets a new record for the event and surpasses the total for the United States open this year at Interlachen.

For the amateur, 3,091 six-day tickets were sold and 16,362 daily tickets. The crowds were considerably larger, however, because of the number of persons working in connection with the tournament and others who slipped in without paying.

Broadway Trims St. Patrick's

Monday afternoon the Broadway school football team defeated the St. Patrick school gridsters 6 to 0 in a hard-fought game. The lineup for Broadway was: Ravenell, re; Gentile, rt; W. Sullivan, rg; Hill, c; Ring, lg; Savage, lt; J. Sullivan, le; Johnson, qb; Herrazo, lhb; Lamperille, rhb; Golembeski, fb.

VON ELM SAYS TOURNAMENT GOLF IS SHOW BUSINESS IN A BIG WAY

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Sept. 29—(AP)—George Von Elm, long recognized as the American amateur golfer ranking second only to Bobby Jones, today amplified his decision to withdraw from all future amateur competition by identifying himself as "a business-man golfer, neither amateur nor professional, who expects to take the profits from open prize money and yet maintain his own private business."

The only player who has beaten Jones in a 36-hole match in the last seven years of American amateur championship competition also signalized his farewell to simon-pure ranks by attacking the United States Golf association, which at one time disbarred the blond star for alleged violation of the amateur rules.

Von Elm characterized the championship tournament as a "highly organized commercialized project," a show for which $50,000 is paid in but nothing contributed to the expenses of the players.

At Merion, last week, Von Elm was runner-up to Jones for medal honors and was eliminated by Maurice McCarthy, Jr., of New York in a record-breaking match that went 10 extra holes. He beat Jones for the championship at Baltusrol in 1926 in the final round.

"I have retired from amateur golf," he said in a formal statement today, "because competing in the American and British amateur and Walker cup international match isn't worth the $10,000 a year it costs me.

"For ten years I've had Mr. stuck in front of my name and that insignia of amateurism has required more than $50,000 of hard earned money.

"I propose hereafter to play golf in such open events as I choose and on such occasions, gamble my skill against the prize money. I want it understood at the same time that I have a business of greater value to me than I could ever hope to equal as a golf professional.

"It isn't nice to treat the subject of my amateur status in cold terms of dollars. The United States Golf association's amateur championship is a highly organized commercialized project. Fifty thousand dollars is paid in for the amateur show, while the 32 performers play their hearts out for honor and glory. Not a penny of that money is contributed by the U. S. G. A. to the expenses of the players. Tournament golf today is show business in a big way.

"The finger of suspicion points to many players of amateur golf today, but the show must go on and the U. S. G. A. is busy a good part of the time straining at gnats and swallowing camels.

"From this day henceforth I am no longer an amateur golfer as defined in the rules of the game. Neither am I a golf professional nor a professional golfer. I am not qualified by training of any kind to become a golf professional. I am simply a business-man golfer.

"If the money prizes in open tournament play are waiting when I post my scores, I shall treat the situation as I do any other situation in my business, where my income is involved. If the money doesn't meet the expense of competition, I shall thereafter give up tournament play altogether because I've reached the place in life where my business must come first."

WAGNER RESIGNS AS MANAGER OF RED SOX

BOSTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The expected resignation of Charles F. "Heinie" Wagner, as manager of the Boston Red Sox, was accepted today by President Bob Quinn. It has been known here for some time that Wagner, who had a one-year contract, would not be re-engaged. His team, which ended the American league season yesterday in last place, had the worst season in its post-war history.

It has been no secret hereabouts that President Quinn has been holding Wagner's resignation for several weeks. Several times during that interval Quinn has silenced rumors with the statement that nothing would be done about the managership of the club until the season closed.

Quinn planned to leave here tonight to attend the world series opening at Philadelphia, where, it was expected, he would open negotiations with Joe McCarthy, recently succeeded by Rogers Hornsby as pilot of the Chicago Cubs, and other managerial timber.

Wagner, a shortstop on the Red Sox 1912 championship team, retired from baseball in 1918 and remained out until 1927, when he was lured back into the game by Bill Carrigan. "Heinie" served as assistant to Carrigan for three seasons and when the latter retired last year, he prevailed upon Quinn to give Wagner a chance with the team.

Wagner, one of the best coaches in baseball, tried to carry out Carrigan's policies during the season and, although he was extremely popular with his players, he lacked the ability to keep them on a winning stride. His team started the season weak in several vital positions and these handicaps had much to do with the abject failure of the club.

COAST GUARD TO PLAY HARVARD ON SATURDAY

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 29.—(AP)—The Harvard Athletic association today announced that the Crimson varsity football team would open the season next Saturday by playing a double header against Vermont and the U. S. Coast Guard academy team from New London, Conn.

Though no explanation accompanied the announcement, it was obvious that the service team was added to the opening day schedule to give the Harvard team the opposition that Head Coach Arnold Horween deems necessary. Vermont was soundly trounced, 41 to 0, by Amherst on Saturday.

The Crimson varsity appeared a bit ragged today during its scrimmage session with the scrubs, Charlie Cunningham, letterman center, receiving a broken ankle during the skirmishing. This injury was expected to keep him idle during most of the season. During the scrimmage, Devens, Forbes and Fullam scored touchdowns for the Varsity and Jimmy Knox forces were held scoreless.

Soccer Challenge

The Jewett City soccer team has been reorganized for the season of 1930-1931. This team would like to arrange with any team for a game Sunday.

The players picked for this team are: Barnfield, Lloyd Jarvis (capt.), D. Gaudette, Cantara Bros., Miller, Juber, Perry, Stonski, MacClugge, Bradshaw and the famous Barthlette Bros.

The J. C. team would like to enter the soccer league, and would like to hear from the league committee. Any team wishing to play the J. C. team, answer through this paper.

MASSIE MILLER IN TIE FOR SECOND IN P. G. O.

NEWINGTON, Conn., Sept. 29.—(AP)—George Siebert, Avon Country club pro, won the Connecticut P. G. O. championship at the Sequin Country club today, with a 36-hole score of 74-75—149. He and Peter Manning, of Chippanee, tied but Siebert won a three hole playoff. Manning had 75-74—149. Three tied for the next place, Jack Perkins, of Wampanoag, 75-76—151; Eddie Lund, Fairfield, 79-72—151, and Massie Miller, Norwich, 71-80—151.

BOBBY MAYS MEETS TOUGH BOY IN AGUILAR FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 29.— Bobby Mays, New London lightweight southpaw boxer, will face the stiffest opposition of his career next Friday night when he meets Armando Aguilar of Chile in the feature go of 10 rounds at the Thames arena here. The Chilean who recently invaded this country has appeared in four bouts in New York and has come through a winner in each battle. He scored a decisive victory over Jimmy Goodrich, Joe Trabon, Freddie Huber and in his last showing at the Queensboro stadium, scored a two round knockout over Johnny Cicecone the lad who holds a decision over Bat Battalino, the present featherweight champion.

Aguilar's style of fighting, similar to that of Jack Kid Berg and Justo Suarez, has appealed to Gotham fight fans and boxing critics predict that he will go a long way in the fighting game. Aguilar is not a boxer, he is of the slugging type and like nothing better than to match his wits with his opponents in a toe to toe slugging battle. He has a mean wallop in both hands and is especially dangerous with his right mitt.

The Chilean has fought numerous southpaw boxers in South America and believes that he will take the measure of the Whaling City youth and possibly score a knockout over him. Not many fighters in this country are willing to mix with a southpaw, but when Matchmaker Al Weill offered Aguilar a chance to trade punches with Mays, he immediately accepted the offer.

FRANKIE FRISCH IS SUFFERING FROM LUMBAGO

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29—(AP)—Frankie Frisch, captain and star second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, who arrived today for the world series Wednesday, is suffering from an attack of lumbago. He said, however, he expected to be in shape to meet the Athletics in the opening game.

"I have had it for two or three days," the Fordham flash said tonight at his hotel, "but it isn't very serious and I'll be all right by Wednesday. I caught cold during our last game with Pittsburgh and it settled in my back."

Westerly Independents Defeat Kaceys

The Westerly Independents won the deciding game from the Kaceys of New London on Sunday when they trounced them decisively by a score of 14 to 4. McInnis was pounded for a total of 15 hits, including a homer by Panciera and two triples by Previty, two by Raffo, one by LaPetrie and one by Kiddy, also a double by Panciera. Bartone hit safely four times. Next Sunday the Independents will play the Sea Scouts.

The Sea Scouts' line-up will be: Karloo, p, and Watterman, c; this pitcher winning from the Senators last Tuesday by a score of 8 to 7. The rest of the line-up is expected to be Coullard, 1st base; Barry, 2nd base; Rhodes, short stop; Krauss, 3rd base; Berger, left field; Sawyer, of the House of David team, center field, and last but not least, Lefty Dugas, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, right field. It is expected that Joe Cranker, of New London, will hold the indicator.

Italians Win Series

By beating the L. H. Athletic club Sunday at Hollyhock Island, the Italian club won the series in two straight games. The score of this game was 12 to 7. Hastings was in fine form for the Italian club but errors afield helped the Athletics to get most of the runs. Hoffman led the hitters for the Italian club with 3 out of 5, while Wanacott was best afield, providing several good catches. For the Athletics the pitcher and shortstop shone, the latter providing several good running catches, going out to short left field. Great credit is due "Happy" Bontempo for bringing his team through a most successful season.

Another Carnera Exhibition

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, giant Venetian heavyweight contender, will box three two-round exhibitions with three heavyweights tomorrow night at the Arena. EMPEROR JONES RETURNS TO HIS FIRESIDE

ATLANTA, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Bobby Jones, returned from his fourth and last great golf conquest of the year, was safely ensconced tonight in his home where his kingdom begins and spreads around the world.

Bobby arrived at the Brookwood railway station early today from Philadelphia amid the cheers of his fellow-townsmen, the shrill whistles of locomotives and factories and the clicking newspaper and news reel cameras.

There was no great outpouring like that of July when he rode in regal splendor throughout downtown Atlanta and received the applause of almost everybody in Atlanta. It was just a homey greeting today.

Little Bobby, christened Robert Tyre III, shared the cameras with his smiling dad.

After the short greeting at the station, Bobby and his family left for their home in Bob's own car. Later in the day he was guest at a stag banquet given by his friends. Tomorrow morning he will return to his desk at his law office.

Another glittering cup was added by Bobby today to the three other ones representing the golfing leadership of five centuries when the American amateur title trophy was placed in the lobby of the Atlanta Athletic club.

Within a few days a fifth cup will join the others and in Atlanta for the first time in all history the greatest golf trophies of the world will be in the possession of one person. The fifth is the Walker team trophy.

These cups will be on display daily in the lobby of the Athletic club, Bobby's home town golfing organization. At night they are locked up. During the day they are carefully guarded.

THREE TEAMS INVOLVED IN LOCAL TITLE SCRAMBLE

Which team is the baseball champion of this section?

Within the past week there has arisen somewhat of an argument on this subject and one that promises to rage for some time. Three teams are engaged in the controversy. They are the Polish Citizens, J. B. Martin and Westerly Independents.

The Polish Cits took a five game series from the New London Kaceys in four, and claimed the New London county championship as this series had been between the champs of the City leagues in the two places. The Westerly Independents, because of an early season victory over the Citizens at a time when they had only a makeshift team, have claimed the baseball throne for these parts and seemed to add something to their claim Sunday by walloping the New London Kaceys 14 to 4 in the third and deciding game of their series. And then there is the J. B. Martin nine, which took two straight from the New London Kaceys and has taken the first game of its three-game city series with the Polish Citizens.

It is probable that the winner of the present Martin-Cits struggle will challenge the Westerly team.

WAR SECRETARY DONATES GOLF CUP FOR LEGIONNAIRES

BOSTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The donation of a $500 silver trophy to the American Legion inter-department golf tournament by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, was announced tonight by the Legion convention's sport committee.

A similar prize, presented by Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams, will be given to the lowest scoring Legionnaire who served in the navy or marine corps.

The field in the inter-department play will be limited to two golfers from each of the American Legion departments.

A golf tournament, open to all Legionnaires and their families, will also be played at Wollaston on the following day as a part of the convention sports program. Two hundred prizes will be at stake in this open event, which will also be over the 36-hole route.

YALE MAY TRY AERIAL GAME AGAINST MARYLAND SAT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29—(AP)—Maryland's moleskin warriors better brush up on a defense for the forward pass for there are strong indications that Yale will take to the air more often this year than it ever has before.

The Bulldogs, easy victors over Maine in their first game, battle Maryland at New Haven this Saturday and hope to gain revenge for the unexpected 13-13 tie of last year. Benny Friedman, who used to do his passing for Michigan, returned to New Haven today to aid Head Coach Mal Stevens polish up Yale's passing attack. He spent most of the afternoon with the backs and ends and some improvement was shown.

SAYBROOK TELEGRAPHER NOT TO MISS SERIES

OLD SAYBROOK, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The local railroad station will have to worry along without Matty Golden, its telegrapher, at least until after the Athletics and the Cardinals settle their little dispute over the world's baseball title.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

That aspirants for screen fame are recruited from varying walks of life is indicated by the cast assembled for "Holiday," the Philip Barry stage play which Pathe has brought to the screen and which closes its local engagement at Warner's Broadway today. Not one member of the cast belongs to a theatrical family.

Ann Harding, who plays the leading role, is the daughter of a general in the United States army. Mary Astor, who has the role next in consequence, is the only daughter of a college professor. Hedda Hopper is the daughter of Quaker parents and the niece of seven ministers of the Friends denomination.

The fathers of both Robert Ames and Monroe Owsley are leading business men in Hartford, Conn., while Elizabeth Forrester is the daughter of a wealthy retired contractor, who now lives on an estate in Palos Verdes, Cal., but was a resident of Kansas City, Mo., during his active business career. Creighton Hale is the son of an English barrister, while Edward Everett Horton and Mabel Forrest are both the children of business men.

Palace Theatre

"Thar she blows!" and a crazy crew, weary with the endless search of years sights the great white whale spouting its way through the water. And so we have "Moby Dick" one of the finest dramas of the sea ever written and ever produced playing at the Palace theatre where it will be shown for the last times today and tomorrow.

John Barrymore who played in "The Sea Beast" the silent version of "Moby Dick" is the star of this production and as Ahab the mad sailor who pursues his enemy he has done one of the most remarkable pieces of acting in his career. Recorded entirely at sea no picture could be more realistic and when a storm blows up the microphones have caught every sound. There is the mighty roar of the waves sweeping the deck of the old sailing vessel, the creaking of the masts and spars as the wind rushes through them and more terrifying than all the cries of the sailors fighting desperately for their lives.

Scene from "The Matrimonial Bed" A Warner Bros Production—
At the Palace Thursday

Joan Bennet was selected by Barrymore to play the part of Faith the minister's daughter with whom Ahab and his brother Derek are in love. She shows perfect understanding and interpretation of her role and has scored a great success.

On Thursday the Palace will present a double-feature bill combining "Road to Paradise" a mystery drama with Loretta Young, Jack Mulhall and Raymond Hatton and "The Matrimonial Bed" a comedy drama taken from the stage success with a star cast, Frank Fay, James Gleason, Lilyan Tashman and a dozen others.

BIG THRILLS OF WORLD SERIES

BY BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

No. 6—A New York Monopoly

The world's series from 1921 through 1923 was a closed corporation with the two New York teams, the Yankees and the Giants, furnishing the casts.

In 1921 the Giants won five games to three, the final play of the final game furnishing the big thrill of the series.

Ruth, who had hurt his arm in the previous game and had been forced to retire, batted for Pipp and grounded out to "Long George" Kelly, the Giants first baseman. Ward walked. "Home Run" Baker, hero of another world's series, seemed about to drive home the tying run when he hit to right.

But Johnny Rawlings made a great stop and threw him out for second out of the inning.

Ward, with a great lead, tried for third on the play. Kelly, with a sensational throw to third, retired him ending the game and the series.

The score was 1 to 0, the Giants having counted in the first inning on passes to Bancroft and Young and an error by Peckinpaugh.

In 1922 the Giants won four games to none, but the series included five games, as one was a tie. The radio made its first appearance in this series.

The first "million dollar gate" was registered in the 1923 series, won by the Yankees, four games to two. In this series the outstanding figure played on the losing team.

Casey Stengel, Giant outfielder, won two games with home runs and batted .417 for the series, but the next year he was in the minors.

Stengel's home run in the ninth inning won the first game by a score of 5 to 4. The Yankees won the second game, 4 to 3, three of the four runs being home runs, two by Ruth and one by Ward. One of the Giants' runs was a homer, contributed by Emil Meusel. Stengel's home run won the third game for the Giants by a score of 1 to 0, so the score after three games stood Stengel 2, Yankees 1.

The Yankees however, did not propose to be routed by one man, and in the fourth game they assaulted Giant pitchers for six runs, insuring the victory, 8 to 4, to deadlock the series.

Again in the fifth game the Yankees made enough runs to win early in the game, counting three in the first inning and four in the second and finally deciding the issue by a score of 8 to 1.

The sixth and final game was won after the American leaguers seemed about to go down to defeat. The Giants led, 4 to 1. One man had been retired in the eighth inning and only five putouts remained between the Giants and victory when Art Nehf, Giants' crack lefthanded pitcher, collapsed and lost control.

Schang and Scott singled and Hoffman, a pinch hitter, walked.

Bush, another pinch hitter, also walked, and as this made eight straight balls without a strike pitched by Nehf, he was retired in favor of Ryan. He, too, forced a run home by walking Dugan. Ruth fanned but Meusel hit safely and when the inning was over the Yankees had five runs, a total of six, and won, 6 to 4.

The cause of the assault was laid by his wife, Maria Donata Mosilo Loscri, to an over-indulgence in intoxicating liquors and attentions to another woman.

On Monday, final preparations were being made by workmen in the employ of the South County Public Service Co. in the clearing of the poles in the business section of Pawcatuck, preparatory to removing them.

When the new lights were installed on West Broad street several months ago, all light wires, telephone wires and fire alarm wires were put in underground conduits. Nine wooden poles along the thoroughfare have been left standing since then because some property owners failed to make connections with the new power wires.

It will be but a few days now until these wooden poles are removed.

Annual visitation was made on Sunday by the members of Budlong post, G. A. R., and the Woman's Relief corps to the Rhode Island Soldiers' Home at Bristol. A bus was employed to take a load and private cars conveyed the remainder of the group, there being about 25 in all, who made the visit.

Those taking part were the Berry Trio, the Trovato boys as soloists, and Mr. White in readings and songs. A presentation of birthday gifts to the veterans was made by department soldiers' home committee chairman and remarks were made by past commanders of the D. A. R., who were present.

The local auxiliary carried cakes and candy for the comrades at the home, and a basket lunch was enjoyed by the visitors.

PRICE INDEX OF 90 SHARES DROPPED 3.4 POINTS IN STOCK MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP)—Efforts to reverse the downward trend of share prices found Wall street still steeped in pessimism at the beginning of the new week today, and were quickly abandoned, permitting the general level to sink still further into new low ground for the year.

Selling was in heavy volume in the final hours of the session, and the day's turnover of 3,763,330 shares was the largest since June. The price index of 90 shares dropped 3.4 points to 149.8, or less than 10 points from the bottom touched in the October-November crash of 1929. During the morning, several issues rose 3 points or so, but by early afternoon, this upturn had been erased.

Bear pressure was said in brokerage circles to have been in important volume, but the belief persisted that real liquidation of long holdings of stock was still going forward. Selling of the oils, rails and several industrial specialties was particularly heavy. Further heaviness of the commodity markets was a reciprocal influence in the renewed pressure against stocks.

Business surveys issued by investment advisory services over the week end were none too cheering, and corporate and trade news was not encouraging. While most observers still believe that the worst of the business depression has been seen, there is now an increasing tendency completely to avoid predictions as to when real improvement may be expected, and speculative circles, apparently, prefer will o'wispe to unbroken darkness.

Further cuts in gasoline prices, with Standard of Indiana following Standard of New Jersey in its recent drop of 2 cents a gallon, prompted further selling of the oil issues. A break of more than 3 points in Texas corporation normally a stable issue, was distinctly unsettling, and so were declines of more than 2 points in Standard of New Jersey, and Standard of California. A long list of miscellaneous issues was depressed by bearish rumors over the maintenance of dividends. Wall street has expected that several more dividend reductions or omissions would be announced during the next few months, but there was little in the day's news to shed any new light on the situation. A cut in Texas corporation's $3 annual rate was even talked of, but this was discredited in quarters close to the management.

J. I. Case touched 131 1-2, off 12 3-4 points, and within 1 1-2 points of its low of last November. Canadian Pacific closed down 3 points, and shares finishing the day 4 to 6 points lower included: Loew's, Warner Brothers, American and Foreign Power, A. M. Byers, Johns Manville, Worthington Pump and Vanadium.

Shares closing 2 to 3 down embraced such issues as Bethlehem Steel, DuPont, Westinghouse Electric, North American, Atchison, American Smelting, International Telephone, United Aircraft, and Union Carbide. U. S. Steel common sagged to a new low for the movement at 156 1-4, then rallied to close at 156 5-8, off 1 5-8. United Corporation and General Motors lost as much. American Telephone and General Electric, were relatively well supported, losing only about a point. Radio corporation sank to new low ground, but was off only a fraction at the close.

Shorts showed little disposition to cover their commitments, save at falling prices.

An assortment of speculative commodities again dropped to record low levels for recent years. Wheat, cotton, silk, rubber and sugar, were under pressure. Wheat lost a cent and more a bushel, touching the lowest levels since 1907. September wheat sold at 72 3-4 cents. Cotton futures lost 85 cents to $1.05 a bale, recording the lowest levels in 15 years. Corn dropped more than a cent, then regained much of its loss.

Foreign exchange rates moved irregularly and without definite trends. Sterling cables touched $4.86, off 1-32, and the French franc eased. The Holland guilder and Japanese yen, however, ruled at the best levels of the year. Spanish exchange was again under pressure.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP)—A selling movement that developed after the curb market had rallied momentarily from Saturday's closing prices forced a wide list of shares to new low levels for the year today, in declines ranging from 1 to 8 points.

Renewed pressure brought out much liquidation and trading was at a fairly brisk pace, the day's business totaling 768,300 shares. The new break came during the afternoon to take by surprise the forces which had worked for an advance during the morning with a moderate degree of success. Some pivotal stocks advanced more than a point above their previous final prices before the retreat, starting in the petroleum group and extending to utilities and prominent industries reversed the trend.

The petroleum group was the hardest hit by the short selling and liquidation. Vacuum, Standard Oil of Indiana, Gulf and Standard Oil of Kentucky not only touched the lowest point in the year's trading, but broke below the 1929 lows established in November. Vacuum closed at 68, a loss of 2 1-4, and compared with 75 1-8, the 1929 low. Standard of Indiana lost 1 3-8 to 44 1-2, a half point under last year's low, and Standard of Kentucky rested at 27 1-8 at the close compared to 29 reached in November. Gulf, whose 1929 low was 115, slid down nearly six points to 101 1-8.

New bottoms for the year also were reached by Cosden, Houston, Lion, and Humble in losses of from 1 to 4 points. Cities Service was fairly steady, losing only 1-2.

After moving upward at the start of the session, Electric Bond and Share gave ground sharply, to reach 65 1-4 and close at 65 7-8, a net loss of 3 5-8. With losses from 1 to 3 points American Super Power, American and Foreign Power warrants, and Middlewest Utilities, reached new 1930 lows. United Gas, United Light and Power A, Tampa Electric, Eastern Gas and Electric, Niagara Hudson Power, sagged 1 to 2. Duke rallied 7 but then reacted to close 1 lower.

Many industrials and specialties were under pressure. Deere dropped 8 points to a new low and Driver Harris sagged about 4. American Cyanamid B, Fokker Aircraft, Lone Star Gas, Western Air Express and Noranda Mining, reached new lows for the year. Among inactive stocks there were wider declines. Chesebrough was off 15; Hart Schaffner and Marx, 32 and Commonwealth Edison, 11.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29—(AP)—William Cooper Proctor, president of the Proctor and Gamble company, said today that the low point in the business depression "probably was reached in July and we can look for a gradual approach to normal business which should be attained sometime during 1931." He added that before business returns to its former high levels, it is possible there will be another decline which may come in January or February, and it may be as low as the depression in July.

Net earnings of the Barnsdall corporation after all charges, including federal taxes, for the first eight months were sufficient to cover the full year's dividend requirements of $2 a share.

Wall street reports state that negotiations looking toward a merger of Gillette Safety Razor company and Autostrop Safety Razor company, are continuing and that while several bases for bringing the companies together have been discussed, nothing definite has as yet been decided upon.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the German reichsbank from 1923 to 1930, is scheduled to address the Bond club of New York at its luncheon October 9. He retired from his official duties with the reichsbank in March.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 29—(AP)—Sellers took the initiative in disposing of foreign and stock privilege bonds today and the price level of the bond market as reflected in the average showed a slight recession for the first time in more than a fortnight.

Featured by the weakness of Peruvian issues down 14 and 5 1-2 points, more than three dozen foreign bonds broke to new lows for the year, and the activity in the stock privilege group in the domestic division was at a high level as quoted values declined in sympathy with the break in the stock market.

In contrast was the forward movement of some seasoned rails and other high grade domestic issues to new high levels for the year, and the strong tone of United States governments. Several issues in the government group, surpassed or equalled the year's high prices and there was a particularly strong demand for Liberty 4th 4 1-4s, and Treasury 4s, the latter advancing more than 1-4 of a point. Sales for the day surpassed the highest figure of last week.

The wide break in Peruvian governments, was ascribed to a rumor that interest payments might be defaulted. The fiscal agents for the republic, J. W. Seligman and company and the National City bank, however, announced that they had received the entire amount required for interest and sinking fund payments due Wednesday on the first and second sixes, and the 7s. Peru 7s dropped from 91 to 77 and the first 6s of 1960, reacted 5 1-2 points, both obligations reaching new lows for the year.

Virtually every active German obligation registered a net loss, many dipping under the previous lows for the year established early last week. Losses ranged from a large fraction to more than 3 points. The largest turnover was in German governments, the 7s and 5 1-2s, each sagging 1-2 point to hold above the year's low.

In contrast was the strength of French governments. Both the 7 1-2s and 7s were well bought. The break in Peruvian issues unsettled many other Latin American issues. Brazilian 8s, Chilean 7s, 6s of 1960 and 6s, of February, 1961, Cuban 5 1-2s, and Buenos Aires 6 1-2s, made new 1930 lows.

Turnover of stock privilege issues was the heaviest in weeks. American I. G. Chemical 5 1-2s, down 2 1-2 points, Baltimore and Ohio convertible 4 1-2s, St. Paul adjustment 5s, off 3-4, Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron 6s, off 3-4, and Texas corporation 5s, were heavily liquidated. The sharpest loss was suffered by Warner Brothers 6s, off 6 3-4 points to 73 1-4, a new 1930 low.

Offerings tomorrow will include $2,000,000 Montreal Tramways 5 per cent bonds.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept. 29—(AP)—Reports of demoralized wheat trade conditions at Liverpool and persistent offerings there by Russia, led to further breaking of low price records today in Chicago. Smashes in Winnipeg wheat quotations to the lowest level ever registered on the Canadian exchange, 53 cents a bushel, were likewise a depressing factor, and so also was a big new increase in the United States wheat visible supply, already the largest ever known. Nevertheless Chicago wheat prices at times today rallied to above Saturday's finish, and talk was current that some buying of future deliveries was done here for Russia to offset recent sales.

The Chicago wheat market closed nervous at the same as Saturday's finish to 1 1-2c lower. Corn closed 1-8 at 1 5-8c down, oats unchanged to 3-4c up, and provisions varying from 20c decline to a rise of 25c.

Provisions were chiefly affected by downturns in the value of hogs.

MONEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 29—(AP)—Call money easy, 1 1-2 per cent all day. Time loans steady; 30 days, 2; 60 days, 2 at 2 1-4; 90 days, 2 1-4 at 2 1-2; 4-6 months, 2 1-2 at 2 3-4. Prime commercial paper 3 at 3 1-4.

Bankers' acceptances unchanged; 30 days, 2 at 1 7-8; 60-90 days, 2 at 1 7-8; 4 months, 2 1-8 at 2; 5-6 months, 2 3-8 at 2 1-4.

BUILDING WORK SHOWS MARKED DECREASE DURING THE PAST WEEK

The last week in September showed a very decided falling off in building in the city if the number of permits issued at the office of Fire Marshall Taft can be taken as any indication. Not a permit was granted during the past week which makes September one of the smallest months of the year. During the month there were 18 permits granted for new construction work but the most of it was for alterations and smaller work such as garages and sheds.

During the past week considerable progress was made on local contracts as weather conditions were very favorable. A number of the dwelling houses that are being erected in the city were completed.

On Boswell avenue two new dwellings were finished. The new house built by Contractor Henry G. Montie was completed and is now ready for occupation. This house is of modern American design and has six rooms and bath. Another house on Boswell avenue built by a local contractor was completed and is ready for occupation. This house is near the corner of Hickory street and Boswell avenue and is a very attractive house of the semi-bungalow type.

The work on the addition to the United Congregational church has been completed and the building is ready for occupancy. The addition is of brick with a granite trim and the interior is finished in hard wood and plaster.

Contractor P. F. Sweeney is making favorable progress on the new home of Harry Diachyshyn at the corner of Elmwood avenue and Broadway. The work on the interior of the house is nearly complete. The work on the exterior has been delayed owing to the inability of the contractor to get the novelty brick with which to build the porch and entrance to the house.

The new house that is being erected in the rear of 206 Broadway is well along the exterior having been completed and the work of plastering and finishing the interior is now being done. The house is being erected by a local builder.

On Monday work started in remodeling the third floor of the Majestic building for an indoor golf course to be installed for the Majestic Golf club. The work will include the removal and erecting of one partition, the redecorating of the large room, the erection of a small miniature clubhouse and the installing of the course.

Another indoor course is to be put in at the old Masonic temple building with nine holes on one floor and nine on the other. Much work is to be done here in the nature of removing partitions to get the necessary space. The work started on Monday.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were seven sales of real estate in Norwich as compared to 11 sales during the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $50,851 and $28,050.

In New London there were four sales of real estate during the past week, three less than during the corresponding week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $35,900 and $115,632.

NEW LONDON

Armed with data that is intended to convince federal officials at Washington that New London is in dire need of a new federal building here, a representative group of officials and prominent citizens of the city will go to Washington next week for the purpose of presenting the arguments in favor of the building before officials of the treasury department, a division of which has charge of federal structures.

Agitation for a new federal building here has been going on for several years now and each year the need has been shown to be greater than ever before. Prominent citizens who have shown a civic interest in the matter are now more optimistic than ever before that the federal government will recognize the need of a new building here and for this reason no stone will be left unturned in getting favorable action on the matter this year.

The new addition to the Savings Bank of New London in Main street has been enclosed. The enlargement is located in the rear of the old bank building and faces North Bank street. Yellow brick was used on the North Bank street frontage for the addition and regular red brick on the sides. The work of enclosing the top was being finished up this week. The addition is 50 by 70 feet and is three stories high including the basement floor which is on the level with North Bank street and ten feet below the level of Main street. The ground floor will contain a large garage and men's room, showers, etc.

The main floor will contain a new posting room that will be enclosed with sound proof walls to reduce noise from the posting machines to a minimum, an assembly room and offices. A mezzanine floor in the addition will be renovated and altered.

Building Permits

Louis Lubchansky, boiler room, Woodbridge street, $500.

Crown Sheet Metal Works, addition, 52 Prest street, $2,000.

Number of permits for the week, 3; estimated cost of buildings, $2,800.

WESTERLY

Building Inspector Thomas Wills and Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi have issued the following building and zoning permits for the last week in September:

FOUNDATION FOR NURSES' HOME IS STARTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 29—Set upon the rugged foundation of stone ledge are the first tiers of brick and limestone blocks entering into the new nurses' home of the Day Kimball hospital, which were laid during the past week. The brick work while in its early stages is well underway and before another month passes the walls will have reached a height where they will be visible from the center of the city. The nurses' home building occupies a prominent spot in the light of the city's building spot lamp. The entire eastern portion of the county is bearing a share of the financial requirements necessary to make such an institution possible. Everyone is doing his share to push the home fund campaign over the top, even to the tradesmen engaged in the construction work who are performing their duties with unusual speed and precision.

Continued progress is being made by builders at work on the attractive fraternal building being erected on Providence street for the Polish-American club. The ground floor of the building is to be used as a dance hall and social room, while the upper portions of the structure are laid out for lodge meetings and other organization gatherings. During the past week priming coats of paint were applied to the exterior of the building preparatory to the application of the permanent decorations.

Finishing touches are also being applied to the attractive garage building on lower Main street, which is owned by the Place Motor company of Webster, Mass.

There will be a number of building permits issued at the October meeting of the common council which is to be held on Tuesday evening October 7. The applications submitted are those of property owners planning to erect houses, garages and other smaller buildings.

With the sale of the numerous tenements and land holdings of the Adams Manufacturing company, which are located on lower Main street, an early rush of building and house renovation developments is expected to take place since nearly all of the houses were purchased by local people. The Adams property in that section embraced the mill village known at one time as Morse village. The architecture is uniform and it is because of this fact that many of the new owners are expected to undertake the task of giving their homes a touch of individuality by means of exterior renovations.

N. E. CITIES SHOW CONSTRUCTION GAIN

Building operations in the forty-nine large New England cities having a population of 5,000 or over increased almost 11 per cent. during August over July, as compared with the 16.2 per cent. decrease shown by 291 large cities in the country as a whole, according to a building permit survey by the department of labor.

The estimated cost of the total construction work set under way in the 49 large New England cities in August was $15,555,661, as compared with $14,020,252 in July. New England, along with the Mountain and Pacific region, was the only geographical section in the nation to report an increase during the month, in both cases due to increased activity in the construction of new non-residential buildings.

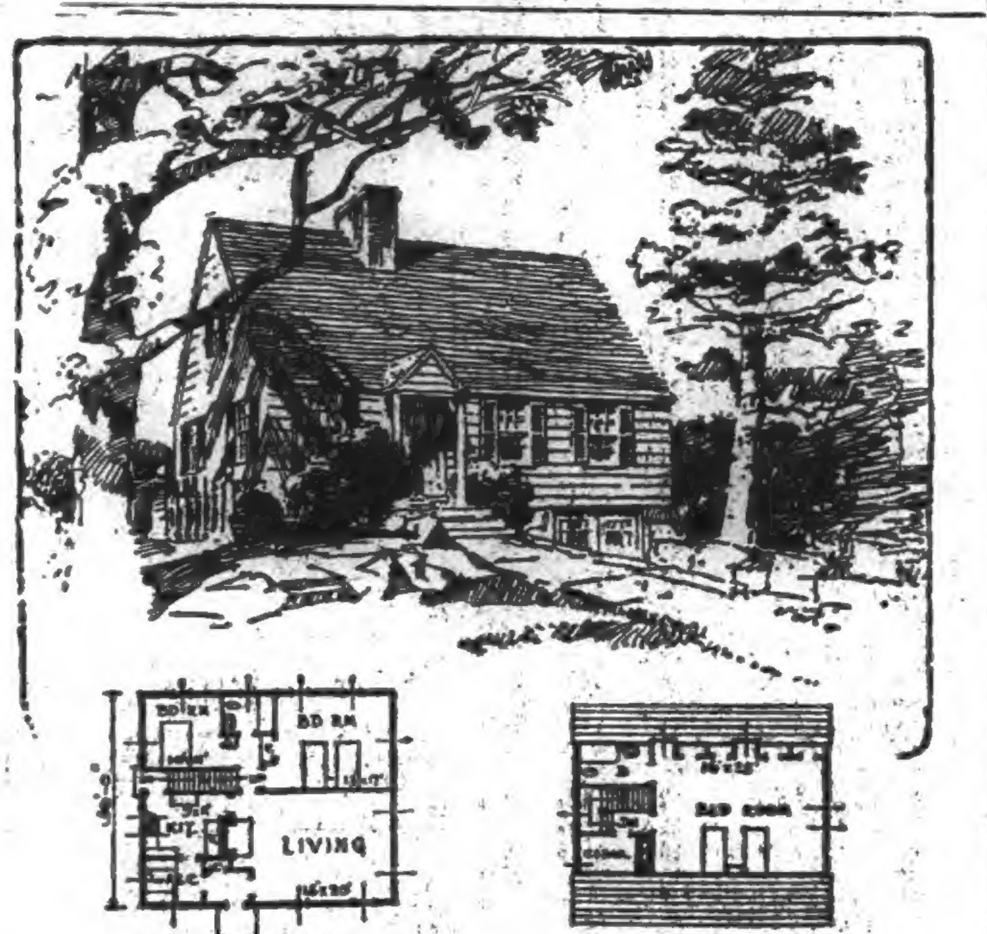
Of the total construction work begun in the New England cities in August new residential buildings were estimated at $3,439,870, as against $3,888,265 in July; new non-residential structures estimated at $10,022,605 compared with $6,866,843 in July; and additions, alterations, and repairs, $2,092,126, as against $3,265,144 the previous month.

Families provided for in the new dwelling houses started in the principal cities of the region during August numbered only 510, whereas 653 families were provided for in the dwellings begun in July.

DISAPPEARING STAIRWAYS

Disappearing stairways, that pop out of sight into a recess in the ceiling when not in use, have enabled many home owners to convert their attics into living quarters. Operated either by hand or by electricity—in the latter case all you do is push a button—they open the way to finishing off the attic without sacrificing lower floor space for a stair well. Where there is not sufficient headroom in an attic to make it suitable for living quarters, these stairways provide access for storage purposes.

No Waste Space in This Compact, Simple Dwelling



Making all the space between four walls count is the principal idea in planning a small house like this one.

A large guest room, with bath, occupies most of the second floor. It is commodious enough to hold several beds in case the house is built in the country where the master may wish to entertain good-sized parties during weekends.

On the first floor there is still room for a family of four. The two bedrooms at the rear of the house have a bath between, with the generous-sized living room placed at the front. This arrangement allows four windows and hence plenty of light for the most important room of the house.

The fireplace nook, an important feature of every well-planned living room, adds the finishing touch. There is still space behind it for the kitchen, alcove and stairs.

If possible this house should be built on a slope, if only to provide space for building the garage under the house. This is a far more desirable arrangement than placing it at the rear of the lot. Where the lot is level the garage must of necessity be built above ground, however.

If there is a good view from the front of the house there should be seats on either side of the entrance porch. If possible the house should face toward the west.

Woodwork should be painted white, except for the shutters, which should be green. A green roof would harmonize well if there are woods around the house.

Size of the lot should be about 50 by 100 feet. The house would cost between $6,000 and $7,000.

NEW BUNGALOW ON BOSWELL AVE.

The above is a picture of the new house erected on Boswell avenue on the site of the house that was destroyed by fire about a year ago. The house is of the bungalow type being a story and a half high and having six rooms and bath. The exterior is very attractive in gray-green stained shingles with a creamed trimming. There is a porch at the front of the building with a small covered portion for the entrance way while the remainder of the porch is open. There is also a small porch in the rear. The interior is very attractive in hard wood and hard finish plaster.

CITY DWELLERS HEAD TO COUNTRY

Tenements and even skyscraper-apartment buildings of the better class, will start disappearing from American cities during the next ten years, it was predicted recently by Harry Edward Freund, director of the American Research foundation. His prediction was based on an extensive survey of home-building trends.

"Improvements in home building methods have made it possible for American families to realize their longings for homes of their own," Freund asserted.

As a result he said, thousands of city families already are starting a trek to suburban towns and villages and the movement gives every indication of gaining momentum. He cited the recent census figures to prove that in almost every American metropolitan center the highest population gains were scored by the outlying residential centers.

"Better transportation systems, including electrified trains and widened highways, is partly responsible for this development," Freund said, "but more compelling than this is the inborn desire of every American to own his own home. If he can build a modest residence in the suburbs and still have all the advantages of city living, he is sure to desert the city."

OLD FLOORS PROVE MOST PERMANENT

If new flooring is to be part of the interior remodelling program the permanence of the material selected should be considered. The durability and beauty of oak makes it desirable for this purpose. Any coloring or texture which the home owner may wish to have can be obtained from among the various widths of red oak, plain or quarter sawed.

In laying a new floor no interior woodwork need be disturbed, except the quarter-round, and the entire house may be floored, one room at a time with little disturbance to the household. The appearance of the finished floor and its wearing qualities are as great as if the oak had been laid when the house was built.

COLORED PAPERS ON BATHROOM WALL

Where once the walls of the bathroom knew only tiles or waterproof paper these modern rooms are walled to suit the taste of their owner. The tiled wall papers have given way to papers of richest Chinese designs and colorings, floral papers, papers with brilliant red or yellow backgrounds across which flit birds of brilliant plumage, or ships with colored sails. When wallpaper is given a coating of shellac or varnish it becomes waterproof and also assumes a mellow hue most attractive.

FATALLY INJURED BY BUNG FROM A NEAR BEER KEG

CHICAGO, Sept. 29—(AP)—The bung of a keg of near beer blew out and struck Simon Langton, the bartender of an establishment in Monee, Ills., on the nose nine days ago. Today he died from the injury, blood poisoning was the cause.

$1,329,785 SUIT AGAINST THE GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 29—(AP)—Suit for $1,329,785.98 was filed here today by the United States government against the Great Northern railway, charging the railroad company had been overpaid that amount during government control of the railroads during and after the World war.

HOME BUILDER NEED NOT FEAR COST OF EXTRAS

When ground grading and shaping is completed, the next important operation is covering the lawn area with a green carpet. How should you proceed? Remember the lawn or grass area is one of the most important things you will do and of course you want it to be permanently satisfactory.

Many people fail in this at the start through hurried and improper soil preparation in their feverish haste to cover the bare ground with green grass. Make haste slowly. You cannot have good permanent grass unless you have good ground underneath it. The soil must be thoroughly broken up into fine particles, fertilizer should be added to it because grass plants, like any other plants, must be fed. If lawn areas are thoroughly prepared and enriched you may then sow grass seed with confidence that perfect greensward will clothe the earth surface in a few weeks.

The planting you do about the home demands careful consideration to avoid the danger of doing something only to find out later you have done it wrong. Above all things avoid the mistake of spotty planting which is the result of dotting tree or shrub here, there and everywhere. Except for an occasional tree which may be desirable to give shade near the house, trees or flowering shrubs which grow to fairly large dimensions should be planted on the outer property lines along or contiguous to the street.

The planting close to the house demands the utmost care and thought to obviate the possible appearance of a house rising above a tangle of vegetation. Such plantings need not be continuous; in fact, the effect will be better if there are spaces where the base line of the house can be seen. The subject chosen must be carefully selected to fit positions which they will not quickly outgrow.

It is perfectly absurd to plant forest trees like pine, hemlock, spruce, close to house base lines, although this is being commonly done. In a few years they darken the windows and have to be removed. If you do not know what to choose ask someone who knows. There is ample available material in both evergreen and flowering shrubs to design perfect plantings which will not outgrow their positions in 20 years, either in perpendicular or horizontal lines.

However small the place to be landscaped between the house foundation plantings and the outer or street line plantings always preserve an open area of grass for breadth, repose and contrast to the planted spaces.

Do not spoil the grassy foreground of the house with circular, crescent or fancifully designed flower beds. Let the flower garden be a separate adjunct appropriately placed in relation to the lawn, house and other planted areas.

Finally, simplicity, not over-elaboration, should be the rule in the embellishment of small places.

Uncontested Divorces For Hearings

Six divorces which are on the uncontested list have been assigned for hearings Friday for the superior court short calendar session in New London at which Judge C. L. Avery will preside. They are the following: Emma Taft Chase vs. Sterrill M. Chase, Grace E. Rice vs. Leroy Edwin Rice, Victoria Pyzo Carnathan vs. Christian Robert Carnathan, Samuel S. Heavilin vs. Rose Wheeler Heavilin, Leatha Zeller Hewitt vs. Preston R. Hewitt, Florence Fitzpatrick Ford vs. Harry B. Ford.

that both parties are anxiously awaiting the arrival of election day, at which time the real campaign will get underway. That Clarence E. Pierce, senior member of the board of selectmen, both in official capacity and point of years of service, will be re-elected by the customary large majority is a foregone conclusion. Mr. Pierce, a republican, has served the town as a selectman for more than a quarter of a century. Being a man of ability and enjoying the high esteem of every member of the community there is not the slightest doubt but that Mr. Pierce will be returned to office by one of the largest majorities ever scored in his long and colorful political career.

There still remain three candidates in the field seeking election to the town governing board. William P. Warren, republican and Edward F. Girard, democrat, are incumbents and Alderman Francis X. Vadnais, senior member of democratic row in the common council this year, tossed his lot into town politics when he accepted his party's nomination for the board of selectmen. Mr. Vadnais, who has served two terms in the common council, is a popular official and a strong vote-getter in his home ward. Ward 2 which embraces practically all of the north end of the city. The contest for election to this post promises to be an interesting one and one in which the outcome will remain in doubt until the election returns are made.

Another important contest is on for the office of town tax collector. Lewis T. Champlain, former co-publisher of a local paper is waging a battle for election on the republican ticket against the democratic incumbent, Alfred J. Bonneville. Both are considered by their respective parties as strong candidates.

Aside from the contest for election to the town school committee, only usual interest will be manifest in election day. John M. Hogan of Tatem street is a candidate for this office on the democratic ticket. This is Mr. Hogan's first venture in local politics and his strength cannot be gauged at this time. Hogan is a running mate of Mrs. Dorothy J. Bartlett, who is a candidate for re-election. They are pitted against Eric J. Johnson, chairman and veteran member of the board and Mrs. Elvira L. Barber, secretary of the board. Only three candidates are entitled to election and since the republicans have retained a majority on the school board for a number of years, a sharp contest for the party to continue in this capacity is promised, while the democrats are determined to offer the most heated offensive ever made to elect both their candidates.

FUNERAL

Amanda C. Blid

The funeral of Amanda C. Blid, 91, who died late Friday afternoon at her home in North Grosvenordale, was held Sunday from her residence with services at the Swedish church in North Grosvenordale at 2 p. m. Rev. Fritz Soderberg, pastor of the church, officiated and conducted committal services at the grave in the Swedish cemetery. The service was largely attended by many friends and relatives of Mrs. Blid who was known as one of the few nonogenarian's living in the town of Thompson. There was a profusion of floral tributes in evidence which indicated the wide circle of acquaintanceships Mrs. Blid enjoyed in the village of North Grosvenordale, where she had been a resident for more than 40 years.

A death at the Day Kimball hospital yesterday was that of Mrs. Catherine Goyette of North Grosvenordale, whose death followed a long illness. She was 42 years of age and was married to Oliver Goyette of North Grosvenordale, who survives her.

Her many friends in Putnam and nearby communities will be gratified to learn of the marked improvement in the condition of Mrs. Edgar M. Warner of South Main street, who has been a patient at the Day Kimball hospital for the past 10 days, where she has been suffering from a heart attack. It was reported this morning that Mrs. Warner's condition was considerably improved and that she is resting comfortably. Mrs. Warner, for many years, was secretary of the town school committee.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

Mrs. Etta Kinnie, of Plainfield, has been visiting friends here, where she formerly lived.

Adelbert Rice, who is employed in Voluntown, spent the week-end at his home.

Mrs. William Lambert and children, of Moosup, are to make their home here with Mr and Mrs. Felix Lambert, parents of the late William Lambert. Mrs. Lambert's oldest son, eight years old, is in Newington in a hospital. He has been a cripple for some time but recently is able to walk without crutches. The little boy has not been told of his father's sudden death a week ago as they fear the shock to his nerves may affect him seriously.

Mrs. Charles Barber, Miss Mary Tracy and Miss Dorothy Tracy took an automobile trip over the Mohawk Trail Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Elizabeth Wilde, student nurse at Backus hospital, Norwich, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr and Mrs Ernest Wilde

Wedding Invitations

Invitations have been received to the wedding of Miss Louise Margaret Harrington and Arthur Muldowney at St. Thomas' church, Providence, early next week. The bride-elect formerly lived here and is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harrington, of Johnston, R. I., former residents here. The groom-elect lives in Providence.

Mr. and Mrs John McDonald and children, of Nyack, N. Y., are visiting their relatives, Mr and Mrs. George Potvin.

Mrs. William Doty, of Boston, is the guest of Mrs. Cora Day.

Rev. and Mrs Frank A. Fuller, of Putnam, have been guests of their relatives, Mr and Mrs. Elwood Byles.

Mr and Mrs. Stuart Ellsworth and children, Priscilla and Stuart, Jr., spent the week-end at their cottage at Misquamicut.

A banquet room is being fitted up in the room below the Odd Fellows' lodge room in the Odd Fellows' building. The room was formerly used as a market by George Potvin. This will fill a long-felt need for social functions.

M. F. Barry, of New London, was a business visitor.

George Jollie and William Bradley motored to White Plains, N. Y., Sunday.

A union service of the Fifteen-Church Fellowship was held at the Congregational church Sunday evening. Rev. Dwight LaFollette, pastor of Oneco church, delivered the sermon.

Preached as Candidate

Rev. William White, of Worcester, occupied the pulpit at the local church Sunday morning. Mrs. White accompanied her husband, who is a candidate to fill the vacancy, as no settled pastor has been called since Rev. George Reese resigned.

Clifford Gauthier, of Norwich, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Gauthier.

Miss Lucy Lafrance, of Providence, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs Urgele Lafrance

She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor, Miss O'Neil, wore blue chiffon Faccone with transparent velvet. Her hat was in turban style of blue velvet. Over Night at Hospital

An automobile driven by Louis Kelly, of Cambridge, Mass., overturned in East Lyme Sunday when the driver suddenly changed the course of the car suddenly to avoid hitting a pedestrian and crashing with another auto. Mrs. Kelly sustained sprains of the right arm and lacerations of the scalp and her sister, Mrs. John Gomats, also of Cambridge, received sprains, bruises and lacerations. The women were brought to New London and taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital where they remained over night and were discharged today.

GETS OFF ON A QUIBBLE—SAILOR DRIVER FREED

Frank C. Halderman, U. S. Coast Guard, was in the police court this morning on two charges, of reckless driving and driving without a license. Although Helderman pleaded guilty on the first count, the testimony introduced by the officers causing the coast guarder's arrest was not deemed sufficient by the court to warrant a conviction or penalty and Halderman was adjudged not guilty. On the second count a fine of $10 and costs was imposed. Halderman and the owner of the automobile were at a Bank street dance hall in company with females, Saturday night and the automobile was parked on the same street. About 11 o'clock the sailors and girls decided to go for a ride, but when the quartet reached the street A. H. Nover, owner of the auto, decided that he was too drunk to drive and refused to do so. The two girls and Halderman then went to a nearby restaurant where the sailor negotiated with a taxicab driver to do the driving and together the party drove away in the auto, leaving Nover behind. The auto was observed traveling at a high rate of speed through Main street by Patrolmen John Sullivan and Arthur Feeley, who gave chase in a commandeered machine, but the sailor's car soon disappeared from view. The markers on the speeding auto, however, were observed and when Nover went to police headquarters and reported that Halderman had taken the car without permission, it became known who was in charge of the car. Halderman was arrested later at the state pier. In court when testimony was taken the witnesses could not make oath that Halderman or the taxi driver was at the wheel when the car speeded through Main street and principally for that reason, Halderman was found not guilty of reckless driving.

Edgar D. Pierce, Shore road, Groton, was charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and pleaded guilty. He was fined $100 and costs. Pierce was arrested Thursday afternoon by Patrolman George Ashboue, after the automobile had nearly hit several school children.

Edward J. Foley, Fishers Island laborer and Michael Powers, employed at the island as a bricklayer, were in court, the former charged with breach of the peace and intoxication and the latter as a material witness. Foley was sentenced to 30 days in jail and Powers was discharged.

Fined $5 and Costs

Max Rogovin, 48 Hempstead street, was charged with using the highway of Mather court as a junk shop and violation of the city ordinance prohibiting the parking of an automobile on Main street longer than one-half hour. Rogovin was found not guilty on the first count, but on the second a fine of $5 and costs was imposed. Rogovin was arrested Saturday when it was claimed he was storing junk in the highway, but the accused claimed that the metal had been left in the court only temporarily. When Rogovin was in court Saturday and his case was continued until today, his automobile was discovered parked on Main street where it had been for more than an hour. He was arrested again.

William Fitzgerald and William Tunney, both of Long Branch, N. Y., were charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. They were given suspension of judgment. Fitzgerald and Tunney were taken from a Boston to New York bus upon complaint of the driver, who claimed that the men had annoyed and insulted passengers.

Forfeited Bond

John W. Fiske, Jr., of Pelham, N. Y. was charged with speeding failed to present himself and his bond of $25 was forfeited. Fiske was arrested Saturday by State Police Officer John Smith.

Frederick Vinal, Middletown, was charged with reckless driving, had his case continued to Oct. 6. Vinal was arrested on Main street Saturday by Patrolman John Clifford.

Leaves $15 for City

Garaner Pettis, Edgwood, N. J., was charged with failing to stop at an automatic danger signal at Main street and Crystal avenue, did not appear and his bond of $15 was forfeited. Pettis was arrested Sunday.

F. Douglass Rogers, of Waterford, charged with parking in restricted area on Pearl street; Samuel Nazer, 164 Shaw street, parking overtime on Shaw street; Samuel May, Oakdale, blocking traffic on State street and George Mather, 18 Mather court, charged with various violations of the traffic law. May was given suspension of judgment and Mather's case was continued to Oct. 6. The other drivers failed to appear in court and their respective bonds of $2 were forfeited.

Mrs. Mary Dwyer, 11 Tilley street; Mrs. Helen Vickleman and infant daughter, Avery court, Groton; Mrs. Edward Smith and infant son, Quaker Hill, Waterford, and Mrs. Samuel Turello and infant daughter, 579 Bank street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

FUNERAL

Walter K. Peterson

Funeral services for Walter K. Peterson, a former member of the crew of the Shamrock V, were held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at his residence, 48 West Coit street, Rev. George R. ANNOUNCEMENTS

New Water Color Pencils

Even the most artistically inept of us have our moments of inspiration, moments when we visualize a certain decoration. We can well imagine how effectively the light would throw in bold relief a spray of pine needles silhouetted against the moon upon a lampshade, just how the sun would glorify yellow tulips bordering the muslin curtain. Alas, too often we lack the ability to carry our visions through to execution. We've tried, but watercolors, crayon and charcoal have betrayed our amateur effort. Many of us who really can draw a little with a pencil wish we could wield the brush as well. A few of us who can paint have been frustrated by lack of time in which to catch some elusive bit of beauty that passed before we were able to set up the canvas, blend the colors and get into action.

As is the case today when old methods do not quite suit modern needs, science takes a hand in solving the problem. A certain American pencil manufacturer has made it possible for the least of the artists among us to achieve a good effect with watercolors, and for the most expert to have at hand quicker, easier mediums for reproducing what we admire.

Lead Water-Soluble

Now we can paint with pencils! The ordinary pencil with which we've long been familiar is merly a thin crayon-like lead surrounded by wood. It lacks toughness, is soft, crumbles under pressure. Time and care are necessary to obtain any sort of smooth effect on paper. The new colored pencil which looks like the old one is very different, and the difference lies in the lead.

For the new colored pencil has a scientifically compounded special water-soluble lead. With it we can make color drawings in the usual way and water colors too. And our mediums are unlimited almost. Paper, silk, leather and wood can be commandeered as the basis for scintillating aquarelle effects that pleasantly surprise the professional artist. Even the skin we "love to touch" will form a background for the itinerant beach artist.

Many Effects Possible

The latest process is so exceedingly simple! We can either draw the desired color on the surface, then wash it in with a brush, or we can wet the surface first, then draw in the color. Colors may be superimposed — such as a red being applied after the yellow has dried—or blended, that is, red and yellow make orange, to any desired shade. The colors are washable, and after being "fixed" they remain the same shade, whether wet or dry.

Any woman now can add a touch of decorative charm to any accessory the beauty of which she feels needs adorning, may refresh fading curtains, may increase the chic of hat, frock or slipper, may hand-color a print that may have caught her fancy. In brief, in the new aquarello colored pencil, the housewife has a decorative tool that is simple, effective, easy to handle and the artist an implement equal to his most exacting requirements. He can draw in his sketches wherever he happens to be and "wash" them in later at his studio. No more messy paints to lug around—just a few lightweight pencils, that's all!

No More Piles

HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, is guaranteed to banish any form of Pile misery. It gives quick action even in old, stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it heals and strengthens the affected parts and removes blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. Only an internal medicine can do this, that's why salves and cutting fail. Lee & Osgood and druggists everywhere sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it cost you nothing if it doesn't end all Pile agony.

Sullivan—Labrecque

A very pretty fall wedding took place Monday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Memorial church when Miss Eva Louise Labrecque, daughter of Moses and E a Labrecque, of 147 Central avenue, was united in marriage with Robert L. Sullivan, son of Mrs. Bridget Sullivan, of 6 Tyler avenue, by Rev. George J. Donahue, the pastor. Miss Mary McAndrews, of Providence, a cousin of the groom, was bridesmaid, while Leo Bergeron, a cousin of the bride, acted as best man. The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of tan lace and carried an arm boquet of pink roses. Miss McAndrews wore rose colored beige chiffon and carried yellow and burnt orange gladioli. Immediately after the ceremonies, Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan left on an unannounced wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside with the bride's parents on Central avenue. Mrs. Sullivan's going-away costume was a gown of canton crepe with hat and coat to correspond. Mr. Sullivan holds a responsible position at the Thermos Bottle Co. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan have a large circle of friends in the vicinity, who extend their wishes for a happy and prosperous married life.

The boys of Greeneville have started to prepare for their annual barrel fires for Thanksgiving night by stealing many of the residents' barrels. The boys have emptied the contents of the barrels in lanes and along the highway, but in some instances they were emptied on the premises, which does not appeal to the owners, for they have the work of cleaning up the refuse.

The Novena of the Little Flower is growing more popular each day at St. Mary's Memorial church with larger attendances present at both the morning and evening services. Rev. George J. Donahue, the pastor, gives the short sermon which is very instructive and inspiring, relating to the life of St. Teresa, who is known as the Little Flower.

The ladies of St. Andrew's church met at the Third Baptist church Wednesday, to make pads to be used at the W. W. Backus hospital, and finished 1,000 pads for the hospital. ELECT REV. DR. SHIPHERD PRESIDENT OF ASSOCIATION

Vice President Myron E. Genter called the meeting to order when the Norwich Ministers' association met Monday morning at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church. Prayer was offered by Rev. A. N. Foster, pastor of the Universalist church. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Rev. George Warren Potter.

It being the annual meeting the nominating committee, Rev. A. N. Foster, Rev. Joseph Cooper of Trinity church and Rev. Charles H. Ricketts of the Greeneville Congregational church, submitted their report which was received and ratified by the association. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Rev. Theodore M. Shiphers, of Park Congregational church; vice president, Rev. Percy A. Kilmister, of the First Baptist church; secretary, Rev. George W. Potter, of the First Methodist Episcopal church; treasurer, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, of the United Congregational church.

Rev. Mr. Genter gave a number of important announcements. Dr. David A. Pitt brought a matter of great importance to the young people of the city before the meeting and it was referred to the new president.

The treasurer, Rev. Mr. Abbott, gave a comprehensive report which showed a good balance in the treasury.

Rev. Mr. Kilmister spoke briefly of the coming season in regard to the council of religious education and Rev. Mr. Cooper also talked on the matter, speaking especially about the finances.

The speaker of the day, Rev. Mr. Shipherd, had selected as his subject "Innocents Abroad." At the beginning of his talk he asked each of the brethren the thing they wanted to hear especially about England. After writing down the various topics he spoke most interestingly but briefly on each. The topics were: The League of Nations, prohibition and the 18th amendment, church attendance in England and the Englishman's attitude toward church, England's opinion of the United States, the preachers of England, the industrial situation, Lloyd George, England's attitude toward India and church union in England.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Potter after the speaker had been given a rising vote of thanks.

A delicious dinner was served at 12:30 consisting of meat pie, mashed potatoes, sweet potatoes, carrots and peas, pickles, rolls, coffee, peach shortcake and whipped cream. The women who served the dinner were: Mrs. Alida Boyens, Mrs. Edna J. Browning, Mrs. Emma Bliss, Mrs. Anna McNeely and Mrs. Clara Phillips.

Rev. Myron E. Genter asked the blessing and a spirit of good fellowship prevailed during the dinner. At the close of dinner the new president, Dr. Shipherd, prevailed upon Rev. J. Eldred Brown, pastor of Trinity Episcopal church, to give a brief account of the recent Episcopal retreat held at the Choate school, Wallingford.

The new president, Dr. Shipherd, led in a discussion of some length as to the policy of the program for the new year in the association.

MAKES PROPOSITION FOR RE-OPENING IMPORTANT NORWICH MILL INDUSTRY

The possibility of re-opening an important Norwich mill property which has been closed for some time was presented at the annual meeting of the Norwich chamber of commerce which was held Monday evening at the Wauregan hotel with a supper meeting at which there was an attendance of close to 100.

The opportunity of putting this mill property into an operating industry by the first of December was presented in a communication from an out of town mill man, which was read to the meeting by Miss Mary Bundy, acting secretary of the chamber, who stated that it was the intention to have a committee formed within a week to canvass for stock subscriptions.

The proposition is made for the formation of a corporation in which $50,000 of preferred stock would be taken by Norwich citizens and $100,000 by the business man who is back of the endeavor. The stock would be 7 per cent cumulative, callable at 107. A special type of new machinery for the manufacture of the mill product would be installed and the expectation is that the business would be conducted at a substantial profit and by the end of a year would be operating with 320 employes and a weekly payroll of $8,000.

President Frank R. Murdy called the meeting to order at 6:15, opening with a verse of America and the invocation was pronounced by Rev. W. J. Sly, pastor of the Third Baptist church. F. Russell Smith and Flint Brayton were the song leaders and Waldo Newberry was at the piano.

When the business was reached President Murdy announced that the meeting was to elect six directors who were to take the place of those whose terms had expired as follows: George R. Fellows, Abner Schwartz, Joseph C. Worth, John R. Tarrant, Henry F. Powers, Henry D. Johnson.

Six Directors Elected

Those named by the nominating committee and endorsed by the chamber officials were duly elected as follows: Charles V. James, Christopher M. Gallup, William H. Cruickshank, James C. Henderson, Jacob Slosberg, and Francis E. Storer.

The six directors whose terms continue are Benjamin H. Palmer, Jr., William J. Fitzgerald, W. Harry Stebbins, Glenn R. Merithew, A. N. Van Wagenen, and Frank R. Murdy.

William G. Park, who was introduced as toastmaster by President Murdy, took the post with brief remarks in a pleasant vein and introduced as the speaker of the evening P. L. Gerety of Derby, Connecticut, secretary of the New England council, who gave an optimistic entertaining and instructive talk upon the general topic of "New England".

Speaks on New England

Referring to business depression, Mr. Gerety said he believed New England had not suffered as much as other sections and he spoke of opinions given at the recent quarterly meeting of the New England council that there were definite evidences of an upturn and an increase of employment, which were to be increasingly continuous for the next 18 to 20 months.

He said he believed it was possible for Norwich and other places to get new industries, but you have got to go out after them and he advised that New York was the place to find industries dissatisfied with living and labor conditions and desirous of moving out. He recommended that an industrial bureau be maintained there by any city desiring to secure new industries and he set the raising of $15,000 a year as the price which would be needed to bring results.

It is has been often stated Mr. Gerety said, that manufacturers already located in a place are opposed to new industries coming in, but he could say with authority that he knew that was not so. The industrialists of New England are not opposed to the industrial, social and civil betterment of this section. There is not a group of our citizens that is generally so broad minded as the industrial leaders.

In this connection, Mr. Gerety said that 40 per cent of the support of the New England council was contributed by industrial concerns, 20 per cent came from the public utilities, eight per cent from the railroads, twelve per cent from insurance people, ten per cent from banks and the remaining nine per cent from retail merchants, realtors, hotels, newspapers, advertising agencies and insurance brokers, all of whom have a very definite interest in the growth of New England.

When we look at total figures, said Mr. Gerety, New England has not been slipping, but we have lost industries. We have not gone ahead as rapidly as we should, but there is a new psychology in New England now which will eventually bear its fruits. We have a remarkable background, but it will be of little value unless the experience gained is employed for New England improvement and expansion and not as a traditional lullaby to dull our imagination and perspective. Unfortunately, up to but several months ago the latter has been true. We have been complacently unmindful of the attacks of the middle west and the south. We did not realize that more detrimental propaganda was being circulated about New England than any other section of the country. We were not alive to the need for combative activity. But we are unwilling longer to sit idly by. We must let the country know who and what we are. We must inform the middle west and south that the sun does not shine there alone. New England is the natural all year round playground of the country. In no other section can you find labor possessing the industrial skill and leadership to compare with New England. This section is and always will be the home for industries requiring a high degree of skill and for mass production where quality is a definite factor.

Another fact that it is well to emphasize is that New England is contributing a disproportionate share to the cost of federal government for the benefits obtained. We are paying a stiff price for the development of other sections of the country and instead of gratitude we are attacked.

The boot and shoe and textile industries make up 31 per cent of our activity. The other 69 per cent is made up of 200 different industries, indicating considerable diversification in our industrial life. Furthermore, we have but two per cent of the area of the country, seven and one-half per cent of its population, nevertheless contribute 15 per cent of the wage bill. We produce 80 per cent of all rolled brass and copper, 75 per cent of all textile machinery and parts, 65 per cent of all woolen and worsted goods, 40 per cent of all bronze and brass products, 40 per cent of all hardware, 45 per cent of all firearms, 80 per cent of all ammunition, 66 per cent of all silverware, 40 per cent of all jewelry and all cotton manufactures, 75 per cent of all clocks, 36 per cent of all paper products, 22 per cent of all cutlery, 40 per cent of all boots and shoes other than rubber, 58 per cent of all rubber boots and shoes.

Mr. Gerety went on to speak of the formation of the New England council of 72 men representing the six states and of its purpose and some of its accomplishments. "This is our answer to the challenge to the rest of the country," he said in conclusion. "We intend to hold what we have, expand in keeping with our natural advantages and skill, modestly but effectively proclaim the importance of our position and the ever increasing contribution we are making to good government, happiness and industrial development. In this you can help. Let New England continue to be the best section of the best country in the world."

The meeting came to a close with the singing of a verse of The Star Spangled Banner.

BRINGS $15,000 SUIT AGAINST GOSS ADMINISTRATORS

Suit for $15,000 damages has been brought in the superior court here by Ellen Tefft of Washington, R. I., against Attorney Harry C. Brogan of Groton and John H. Tefft of Norwich, administrators of the estate of Luella E. Goss, late of New London.

The complaint alleges that at the time of the death of Luella E. Goss, she was indebted to Ellen Tefft for board, care, nursing and services, furnished her by Ellen Tefft and for money paid out, amounting to $12,500.

In addition to this claim, Ellen Tefft alleges that in consideration of the services rendered by her and for such services as she might render to Luella E. Goss until her death, she promised Mrs. Tefft that she would make a will in her favor and in favor of her husband, Sam Tefft, and would leave them all of her estate except half of her bank account which she would leave to another. The value of the entire estate is about $16,000 and the value of the estate less one-half of the bank accounts is about $12,500, the papers allege.
